The following programme was rendered: Overture, piano, Miss Mary Agnes Smith; Psalms of Life, Frank Casey; The Builders, Alice Murphy; violin solo, Evangeline, Elizabeth Schuck; The Children's Hour, Madeline Seaman; The Building of the Ship, Frank Hand; chorus, selected, Children of Higher Grades; Footsteps of Angels, Bessie Parent; Sunrise on the Hills, Francis Donnelly; closing chorus, Children's Choir.

MRS. MARSHALL-SMITH AND VAN EPPS ENTERTAIN.

Enjoyable Affair Under the Auspices of Young People of Crescent Avenue Church.

Mrs. Minnie Marshall-Smith, well-known here as a reader, assisted by her husband, Frank Smith, Fred and Will VanEps, banjo and mandolin players, accompanied by Harry Wet*ton, pianist, presented a select and* enjoyable programme at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, last night, under the auspices of the Young People's Association. The chapel was well filled with members and friends of the association and the affair was a success financially and otherwise.

Mrs. Smith gave four numbers and was obliged to respond to an encore each time. Mr. Smith accompanied her on the piano in some of her recitations, which were interspersed by banjo and mandolin selections, which were also encored. After the entertainment refreshments were served.

Silver Anniversary Arranged.

The Women's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will celebrate its twenty-fifth anniversary Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the church parlors. Reports of the society's progress will be made and there will be an address by Mrs. D. E. Ward, of the Women's Board, and Mrs. Crane, president of the Presbyterial Society, is expected to be present. The twenty-fifth anniversary offering will be devoted to the work of the Women's Board. The meeting will be followed by a social half-hour.

Rev. S. D. Davis Dead.

Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis left today for West Virginia to attend the funeral of Rev. S. D. Davis, the father of B. C. Davis, president of Alfred University. For many years Rev. Mr. Davis was pastor at Lost Creek and Salem, W. Va., and shortly after the war Dr. Lewis was associated with him in his work. Mr. Davis was loyal to the Union during the Civil War and as a result had many thrilling experiences in the region where he lived.

P. H. S. Play Committee.

The committee for arrangements of the senior play of the Plainfield High School was elected yesterday and consists of the president, William Douglas; the Misses Helen Johnson, Gertrude Abbott and Mabel Cubberley; Joseph Van Deventer and Weston Gavett.

Six Take the Examination.

A class of six men took the postal civil service examination at the post-office on Saturday, for positions of clerks and carriers. At present there are no substitutes and in case of illness in the regular force the service would be handicapped.

Relief for the Chinese Sufferers.

Mrs. S. F. Higgins, teacher in the public school at Watchung, recently raised $2.50 among the pupils of the grammar grade for the Chinese sufferers, to be sent through the Christian Herald agency.

—Delicious Florida strawberries are received at Neuman Brothers' fresh each day. Lots of other fancy fruits and vegetables.

REDMEN WILL GATHER

JUDGE NEWCORN GOING

He Will Head Plainfield Delegation, Being Past Great Sachem, and Will Report For Committee on State Legislation.

Judge William N. Newcorn, past great sachem of the order, will head a delegation of Indians at the session of the Great Council, which will meet in Trenton tomorrow, for the fifty-sixth time. Redmen from all parts of the State will assemble at the State capital to take part in the meeting. Judge Newcorn will present a report on the fate of the bills for the advancement of secret societies presented at the last session of the State Legislature.

The Redmen will convene in the Trenton Y. M. C. A. Hall tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock, and continue sessions for two days. The order is the second in point of membership in the State, and it is expected that over 400 past sachems will be in attendance at the session. There is much important business to be acted upon this year.

The officers who will serve at the session are: Great prophet, Herbert F. Stetser, Gloucester City; great sachem, Charles Thompson, Atlantic City; great senior sagamore, Frank Jackson, Camden; great junior sagamore, Emile W. Schabilon, Hackensack; great chief of records, Daniel M. Stevens, Camden; great keeper of wampum, William J. Smythe, Long Branch; great sannap, Harry J. Rathbone, Trenton.

The council will be honored by the visit of Past Great Incohonee Robert T. Daniel, of Griffin, Ga., who is considered one of the most learned members of the order in the United States, and who will represent Great Incohonee W. A. S. Bird, of Kansas, who is a member of the State Legislature and cannot attend, as the Legislature is in session.

Great Prophet John W. Cherry, of Norfolk, Va., and Great Chief of Records Thomas K. Donnolly, of Pennsylvania, have also accepted invitations to attend.

A feature of the session will be the reports of Great Sachem Thompson, Great Chief of Records Stevens, Great Keeper of Wampum Smythe and the finance committee.

Great Sachem Thompson will show that the order had a prosperous year, and that the Legislative Committee appointed at the session was successful in having laws adopted by the State Legislature last year making it a misdemeanor to wear the emblem *or use the ritualistic work of any in*corporated fraternal organization when not a member.

Great Chief of Records Stevens this year finishes his twenty-first year in that capacity, and his report, reviewing the work during that length of time, will show that the organization has increased in membership from 5,911 to 26,061. And during that time only three years did the order lose in membership, and that was during the general depression in business, when all organizations lost heavily in membership; that the total wealth of the tribes had increased from $77,569 to $522,432,81, and that this year the order increased in membership nearly 1,000. The average increase in membership is nearly 1,000 a year, which is claimed to be the best record of any organization in the State.

Great Keeper of Wampum Smythe's financial report will be as follows: General fund, receipts, $12,-964.73; disbursements, $7,759,22, leaving a balance on hand of $5,205.-51; old men's fund, receipts, $2,124.-91; disbursements, $78; balance, $2,-046.91; orphans' fund, receipts, $2,-563.65; disbursements, $1,260.75; balance, $1,303.20.

Bible Class League.

There were three games in the Bible class basketball league at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon. The Crows defeated the Eagles, the Hawks carried off the Storks, and the Crows fleeced on the Hawks. By that ornithologically revolutionary victory—did that knock anybody's eye out?—the Crows assumed first place. They are likely to keep to the high latitudes right along.

To Publish Laws in Newspapers.

Senator Joseph T. Frelinghuysen, under the head of miscellaneous business, introduced a bill in the Senate yesterday which provides for the publication of the State laws in the newspapers. He also called for Senate bill concerning the State sanitarium on tuberculosis diseases, and at his suggestion it was placed on second reading.

—Neuman Brothers make a specialty of fresh picked mushrooms. They are also displaying Florida strawberries.

PERMITS DISSECTION OF DEAD BODIES

SENATOR ACKERMAN SECURES PASSAGE OF BILL FOR MEDICAL SCIENCE.

At the request of Dr. F. C. Ard and a number of other physicians in this city and throughout the State, Senator Ernest R. Ackerman introduced a bill incorporating pathological and anatomical associations to whom institutions may deliver dead bodies not claimed by relatives.

The measure was passed yesterday. There has been no State law which would give physicians the right to use dead bodies for dissection in the interest of medical science and it has been their hope that such a law be passed, conforming to those in force in other States.

The bill provides that dissection shall be conducted under proper rules and restrictions, and the measure is drafted purely in the interest of medical science. The petition ruging the adoption of the bill was signed by thirty physicians.

"PEASANT BOY" CAST SELECTED BY AUTHOR.

"A Peasant Boy," a comic opera in three acts, by William E. MacClymont, organist and choirmaster at Grace church, will be given its premiere production in May at the Casino, *elaborate arrangements now be*ing made for the event. Mr. MacClymont has made nearly all of the selections for the principal parts, those decided upon being Mrs. Theodore Mantz, as the leading soprano; Miss Margaret Yeager, William N. Runyon as the valet to the prince; William Tallamy as the prince; Joseph C. Martin and Bayard Hawthorne. The words of the opera are by Dr. Charles A. Clinton, of New York, who was a school-mate of Mr. MacClymont. Several New York managers, it is said, have heard the score and are favorably impressed with it.

The scene is laid in the south of France and the opera opens in a village square showing a mill in the distance. The peasants discover the fact that the miller is determined to marry his daughter to a certain wealthy young man because of his money. The daughter dislikes her father's choice. At this juncture the prince arrives in disguise, traveling "incog," accompanied only by his valet. The prince's father has disowned him from home and he is roaming about. The miller's daughter falls deeply in love with him, though she thinks he is a peasant. Subsequently the prince's father finds out he had wronged his son by sending him from home and he issues a proclamation in an effort to find him.

In the meantime the peasant, who is the choice of the miller for his daughter's hand in marriage, trumps up a flimsy charge and has the prince put in jail. The valet dons his master's clothes and appears as the real prince. When the king locates his son he is surprised to see the valet masquerading as his offspring, but through the efforts of his valet he gets out of jail and is proven to be the true prince. The miller's daughter, who is an adopted child, turns out to be a relative of the king's family and of high station with his son. Of course, as in all love stories, the prince becomes the husband of the miller's daughter.

K. G. E. OBSERVANCE.

Freedom Castle Holds a Musicale to Celebrate Sixth Birthday.

Freedom Castle, K. G. E., observed its sixth anniversary last night, with a musicale. The lodge room was filled with members and their feminine relatives and friends.

The programme included selections by the K. G. E. orchestra, composed of Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, M. A. Korff, L. A. Hummer, Jr., and Ernest Higham; songs by Mrs. C. M. Nagle and addresses by Grand Chief Kirby, of Bridgeton; Grand Vice Chief Conditt and Past Grand Chief McKenny, of Philadelphia. The latter made a speech notable for its eloquence. The members were still commenting on it this morning.

The anniversary committee was made up of Dr. J. H. Buchanan, Edward Schuyver, C. V. Kinney, Raymond Carver and Walter Randall.

Rudolph Buck Operated Upon.

Rudolph Buck, of West Front street, who has been suffering from the effects of a needle in the arm, which found its way there while he was putting on a coat several days ago, underwent an operation at the hospital today for the removal of the small piece of steel. By aid of the X-Ray machine the needle was located imbedded near the elbow and a photograph of it was taken a day or two ago. Dr. W. H. Murray performed the operation, assisted by Dr. Hervey Buchanan.

BOARD BILL OF A HORSE

ANIMAL AN INVALID

Made So By a P. S. C. Trolley Car But Company Won't Pay; Horse's Former Owner Disclaimed Title To It.

This is the tale of a horse; an ordinary; every day member of the equine family that did the best it knew how as a beast of burden, but has involved the gigantic Public Service Corporation, the city of Plainfield, a liveryman and its owner in a mix-up.

The horse was one of a team belonging to John King, of Bound Brook, which was struck by a P. S. C. trolley car on West Front street early in the winter. One of the animals was killed and the survivor was taken by the police and placed in George Cole's stables on West Second street. It was somewhat crippled but gave evidences of lots of vitality and would undoubtedly be all right if given proper care.

King and the trolley company argued long and excitedly as to who was to blame for the collision and, of course, as to whether the Bound Brook man was to receive damages. In the end, the P. S. C. claims agent agreed to give King a certain amount but specified that he should take the horse at Cole's. The latter, it must be remembered, was giving the animal the care it needed.

King consented and got his money but he might have taken a long trip through the alfalfa district so far as anyone knew for he disappeared from these regions. Cole got anxious and talked with the trolley people but they said "See King, we've settled with him." Seeing King was another matter so Cole had a consultation with the police department. You understand, of course, that the horse was getting the care and it costs money to hand it out in the form of grooming and oats.

The police informed the liveryman that they had forgotten all about the matter and that they believed the P. S. C. would stand good. Of course, they said, they knew they had put the horse there until the owner had gotten straightened out after the collision and so far as they were concerned the incident was closed. Not so with Cole, however, as the animal was still getting its care and waxing fat on fine oats and hay at his stable.

The care-giver finally concluded the only thing o do was to sell the horse and he advertised the fact according to law. It was put at auction by Justice H. K. Hand Monday afternoon and brought the munificent sum of $23, a significant figure from a "skidoo" standpoint. When the sale was over Cole started to figure and this is the way the whole affair came out financially: For giving John King's horse the care it needed for several months—$88; received from sale of John King's horse—$23; amount to be looked for from either John King, the city or the P. S. C. (auctioneer's fee and advertising expenses to be added)—$65.

King has shown a decided disinclination to take a hand in the discussion so developments are being awaited. The horse, however, has stopped loafing and gone to work, fully equipped for service by the care it got at Cole's.

BRIGGS' RECEPTION.

Union County Politicians Among Guests Last Night.

The Republican Club tendered a reception to United States Senator-Elect Franklin O. Briggs last night in the club house on East Hanover street in Trenton. The event was largely attended by members of the Legislature.

Among the invited guests were Frank H. Smith, of Plainfield; Hamilton F. Kean, of Elizabeth, and State Senator Joseph Frelinghuysen, of Raritan.

Senator-Elect Briggs was kept busy from 8 to 10:30 shaking hands with those who crowded the club house. During the evening luncheon was served.

In Past Master's Memory.

Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. and A. M., at its communication last night held a memorial service for Past Master Peter G. Emmons. Addresses were made by District Deputy Townley and Past Masters Stephen Affleck and W. R. Runyon.

To Attend Briggs' Reception.

Senator-Elect Briggs will be tendered a reception tomorrow night by the Camden Republican Club, at Camden. Governor Edward C. Stokes will speak. Among the invited guests are former Mayor James F. Buckle.

SEVEN ARE SENTENCED IN CO. COURT TODAY

CUFF GETS 1 YEAR; REDDINGTON 2 MONTHS AND MOORE 2 MONTHS.

Severe sentences were handed out in the Union County Court, this morning, when several prisoners were arraigned. Edward Cuff, convicted, from this city, convicted on a charge of stealing $5 worth of junk from A. M. Griffen's hardware store, was sentenced to one year in State prison. He has a bad record, having previously served a term in the Reformatory at Rahway.

James Leo and Michael Croon, Italians, convicted of the larceny of jewelry from a residence in Fan*wood, where Croon was employed,* were each given two years in State prison.

Michael Reddington, of this city, convicted of stealing a watch valued at $12, was sent to the county jail for two months, and Robert Moore, convicted of keeping a disorderly house and Sunday selling at Fanwood, was also given two months in the county jail. There was a strong plea in his behalf on account of a large family and the prisoner's cir*cumstances.*

James Wilson, of this city, who has a record for stealing bicycles, was not arraigned, his case being postponed for a week. Joseph Espard, of Elizabeth, convicted of stealing lead pipe from a residence in Roselle, was sent to State prison for two years. He had a bad record, being previously convicted of assaulting a little girl.

WALLACE TO LECTURE.

Those who read the noble and pathetic story by Dillon Wallace, entitled "The Lure of the Labrador Wild," giving an account of the exploration of the interior of that unknown region, by the late Leonidas Hubbard of "The Outing," Mr. Wallace and the guide Jeppen, on which trip through freezing and starving no unkind or acrimonious word was uttered, will be glad to know that an opportunity will be afforded of hearing Mr. Wallace on Monday night, March 11.

The lecture will be given for the benefit of the Boys' Mission Band of the Crescent Avenue church, in its chapel at 8 o'clock. The title is "What I Saw in the Labador and Dr. Grenfell's work," and it will be illustrated by many fine views. Mr. Wallace is greatly interested in Dr. Grenfell's work and will very generously devote his portion of the proceeds of the lecture towards its assistance.

MISS FANCHER ENGAGED.

Announcement Made at Social Gathering at Mrs. Langdon's.

Mrs. Philip Cuyler Langdon gave a charming social function at her home in Fanwood, this afternoon, to announce the engagement of Miss Lillian Fancher, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. F. W. Westcott, to Edward Frank Howe, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Howe, of Troy, N. Y. Miss Fancher was one of the bridesmaids at Mrs. Langdon's wedding and other members of the bridal party were present, in addition to guests from New York, Brooklyn and other cities nearby. The announcement in the nature of a heart party and that popular game was a feature enjoyed by all. The home was elaborately decorated, the prevailing color being pink.

Mr. Howe is a student at Williams College, class of '07, and while no date has been set for the wedding, it is expected that it will not take place until after Mr. Howe's graduation in June.

A Day at Kemendine.

Miss Julia G. Shinn, who has spent seven successful years at the Kemendine Girls' School in Burma, had charge of the devotional service at the postponed meeting of the Home Missionary Society, held yesterday af*ternoon in the lecture room of the* First Baptist church. The subject on the programme was "Lydia or Faithful Service" and Miss Shinn spoke impressively of the power of Christian woman for influence and service. Her observations in both the home and foreign lands had taught her, she said, that the transforming power of Christian women were of inestimable value in bringing the world to the knowledge of Christ. After a series of interesting current events given by Miss Harriet Mattison, Miss Shinn delighted her audience with an account of a day at the Kemendine Girls' School in Burma, giving a vivid description of the duties, vacations and cares of a missionary, with the many opportunities of doing good.

Senate Investigation.

Without a dissenting vote, the State Senate at its afternoon session yesterday adopted Senator Minturn's joint resolution providing for a commission to investigate the increased cost of coal and ice.

BANKER SOUNDS WARNING

L. V. F. Randolph in Address on "February Memorial Days" Points Out Some Dangers.

SPIRITUALITY GONE

Much In Society That Is Vulgar—Broader Education Needed—The Scramble After Riches.

In a scholarly and most instructive address on "American Memorial Days in February," former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph, until recently president of the New York Consolidated Stock Exchange, last night lauded the character of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln. He compared the two, showing their similarity in moral fibre and spirituality and noted the effect they had on American life. Passing on from this subject, the lecturer dwelt upon the unparalleled prosperity being enjoyed today and incidently pointed out the dangers that confront the people.

Mr. Randolph said in part:

"Just one hundred and thirty-one years ago today, General George Washington, then anxiously and energetically gathering his forces for a great effort to expel the British Army from Boston, issued general orders, urging upon the patriot soldiery of his command, such behavior and duties as were specially suitable to their situation and task; and warning them against misconduct and frivolity. He went further than this, and gave his men clearly to understand that misbehavior would be punished, and that no mercy would be shown to the coward or shirk. Some of the words of these 'general orders' of February 26, 1776, are worthy of being quoted here as examples of Puritanlike sternness, high purpose, and strong resolve. 'At this time of public distress,' writes he, 'men may find enough to do in the service of God and their country without abandoning themselves to vice and immorality. It is a noble cause we are engaged in; it is the cause of virtue and mankind; every advantage and comfort to us and our posterity depend upon the vigor of our exertions; in short, freedom or slavery must be the result of our conduct; there can, therefore, be no greater inducement to men to behave well. But it may not be amiss to the troops to know, that, if any man in action shall presume to skulk, hide himself, or retreat from the enemy without the orders of his commanding officer, he will be instantly shot down as an example of cowardice; and whoever having too frequently disconcerted the best formed troops by their dastardly be*havior.'*

Lincoln.

"During the past week we have remembered the birthday of the Father of his Country, who was born February 22, 1732. After a life devoted to the service of his country, he expired almost with the expiring days of the eighteenth century which his life had illuminated and glorified. About ten years after his death a child was born in the State of Ky., whose life was to go far toward glorifying the nine*teenth century. That child* became the man, the great leader, the noble martyr, Abraham Lincoln. Washington was a son of Virginia. In some sense the same statement is true of Lincoln. The spot in Kentucky where Lincoln was born was still, in the days of his parents and grandparents, a part of the great territory of Virginia. His grandfather, Abraham Lincoln, was murdered by the Indians, and his widow and her little family saved from a like fate by the courage and alertness of an older brother. Under such risks and difficulties were preserved to America the blood and character that were to stand it in good stead in the great trial of the Civil War.

A Demon's Crime.

"It is nearly forty-two years ago since this great leader and president, whom we reverenced and idilized, was cruelly slain;—a man who was more to America than perhaps any other man whom the Lord ever gave

The March issue of The Metropolitan Magazine might well be set up as the standard of American magazine publication. The first instalment of "The Mexican War," a series of important historical value, by Professor Robert McNutt McElroy, of the Department of History of Princeton University, begins what gives promise of being the most fascinating and important journey into the past of this country that has appeared in recent years. Nowhere what we have never had—a complete history for the people of the most romantic period in our country's growth. "The Fur Seal Fisheries," containing portions of the President's Message and illustrated in color and with photographs by the United States Government Agents, opens one's eyes to the crime against the seal. W. S. Dudley, Secretary of the Motor Boat Association, has written an article of absorbing interest on "Motor Boating in all its phases, commercial and pleasure."

The March Everybody's preserves its customary fair balance between information and entertainment. The informing articles are of unusual timeliness and timeliness. In accordance with cabled instructions, Vance Thompson undertook to interview Cardinal Merry del Val, Papal Secretary of State, on the church question in France, and succeeded far beyond his expectations. "War Against Christ" is the title of his remarkable resultant article. "The Needless Slaughter by Street-Cars," by Joseph F. Fox, is an expert consideration of American street-railway conditions, the conclusions are eye-opening. "The Shadow in High Finance," by David Ferguson, is an account of the entrance of detectives into present-day financial operations. Olivia Howard Dunbar writes of the woman's rights movements of the world in an article entitled "The World's Half-Citizens."

Beyond question the two merriest rogues of current fiction are Alex Beach's "Kink" and "Mojave Mike Butters," who have figured in Doc "Pot-Hunter" stories that deal with western foot-racing and sports. They are ever welcome visitors to those who enjoys a laugh, and their latest escapade, "The Cumbling of Kinkassas," in the March McClure's, is chuck full of comedy situations and side-splitting laughter as a reader could wish. "Kink" begins the yarn by describing how he broke a bank and recovered the roll he had lost on the "brace" faro lay-out; and then narrates how he and Mojave Mike pitch "The Butters-Martin Mastodon Minstrels" "that busts into Kansas, and lays waste every hamlet play." The main object of the minstrelsy is to sell cologne at an unheard of price, and thereby increase their stake. The history of that cyclonic theatrical tour is a capital farce—the best Alex Beach has written. You want to avoid it if it hurts you to laugh.

Farmers have the advantage of millionaires, according to David Grayson, who, in The American Magazine for March, reports an argument he had lately with John Starkweather, a very rich man. Here is a little of the plain talk which Farmer Grayson gave to Millionaire Starkweather: "We dig and plant and prospect and having eaten at the first table we pass what is left to the bankers and millionaires. Did you ever think, stranger, that most of the wars of the world have been fought for the control of this farmer's second table. We farmers, sit back comfortably after dinner, and joke with our wives and play with our babies, and let all the rest of you fight for the crumbs that fall from our abundant tables."

PLAYING CARDS.

Peculiarities of Those Used by the Different Nations.

"One of the most interesting collections of foreign loot that I've seen recently," said a man ordinarily too busy to make the trip over the seas himself, "is an assortment of playing cards from various parts of the world.

"In every country the owner of the collection visited—and he went to a good many—picked up cards of local manufacture and so representative of the nation.

"The Russian cards are perhaps the most elaborate. The faces of the kings and queens are different in each suit, indicating the racial elements that go to compose the Empire.

"On the Greek cards classical heroes and heroines are represented. Nestor, for example, is the king of hearts and Orestes the knave. Agamemnon is the king of clubs; Hercules the Jack of spades and Minos and Danae the king and queen of diamonds. The Greek pack is rather a cheap one and scarcely does honor to the celebrities portrayed.

"Cadiz is a center for card manufacturing. The idea of the Spanish cardmaker seems to go to get as much color on the cards as possible. The royal robes are of unusual magnificence. The clubs are big bludgeons in green and red, and the knave of clubs, seated on a prancing horse, reminds you instantly of Jack the Giant Killer. The spades are ugly little daggers, and for hearts and diamonds there are disks and dice cups. The cards in some of the Spanish packs are very thin and have a capital spring.

"The Madeira cards come from Lisbon. The figures are more conventional in design than on the Spanish. The ace cards are adorned with typical Portuguese scenes.

"A peculiarity of the pack bought in Constantinople is that the ace cards, in addition to the single spade, diamond, club or heart in the center of each, have diminutive aces at the upper left hand and lower right hand corners.

"The Italian face cards portray decidedly gloomy personages. Each one of the face cards, by the way, carries in small print the name and address of the maker. There are tiny packs, an inch and a quarter by an inch and three-quarters in size, which can be bought on the streets of Naples for a soldo. These resemble the Spanish cards to some extent, although the royalties are more dignified.

"Cairo is a great card emporium, and Mousky street offers rich returns to the card hunter. Fortune telling cards must be in demand there, to judge from the samples I saw in the collection. The Cairo playing cards come mostly from Germany. They are brilliant in their coloring. The aces carry scenes from lands both west and east.

"The gem of all the packs comes from Switzerland. The cards are small, one and three-quarters by two and a half inches in size, and the back design is the edelweiss. The kings, queens and jacks are delightful studies in Swiss costume, and the purchaser certainly gets his money's worth, for each place card has two half figures quite unlike. On the aces are Swiss scenes and objects of interest, also two to a card, the subjects including the castle of Chillon, the Matterhorn, the bridge at Lucerne and the Lion of Lucerne."—Indianapolis Star.

GOOD COLLATERAL.

Tom Fitch, of Nevada, was a bright fellow and one of the best writers and stump speakers of the west, but he was thriftless and when he got hard up would resort to almost any means to get a stake.

One day he wrote a scathing speech denouncing Sharon, then president of the Bank of California and afterward United States Senator from Nevada. In it he charged Sharon with almost every crime known to the Decalogue and statutes. He put the manuscript in a large envelope and walked into the Bank of California.

"Here," he said to the cashier, handing the package through the window, "here are some securities which I offer as collateral on a loan. Please hand them to Mr. Sharon in person, and I will wait for his answer."

Mr. Sharon was in his private office. Breaking the seal of the envelope, he found the speech and read it through, together with a note from Fitch, informing him that unless he was paid $5,000 he would deliver the speech in every town in the State. In a few minutes the cashier, on Mr. Sharon's order, reported that the collateral was all right and paid the happy Fitch the desired amount.

Three months afterward, having gone through the money in speculation and dissipation, Mr. Fitch made his appearance with another speech, this time of a very complimentary character, which he promised to deliver at every convenient opportunity for the same amount. This, too, proved good collateral, and the story would never have come to light if Fitch had not, in a moment of drunken frankness, told it himself.

NOTES AND INCIDENTS OF FOREIGN LIFE.

The British Admiralty has ordered all warships at sea to make meterological reports, morning and evening, to wireless stations every day as long as they can keep in communication. This is to help the Meteorological Office in its forecasting.

Thomas King was fined in a London police court the other day for taking his baby to a pawnshop and trying to pawn it for 50 cents, wherewith to buy gin.

Japanese Jinrikisha men disapprove of the advent of the auto. They see in it a dangerous rival. The expression of their disapproval usually takes the form of a brick or cobblestone.

In a six-weeks' run at Drury Lane theatre 250,153 men, women and children saw the pantomime "Sindbad the Sailor."

"Fred Marshal" Tom Thumb (Richard Garnsey), who attracted large audiences by his diminutive stature fifty years ago, has just died at Wellington, Somerset, England, at the age of 73.

At a London mission meeting a man arose in the audience and asked the pathetic question: "Is it possible for a typewriter agent to be an honest man?" The missioner paused a few seconds in thought and then replied solemnly: "With God all things are possible."

Finding that stone-breaking and oakum-picking were not profitable enough, the authorities of Horsham, England, decided to put able-bodied paupers to work at grinding corn in a mill. Next day not a pauper was left in the almhouse.

The British Medical Journal wants to know why people go all out to a play in a theatre without coughing and cannot do the same in the case of a sermon in a church.

A small fable that had been many years in an almshouse at Bristol, England, was sent recently with other discarded furniture to an auction room, where it was recognized as a Chippendale and sold for $367.50.

March 3: "The Duty of Testimony."
By REV. WALTER J. TOZER, D. D.
Acts 1. 8; Ps. xxxi. 5-6; Matt. x. 32, 33; Rom. x. 9, 10; Rev. xii. 11.

If it is a truth that men as a race is lost and that all men by practice are sinners and that Jesus Christ came to save all from their sins and that some of us are conscious that He has saved us, then one of the most startling duties on us is to tell as widely and effectively as possible the facts of our salvation and bear witness to Christ.

However severely the problems of our everyday existence may press upon us and the struggle for a living may tax time and energies, there is no one who needs or can do without the bread and butter problem absorbs the best of his effort and interest. Our needs are more pressing than those merely of the stomach. We must have bread, but we more urgently need Him who is our bread as well as the giver of every good thing. Our lives are stunted and mean when we keep them too close down to the merely earthly. We need God and the constant refreshing of His presence to live in any satisfactorily. The fullness and richness of our life do not consist even a little in the abundance of the things we have or the prominence of the place we occupy. True quality of life depends on the extent to which it is God filled.

So our duty and ability to witness for Christ do not depend on the amount of talent we have or the position to which we are placed.

What is it to witness for Christ?

Many seem to act as if it is making a formal speech or "testimony in meeting" for ordinary folks had preaching a sermon or giving an address by ministers and such like people.

We would not in the least underrate the value of sermons and the more formal varieties of Christian testimony, but there is a vast world of other witnessing for Christ that is scarcely important and which is the much neglected.

Let every one cultivate the habit of regularly speaking in the services of the church to be sure. There is great gain by such systematic methods to personal growth in the religious life. But this should be only the beginning of the work of witnessing. By far the more important is the unconscious testimony which breathes at all times from us in the words and smiles from the rose because it is a rose.

So we are to be so thoroughly Christian at all times and in every place that the Christ light most naturally shines through the face, and the Christ tones speak through the voice, and the Christ presence is felt by the grip of the fingers, the flash of the eye, the spring of the step and every line of the countenance and curve of the body.

Is this fancy, do you say? It is our business to make it veritable—practically everyday fact. And shame on the Church if we have not already begun it in right good earnest. We can by love Him and want to show that love. Then begin to do it by making your tones of voice sound like His. A good imitation, now! Be that as it may, it is very apparent to be. The lips must speak from the heart. Fill the mind and heart with Jesus, live all the time with Him, and we shall talk like Him and look and act like Him. This is the best kind of witnessing possible.

Let us have fellowship in spirit, and we shall also have fellowship with Him in work.

Love's Debt.

It is often said that a service rendered and another loved is its own reward. It is worth to look for love's reward. Earth holds no sweeter pleasure than that of bestowing love and blessings upon those whom we love—the surrounding of dear lives with comforts and enjoyments at the expense of our toil and sacrifice. It sanctifies labor and robs all hardship of its sting to know that through it our hands can pour out gifts, our arms can infold those dependent—for like a protecting garment, but we long to see the face beam, the eyes brighten. "It is love's dear recompense. It would be neither hunger nor natural not to long for and expect it.

God deserves all hours out the treasures of His goodness and beneficence. He guards us through the careless days and thoughtless nights. He is patient with the patience of the Most High, but still the heart of love that is above all human love yearns for recognition. He sends His gifts upon the just and the unjust, indeed, and is kind to the unthankful, but it is upon those who know and rejoice in His love that He bends the smile of the Father.—Forward.

To Claim God For Our Own.

The Lord is my Shepherd; He maketh me to lie down; He leadeth me; He restoreth my soul. Take your attention from yourself a little while and look at Him, for, since it was Christ put upon your lips, you have ever need it with anything more than the lips; if you have any right to use it; if you have ever taken any steps toward winning the right to use it. Nothing can God call our own, to have and enjoy Him as ours, means—as Christ, our Master, said over and over again—that we give ourselves to Him and take Him to our hearts. Sheep do not choose their shepherd, but man has to choose, else the peace and the fullness of life which are here figured remain a dream and become no experience of Him.—Professor George Adam Smith.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning March 3.
By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Being Honest with yourself and God.—Luke xii. 1-3; Josh. xxiv, 14.

Dishonesty toward God, or, as it is more commonly called, hypocrisy, has prevailed throughout all time. It began with Cain, who made an offering to God, but not in sincere and honest manner. In the days of Joshua there were those among the children of Israel who professed to believe in God, yet worshiped idols, and therefore he was called upon to exhort them to "fear the Lord and serve Him in sincerity and in truth and put away the gods which your fathers served on the other side of the flood and in Egypt and serve ye the Lord." In the time of Christ the Pharisees were the personification of hypocrisy, and the Master often denounced them for their false professions and warned His disciples against their example. And how much hypocrisy there is in the religions world today! How many profess religion, yet do not possess it! How many have the form of godliness, but not its power! All such are dishonest with themselves and with God. Many of them are deceiving even themselves while they are trying to deceive God. No doubt many Pharisees of Christ's day really believed themselves to be all they professed. They were blind, and, while ever ready to pick flaws in others, they could see no faults in themselves. No more pitiable condition can be imagined than for a man to be hypocritical in his religion and yet to think that he is honest and sincere. His case is almost hopeless, for if we do not realize our sinfulness it will be impossible for us to seek pardon for it. Let us therefore examine our hearts thoroughly and see whether we are really what we profess to be—whether we are honest in our religious lives.

There is every reason why we should be sincere and honest in religion, and no argument can be advanced in favor of hypocrisy, for hypocrisy avails nothing with God. We may deceive men for a time by pretense, but God cannot be deceived. Insincere religion is no religion. "God is a spirit, and they that worship Him must worship Him in spirit and in truth." Otherwise it is not worship, but mockery. The hypocrite may repeat prayers, but he never prays. God sees the heart, and no religious forms, however numerous or elaborate, can make up for insincerity in the heart. Moreover, hypocrisy is soon detected. Job declares that hypocrisy is like the spider's web. How apt the illustration! The spider's web is wonderfully woven, but what is weaker? And how much care and skill are carefully weave a false life, sooner or later its true character will be known. We may deceive men for a time, but not for all time. We may even deceive ourselves, but in the day of judgment, if not before, the scales will fall from our own eyes, and, with shame and remorse, we will call upon the hills and mountains to fall upon us and cover us. And in that day Christ tells us that "there is nothing covered that shall not be revealed, neither hid that shall not be known." Those who avoid detection in this life will then have their true character made known.

Why should any one be satisfied with mere religious pretense? It is just as easy, even more so, to have religion itself. God will give any one who wants it a new heart and help him to lead a sincere life. So why should we be satisfied with mere profession? If religion is worth having, it is not its possession infinitely more valuable? Let us therefore love and serve God, but let us be sure that we do it "in sincerity and in truth."

BIBLE READINGS.

Ps. i. 1-6; v. 1, 10; Eccl. xii, 13, 14; Matt. vi. 1-18; v. John 19-24; Acts v. 1-11; Rom. xv. 11, 12; Gal. vi. 7, 8; Eph. iv. 25-32; Phil. iv. 8, 9; Rev. xxi. 10, 22-27.

His Farewell.

The closing paragraphs of Mr. Vogt's farewell letter when resigning the general secretary-ship of the United Society of Christian Endeavor are simply beautiful. We would make Christian Endeavor your chief private concern this year. Study it from all sides. Interest in it all the especially influential people you can. Make it thoroughly successful in your church. There was never a day so full of big so large possibilities as today. I have probably seen more of its failures than you have and more of its successes, and I know those possibilities. Almost heartily I wish you great personal blessing, a little suffering as possible and as many of the glad things of life as may come. Already I begin to *think how short the time for accom*plishment is. Truly I hope you may have the great delight of laying your hand to some task that will help to bring in His day of justice and righteousness and love."

A Russian Convention.

In the Russian province, in Wenden, a number of delegates from the Baltic provinces and Lithuania met to hold the second session of the Baltic provinces. An excursion was made to the house of prayer of the Brotherhood of Wesenshof, and the Christian Endeavor convention proceeded by train, on invitation of their highnesses the Princesses Marie and Sophie Lwen, to Castle Kreman. There a chapel service was held and a society of Christian Endeavor was formed. Their highnesses being enrolled as active members.

In Samoa.

The Christian Endeavor pledge is called by the Samoans "Feagiga," which literally signifies "covenant." "The Samoans," says a missionary, "regard everything in the nature of a covenant as being unspeakably solemn."

NEW JERSEY BOYS CAMP

Meeting of Chamber Leader In Elizabeth Yesterday.

W. H. TAYLOR LEADER

Elizabeth, Feb. 25.—W. H. Taylor will be the leader this year in charge of the Jersey Boys' Camp, which is conducted under the auspices of the State Executive Committee of the Young Men's Christian Association each summer on the shore of Lake Wawayanda, in the Sussex hills of this State.

Charles R. Scott, the State secretary of boys' work, is to be relieved, so that he may have more time to supervise this and the several other association camps of New Jersey. His headquarters during the summer will be at Wawayanda, just the same as in former years, but he will spend three or more days a week in the other camps. Mr. Taylor is well qualified to superintend the State camp, as he has camped and canoed in Maine and New Brunswick. He is graduate of Allegheny College, and while there was a pitcher of the baseball team for four years and captain of the football team during his junior year. After leaving college he was secretary of the boys' department of the Montclair Y. M. C. A., and later accepted the position of physical director of the East Orange High School, where he is now located. Mr. Taylor was an assistant leader to Mr. Scott during the last two years, and so is familiar with the details and principles of the association camp.

The committee of which Charles T. Kilborne is chairman has just issued the annual bulletin announcing the camp for this year. It will open Thursday, June 27, and three periods of two weeks each will be conducted. This will make it possible to accommodate 300 campers. Last year fifty were unable to attend on account of lack of room, and it is expected that the applications will come in just as rapidly as in former years. A special camp for employed boys will again be conducted over Labor Day.

During the last six years nearly 800 young men and boys from every section of the State have been in attendance, and the equipment has been steadily improved, until now it is valued at about $3,000. Last year a lodge was erected, which includes a dining-room, with open fireplace, kitchen and storeroom. A shop has also been placed at the disposal of the campers fully equipped with tools, so that they may make souvenirs, camp furniture and boats. Geo. H. Hogeman, of Orange, was elected camp treasurer at the recent meeting, and Frank F. Gray, of Montclair, recording secretary. The other members of the executive committee are Charles T. Kilborne, Orange, chairman; H. S. Park, Paterson, and Ival P. Flood, of Poughkeepsie, who will succeed W. H. Wones as secretary of the Newark boys' department on April 1. L. E. Hawkins and Charles R. Scott, the State secretaries, are ex-officio members.

The meeting of the camp leaders held here yesterday was presided over by Mr. Kilborne, and those present were L. E. Hawkins, State secretary; Charles R. Scott, camp supervisor; P. D. Fagans, leader of the Trenton camp; F. G. Moran, of the Camden camp; W. E. Bunn, of Lakewood, leader; Archibald Cullens, leader of the southern county camp; Mr. Taylor, the leader-elect of the State camp; A. H. Bull, member of the State camp committee, and others who are considering the establishment of local camps in other parts of the State.

REGIMENTAL TROPHY GOES TO COMPANY K

RECEIVED AT REVIEW IN TRENTON—MEDALS FOR STAR MILITIAMEN.

Company K has a prominent part of the ceremonies attendant on the Second Regiment review at Trenton Thursday night. The company received the regimental trophy shield, for general efficiency. Division General J. Farmer Wanser was the reviewing officer.

Sergeant Charles A. Peterson, Quartermaster-Sergeant Albert I. Littell, Sergeant Oliver R. Pearson, Jr., two years; Sergeant Alfred T. Tranband, two years; Sergeant George L. DeCamp, two years; Corporals LeRoy DeCamp, two years; James L. Niles, two years; Robert E. Goldsack, James B. Conkling, Clarence H. Bilyeu, Lendrum Jennings, two years; Privates Jesse A. Dayton, two years; Eugene P. Dorman, Charles Kolfoed, two years; Edward Slingland, Oliver Ulmer, Percy W. Vail, two years; Philip E. Winter.

Corporal William E. Bond received the Collins medal for high score in marksmanship. His score was 336 out of a possible 150 on two, three and five hundred yard ranges.

GOTHAM'S AMUSEMENTS

Miss Ida Tarbell, the magazine writer who exposed Standard Oil for the first time, attended a matinee at the New York Hippodrome last week, and with a woman friend occupied seats HH-56-57 in the top gallery these seats being in about the tenth row of the cheapest seats. Miss Tarbell explained at the box office, when she secured the tickets, that she wanted to view the Hippodrome performance from the standpoint of the masses, and voluntary went into the cheaper seats so as to observe the effect of this performance upon the people around her. After the matinee she said the effect of the dazzling extravaganza on the people near her, was phenomenal, and that hundreds of them remained motionless in their seats after the final curtain, evidently unable to realise that the dream of fairyland was over and that they must depart.

When it is to happen no one knows—not even Miss Starr knows what comes of the dainty little actress, who has leaped into immediate popularity by her captivating portrayal of the leading role in Mr. Belasco's "Rose of the Rancho," hopes to have an opportunity to interpret one of Shakespeare's star-crossed heroine.

Miss Starr confessed her ambition to a woman friend the other day under a pledge of secrecy, which is why it appears in cold type, for she is too modest to broadcast it from the housetops. She wouldn't play Juliet now, though she had the chance. With characteristic good sense she recognizes the intricacies of tragedy and is content to wait until her experience shall have matured. Her ambition is to work and become a serious actress.

"Some people think that small women should play youthful parts always," she said. "That's beautiful; but to get away from that and to be taken seriously on the strength of your art, that's real ambition."

She has a scrapbook containing some fine notices of her serious work during her brief career as a stock actress, particularly of her death scene she played in Pinero's 'Lady Bountiful,' in San Francisco. The tenor of those notices is sufficiently flattering to warrant her in raising longing eyes to the altitude where Juliet sits enthroned. Add to that her delightful personality for a premise, how she would play the part under Belasco's quickening touch!

Keith & Proctor's Shows.

Recent important happenings in vaudeville have again brought the seven Keith & Proctor houses in Manhattan and Jersey City before the public in a most prominent way. In the new alliance of Percy G. Williams and Hammerstein with the booking offices of B. F. Keith has evolved one immense clearing house for the vaudeville performers who *are now enabled to negotiate con*tracts through the United Booking Offices of America for a year's time instead of weeks as heretofore. Coincidental with the publication of the union for booking purposes only of Williams & Hammerstein with Keith and Proctor came the announcements of a direct transfer of policy in the amusement scheme at Keith & Proctor's uptown houses. Beginning with the usual matinees on Monday, February 25, Keith & Proctor's stock company, which for several years past has won an enviable success at the 125th Street theatre between Park and Lexington avenues, will open at the Harlem Opera House on West 125th street, near Seventh avenue and make its permanent home there hereafter and continue the presentation of the great dramatic successes of the past season, with the popular favorites of the stock, including Miss Morgan, Mr. McAllister, Miss Scott, Mr. Norton, Mr. Hanley, Mr. Hill, Miss Deshan, Miss Ran*dolph, r. Howell and Harry O'Neil,* the stage director with others will all be moved in this transfer and the same identical policy of stock plays and vaudeville at the same popular prices will prevail. For the future the home of Harlem's favorite stock company will be at the Harlem Opera House instead of at the 125th *Street theatre. When the stock pol*icy begins next week at the Harlem Opera House, the transfer of Keith & Proctor's all star vaudeville, which has been so successfully conducted at the Harlem Opera House, will be made to the East 125th Street theatre and the same big high-class Harlem Opera House shows will find an abiding place in the new environment further East on 125th street, which has become the company's new home. In this complete exchange and transference of policies between the Harlem Opera House and the 125th Street theatre, uptown patrons of Keith & Proctor's have expressed genuine pleasure. The admirers of the stock company are delighted to know their favorites are to be housed hereafter in the spacious opera house and the great legion of vaudeville devotees welcome the presentation of all star vaudeville in the 125th Street theatre with special fervor.

The triumph of Miss Frances Starr in "The Rose of the Rancho," the new Belasco-Tully drama which is crowding the Belasco theatre to its doors at every performance, is still the talk of the town. Never has the success of an individual artist, hitherto comparatively unknown, been more emphatic or genuine. It is not the sudden outburst of a clever young girl who has come into the light opportunity, but the substantial, enduring, unqualified triumph which always is the reward of definite and deserving genius. Under the sure but gentle guidance of Mr. Belasco, Miss Starr has been brought to that point of excellence in her art which places her at once among the most applauded artists, and carries the fame of her fine achievement to every household through the country. Her personality and work seem to appeal with particular earnestness to the ladies, for, while every night at the Belasco sees the house entirely sold out, the rush at the matinees has been necessary to close the doors long before 2 o'clock and refuse the further sale of tickets.

Horrigan—"Yes, they vote—but we count."

Ald. Phelan (after he had defeated his old enemy, Horrigan) "Yes, Horrigan's a game bird—but he flies low."

Dallas (his fiancee)—"They are, but you are the first man who ever acknowledged it."

This "government by injunction" habit has spread to the stage. A Pittsburg authoress threatened proceedings against Belasco for making play by a star, and a New York playwright followed suit with effective results—another proof of "commercialism of the drama."

Otto Fenn, one of the fishermen of "Neptune's Daughter" at the New York Hippodrome, while in the big water tank one afternoon last week with such force that he went to the bottom of the tank. He is an expert swimmer and always swims under water with his eyes open. The water was remarkably clear owing to the great illumination overhead, and near the bottom of the tank, nine feet below the surface, Mr. Fenn saw a large mud turtle. The turtle tried to escape him, but Mr. Fenn chased it and grabbed it with one hand. Then he came up to the surface and proudly exhibited his catch. The mud turtle is now an honored guest in his dressing room at the Hippodrome, and will be promptly adopted into the Hippodrome menagerie when there is five inches long, and is believed to have been a resident of the water tank since it was an infant, having entered through the water main when it was very small.

EX-REP. JOHN T. DUNN HAS PASSED AWAY

SERVED TERM IN CONGRESS FROM OLD EIGHTH DISTRICT.

Former Congressman John T. Dunn died at the Alexian Hospital, at Elizabeth, at noon Friday. He was in his 63th year. He had been a sufferer from kidney trouble for several years. He leaves a widow and one daughter, who is the wife of Lawyer John F. Brown. . .

John T. Dunn was born in Tipperary, Ireland, in 1838, and came to this country with his parents. He came to New Jersey in 1845. The story of his life is one of extraordinary interest. He was self-educated, and although in the latter years of his life a lawyer by profession and at one time a representative of the people in the halls of Congress, he started in life at the age of seven years as a farm boy in this State. Tiring of this he, at the age of eleven, shipped at Atlantic City as a cabin boy on a trading vessel bound for the West Indies. For two years he followed the fortunes of the sailorman and then turned up at Gloucester City, where he secured employment as a bobbin boy in a mill. His next turning his attention to iron molding and some time afterward tried his hand at brass turning and as a silver burnisher at Frankford, Pa. He subsequently served his time as a house painter and followed that business for a number of years.

He manifested about this time a deep interest in politics and spoke at Norwich, Conn., during the Douglass campaign on the same platform with the "Little Giant." He was elected councilman of Elizabeth in 1878 and again in 1891. He served as a member of the Assembly from Union county in 1878, '78, '80, '81 and '82, being the Speaker of the House during the latter term. In 1892 he was elected to Congress from the old Eighth district, over Winfield S. Chamberlain, Republican, of Bayonne, by a majority of 993.

In the contest for the Democratic nomination for Congress he was opposed by James E. Martine and for a time the contest was a close one, but Martine was confident of success. Martine assured his friends of his own triumph up to the last moment. But Dunn had the votes.

PLAINFIELD WON THE DUAL ATHLETIC MEET

Plainfield won the dual Y. M. C. A. athletic meet from Passaic at the Association gymnasium Thursday night. The winners got three firsts in the five events. They made a clean sweep of the potato race and clinched the meet.

Burgess was the star of the contest. His splendid work gave Plainfield the premier place, and he showed a brand of pluck that makes him worthy of all the cordial things that are said of his performance. His battle with Grubb in the high dive was heroic. Grubb held the event in the hollow his hand, but Burgess clung to him pluckily and fell down at the 5 feet 9 inch dive after gallant attempts at a mark that was hopeless to clear him. He went over the 5 feet 8 inch raise wholly on his nerve.

The events:

Standing broad jump—Burgess, 9 feet 5 inches; Grubb, 9 feet 3½ inches; Adelson, 9 feet 2 inches.

Shot put—Leonard, 37 feet, 9¾ inches; Collier, 34 feet 8 inches; Collins, 34 feet 5¼ inches.

Running high jump—Burgess, 5 feet 1 inch; Grubb, 5 feet 1 inch; Odell, 4 feet 11 inches.

High dive—Grubb, 5 feet 9 inches; Burgess, 5 feet 8 inches; Stutsman, 5 feet 4 inches.

Officials—Referee, E. B. Barnes, A. L. N. A.; judges, F. H. Baker, Passaic; J. Hemlock, Passaic; Harry Bell, Plainfield; G. L. Listman, Plainfield.

The Plainfield team gets a silver cup. The individual winners received badges after the meet. The Passaic team and the officials were entertained at supper.

Arthur Wynne, assistant Sunday editor of the New York World, and Louis Biebermann, art director of the same paper, were guests over Saturday and yesterday of Alfred Zimmerman, of Central avenue. Mr. Zimmerman is the circulation manager of the World.

Franklyn S. Smith, formerly an instructor at the Plainfield High School, but now of Montclair, has been visiting Philip S. Suffern, of East Sixth street.

Alfred J. Giddis, of Cedington avenue, has been detained at home the past week with the grip.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Clark, of West Fourth street, are parents of a daughter born to them Saturday.

W. C. Randolph, formerly of Chicago, but now of New York, is spending a few days in town with relatives.

RIVAL ICE CONCERN WITH $150,000 CAPITAL

CONTRACTS AWARDED

Lake At Watchung, To Be 30 Feet Deep—Ice Houses, Cold Storage House and Artificial Plant Included.

The Watchung Ice and Cold Storage Company has been incorporated at Trenton with a capital stock of $150,000, and when the concern's plans are carried out there promises to be a great improvement in the ice business in this city. A number of New York capitalists have interested themselves in the enterprise and it is their intention to carry out the original plans made by Plainfield men.

About 400 acres of property at Watchung, located south of the plant of the Natural Ice Company, has been acquired. The tract is directly on the road leading to Bridgewater Hotel and is well adapted for the purposes desired. It forms a natural basin. It is proposed to establish a lake there about a mile and a quarter long, from 400 to 900 feet wide, with an average depth of thirty feet.

Besides making the large lake, where it is expected to gather ice during the winter season, a number of modern ice-houses will be located on the banks. In addition a cold storage building will be erected for the convenience of the farmers and other residents during the summer season. To provide against any possible loss by reason of a mild winter, the company will erect an up-to-date artificial ice plant, the completion of which will operate the artificial plant and store its product so that in any event there will be no possibility of a shortage in warm weather.

It is estimated that there will be an outlay for the start of at least $160,000. Of this amount $25,900 will be used to build a dam, and the balance will be used for the erection of an ice plant and storage houses. It is expected that work will be started early in the spring so that the plant will be completed in the fall.

The Consolidated Engineering Co., of 43 Exchange place, New York, which did all the work for the Niagara, Lockport and Ontario Power Company at Niagara Falls, has been engaged to do the engineering work at Watchung. The company will put a large force of men at work with the idea of completing the contract at the earliest possible date.

While the incorporators are all New York men, inducements are offered the local merchants. It is proposed to issue 6 per cent. interest-bearing debenture bonds and an opportunity will be given to Plainfield people to subscribe to these in any amount from $100 to $5,000. The way it is expected to make the company one of mutual interest. The idea is that any person may subscribe for bonds according to the amount of ice used by them during the season, and besides getting the ice at wholesale price will also receive interest on their investment.

BAXTER ISSUES NOTICE TO ALL SCHOOL BOARDS

SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION SAYS R.R. TAX MONEY IS TIED UP

Charles J. Baxter, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, believes that the immediate wants of the public school system are seriously threatened by the popular belief that because of the largely increased tax levied against railroads it will not be necessary to make the usual provision for assistance to the schools. Circular letters were sent from his office at Trenton Friday declaring that the public has been sadly misinformed as to the situation. He says the apportionment of money that is assured is insufficient to make adequate provision for the unusual outlay that will be required for the school year of 1907-'08.

Mr. Baxter points out that the additional money expected from the railroads is now tied up by litigation, which may mean a long delay. He urges boards of estimate to make out their budgets independently of the taxes in dispute. The amount needed for schools next year is estimated at $7,883,000.

THE SALOON PROBLEM SOLVED.

The Newark Evening News gives Plainfield credit for solving the saloon question and deservingly so. As has been repeatedly stated in these columns, Plainfield arrived at satisfactory solution of the problem long before a Bishops bill was ever dreamed of; in fact, the principal features of that meritorious law have been in force here for years. In commenting on the subject, the Newark paper says:

"The city of Plainfield has been exploited again and again, both reference to its management of saloons, yet each year brings to the fore new reasons for making further comments upon the same topic. At the March meeting of the Plainfield Council, it is now probable there will be no new applications whatever for saloon licenses. Twelve men who have been granted licenses for the past fifteen or twenty years have applied for renewals and will be granted them. There are are no remonstrances against, and no complaints by the police, they have kept decently, orderly, all-abiding places and they will be permitted to continue in business upon payment of the license fee of $1,000 each. Since 1897 the number of hotels and saloons in Plainfield has been reduced from seventeen to twelve and the fees have been increased from $700 to $1,000. The Plainfield Council has come to the conclusion that twelve drinking places are enough for the city, and those who might have some inclination to open new places think about made up their minds that it is not worth while to apply for new licenses. Council in Plainfield seems to have solved the saloon question, even if it has not solved the liquor question."

FOR POPULAR ELECTION.

In very short order Monday the Assembly passed a resolution providing that the Legislature as soon as possible notify Congress that New Jersey desires an amendment to the Federal Constitution to permit the election of United States Senators by direct vote of the people. The resolution was introduced by Assemblyman Alexander and went through without a dissenting vote. The reason for such action just at this time is best explained by the Hudson lawmaker who introduced the bill—that "There is a popular sentiment toward this amendment. In view of the fact that Congress will adjourn March 4, it is necessary that this resolution be passed at once. By doing so Congress may submit the amendment this year, and it can be submitted to the Legislatures of the respective States next year. If this is not done promptly another year will have been lost."

Article V, of the Constitution of the United States, makes provision for the necessary amendment. The article in question is couched in this language: "The Congress, whenever two-thirds of both Houses shall deem it necessary, shall propose amendments to this Constitution, or on the applications of the Legislatures of two-thirds of the several States, shall call a convention for proposing amendments, which in either case shall be valid, to all intents and purposes, as part of this Constitution, when ratified by the Legislatures of three-fourths of the several states, or by conventions in three-fourths thereof, as the one or the other mode of ratification may be proposed by the Congress * *."

MORE REGULAR POLICEMEN.

No great harm would have been done the city had the Common Council Monday seen fit to increase the regular police force to twenty-six men. It appears to be a condition of affairs when second story jobs and other forms of burglaries are commonly attributed to the fact that there are not a sufficient number of policemen patrolling the streets at night; yet such is the case. When it is realized that some of those on duty after nightfall have "beats" covering over five miles of city streets, anyone can readily see why it is next to impossible for the officers to obtain the best possible results. According to reliable reports, Orange, Montclair and many other nearby places have a larger proportion of policemen.

If Chief Kiely is to be expected to maintain his department at the very highest possible standard of excellence, his recommendations should be complied with. There is no criticism to be made in this respect so far as the Councilmanic police board is concerned for that body will fully in accord with his views. The trouble lay with the Common Council.

George Whitlock Unfortunate.

George Whitlock, of Big Front street, only a few months ago he fell and fractured his arm, which laid him up three or four weeks. Last week he slipped and fell on the ice in front of his home and severely injured his knee which now detains him at home.

SALOON POLICY IS FIXED By Unanimous Vote, Without Remonstrance, Twelve Licenses Are Granted

NET THE CITY, $11,600

For the first time in the history of the Common Council, the customary applications for liquor licenses were granted without a dissenting vote, Monday, and with nothing but a harmonious spirit prevailing upon the members. An absence of remonstrances from citizens was also apparent, the only petition presented coming from the Society of Friends, which does the same thing with unceasing regularity year after year. The occurrence was so noteworthy that Councilman Tyler took occasion to comment upon it and assert that Plainfield could justifiably praise itself for its handling of the saloon question.

There were ten retail and two wholesale licenses granted as follows: Retail, John A. Staats, John and Frank Clark, Jacob Blimm, Henry Haurand, Jerome W. Leary, Michael F. Watson, Henry Windham, John Rafferty, Christian Gloekler and A. D. Findlay; wholesale, Eastern Hudson Company and Frank Lilke. The retail places pay $1,000 each a year for the privilege of selling liquors and the wholesalers go their license for $500. Thus it will be seen that the net returns to the city are $11,600.

When the license applications have been made from year to year there was always a hitch over some one of them and there were times when the arguments led to a feeling of bitterness among the councilmen. The remonstrance has also been noticeable and as a rule when the clerk was ready to begin proceedings he would have to read off several yards of names, the owners asking that the applicants be given the "go by." The number of those remonstrating has been getting lower and lower and it is now thought the traffic is well in hand.

After the last one had been granted, last night, Mr. Tyler took the floor and said that it was such an extra occasion for congratulation that it was fitting to call attention to it. Plainfield's settlement of the saloon question, he said, has been watched by the entire State and he hoped it would continue this way. Public opinion is the solution after all, he continued, and to the people belongs the credit. In concluding he declared that the saloon district ordinance had proven satisfactory and that Mayor Fisk was among those greatly pleased with its operation.

At Mr. Buxton's request, all hack, truck, peddler and other licenses except liquor, be extended to March 15 and all new applications be referred to the license committee.

PRIEST DENOUNCES THE DANCE HALLS

FATHER DELEHANTY SPEAKS AT ST. MARY'S ON THEIR EVILS.

Rev. Father Delehanty addressed the congregation at St. Mary's church Sunday morning concerning the practice on the part of some of the parishioners of attending dances at public halls. The priest cautioned the members of his church against following such amusements, particularly during Lent, and urged them to refrain from visiting various halls. He said that he did not approve the practice at any time, and told his people that they were to avoid all appearance of secular amusement during the season of the church year, a time for fasting and prayer.

Father Delehanty also spoke on divorces, declaring them to be one of the crying evils of the day. In seven cities in America in ten years past there were 40,028 decrees granted. He deplored this condition of affairs and told of the terrible effect it is having on American life.

Plainfielders at the Wedding.

A party of thirty relatives and friends from New York and Plainfield accompanied Rutherford Mead Shepard, of "The Gables," Fanwood, to Boston, on Thursday, to attend his marriage to Miss Winifred Prentiss Kay. Among those in the party were Mr. and Mrs. Augustus D. Shepard, Mr. and Mrs. John Doull Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Osborn W. Bright, Mrs. Frederick G. Mead, Miss Margaret Mead, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Lowe and Miss Wering, Mr. and Mrs. W. Palmer Smith and Miss Trottie Smith.

Building Auto Garage.

Andrew C. Thompson, automobile dealer, is having a cement block one-story automobile garage and salesroom built on Park avenue, between Fourth and Fifth streets, next to Harper's stationery store, which will be one of the best equipped automobile garages in this city. Contracts have been given out and work will commence at once, and will be completed about April 1.

ELABORATE PLANS FOR ELKS GATHERING

Frederickson Made Captain; J. Flynn, Detective-Sergeant and Overbaugh Sergeant.

TWENTY-TWO REGULARS

Limit Placed When Tyler Opposes to Board's Recommendation—Specials Appointed.

As exclusively predicted in The Daily Press last week, the long contemplated promotions in the city police department were presented to the Common Council by Mayor Charles J. Fisk, Monday night, and confirmed without a dissenting vote. In addition the force was designated to consist of twenty-two regular men instead of seventeen and the change will permit the addition of four men to do regular duty but to be listed as probationers. The latter move was brought about after an interesting debate in which Councilman Tyler finally made a move to make the regular force twenty-six men, compelling his colleagues to view the matter from his standpoint.

The promotions were intended to be put through soon after Mayor Fisk assumed office and the matter presented at the January meeting was as follows: For captain, Sergeant Christian Frederickson; for sergeant, Roundsman John Flynn; for detective-sergeant, Patrolman Florence S. McCarthy. Opposition developed in the Council, however, and the change was not brought about. Chairman Frank Randolph, of the police committee, afterward asked permission to withdraw the appointments and when it was granted the Mayor Fisk did some speedy work. The slate was made over again and this is the way it went through last night:

For captain, Sergeant Christian Frederickson; for sergeant, Patrolman Herbert L. Overbaugh; for detective-sergeant, Roundsman John Flynn; for roundsman, Patrolman Morris Higgins. The promotions were acted upon singly and there was not a word of comment made from start to finish.

Later in the evening, Chairman Frank Randolph brought up the increased force project and offered a resolution, specifying that the number of regular men should be twenty-six and that the mayor be empowered to make the necessary number of appointments to fill the. He added by way of explanation that while the department at the present time is allotted seventeen regular men, it has twenty-two, five of them being probation men. The change would allow this continuation and the appointment of four others.

Mr. Tyler was quickly on his feet to remonstrate against what he called "more than a fifty per cent. increase in the regular force" and asked that twenty-two men would be plenty enough at this time.

"If you want more men to do active duty," he said, addressing Mr. Randolph, "you can appoint probationers as you have been doing and to get them to twenty-six. I for one do not like the idea of this jump from seventeen to twenty-six and I make an amendment to the motion that the regular number be twenty-two."

Further sparring followed, this move and when the vote was called for, only Messrs. Buxton, Montgomery, Charles Randolph and Frank Randolph stood against the amendment. As Councilman Tyler had won out they made it unanimous when the final vote was taken.

In connection with police business, George Dobson and Theodore Martin, who have been probation men, were made regulars and four new probationers were named. They are Nicholas Nolan, Richard Overland, Frank Sweeney and Cornelius McCarthy.

Mayor Fisk named the usual list of special policemen and appointed several new ones, among them Joseph Cooney, who has been a private watchman in the West Seventh street section for many years. A resolution introduced by Mr. Mellick further in the meeting fixes the number of specials at fifty-five.

On the Job.

A Baltimore man, who was recently a passenger on a Cunarder, tells of an incident of his trip that led him to the conclusion that your average seaman is not apt to waste much thought on his personal troubles. This sailor had met with an accident the second day out, the result of which was a bad cut on the head. The Baltimorian was most solicitous in his inquiries as to the seaman's welfare when he next saw the captain, and would undoubtedly have continued his sympathy had not a rough sea called to his mind his own suffering. Several days later, when he emerged, white and weak, from his stateroom, he suddenly remembered the poor sailor. In the course of the day the Baltimore man saw the man, with a strip of plaster on his forehead. "How is your head?" he asked, sympathetically. "West by south, sir," was the reply.—Harper's Weekly.

Sold Bank Building.

Through the agency of Robert L. Pierce, the bank building in Dunellen has been sold by Walter G. Runyon to Herbert L. Pierce. The consideration has not been made public.

After careful consideration of the points where financial encouragement would be likely to produce the best results, the executive Committee of Philadelphia Lodge, No. 2, has compiled its schedule for the distribution of $18,000 in prizes when the Elks go there for their annual reunion, the week beginning July 15.

The Executive Committee has entire charge of this great gathering—doubtless the greatest that Philadelphia has ever seen since the Centennial year, for 250,000 visitors are expected to be in that city throughout the week.

Of the little fortune which will be distributed in the money prizes $12,000 will be devoted to what is known as "special prizes," or band prizes.

In order that a lodge may win a special prize it is necessary that its band participate not only in the grand parade of lodges, on July 18, but in the various band parades, on Wednesday, July 17. That is to be the great spectacular event of the week, only it will be a spectacle for the ear, rather than for the eye. It unquestionably will be one of the most remarkable musical displays ever made in the world. In the Elks' mass band parade there are to be 100 bands, averaging thirty pieces or more. In other words, the total number of instruments in this grand band will approximate 3,000. If they are arranged to fill Broad street from curb to curb, each line bringing closely upon the heels of the line in front, the combined band will fill nearly three blocks.

Each band that has a band of thirty or more pieces participating in the two parades the Executive Committee will give $100, a certificate of superior merit being awarded to the band itself. An additional prize of $100 will go to the lodge having the largest band in both events, and there will be another prize of $100 to the lodge having the second largest band.

To lodges which have the largest number of members in line, all duly registered at the Philadelphia registration headquarters, there will be a first prize of $500, a second prize of $200 and a third prize of $100. Lodges within a radius of seventy-five miles of Philadelphia are not allowed to compete in this contest. To lodges presenting the best appearance in the big parade there will be three prizes of $300, $150 and $100. In making the award the judges will count appearance 40 per cent.; marching as 40 per cent., and general appearance as 20 per cent. This is a prize which every lodge is striving for. Word comes from Toledo, Ohio, that the famous Cherry Pickers—the big corps of the Toledo lodge is drilling regularly for the reunion, and will continue its practice straight through to the reunion week. The Cherry Pickers is only one of the famous marching organizations in the Order of Elks.

An effort is always made to have a great variety of uniforms in the parade. For instance, the Philadelphia delegation went to Denver last year with Admiral Schley's escort. The Wilkes-Barre lodge will probably march there next summer dressed as miners. To the lodges appearing in the "most unique" uniforms there will be three prizes of $500, $200 and $100 each.

Prizes will be awarded to lodges having the greatest aggregate mileage, as computed by the Philadelphia Registration Committee. Lodges outside the boundary of the United States will not be lodges within the seventy-five mile radius of Philadelphia will not be recognized in this award. The reason is obvious. A lodge within a few miles of the city might easily arrange to send every member to the hall of the Hawaii lodge, by sending half a dozen delegates, would roll up a mileage against which a Chicago, Cleveland or St. Louis lodge, would have no show. There will be a first, second and third mileage contest will be $300; second, $150, and third, $100.

Three prizes, $150, $100 and $50, will be awarded to the lodges having the largest number of women folk in attendance at the reunion, the award being made according to the number of women registered at the general registration headquarters and according to percentage of membership of lodge. This prize will be duplicated for lodges within the seventy-five-mile radius.

Upon the basis of artistic merit and originality of design prizes of $300, $200 and $100 will be awarded for the most attractive floats in the Thursday parade.

The fattest Elk will get $25; the leanest, $25; the tallest, $25, and the shortest, $25.

There will be a prize of $150 for the prettiest banner.

For lodges within the seventy-five-mile radius having the largest number of members registered and marching in the Thursday parade there will be three prizes—$300, $150 and $100.

Prizes amounting to $2,550 have been offered for decorations and illuminations of business houses and dwellings.

The first prize will be $500; the second, $400; third, $300; fourth, $200, and fifth, $100.

Then, there will be another set of prizes for daylight decorations exclusively. The smallest private dwelling has just as much opportunity of winning one of these prizes as the biggest store or office block. The judges will not take into consideration the amount of money spent on a decoration nor the size of the display. Taste and effect will be the only decorations. Winners of the daylight decoration prizes will receive $450, $250, $150, $100 and $50. In no instance will more than one prize be awarded to a single concern.

SALE OF CIGARETTES ON THE INCREASE.

Despite Adverse Laws More Are Sold Than Ever Before.

Official statistics and data gathered by the United States Tobacco Journal show that, notwithstanding the enactment of plenary anti-cigarette laws by some State legislatures, the use of cigarettes is continually increasing, the year 1906 being a record year in the industry.

The increase in the sale of cigarettes for the last twelve months reached the enormous figures of $51,-600,000. There also was an increase in 1906 of nearly 1,000,000 pounds in the import of Turkish tobacco. From Cuba were exported last year 15,643,000 packages of cigarettes, an increase of 4,000,000 over 1905.

The United States Tobacco Journal says that in the States where anti-cigarette laws are in force, these laws frequently serve to bring all such restrictive measures into contempt, particularly the really useful ones, prohibiting juvenile smoking etc. In one instance, indeed, advantage was taken of an anti-cigarette crusade to actually promote the sale of the article.

"The usual wild statements about cigarettes containing all kinds of poisons having been circulated," says The United States Tobacco Journal, "one of the largest manufacturers in the country caused his principal brand to be analyzed by responsible medical bodies, who rendered the usual verdict that the cigarettes were entirely free from any deleterious matter. The results of these analyses were gathered together by the manufacturer, and, together with other authentic matter favorable to cigarettes in general, printed in pamphlet form and widely circulated throughout the country, with the consequence that popular prejudice against the article was considerably abated."

Even in Pennsylvania, with its great tobacco industry, an anti-cigarette bill has been presented to the Legislature. It virtually prohibits the sale of cigarettes, and also of cigarette paper or wrappers. The penalty is fixed at not less than $25 or more than $100 for each offense. The bill does not include the jobbers doing an interstate business.

HUGH FOX CHAMPIONS CHILD LABOR MEASURE

ALEXANDER BILL SUBJECT OF DISCUSSION AT COMMITTEE HEARING.

Hugh Fox, of this city, president of the State's Charities and Aid Association, was one of the principal speakers on the Child-Labor bills at a hearing before the House committee at Trenton, Monday, after the introduction of the subject by Mrs. Emily Williamson, of Elizabeth. She talked of the selfish interest of glass-blowers in South Jersey, who stated that they would not allow their sons to work in the glass factories.

Mr. Fox charged that the workmen themselves were opposed to the proposed measure. He asked, "where were the manufacturers? None of the latter appeared in opposition to the bill.

Mrs. Williamson asked every glass-blower in succession if he would allow his child to go into the factory, and every man said "No." But they all said that the industry would go to pieces if the age limit was raised to sixteen years.

The Alexander measure prohibits children from working in factories before sixteen years of age, working more than ten hours a day, or fifty-five hours a week, and not before the age of sixteen between the hours of 6 p. m. and 6 a. m. It is stated that the bill will be reported favorably.

A pound social will be held at the home of Mrs. William Bemler at Watchung tomorrow night.

BIG HOME PLANNED FOR FIRST NATIONAL

REPORTED THAT BANK IS NEGOTIATING FOR FINGER PROPERTY.

Keeping pace with the progressive spirit shown by the banking institutions of Plainfield generally, the First National Bank, it is said, is considering an improvement which will make its building one of the ornaments of the city. The plan in question, according to report is nothing less than a scheme to more than double the size of its present accommodations, which in turn will give it unusual facilities for conducting its business.

Negotiations are underway, it is said, for the taking over of the property on Somerset street, near Front, owned by George Finger. The deal will also include the large driveway which like the Finger building runs back of the bank's present structure, having a frontage on Somerset street of about 80 feet. This will give the bank the full depth of the property from Front street back to the raceway and will allow it an entrance on Somerset street.

The plan is said to include the transforming of the present rectangular building into an "L" shape structure, with entrances on both thoroughfares. This will allow a large lobby and reception space in the Front street entrance and will also give a similarly large space for patrons in the Somerset street entrance. Moreover, the bank will also be able to install more safe deposit vaults and other similar facilities.

The Plainfield Trust Company took the initiative some time ago by erecting what is considered the handsomest banking building in this section of the State. The Plainfield Savings Bank is now remodelling its building and when the improvements are completed it too will have one of the finest buildings in the vicinity.

TREE COMMISSION WILL BE APPOINTED

RESOLUTION TO THAT EFFECT PASSED BY COUNCIL LAST NIGHT.

Councilman Montgomery's plan to establish a tree commission in the city, as broached by him at the regular session early in the month, met with success when introduced at Monday's council meeting. He presented a resolution to the effect that three commissioners be appointed, whose purpose it will be to direct the care of the city's trees, and it was passed unanimously.

At Mr. Montgomery's request, President Daniel Hurled Mayor Fisk to address the Council on the matter as the commission has long been desired by him. He declared that Plainfield's trees form one of its principal attractions but that insects and lack of care were rapidly destroying them. There is no city official at the present time, he said, whose duty it is to look after them and the appointment of a commission would bring them in direct charge. The commission cannot ask for more than $3,000 a year to follow up its work and it is probable that half that amount will be enough.

"My idea has been to appoint Elliott T. Barrows as chairman of the commission, as he is a man thoroughly acquainted with the needs of trees, and he has consented to act in that capacity. The commissioners would be appointed at the start for terms of three, four and five years and they would have full say about the trees adorning the public thoroughfares, In fact, they would have more power in this respect than the Council."

When the Mayor had ceased speaking, a vote was called for and Councilman Montgomery's resolution went through quickly. The commissioners will be appointed in a short time.

Mrs. Peter VanFleet, of Liberty street, has recovered from an attack of the grip.

If you are sending your clothes to the American Steam Laundry on East Front street, you know that they always come home washed cleaned and ironed to perfection. It cost no more to have the work done right and why not send your clothes to this laundry.

CO. K'S ANNUAL BANQUET

SPEECHES INFORMAL.

Major Buckle, Judge Newcorn, County Chairman Smith and Dr. Corbusier Among the Speakers.

Major W. B. Martin, until recently captain of the company, presided at the sixth annual banquet of Company K held at Truell Inn, Monday. The guests were Lieutenant-Colonel B. Kinchell, the company's choice for captain; Judge William Newcorn, County Registrar of Deeds F. H. Smith, Former Mayor J. F. Buckle, Dr. W. Kempton Browning, Dr. Harold Corbusier, L. B. Woolston, John Wheeler, of Somerville; Sergeant Pearsall and T. Astley Weaver.

Major Martin announced before the speech-making that he would distribute the discharge papers to fifteen members of the company, whose terms of enlistment had expired. They are Sergeants Charles Peterson, A. I. Littell, George Spear, O. R. Pearson, Alfred Trenchard, Corporals Bilyeu, Goldsack, Dunlap, Niles, Sampson; Privates Douglass, Dorman, Archibald Niles, Whitehead Judson. After the men had received their papers Major Martin stated that he was glad to say that every one had re-enlisted. The fifteen men were charter members of the company.

The first speaker of the evening was Lieut. Pearsall, who gave a brief history of the company. He said he regretted the absence of Col. Collins and Major Duncan, but expressed the hope that the former would soon wear the eagles of Brig.-General, which brought forth great applause. He also announced the fact that the company's percentage for the past year for figure of merit was 89.7, while that of Co. L, of Somerville, was 86.1. He said that there are eighteen men in the company who have a percentage of 100, which represents obedience, strict attention to duty and faithfulness in drill.

Lieut. Pearsall referred to the need of an up-to-date armory for the company and he said that he believed that Plainfield would respond to the call. He thought that the State should appropriate a certain amount of money each year for the construction of suitable armories and cited the fact that the rent paid for leased buildings would more than pay the interest on a $125,000 or $20,000 investment.

Former Mayor Buckle was the next speaker. He referred to his boyhood days when he was a member of a militia company. He believed that Co. K was better than those of other days. A compliment was paid by him to the members for going to Elizabeth to get such an efficient captain, and he said in part: "Major Martin in referring to the fact that he never had taken a drink of liquor, which he considered to be a great moral example. The speaker in referring to his last official position said that the people sought him for mayor, that he never sought the office, and that he did the best he could. He said that no one man makes a people great, but it is the united efforts of all and here he paid a tribute to the citizen soldiery and he urged every member of the company to do his duty.

Freeholder J. Herve Deane congratulated the members upon their fine showing. He hoped that if the test should ever come that the company would prove true and follow the flag to the ends of the earth.

Judge Newcorn, who is popular with the company by reason of his interest in its affairs and who a few years ago, when a member of the Assembly had secured the passing of an armory bill for Plainfield, said that he was pleased to state that he has a vote and that the officers of the Second Regiment will stand pat for Col. Collins. It has five votes, six if necessary. "Don't be police out often, and he added if the Governor attempts to appoint a successor to Gen. Gillespie there will be "nothing doing" for a man must be elected.

Dr. Kempton Browning, former captain, recommended the company's success from organization and predicted a great future for it.

Major Martin said that he intended to lend his best efforts to the promotion of rifle practice and that he would challenge Co. K to a match to be held at the Sea Girt armory. He also intends to take up the instruction of first aid to the injured.

The festivities closed with a few remarks by Lieut. Kitchell, who is to be the new captain; First Lieut. Charles Peterson and Second Lieut. A. I. Littell, each one thanking the members for the honors conferred and promising to do all in their power to make the company the best in the State.

AUTO OWNERS GIVE $80,000 FOR ROADS

PLAINFIELD CONTRIBUTES MORE THAN $1,000 IN SHAPE OF FEES.

An estimate of the receipts of the State Department of Motor Vehicles for the fiscal year ending May 1 next is placed by Commissioner J. B. R. Smith at not less than $80,000. Plainfield alone contributed $1,222.75 in the shape of fees. The whole money is to be devoted to the repairing of the improved roads of the State, but the affirmative action of the Legislature will be required to make it available for this purpose.

Up to January 1 the department registered 13,759 vehicles and issued 15,269 licenses to drivers. On that date the amount of fees collected was $62,223.91. The receipts of the department in January for registration and licensing amounted to $1,193.17, and at the close of business last Saturday the receipts from these sources were $506, making the total receipts from May 1 $63,932.08.

Up to January 1 there had been collected $991 in fines. In January the fines collected amounted to $111 and in February $470, making the total receipts from this source $1,572.50. The aggregate receipts of the department to date are $65,505.58.

The amount received in fees from each of the egencies in the State to January 1 is as follows: Trenton, $12,854; Camden, $9,586.36; Jersey City, $15,895; Newark, $11,860; Phillipsburg, $948.75; Morristown, $1,347.05; Hackensack, $3,069.50; Rahway, $465; Asbury Park, $1,-615.50; Bridgeton, $483.75; Sea Bright, $1,066; Plainfield, $1,222.75; Freehold, $905.50; Lakewood, $42; Branchville, $220.25.

Magistrates have turned over fines as follows: Union, $25; Waterford, $10; West Orange, $25; Belmar, $20; Mount Arlington, $40; East Orange, $10; Harrison, $45; Hammonton, $5; Hackensack, $200; Morristown, $5; Milburn, $10; Magnolia, $215; Washington, $15; Clementon, $10; Perth Amboy, $50; Haddon Heights, $10; Princeton, $10; Glen Ridge, $25; Hoboken, $10; Red Bank, $15; Phillipsburg, $20; New Providence, $20, and Dover, $5.

In addition to the sums turned over the sum of $4,738.08 was retained by the agents as fees authorized by the law to be retained by them. The registration and licensing department amounted to $1,853.33 for clerical services and $2,422.67 for printing, blanks, stationery and other equipment.

Miss Leila Druse Assisted.

The second free Lenten recital attracted a large number of worshippers to the Church of the Holy Cross, Saturday afternoon. F. Clinton Lee, assistant organist at Trinity chapel, New York, presided at the organ and he was assisted b Miss Leila Druse, of the First Baptist church, who sang "O Lord Be Merciful," and "The Plains of Peace." Evening prayer followed the recital.

Oscar Waldron, arrested on a d. and d. charge, was fined $3 by Recorder Dolliver Saturday night. He paid up in preference to taking an equivalent in days.

A FRIEND OF EVERYBODY

are eighty there, Kean is one of them. He always has his mind on his number. He listens to the dreariest debate as if he liked it. He rarely says anything, but nobody else says anything that Kean does not hear. He is aware of every quirk and quibble. He knows where every skeleton is buried. He explains every action, and much of the time he is chatting with other Senators, on one of the big leather sofas, about any incident of the life of Washington that may be chattable, apparently with no concern about what is happening. But let things take a sudden twist and Kean is alert and watchful. He can tell why.

"He moves about the Senate chamber with his eyeglasses in his hand, and stops to talk wherever an opportunity offers. One moment he is laughing with Senator Tillman and another he is gravely discussing something with Senator Lodge. He has a trick of putting his arm around his shoulder, then he releases again his, and when that arm is there the real confidences begin. Democrats respond as readily as Republicans to his ministrations. Everybody tells him what he wants to know.

His Simple, Winning Ways.

"About the only time Kean takes an active part in the proceedings of the Senate is when he moves an executive session. He has that function down pat, and there are times when the moving of an executive session is of more importance than might appear. Kean has sometimes arrogated to himself this privilege, reminding the older Senators of Don Cameron, whose specialty was moving that the Senate adjourn from Thursday until Monday. It was Cameron, who, one Tuesday before the beginning of Lent, and rather bored with the work that was going on, made the celebrated motion: 'Mr. President, as tomorrow is Ash Wednesday and as next Friday will be Good Friday, I move that when the Senate adjourns today it adjourns until Monday.'

"Senator Spooner moved an executive session one time when Kean was ready to do it. Kean protested vigorously. It was right, he said, to make that motion, and he did not intend to be deprived of it. Spooner acquiesced and withdrew his motion. Then Kean made the motion with great gusto and everybody laughed, including Kean, who, as has been said before, is simple—for purposes of publication.

"There has always been a tendency to make game of Kean because of his youth and his gossiping proclivities, and, as a matter of fact, from an outside viewpoint, Kean does not loom very large as a statesman. That doesn't worry Kean any. He is carrying out his part in the great drama of the Senate that is played almost everywhere except in the Senate chamber. They put on an act in plain view of the audience now and then, but mostly the play is played in the committee-rooms and in the conferences, wherever they may be held. There are five or six power-managers, with Aldrich at the head of them. This group is slowly changing. One or two of the leaders of the Senate are old and tired. It is time for new blood. When the change is made—and it will be a long time, for the Senate works slowly—John Kean will be found in the ruling group. He is too valuable to be left out.

"'Ware Kean, if you would not unbosom yourself of all that is innermost. Do not get within the range of that hypnotic eye and that magnetic handshake. Do not start to talk about an incident at the latest great reception for fear you will soon be taking out your watch and showing him the picture in the case, and putting your hand on his shoulder and calling him 'Dear old John.' If you come within the influence you are going to give up.

"The ears of the Boss! If a poll is needed, Kean gets it quickly and correctly. If a recalcitrant is to be sounded to see what he really wants, Kean drops the plummet. If a motive is to be discovered, Kean is the explorer. Aldrich would not be so powerful as he is if he could not get Kean's information. The ears of the Boss—and they hear, they surely hear!"

Gave a Heart Party.

Miss Stella Boss, of West Front street, gave a heart party at her home on Friday night, entertaining about thirty guests. V. W. Nash, Jr., won the first prize for the men and Miss Ida Furman the first prize for the women. After the play there was a musical programme, including the singing of patriotic songs. Supper was served at midnight.

John Y. Kenney and William Y. Burke, of Elizabeth, spent Sunday as the guests of Edward Y. Burke, of Rock avenue.

Harry Holmes, formerly with the A. and P. Tea Company, is now employed as bridge carpenter by the New Jersey Central and is stationed on the Newark Bay bridge.

David Shay, who was clerk at the Plainfield Country Club, last summer, and who has been acting in a similar capacity at the Quyl Island Club in Georgia, expects to return to Plainfield the latter part of March to resume his former position.

us. This noble man at the point of his and our triumph, looking from the Nebo summit, from which the painful and bloody victorious march of the nation could be reviewed, its troops flushed with triumph just then returning from the war with the Union safe and forever assured; and looking forward into the promised land of peace and prosperity; from this vantage ground, surrounded by the happy circumstances of achievement and encouragement, our brother, our friend, our father, Abraham Lincoln, was stricken down! The sorrow of that act is still upon us! The name by which we should fitly characterize it has never yet arisen to human lips. Nothing in thought nor in language can approach it! It was the affliction for all time of a nation! The crime was beyond angst that was possible in the lowest and worst of humand kind. It was the crime of crimes!

"I look back still with something of joy mingling with my sadness, at the thought of the hand-grasp he gave me a few days before the perpetration of the nameless act that took him from us.

"Great, sculpted and heroic was that figure amongst his fellows. Tender and gentle was his heart;—even as the heart of a woman. Clear and prophetic was his mental grasp of the destiny of the Republic. Noble and sweet was the life in his life. Beautiful and generous were all his thoughts on the day when he was called hence. His work and his character are the enduring heritage of us and of our children.

"Something of Lincoln's character shines out from his speeches and addresses. Among the greatest of these was the shortest;—that delivered at the dedication of the cemetery on the battlefield of Gettysburg. No finer lines are found in English oratory than those which close this Gettysburg speech: 'We here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain, that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom, and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth.'

Lincoln and Washington.

"In important respects there may be said to have been a strong resemblance between the elements which went to make up the man, George Washington, and those who constituted the man, Abraham Lincoln. Differences existed, it is true. Lincoln had a sense of humor well-nigh unknown to Washington. Lincoln had a gift of expression which Washington might well have envied;—though he too, on occasion, could speak with rare appositeness, judgment, and force. Lincoln had a marvelous faculty for logic and reason, superadded to the plain, broad, common sense so remarkable in both these men. In Lincoln there was something of the prophet and the poet. Washington was the subject to a noble purpose with but little disposition to indulge his imagination. But both men were of mighty courage and unflinching determination. Both were patriots, and, in a very high sense, Christian patriots.

"As we look back tonight over the wonderful careers of these two eminent Americans, we are glad to entertain a sentiment of satisfaction that each of them was permitted to see a practical and successful completion of the work of endeavor in which he had been engaged. Each copid say of a truth, 'I have finished my work. I have kept my faith.' Each could mark a great progress in the life of the nation of which he was the leader, as progress which had been accomplished under their leadership. Washington had been the instrument in delivering his country from foreign oppression. Lincoln had been instrumental in its delivery from internal dissension, dismemberment and degradation.

Our Prosperity.

"Looking abroad over our material inheritance, we find no difficulty in answering our question with a joyful and enthusiastic affirmative. And the satisfaction we experience is immensely enhanced as we mark the pregress of the nation and its growth in hundred thousand in population, since the War of the Revolution, we have increased about thirty fold. The accumulated wealth of the country at that time is hardly comparable, in figures, with America's wealth of today, exceeding as it does, one hundred thousand millions of dollars, or (to use the term billion, in the sense in which it is used ordinarily) one hundred billions. Our population, now rapidly approaching ninety millions of people, inherits a magnificent country of three and one-half millions of square miles, extending from ocean to ocean. We are at peace with the world, and are highly prosperous. But we have a greater wealth even than all this; it consists in personal freedom, and in a scarcely limited opportunity for intellectual and moral improvement. The education of the masses of our population has ever been one of the things most ardently sought after and supported by our great and their leaders.

"We are rich in intellectual as well as material gains, and the mind of genius and the practiced hand of industry have done much to establish our repute amongst the progressive nations of the earth. Is there no reverse to this brilliant shield upon which the sun of our prosperity so brilliantly beams? Are there no clouds in our sky? No dangers in out path? Is it fully certain that all the hopes for which the fathers suffered and bled are to be realized and that the future of America will justify the sacrifices made by its heroes? We have no right to cherish a feeling of pessimism. It is at once a privilege and a duty that we should give place to our liveliest and warmest hopes. But even with our optimism should march the studious efforts of every patriot to keep the nation in the sure path of moral as well as material progress; of spiritual as well as worldly advancement. The Ship of State moves in a sea studded now by the hidden rocks of Anarchy, and again by the shoals of irreligion, ignorance and folly.

Notes of Warnings.

"In our own town a certain respected spiritual adviser has recently uttered a note of warning touching the want of religious instruction to American youth. Whilst there may be honest difference of opinion as to what constitutes religious instruction, there can be hardly a doubt of our lack and danger in this direction. Our children are growing up in a world-wide life and character is a widespread absence of the spirit and attitude of reverence,— reverence for God and for good. One of the most painful evidences of this lack is the profanity that falls on our streets from all sides and classes of our population; from private citizens, from public officers, and even from the children rushing thoughtlessly and noisely from their school-desks to the street. Unless at this point our system of reform, we shall be confronted, at no distant day, with a dark and dreadful danger. There can be no adequate foundation for national life when the spirit of reverence is conspicuously absent; and where irreverence notoriously prevails the nations character must weaken and become corrupt.

Spiritually Forgotten.

"Another important danger to American life is that it may be called its tendency toward artificiality. In part this proceeds from life's complexity in our day, and this again has reference to our advanced material civilization. So long ago as the days in which Ecclesiastes was written, the wise man wrote: that God had made men upright; but they had sought out many inventions.

"It is fair to insist that the most of the clever inventions of our own day have worked beneficially for the interests of mankind, and toward delivery from the partial bondage in which man is controlled and dominated by his physical wants and requirements. A part of our difficulty consists, however, in the fact that the advancement in the comforts and with the multiplication of modern inventions, our wants increase and our lives thus become more complex on planes of materiality. With the increase of material needs, moral culture has not kept pace, and the faculties are crowded out and forgotten. Men of all classes and conditions thus come more and more to find their lives and thoughts occupied in the abundance of things they possess, and perhaps in the greater number of things which they do not yet possess, but which they think they want. So far as this absorption in things material goes forward, by so much is the moral and spiritual nature dwarfed and starved. And by so much is a danger to character created in the individual, and in no great length of time this danger becomes national and universal. Already Americans are taunted by the people of other countries with being greedy, grasping, and gross-minded. We are not ready to plead guilty to this indictment; and we may point with just pride to our splendid educational efforts and endowments, but in our inner soul hearts we must admit that the chase after material increase has tended to weary and to weaken us in relation to moral and spiritual courses and endeavors.

"We must search out, get free, restore to honor the true life, asign things their proper place, and remember that the center of human progress is moral growth. We are men and citizens, not by reason of the number of our goods and the pleasure we procure for ourselves, but through our intellectual and artistic culture, nor because of the honors and independence we enjoy; but by virtue of the strength of our moral fibre. And this is not a truth of today but a truth of all times.

Present Dangers.

"The follies of the rich have been suitably described and despised. It is right to condemn and to contemn these absurdities. The artificiality of modern society has in it much that is to be swept out as vulgar, filthy refuse. A part of our difficulty is that these absurdities are imitated by persons who are not rich and who ought to be devoting their attention to nobler aims. So soon as the poor man, or woman, or child of the poor man, begins to taste a little the luxury of abundance, so soon as there is something to spare which might be thriftily saved or judiciously appropriated to mental and moral progress, there is at once born a desire to do and enjoy the things which characterize the lives of the rich. One must needs avoid vulgar labor and 'get into society.' One must have the things and indulgences which appertain to superfluous means. Thus follows the waste—not only of the means with which might be devoted, but also to the mental activities which should be occupied in building character and serving mankind. In lieu of breeding workers our system sometimes breeds drones, and produces not a few half-baked 'gentlemen' instead of well rounded and industrious citizens; and what intelligent observer can fail to see and deprecate such fruits of civilization or of education as the pitifully absurd 'snob' or 'climber' in American society and depraved and dangerous demagogue and trickster in American politics?

"Our school system, excellent as it is, has its defects in two directions; there should be less effort and time given to studies which are ornamental rather than practical, and greater pains should be given to laying foundations in a sense of moral responsibility.

Broader Education.

"There must be something attempted of a deep and fundamental sort in this our plan of public education. It should be so fundamental as to assist its subject to withstand the stress and temptation of later life. It is easy for those who have not wealth to blame the excesses and follies of those who have it. It is not infrequent that the man who today denounces the rich monopolist, becomes himself, by some fortuitous circumstance, the rich monopolist of tomorrow, without desire or liking for denunciation. It is not long ago that a certain foremost opponent of monopoly, a governor of a south-western State, chanced to become largely interested in oil wells. Immediately perceiving in his own fury against the monopolist dried up more quickly than did ever an exhausted well. We should remember that what is right is right now, and at all times. Our education should proceed upon broad and reasonable lines, and our children should be fitted to weigh well the questions and problems of life, so that their mental and moral fibre may grow with their growth and strengthen with their strength."

STOKES FOR CHAIRMAN

Friends of Governor Start Movement to Make Him F. O. Brigg's Successor.

LATTER TO RESIGN

In anticipation of changes in the makeup of the Republican State committee, owing to the election of Chairman Frank O. Briggs to the United States Senatorship, friends of Governor Edward C. Stokes have started a movement, it is said, in the shrewdest politician in the State, and has proved on more than one occasion that he possesses all the requisites for a leader of the party.

There are some influential friends of Mr. Briggs, however, who, while not openly opposed to the plan of Governor Stokes becoming the State chairman, have expressed themselves as wishing the United States Senator-elect to retain his place at the head of the party. They say there is no reason why he should resign the seat because of his election to the Senate and in support of their contentions point out that he has managed the party's affairs with discretion, which has enabled it to survive many crises.

They say that a precedent was established by Governor Franklin Murphy, who was at the head of the State committee while in the Executive's chair. Those who are in favor of the proposed retirement of Mr. Briggs declare, however, that ex-Governor Murphy's incumbency could not be called a precedent, since a greater part of that time Mr. Stokes, as the vice-chairman of the committee, which office he now holds, was really in charge of the committee's affairs.

To his intimate friends, it is said, Chairman Briggs has signified his intention to give up his office in the committee on March 4.

From personal friends of Governor Stokes it was learned that the Executive looked with favor upon the proposition that he be elected to head the committee, and declared his friends that if he were chosen for the place he would readily accept it. It is said that plans have been carefully laid by the Governor's admirers, that in the retirement of Mr. Briggs the committee will not be deprived of his service. It is proposed that he be made a member-at-large to fill the vacancy made by the resignation some months ago of Thomas N. McCarter, president of the Public Service Corporation.

No action has been taken as yet by the committee on Mr. McCarter's resignation, and the friends of Governor Stokes are urging that the committee keep it at the meeting at which Chairman Briggs' successor is chosen.

SERVED 200 SUPPERS.

Women of Monroe Ave. Church Netted Handsome Profit in Consequence.

The annual chicken supper was given at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, Thursday night, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society. Nearly 200 suppers were served during the evening and the net proceeds will amount to about $50. Mrs. Frederick Wenzel is president of the society, and she was assisted in giving the supper by Mrs. Robert L. Lee, Mrs. John Daub, Mrs. William Stein, Mrs. Winfield Decker, Mrs. Lee Johnson, Mrs. Fred Phillips, Mrs. John J. Praed, Mrs. J. S. Higham, Miss Mary Pound, Mrs. I. P. LaRue, Mrs. N. Mansfield Smith and Mrs. William Travell. Mrs. William Gunzenhan and Mrs. Emma Mathews.

The rooms were decorated in patriotic style, there being an arrangement of American flags and bunting. There was also a table devoted to the sale of candy and this was in charge of Miss Ada Decker and Miss Minnie Gunzenhan. An entertainment was a programme of piano and vocal selections given by some of the women of the church.

Commissioner Brown's Work.

Our Board of Commissioners was exceedingly fortunate in its unanimous choice of Commissioner Darling as the head of the Police Department. He succeeds Commissioner Brown, who has removed to North Plainfield. Mr. Darling's former experience assures our citizens of admirable conduct of the department.—Somerville Somerset Messenger.

WILLIAM H. HICKS, EX-SHERIFF DEAD

WAS SHERIFF OF UNION COUNTY FROM 1890 TO 1893.

William H. Hicks, who was elected sheriff of Union county in 1890, died at 7:30 o'clock Friday morning, at his home, 214 Elizabeth avenue, Elizabeth, after an illness of a week from pneumonia.

Mr. Hicks was born at Asbury, Warren county, sixty-nine years ago, and the early years of his life were spent on his father's farm. He came to this city a half-century ago, and established himself in the clothing and shoe business at First street and Broadway, but for the last thirty years had conducted the shoe business at 150 First street, where he formerly resided also. In recent years his home was at 214 Elizabeth avenue.

He was a lifelong Democrat, and was chosen sheriff over James Clark, now deputy sheriff. He was one of the founders of the Elizabethport Mutual Building and Loan Association, and for twenty-five years its treasurer. The office of the association was for many years in the store of Mr. Hicks, First street, and it was here the meetings were held. Hundreds of depositors called upon him from time to time, in these days, for all kinds of advice and he was usually ready to tell them just what they should do. He was also a director in the Union County Savings Bank and of the Elizabethport Banking Company.

SOMERSET FREEHOLDERS DISCUSS IMPROVEMENTS

INSPECT WEST END AVE. BRIDGE AND GO OVER PROPOSED WARREN ROAD.

The Somerset County Board of Freeholders on Thursday inspected the West End avenue bridge, where it is proposed to erect wing walls, and decided to arrahge for a joint meeting with the bridge committee from the Union County Board, to determine about the wing walls on the bridge and to go up the lighting situation and have had a line on just what the P. P. A. has brought out. We did not have large funds. We believed not so much in money and high assessments as in public sentiment. It was the feeling that two years we have known about the lighting situation and have had a line on just what the P. P. A. has brought out. We did not have large funds. We believed not so much in money and high assessments as in public sentiment. It was the feeling that two years ago public sentiment could enable the Board to accomplish all the reforms desired."

Mr. Woolston said he did not know whether or not the matter would be brought up at the next meeting of the Board. It is very likely that the union will be broached then.

President R. Henry Depew, of the P. P. A., is in the South and could not be interviewed regarding the merger.

J. Herbert Case, treasurer of the Plainfield Protective Association, when questioned this morning as to his views regarding the consolidation of the association with the Board of Trade, said:

"I am heartily in favor of the merger and have been since it was first spoken of. Both organizations have good members and by combining the interests of them much good could be accomplished. However, I would favor a constructive policy for the combined organizations, one that would help to build up and advertise Plainfield throughout the country.

"Plainfield certainly has the attractions to advertise and there is no reason why people as well as industries should not be attracted here. The objects of the association are good, but I believe that one strong organization conducted along more liberal lines would be of incalculable benefit. We want to do more than watch the Public Service Corporation or any other corporation, and if the merger is made it should be the policy of the members to have the co-operation and help of the Common Council, all striving for one common end, the good of Plainfield and its many interests. One thing is certain, that is the association has been more aggressive and progressive than the Board of Trade, and I believe that by a combination new life would be infused which would tend to awaken every member to a more lively sense of the importance of doing things that will benefit Plainfield."

Lunch Box Social.

Under the auspices of the Women's Relief Corps, a lunch-box social was held in G. A. R. Hall Friday. The affair was to celebrate Washington's Birthday and a programme of vocal and instrumental selections were given by a quartette composed of Mrs. W. E. Gibbons, Mrs. Andrew Cox, Mrs. E. P. Smith and Mrs. Sadie Baglin. There were also vocal solos by Mrs. John Manley and Alfred Manley, together with addresses by W. C. Smith, L. L. McVoy and M. C. Dobbins. Mrs. M. C. Dobbins, attired in the Martha Washington costume, had charge of the programme. Capt. William Hand was the auctioneer and he sold all of the lunch-boxes at good prices.

P.P.A. & B. OF T. TO MERGE

Suggested By Men Who Belong to Both of the Organizations.

WOOLSTON APPROVES

Board of Trade President Says the Older Body Has Been Working on the Same Lines —Mr. Case's Idea.

A movement for the union of the Plainfield Protective Association and the Board of Trade has been started. The union is favored by prominent members of the P. P. A. who are also members of the Board, and President L. B. Woolston, of the latter organization, has expressed decided approval of the proposition.

Many citizens, members of both bodies among them, have been saying ever since the P. P. A. organization was accomplished that the association was engaged in work that should be done by the Board of Trade. The conviction grew to a point where it crystallized into action, and steps were taken to have the two bodies take up the suggestion.

In connection with the proposition, members of the bodies have said that the separate organization of the P. P. A. was wholly unnecessary. It is argued that the citizens who would have accomplished all they have done with a saving of time and effort by joining the Board of Trade and working within that organization with the same energy expended as members of the P. P. A.

A reporter for The Daily Press asked Mr. Woolston, yesterday, what he thought of the proposition. He expressed decided approval of it.

"So far as I am concerned," said Mr. Woolston, "there is no objection to the union. I am willing to do everything to advance the interests of the city, and it seems to me that the proposed union would help to further advance the city. I feel sure the majority of the members of the Board of trade would favor the union.

"I think P. P. A. members will not find the Board unfamiliar with the work the association has been doing. The Board started out to accomplish what the P. P. A. has been working on. For almost two years we have known about the lighting situation and have had a line on just what the P. P. A. has brought out. We did not have large funds. We believed not so much in money and high assessments as in public sentiment. It was the feeling that two years ago public sentiment could enable the Board to accomplish all the reforms desired."

Mr. Woolston said he did not know whether or not the matter would be brought up at the next meeting of the Board. It is very likely that the union will be broached then.

FIX ANNIVERSARY DATE

First M. E. Church Congregation to Celebrate Seventy-Fifth Year of Effort.

FROM OCT. 13 TO 20

The official board of the First M. E. church has fixed the date for the observance of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the organization of the church. The celebration will commence on Sunday, October 13, and continue every day until and including Sunday, October 20. The committee is now busily engaged on the programme, which will be an elaborate one. It is expected that many of the most prominent leaders in the denomination will be present and it is also proposed to have the former pastors there to take part in the services. The music will be a special feature.

Another event of more than special interest is that the official board has extended an invitation to the General Conference of New Jersey to meet at the First M. E. church in April, 1908. As there are 260 churches in the conference and there are two lay delegates and the minister from each church expected to attend, it would bring together a gathering of over 700 people. Of course, the board is not sure that the invitation will be accepted, but every effort will be made to bring the conference here.

It was planned to invite the conference here this year, it being the fiftieth anniversary of that body. But inasmuch as the conference was organized at Morristown, the Methodists there were particularly anxious to have the gathering at their town. It will be held at the usual time in April.

OLD FASHIONED SINGING CONCERT AT HOPE CHAPEL

UNIQUE AFFAIR ENJOYED BY A LARGE GATHERING.

Something new in the way of musical entertainment was provided at Hope chapel, Friday night, when 40 members presented an "old fashioned singing concert." It was arranged and conducted by Judge William N. Runyon and was attended by an audience that filled the Sunday-school room to its capacity.

The singers occupied seats on the platform and at the opening sang songs that are known as "old fashioned." After each one was presented, Judge Runyon told something about its origin and the way he did it was a feature in itself. The solo parts were taken by Elmer D. Cutting, John V. Todd, Harry Roberts, Miss Edna Eckerl, F. C. Iglehart and Mrs. L. R. Howard. The chorus wore appropriate costumes.

Edmund Young performed on the cornet, giving a medley of Scotch and Irish airs, and the Four H. quartette made its appearance in the West End. It is composed of Harry Roberts, Hugh Ricketts, Horace J. Martin, Jr., and Harry Blimm, and they kept the audience in good humor for twenty minutes with their singing and talking act.

The proceeds are to be added to the organ fund of the chapel and will reach a large amount.

GIVING A DINNER.

Hints For the Hostess Who Wishes to Be Up to Date.

Either six or eight is a good number to have at dinner—eight if you play cards afterward.

Have a distinct color scheme and have your candles and flowers match.

The name cards at each place can be painted the same tint or tied with ribbon.

Fancy sets for each course are the order of the day. The same dinner service is not used throughout.

The salad is served on lettuce leaf plates.

Ramequins are very elaborate, and fish baked in these is best for the fish course, and there is no odor in preparing it. Ramequins also may be used for creamed sweetbreads or mushrooms.

After dinner coffee cups should be very gay in design. They may all be different or else fit in with the general color scheme or else match the handsome dessert set.

Glass single candlesticks with the old fashioned drops have come in again.

Gold meshed glassware and small dishes are very smart.

The latest is to serve after dinner coffee in the drawing room, English fashion, around the open fire.—Natalie Emerson.

The Plainfield Yale Club expects to have President Hadley, of Yale, as the principal speaker at the annual banquet to be held at the Casino on March 15.

ALUMNI HONORS TEACHER

GIFT FOR MISS NILES

Presented With Engrossed Resolutions in Recognition of Her Long Service As a Teacher.

The Alumni Association of the Plainfield High School held its second annual meeting Friday night, and combined the gathering with a reception to Miss Ellen E. Niles, the oldest teacher in point of service in the city corps. Both business and social affairs were held in the new High School building and the attendance occupied the greater part of the auditorium.

President William D. Murray, of the association, presided over the open meeting held first and introduced Frank Moss, of New York, counsel for the Society for the Prevention of Crime, as the speaker for the occasion. The subject of his address was "George Washington—the Man and the Citizen" and proved decidedly entertaining. Mr. Moss is eloquent and convincing in his delivery and his address was enjoyed from an oratorical as well as reasonic point of view. The audience united in singing "America" at the close.

The annual business meeting of the Alumni Association was called to order by President Murray and a large amount of work was accomplished. The report of Secretary Franklin S. Smith was read and showed a membership of 250 out of 625 living graduates. The nominating committee composed of William C. Hubbard, E. J. Patterson and Vincent B. Miner, reported and the following officers were elected:

President, Arthur L. Titsworth, class 1870; vice president, A. McClean Parker, '74; secretary and treasurer, Franklin S. Smith, '80; members of the general committee: William M. Stillman, '72; Miss Anna W. Marsh, '73; Miss Jessie M. Utter, '74; William D. Murray, '75; Walter M. McGee, '76; Townsend Rushmore, '77; Mrs. John Vought, '78; Mrs. C. Frank French, '79; R. H. Depew, '80; Mrs. E. I. Hatch, '81; George M. Kirkner, '82; Miss Roberta L. Bass, '83; Miss S. Lena Bass, '84; Mrs. Isaac M. Wyckoff, '85; Miss Flora R. Petrie, '86; Edward T. B. Perrine, '88; Miss Dora D. Wenzel, '89; William C. Cortelyou, '90; Mrs. Philip S. Suffern, '91; Mrs. Edgar D. Williams, '92; Mrs. Charles McNabb, '93; C. L. Riley, '94; C. B. Morse, '95; Dr. F. W. Cornwell, '96; Miss Louise Egan, '97; Henry W. Brower, '98; Miss Helen Lovell, '99; Miss Edna Burr, '00; Miss Ethel Titsworth, '01; Erwin Leland, '02; Vincent B. Miner, '03; Miss Mildred J. Spicer, '04; Theodore O. Gavett, '05; Howard Freeman, 06.

At the conclusion of the elections, Mr. Murray called upon Miss Niles and presented her with a testimonial in the form of a set of resolutions engrossed in a leather bound book and signed by many members of the Alumni Association. They also expressed in writing their congratulations on the completion of her thirty-eight years of service and made mention of the love and esteem in which she is held by all who have been her pupils. A reception followed in the school library, at which Miss Niles received, assisted by Miss S. Lena Bass. A Dancing was in order in the school hall and it was enjoyed until midnight by a majority of the attendants. Music was furnished by Suhr's Imperial orchestra and De-Molli was the caterer. The main hall was profusely decorated with American flags.

MANY LOOPHOLES IN THE MOTOR LAWS

QUESTIONS DECIDED AT MEETING OF JERSEY MOTOR CLUB.

The most important happening in the local motor world last week was the meeting of the New Jersey Automobile and Motor Club to consider legal questions which have arisen during the last six months. The sense of the meeting was that the present law provides entirely too many loopholes for those who are reckless and who do not propose to obey the law if they can avoid doing so. One of the most important of the resolutions passed was in favor of having all license pads issued by the State, thus attaining the uniformity of design that has been such a successful feature of the Pennsylvania law.

Another resolution of vast importance was that which calls for the carrying of lights at night by all vehicles, whether horse-drawn or propelled by motors. There has already been introduced into the Legislature a bill calling for the carrying of two lights on all vehicles, but the New Jersey Automobile Club has decided not to support this, however, for the reason that in many cases it would work a hardship to owners of horse vehicles, although it is practically a necessity in the case of automobiles. The same resolution calls for only one light. In its present form, as given below, it has received the sanction of the Road Drivers' Association. With the backing of two such powerful organizations, both of which have the welfare of vehicles of traffic at heart, the measure should not fail of passing. It was stipulated that this provision go as an amendment to the general road laws and not to the Frelinghuysen automobile act.

Other resolutions having to do with the increasing of the force of motor vehicle inspectors, with power to arrest without warrant and to require motorists to show licenses; the throwing of glass and nails upon highways, and the establishment of a permanent legal committee by the club to watch legislation. The resolutions, as finally passed and recorded officially by the secretary, are as follows:

"Resolved, That it is the sentiment of this club that a bill be introduced for passage by the Legislature requiring all vehicles other than those included under the provisions of the motor vehicle law, when using the highways of this State during the period of time between one h aur after sunset and one hour before sunrise, and whenever fog renders it impossible to see a long distance, to carry a lighted lamp showing a white light in all directions if suspended under the body of such vehicle or showing a white light from the front and a red light from the rear to be attached to the left side of the vehicle. That this club is in favor of an amendment to the present highway law and not to affect in any way the requirements of the present motor vehicle law.

"That it be made a misdemeanor to throw, place or deposit any glass upon the public highways of this State.

"That a legislative committee of five members be appointed annually by the president of this club for the purpose of facilitating the enforcement of the motor vehicle law and to advance all measures suggested for the advancement by statutory provisions of the interest of and protection to automobilists in general in this State and for the better protection, improvement and building of highways in this State.

"That the department of motor vehicle registration and regulation issue and furnish the number required by the motor vehicle law, and that all such tags be of uniform size and design.

"That the corps of inspectors of the department of motor vehicle registration and regulation, acting under the provisions of the motor vehicle law, be increased to twenty members.

"Resolved, That all automobilists who are regularly registered in their native states shall have the right, by application to the federal government, to a certificate that will give them the right to pass through any State in the Union."

"UNCLE" NORTON ALL RIGHT.

No Need For Customers of Pawnbroker Who Moved to Worry.

Harry A. Norton, the pawnbroker who conducted a shop on East Front street, for several weeks, has moved to Newark. The business outlook here was not promising enough.

One or two of the few people who had pledged jewelry with him have been worried over their goods, but their worriment was needless. He left his address with Chief of Police Kiely and anyone who wants to learn it can get the information at police headquarters. Norton came here from Trenton and there was the same perturbation among his customers there until the Trenton police gave out his address here. The police vouch for Norton's squareness. They investigated him when he first came to the city. "Norton is all right," said Chief Kiely this morning. "Anyone who has stuff pledged with him can get it back whenever they are ready to redeem it."

WANT TUBERCULOSIS HOSPITAL FOR VERONA.

At a meeting of the Newark Board of Health last week Mrs. Edwin A. Prieth and Mrs. Mary Wilson, of Montclair, appeared and asked sanction for a plan which they have evolved for the establishment of a tuberculosis sanitarium on the grounds of the Newark City Home at Verona.

It is proposed by them to use for that purpose a girls' cottage in the group of buildings which is not now in use. It would accommodate about fifty patients, is on high latitude and is surrounded by about six acres of land. The two women are engaged in the matter from motives of voluntary charity.

They said their attention had been called to the need of an institution for lung tuberculosis, victims by a case in Newark of which they had knowledge. It was that of a man for whom they were obtaining hospital treatment. They investigated and found that there were scores of similar cases. They enlisted the sympathy of Newark officials. Their idea was to have the city provide and operate the place and to receive pay patients as well as others.

Dr. H. C. H. Herrold, president of the Board of Health, told the women that the matter would be taken up by the board with the Common Council, the Finance Committee of which would have to provide the means for the operation of such an institution. It is expected that the cost would approximate $40,000 a year, and many boxes of dollar-a-year meetings would have to be decided upon before it could be undertaken.

AUSTIN BOY FREED.

Orel Victorson is Recovering and Mrs. Austin Will Pay Doctor.

Assured by a physician that Orel Victorson, a colored boy lay unconscious for nine hours after a knockdown blow from 10-year-old Matthew Austin, colored, would be all right in a day or two, City Judge Runyon discharged the colored lad from custody this morning.

The boy's hearing was brief. Mrs. Victorson said she did not want to see Matthew punished and would be willing to drop the case if the doctor's bill was paid. Mrs. Austin lost no time in offering to pay it, and the understanding that she meet all the medical expense was made part of the disposition of the case.

Dr. C. A. Gesswein is attending the Victorson boy. He expects to have him as well as he ever was within three days.

N. B. SMALLEY SAYS "NO"

Mayor Thinks Four Terms Enough and Will Decline Another Nomination.

POLITICS IN BOROUGH

Not only will the borough-ites have to select a new mayor this fall but it will also have to fill collector, an assessor, two councilmen and a freeholder to be Elected In North Plainfield in the Fall.

Mayor N. B. Smalley.

Not only will the borough-ites have to select a new mayor this fall but it will also have to fill collector, an assessor, two councilmen and a freeholder. Mayor Newton B. Smalley won't be re-elected for the simple reason that he will refuse to accept a renomination. He says so himself, so that ends it. After having filled the office most creditably too—for four consecutive terms—His Honor has resolved to retire from the limelight of publicity. Higher honors are in store for him, says his friends but just what they may be can not be learned.

Neither party has brought out any candidate as yet and there is likely to be "nothing doing" until fall. There is an abundance of good material within the ranks of both the Democratic and the Republican parties, however, and it is not thought that the nominations will go begging. One politician in the borough said last night that he had heard the name of former Councilman James K. Arnold mentioned by Republicans, and he had also heard of a little boom for Abijah Townsend by Democrats. Mr. Townsend is now one of the members of the Board of Education and like Mr. Arnold has always taken a deep interest in borough affairs.

There appears to be no question that George F. Brown will be renominated by the Republicans for collector provided he wants another term, but there are whispers that he will get a bigger job next fall. Assessor J. H. Cooley will be reopposed for another nomination, it has been learned on good authority, and the same applies to Freeholder Smith. The terms of two councilmen, John H. VanWinkle, Jr., and Frank Krewson, will also expire. Nothing has been said as to these positions, but it is likely that the Republicans will have a large field to pick from in making these nominations.

READY FOR MEETING OF METHODIST CONFERENCE.

Residents of Red Bank Will Entertain the Clergymen of the Body.

Arrangements are completed for the entertainment of the three hundred or more preachers of the New Jersey Methodist Episcopal Conference, which will convene at Red Bank the week beginning March 13. The conference promises to be more interesting than usual on account of the large number of changes that are probable among the ministers of the conference.

The New Jersey Conference extends from the Raritan River to Cape May and from the Delaware River to the ocean. There are about 250 ministers in that district and the probationers and visiting clergymen will bring the total number up to 300. Bishop Henry W. Warren, of Denver, will preside.

The ministers will be entertained at the homes in the borough. The committee met last night and assigned the preachers to the various homes. The entertaining church will be the First Methodist and Conference anniversaries and similar services will be held in Grace Methodist. Rev. Alfred Wagg, pastor of the First Methodist church, is chairman of the committee and George A. Longstreet is the secretary.

The Epworth League of the First M. E. church will hold a Business and social meeting in Vincent chapel Friday night. This meeting was postponed from last week.

The Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the First M. E. church will meet in Vincent chapel tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. The thank-offering will be received.

The annual meeting of the Young Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will be held Friday afternoon. This meeting was postponed from last Friday.

The Junior Society will meet at the Congregational church Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

MISS WILBUR BECOMES BRIDE OF PHILADELPHIAN

FREEHOLDER'S DAUGHTER WEDDED TO BLAKE BROADHEAD TATHAM AT HOME.

Miss Louise Fink Wilbur, daughter of Freeholder and Mrs. Samuel P. T. Wilbur, and Blakis Broadhead Tatham, of Philadelphia, were married Wednesday at the home of the bride, 511 Westervelt avenue. The guests numbered 175. The house was handsomely decorated in pink and white, with pink roses and carnations, to bring out the color scheme against a background of smilax and palms.

The ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock by Rev. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church. The bridal party entered the parlor, where the marriage was solemnized, from the dining room, through an aisle of ribbons, hatting before a bank of palms beside a window. Miss Wilbur was attended by Miss Adele E. Black, of New York, and the best man was Filmore A. Drake, of Akron, O. The ushers were Edward Tatham and Charles Tatham, of Newark, brothers of the groom. James F. Buckle, Jr., was page and Ruth Smith, of Cranford, was flower girl. The wedding music was played by an orchestra.

The bride was dressed in white ieary lace over white chiffon and taffeta, and carried white roses and lilies of the valley. She wore a veil caught up with a spray of the lilies. The maid-of-honor was gowned in cream lace over white chiffon and taffeta, and carried pink roses and sweet peas. The flower girl was dressed in white. Mrs. Wilbur was gowned in a handsome creation of gray silk acollan, trimmed with panels of pan velvet; she wore violets.

They will make their home in Philadelphia, where the groom is in the automobile business. Mr. Tatham is the son of Mrs. Mary A. Tatham, of Philadelphia.

The bride received a roomful of gifts. They included furniture, china, objects of art, silver and cut glass. Fine pieces of the latter were conspicuous in the array.

The bride's gift to the groom was a pair of gold cuff buttons and his gift to her was a clock. The best man and ushers received stickpins and the maid-of-honor a pearl daisy pin. The page received a stickpin and the flower girl a baby pin.

CHERRY TREE SOCIAL AT PARK AVE. BAPTIST CHURCH.

At the Park Avenue Baptist church a "Cherry Tree Social" was held on Thursday night. It was arranged in honor of George E. Hall, superintendent of the Sunday-school, whose birthday anniversary occurred yesterday, by Mr. and Mrs. A. Finn's Bible classes, but Mr. Hall was detained at home by illness. There was a presentation of a birthday cake to Mr. Hall, it being received by Mr. Finn as proxy. The cake was brought in by Mabel Stutsman and Gordon Moy dressed as George and Martha Washington, and G. W. V. Moy made the presentation. The cake was taken to Mr. Hall's home yesterday.

The programme, under the direction of Harry C. Runyon, as bandmaster, was greatly enjoyed. It was as follows: Selection by orchestra, *meeting of ole time singin' school cho*rus, 'Sound the Loud Timbrel: recitation, Mrs. Charles Steiner: chorus, 'Strike the Cymbal'; solo and chorus, Cousie Lendell and Miss Alma Runyon; recitation, Aunty Doleful's Visit, Mrs. Herbert Henry; solo, Grandma's Advice," Miss Cora Brokaw; selection, mock orchestra; recitation, A Surprise," G. W. V. Moy; chorus, Red, White and Blue; selection, orchestra; distribution of hatchets.

The mock orchestra furnished lots of fun. About thirty young people dressed in old-time costume appeared playing all sorts of instruments and while the harmony was not always the best, there was plenty of music that delighted all. Another feature was the fireworks. These were furnished by paper novelties and all sorts of pretty figures were displayed, carrying out the patriotic idea.

After the entertainment there was a social hour and ice cream and cake were served.

UNWRITTEN LAW IS NOT GOOD IN JERSEY.

William Griggs was convicted in Mercer Court this week at Trenton on a charge of assault and battery on William Bowers, a groceryman, at the corner of Prospect street and Pennington avenue in that city. Bowers claimed that Griggs came into his grocery store at Prospect street and Pennington avenue, and accused him of interfering with his wife. Bowers denied the accusation and told Griggs if he did not get out of his store he would throw him out. Bowers said that Griggs then made an assault on him, choking him.

The defense claimed justification in defending the good name of his wife, but Judge Reilstab reminded Messrs. Hunt and Kafes, who represented Griggs, that the unwritten law does not go in New Jersey. William R. Piper conducted the prosecution.

SENATOR KEAN VOTES FOR MORMAN APOSTLE

REED SMOOT SEATED IN U. S. SENATE —DRYDEN WAS ABSENT.

Senator Reed Smooth, of Utah, stays in the United States Senate despite the fact he is an apostle of the Mormon church. The Senate Wednesday sustained his right to the seat, which he has occupied four years, although he has been all the time a target for attack.

Among those who voted to unseat him was LaFollette, of Wisconsin. John Kean, of New Jersey, cast his vote in Smoot's favor. His colleague, John F. Dryden, was absent. The gallery was filled with women at the time, but they were prevented from *hissing when the result was an*nounced. The fight had lasted over a period of three years.

The original Burrows resolution read: "Resolved, That Reed Smoot is not entitled to a seat in the United States Senate as a Senator from Utah." Before this could be voted upon, Senator Hopkins, of Illinois, offered an amendment inserting after the word "resolved," "Two-thirds of the Senators present concurring." This really provided that the resolution should require a two-thirds vote for adoption. Forty-nine Senators voted affirmatively on the amendment and twenty-eight negatively. Senator Carmack, of Tennessee, then offered as a substitute a resolution providing that Reed Smoot be expelled from the Senate. This was defeated 42 votes to 21. Then the vote came on the original resolution, and was lost, the vote being 42 nays to 28 yeas.

K. OF P.'S GRAND LODGE PLANS SOMETHING NEW.

General Lodge to Be Composed of Members of Defunct Lodges.

Something entirely new to fraternal orders was discussed by the Grand Lodge of New Jersey, Knights of Pythias, at its annual session, which closed at Trenton Thursday afternoon. The proposition was to take care of members of defunct lodges by placing them in a general lodge, working under a special charter. Owing to the fact that the members of the lodge would come from different sections of the State, it would be practically impossible to hold meetings, and so it was proposed to administer its financial affairs from the office of the grand lodge.

It was argued by many that many members of the branch lodges would in time seek admission into a regular lodge, and so the membership would be undergoing a steady change. Others claimed the inactive members of defunct lodges would be satisfied, and that, in time, the lodge would have a big membership.

"No matter from what point you view the plan," said one delegate, "it would save to the order all members of defunct lodges, and that is the sole aim of the order."

The legality of the plan was attacked and a long argument resulted. It was proposed to call the branch "State Lodge No. 200," the right to receive candidates by initiation being denied. Final disposition of the plan was made by adopting a motion to charter the special lodge. It is thought that other fraternal orders will watch with considerable interest the result of the experiment.

No change was made in the amount of per capita tax to be levied. The June tax will be fifteen cents, and the December levy will call for twenty cents. During the coming year the grand lodge will be called upon to pay the supreme lodge about $200 more than last year, the tax levy having been increased two cents.

The appropriation bill was made up of these items: Compensation of grand chancellor, $700; salary of grand master of exchequer, $100; salary of grand keeper of records and seal, $800; office rent of grand lodge, $180; supreme lodge per capita tax, $1,000; printing for grand lodge, $900; supplies, $300; expenses of vice-chancellor, $200; expenses of grand record keeper, $200; expenses of grand master of exchequer, $50; expenses of grand tribune, $100; incidentals, $200; total, $4,730.

A HANDKERCHIEF SOAKER.

Arranged By Miss Bessie Bond for Miss Jessie Stevens.

In honor of Miss Jessie Stevens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick R. Stevens, of Second place, whose marriage to Walter Caboone, of Watchung avenue, will take place in May, Miss Bessie Bond, of East Front street, gave a handkerchief shower at her home, Thursday afternoon. There were about thirty friends present and Miss Stevens received a handsome collection of handkerchiefs.

A feature of the affair was that each one attending was expected to express their acceptance in rhyme and prizes were given to those composing the best verse. Miss Stevens received first prize and Miss Helen Robins the second prize. After the social features refreshments were served. The decorations in the dining room were very attractive, red being the prevailing color.

TO FIGHT CONSUMPTION

Plainfield Clinical Society to Organize a Tuberculosis Association.

PLAN A CAMPAIGN

Dr. B. VanD. Hedges and Dr. Bailey to Deliver Lectures Here in Connection With Exhibition.

Steps were taken Wednesday at a meeting of the committee on tuberculosis from the Plainfield Clinical Society, toward forming a permanent organization in Plainfield. The is now a State organization, and it is the desire of those interested in fighting tuberculosis and lung troubles in general to form a local society with definite aims and purposes.

This action was the result of a discussion regarding the State exhibit to be held in the Stirling building for one week, beginning March 4. A committee on advertising and publicity will be appointed soon and it was decided to expend $150 for the use of the committee. As stated yesterday, Dr. B. VanD. Hedges, as president of the Board of Health, will have general charge of the exhibit here and there will be a trained nurse in attendance throughout the week to explain the object of it. Dr. Hedges will also give lectures and if it can be arranged Dr. Bailey, of Elizabeth, will exhibit a number of lantern slides on the subject in the evening. *He has expressed his willing*ness to do this. In speaking of the exhibit, Dr. Hedges said today:

"This is a campaign of information pure and simple and judging by the interest shown it speaks well for the effort to put tuberculosis down and out. This is only one of many campaigns started throughout the country and there has been a notable diminution of the disease ever since. If we can properly educate the people up to that point where they thoroughly understand how to prevent and care for the disease, a great work will be accomplished."

LUCIUS T. KOONS WEDS MISS OLIVE BOGARDUS.

Ceremony At Home of Bride's Mother Performed By Philipsburg Minister.

Miss Olive Bogardus, daughter of Mrs. E. H. Bogardus, of Putnam avenue, and Lucius T. Koons, son ofMr. and Mrs. T. N. Koons, of Sanford avenue, this city, were quietly married Wednesday at 6:30 o'clock at the bride's home. Only the immediate families were present. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Percy Y. Schelley, of Phillipsburg, N. J., an old friend of the groom.

The house was attractively decorated with greens and cut flowers, the bride and groom being married under a bower of green.

After the wedding supper Mr. and Mrs. Koons left for a few weeks' tour in the South. Upon their return they will make their home in this city.

Both are well known in Plainfield, the groom being a graduate of the Plainfield High School. He is vice president of the Palmer Lime and Cement Company, of New York.

LAFAYETTE GRADUATES TO ORGANIZE A CLUB.

For the purpose of forming a permanent organization of Lafayette College, a call has been issued by a committee of six, of which Joseph O. Skinner, '02, 164 Market street, Newark, is one, for a meeting to be held Thursday night, February 28, at the Union Club, 25 Clinton street, Newark.

This gathering will be an informal one and it is proposed to form a temporary organization and select committees to look after the various details of a big dinner a few weeks later. All Lafayette men are urged to attend this meeting and help to make the movement a success. There are a number of Lafayette men in Plainfield who are expected to attend the meeting. The call is issued by George W. W. Porter, '85; Fred F. Kennedy, '98; Joseph O. Skinner, '02, of Newark; Wayne Dumont, '92, Paterson; John J. Voorhees, '98, Jersey City, and A. P. Runyon, '01, Perth Amboy. All communications should be sent to Mr. Skinner.

MR. ACKERMAN'S BILL WAS MISUNDERSTOOD.

Merely Allows Counties to Increase Appropriations to Hospitals.

Newspapers all over the State announced Wednesday that Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of Union, had introduced a bill, Senate No. 119, allowing counties to build county hospitals at an expense of not more than $200,000.

Senator Ackerman informed a reporter last night that it was an error. The bill he introduced was one brought to Trenton by the Legislative committee of the Union County Board of Freeholders and its purport was to allow Boards of Freeholders to increase the amount that counties might give to hospitals from $15,000 to $20,000 a year. The bill is in the interest of Union county and will probably pass without opposition as it is not mandatory in its provisions.

NOTABLES TO SPEAK AT U. P. ALUMNI BANQUET.

The North Jersey Alumni Association of the University of Pennsylvania will have its annual meeting and banquet in the colonial room of the Trenton House, at Trenton, Monday night. Governor Edward C. Stokes will be one of the speakers, as will Judge John G. Horner, of Burlington county, a graduate of Pengsylvania. Dr. James M. Green, principal of the State schools, will speak on the relationship between the preparatory schools and the universities.

The university will be represented by Charles C. Harrison, A. M. LL. D.; Vice Provost Edgar Fahs Smith and Dr. Edward Martin, professor of clinical surgery.

There are nearly 75 graduates of Pennsylvania in Mercer county, and it is expected that most of them will be present, besides many others from the counties north of Mercer, and from Monmouth, Burlington and Ocean counties.

The committee in charge of arrangements consists of Charles H. Dilts, '91, dental; Francis B. Lee, '90, Wharton; Edward Hawke, '95, medical; A. E. Boice, '00, dental; William S. Collier, '02, medical; James McGuire, '02, medical; John C. Forsythe, '99, dental, all of Trenton.

The officers of the society are: William H. Parry, '93C., president, Newark; Elbert S. Sherman, '97M., Newark, first vice president; August Lochnberg, '99C., Newark, second vice president; John C. Forsythe, '99D., Trenton, secretary-treasurer.

A special offering will be made Sunday morning for the benefit of Abraham Staats, who for twenty-five years or more has faithfully served as organ blower in the First Baptist church. He is now advanced in years, out of health and otherwise incapacitated for work.

The fourth quarterly conference of the First M. E. church will be held in Vincent chapel Wednesday night, March 6, after prayer meeting.

The Mission Study Class of the Congregational church will meet tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock with Mrs. Eugene A. Laing, of Truell Court.

B. G. FIRSTBROOK WEDS MISS GERTRUDE I. GEIER

CEREMONY PERFORMED BY REV. A. C. M'CREA AT HIS HOME LAST NIGHT.

Miss Gertrude T. Geier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Geier, of Madison avenue, and Bertram Collins Firstbrook, of Grant avenue, were quietly married at 9 Wednesday night. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. A. C. McCrea, pastor of the First M. E. church, at his home on Central avenue. City Judge William N. Runyon, an intimate friend of the groom, was the only witness outside of the bridal party.

Miss Geier was gowned in brown broadcloth, trimmed with velvet, and carried a bonquet of bride roses. She was attended by Miss Kathryne Slade, of West Front street, who wore gray broadcloth with velvet trimmings. The groom's attendant was Thomas M. Muir.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Firstbrook left for New York from which place they started on a short bridal trip. On returning they will make their home on Madison avenue. Both young people are well known throughout the city, the groom having an unusually large circle of friends. He is engaged in the grocery and milk business and has been prominent for several years in amateur theatricals.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Firstbrook received an attractive array of gifts, principally cut glass and furniture. The bride presented her attendant with a pearl clasp pin and the best man received from the groom a diamond stickpin.

SMOKING ROOM FEATURE OF KING'S DAUGHTERS' FETE.

The Floral Fete to be held at the Casino on April 11, 12 and 13 for the Day Nursery, under the auspices of the City Union, King's Daughters, will be one of the most elaborate of the kind ever given in town. The enthusiasm with which the members and the various committees are taking hold of the details assures a great success. As the name of the fete implies flowers will form a large part of the decorations. Each one of the several booths will be arranged with some particular flower.

The Casino has been engaged for the three days and among the features will be a smoking room for the men and another room will be reserved for light suppers and chafing dishes. This will be in charge of Miss Rafferty. The various booths, the circles in charge and the articles for sale will be as follows:

Charity, useful articles: Golden Rule, lemonade; Daughters of the Cross, miscellaneous; Cheerful Workers, flowers; Benevolent, cake; Methodist Episcopal, candy; Watsoever, Japanese tea room and fishing pond for children; Loyal Daughters, Red Cross, bath room accessories, etc.; Cup Bearers, candy; Silver Cross, will furnish entertainment Thursday afternoon and night; Emanuel, ice cream.

Besides the above there will be tables for the sale of fancy hat pins to be in charge of Mrs. George A. Beaton and another table of jewelry to be in charge of Mrs. W. L. C. Glenney. In the effort being made to secure funds for the maintenance of the Day Nursery, the committee wants it known that rugs and pictures are much needed at the nursery and if anyone has a piano which they would like to donate it would be greatly appreciated.

It has also been arranged to have Mrs. Daniel F. Ginna take charge of the sale of small plain and fancy tables and Mrs. Dorsey Hyde will sell dolls.

WILLARD MEMORIAL SERVICE.

W. C. T. U. Honor Memory of Its Late Leader.

The Women's Christian Temperance Union held a service in its rooms Thursday afternoon in memory of Francis E. Willard, who for many years was the national president of the organization. Mrs. P. C. Bodine was in charge of the meeting and she related many interesting incidents in the life of the late temperance leader. There were also readings from the life of Miss Willard by Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson, Mrs. M. C. Dobbins, Miss May E. Howlett and Mrs. Gilbert VanNest.

During the service there were appropriate songs and a solo by Mrs. Udell, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Charles L. Lewis, on the piano. After the meeting there was discussion about the matter meeting which will be held in the near future.

Rev. Dr. Henry Stout will be installed as pastor of the Reformed church, South Bound Brook, tonight. Rev. E. J. Meeker, president of the classis, will preside and deliver the charge to the pastor, and Rev. Dr. James LeFevre, of Somerville, will preach the sermon.

The women of the churches throughout the city have received an invitation to attend a union prayer meeting in the interests of home missions to be held in the Congregational church Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. B. O. Bowers, of Franklin place, left yesterday for a pleasure trip to Florida.

BROWN FOR SURROGATE

Nomination Likely to Go to North Plainfield and Collector is Being Boomed.

ROWLEY A SUPPORTER

G. O. P. Shrievalty Nomination Will Go To Bernards Man If Cooper Declines—Democrats Prefer Carney.

In Somerset county, the voters will be called upon in the fall to choose not only an assemblyman but a surrogate and a sheriff as well. North Plainfield will be satisfied if the surrogateship plum comes its way and already friends of two active Republicans are at work in their behalf. It is seen in connection with Collector George F. Brown and Borough Clerk Frank Rowley. Brown in particular has strong backing, the powers that be looking with favor upon the mention of his name in connection with the nomination.

Mr. Brown's health is not of the best, but it is not expected that that fact would deter him from accepting a nomination, provided he does not want to do the collectorship. Mr. Rowley's friends are also at work and it is believed that a strong fight will be made at the convention to land him in the berth. The Democrats are expected to renominate the present incumbent, William DeMond, of Bridgewater. DeMond is an model official and his fact will drag him many votes from the opposition party.

So far as the shrievalty is concerned, there seems to be an unanimity of opinion in favor of renominating the present incumbent, Edward Cooper, of Warren township. Cooper has given satisfactory service to the county and the Republicans feel that he deserve another term. There is, however, a movement on foot to name a Bernards man. The only other nomination to be made is that of assemblyman. W. W. Cooper, of Bound Brook, will be renominated. As for the Democrats, it is said that David J. Carney would have an excellent chance of nomination for sheriff if he would only consent to run. The nomination for assembly is apt to go abegging at the party convention.

JR. O. U. A. M. CELEBRATES WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY.

Rev. E. E. Roberson Speaks On "The Bible, the Flag and Our Country."

Following the regular session of Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M., Friday night, the members provided an entertainment including speeches and a smoker. Councilor C. F. Hulit, who was in the chair, called upon Past Councilor George F. Watts to deliver the address of welcome.

Rev. E. E. Roberson, pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, made the address of the evening. It was a patriotic oration on "The Bible, the Flag and Our Country." Mr. Watts presented the council with a picture of George Washington and one of the old American flags bearing the thirteen stars, which was made by himself.

During the evening Naylor's orchestra rendered selections and Mr. Pierre gave piano selections. The rooms was elaborately decorated with flags and bunting in honor of the day. After the entertainment refreshments were served and cigars passed around. The committee in charge consisted of George F. Watts, J. A. Dow, Henry VanArsdale, F. L. Soper, Jr., LeRoy Clawson and Robert Meiler.

HROMODKO'S DIPLOMAS WORTHLESS IN JERSEY.

Frank J. Hromodko, who was convicted early in the term for practicing medicine without a license, was sentenced this week by Judge Reilstab at Trenton to pay a fine of $50 and the costs of prosecution.

Hromodko is the man who was doing a great business among the Polish people in Trenton until some of the doctors who were called in to treat cases where Hromodko's efforts had failed. The physicians had the matter investigated, which resulted in the arrest and indictment and subsequent conviction of Hromodko.

Hromodko had a number of diplomas from foreign colleges, but he had never taken the State examination here and was, therefore, acting unlawfully.

THINKS CHURCH DOOMED

Rev. Phil A. Parsons Declares That Institution Has Fallen to Decay.

ASSIGNS HIS REASONS

"It Smiles Indulgently at the Wardness of the Young and Reaches Greedily Toward Illicit Profits."

That the church of today is doomed was the somewhat startling proposition advanced by Rev. Phil A. Parsons Sunday night at the Christian church. His subject was. "The Passing of the Church," and in the course of his sermon he said:

"A great deal has been said of the little red schoolhouse in connection with our present progress. The building up of our great institutions has been the outcome of its development, yet few have sung the praises of the little white church which usually occupied the opposite corner of the cross roads. The red schoolhouse has developed into the great American school system, while the church has fallen to decay. Nor do we fail to feel and see the results of this education of the head to the neglect of the heart.

"The two great safeguards of the social system have been removed with the passing of the church, namely, the great moral influence of the church itself and the influence of the Christian home, the product of it. Yesterday the home was the place where men and women were made with a sublime regard for morals and the rights of others. Today it is the place where we recuperate from or prepare for the commercial struggle or gratify our social ambitions. Let us strive for a moment in the mad rush for social position and the making of fortunes and make a few men, they will be needed in the next generation. Instead of bringing up families today we let them grow.

"Nothing is more significant of this man than the present day corruption in politics and the acknowledged and shameless immorality of modern business methods. Our courts have become tribunals before which naked corruption gambols unabated, our penitentiaries swarm with law offenders languishing in barbarous confinement for long periods, while the millionaire criminal perpetrates his outrages unpunished and unrestrained.

"When the murderer of hundreds who kills only with the lethal pistol, but starves or freezes his victims by withholding the necessities of life, is unscathed by the sword of justice, is it any wonder that an outraged populace seizes on occasional offender and hangs him to a nearby tree? Can you, in sober judgment, condemn, when the pendulum of righteous indignation, held so long at one extreme, swings to the other, and the frenzied mob fills the swinging body with bullets? When officials, by their corruption and greed, permit vice and immorality to flourish unrebuked, do you wonder that occasionally an insane Texas rises up and removes a leprous sore from the face of society? We wish to learn that society is responsible for its criminals. The same code of laws that hangs murderers produces them.

"But someone asks, 'Is the church not with us?' It is indeed, but it is but the shell of a once powerful institution, conscious of its righteousness. The moral influence of the church of fifty, aye twenty-five years ago is gone. The masses no longer hand upon its words or tremble at its mandates. To find the reason for this condition we have not far to seek. We with regret must point the accusing finger at the church itself and say, 'Yours is the blame.'

"As has ever been the case in matters of faith, the church has clung zealously to the faith of bygone centuries, hurling anathemas at those who dared to depart from the beaten paths, instead of adapting itself to new conditions and maintaining its place and function at the head of the ever rising, ever broadening spiral of progress. In an age when punishment is coming to be looked upon as barbarous and unsatisfying to justice, it still proclaims a God who thirsts for blood and condemns to everlasting torment innocent children who, on account of the neglect or unbelief of their parents, chance to die without baptism. In matters of faith the butcher sits in judgement upon the theologian and the scholar. But some babbler of esthetical essays says 'the people must be educated.' Granted. But millions upon millions are expended annually upon our schools for this purpose. Let the church stand to its guns, the foe is in the land.

"Instead of thundering with the voice of the prophet at all forms of sin and picturing the clear paths of righteousness, it has come to smile indulgently at the waywardness of the young and reach greedily toward the enormous though illicit profits of the old. It now extolls the esthetical in the place of the ethical. Where once one heard the old time songs of the soul, he now hears a sacrilegious rendering, by the unbelieving lips of a salaried choir, of some noble sentiment or a sublime faith.

"Last week the papers were full of ministerial eulogies of Lincoln. To-morrow they will tell of Washington. Could they read they would cry out that so much good talent had been wasted in extolling their qualities while no voice was raised to right the wrongs of the people or execrate the corruption of the institutions the one fought to sustain and the other died to preserve. Until recently the evil of division has not been appreciated by the church. Despite the fact that the Nazarene prayer almost in the hour of his death that his cause might be spared the misfortune of division, millions in money and a tremendous amount of zeal and ability, which should have been devoted to correcting the evils of society, have been expended for the building up of party and annihilation of opposition, even though that opposition bore the banner of the common cause. Pride of institution has been the incentive rather than the love of mankind.

"This picture is awful true. A remedy? There is but one. When creeds have died and denominationalism have been given up; when creeds have been relegated to the attic of the past, from the peaceful repose of which they have already been kept too long; when form and ritualism in worship have been given back to barbarism from which they were taken; then there will be a hope for the church. In the place of these must be substituted the central teaching of the life of Jesus—love for mankind and the establishment of the kingdom of righteousness, the kingdom of Heaven upon earth. But to this time and state the church must come with much labor and tears."

OCCUPIES FORMER PULPIT.

Rev. Dr. Snodgrass Delivers Excellent Sermons at First M. E.

Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass, formerly pastor of the First M. E. church, but now of Perth Amboy, exchanged pulpits Sunday with Rev. A. C. McCrea, and was given a cordial reception.

In the morning his theme referred to a Christian walking humbly before God and following Christ. He described the way in which Christians should be humble, that they should be meek and mild and not feel as though they were so much better than anybody else. He impressed upon all the necessity of following Christ and then they would not meet with difficulty in living humble lives. Dr. Snodgrass referred to helpful influences that would aid a person in living a Christian life and gave many valuable suggestions that would be of incalculable value to Christians, if followed.

"Washington" Supper.

The women of the First Baptist church of New Market held a successful "Washington" supper at Friendship Hall Friday night. Covers for 200 were laid. Three large tables were handsomely decorated with bunting and flowers, one representing Washington, and Mrs. W. J. Nelson, costumed as Martha Washington, received the guests. Souvenir hatchets were distributed. Mrs. Ida Biddington was chairman of the committee in charge.

Stole Osteopathist's Trousers.

Dr. F. F. Wiest, of Watching avenue, an osteopathist, is minus three pairs of trousers. Somebody stole them from his home Saturday night, while he and his wife were out. The thief gained entrance into the place through a pantry screen window. There was a lot of silver in reach but the thief didn't touch it.

"BLACK HAND" WARNING

Girl Threatened With Harm Unless Guardian Placed Money as Directed.

POLICE AID SOUGHT

Young Woman Mentioned Ill In Bed Through Worriment Over the Notice.

The local police have a "Black Hand" mystery to unravel and since the matter has come beneath their notice have gotten pretty close to the perpetrator. It originated in a letter sent to Dr. A. H. Dundon, of the borough, who is executor of the estate of the late Mrs. Catherine Carney, of Dunellen, and guardian of her two daughters, the Misses Bertha and Catherine Flynn. The message was written in a scrawling hand, badly composed and was embellished with the crosses and death insignia supposed to be used by all dyed-in-the-blood members of the "Black Hand" Federation. This is what it said:

"Dr. Dundon: Put $300 under Grove street bridge February 21, of Bertha Flynn's money or she will be shot or she will be mine. Beware. Black Hand."

Dr. Dundon at first ignored the note but thinking it better to warn the girl's relatives, informed her grandmother, with whom she is living in this city, but gave instructions that Bertha should not hear of the matter. The grandmother became worried and incautiously told the girl with the result that she was badly frightened. The matter preyed upon her mind so that she became sick and is now confined to her bed in consequence. The physician subsequently gave the letter to Chief Kisly and he and his men are trying to locate the author. They have several good clues and an arrest is likely to occur.

When Mrs. Carney died she named Dr. Dundon as the executor of the estate, which amounts to about $1,800, and he offered the will for probate in the Middlesex county court last December. All the money was left to the two daughters by a previous marriage and Carney filed a caveat. This was released about two weeks ago and the probate was only then carried out. The "Black Hand" letter came shortly afterward.

RUTHERFORD M. SHEPARD WEDS MISS WINIFRED P. KAY.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus D. Shepard Becomes a Benedict.

Miss Winifred Prentiss Kay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Murray Kay, of Gardner road, Brookline, Mass., and Rutherford Mead Shepard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus D. Shepard, of "The Gables," Fanwood, were married at the Arlington Street church, Brookline, Saturday afternoon, in the presence of a large assemblage of society people from Boston, New York, Philadelphia and other distant points. The ceremony was performed by Rev. William H. Lyon, of the First parish church, Brookline. The decoration of the church was simple and effective, consisting of a grouping of palms and foliage about the chancel, together with white lilies and white azaleas.

The bride, who was escorted to the chancel and given in marriage by her father, was handsomely gowned in white satin, with white lace trimmings. She wore the conventional bridal veil, fastened with a coronet of lilies of the valley, and carried a large bouquet of lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor was Miss Rawson P. Kay, who was very picturesque in an empire gown of lavender silk with white lace trimmings. She wore a large hat trimmed with lavender, sweet peas and white ostrich plumes. She carried a bouquet of white roses and white hyacinths. The bridesmaids were similarly gowned in lavender silk, and wore large white hats trimmed with white roses and white plumes. They were Miss Mary Murray Kay, of Brookline; Miss Edith H. Smalley, of Painfield; Miss Maud Baker, of Montreal, and Miss Katherine Foote, of Dedham.

The best man was Burritt H. Shepard, and the ushers were Augustus D. Shepard, Jr., brothers of the groom; John W. Prentiss, A. Stewart Walker, C. S. Miller, E. G. Burgess, Jr., all of New York; J. Murray Kay, Jr., Herbert R. Burgess and Mr. Winthrop Bouve, of Brookline.

Mr. Shepard is a graduate of Harvard, Class '98, and a member of the Calumet Club, New York. He is also a member of the Painfield Country Club and has always been interested in the game of golf. He has been associated with his father in business with the American Bank Note Company.

Gift to P. H. S.

The Plainfield High School is the recipient of a valuable collection of one hundred lantern slides given by Franklin S. Smith, of the class of 1898. The slides show a series of subjects in bacteriology and a large number of views incident to a trip through the Mediterranean to India and around the world. Mr. Smith was at one time instructor in science in the High School, and is the present secretary of the Alumni Association.

Charles C. Burnett Stricken With Apoplexy While Making His Private Devotions.

FOUND BY HIS WIFE

Indentified With Many Local Lodges —A Jolly, Whole-Souled Citizen—Aged Fifty-two.

Stricken with apoplexy, Charles C. Burnett, one of the best known residents of this city, died suddenly at his home on Madison avenue, sometime late Saturday night. He returned home after spending the evening with friends in town and busied himself about the lower rooms, the members of the family having retired. Mrs. Burnett heard him putting coal on the range and fell asleep shortly afterward. She awoke again at 4 o'clock and then noticed that Mr. Burnett was missing.

Surmising that something was wrong she hurried downstairs and found his body in a recumbent position beside a chair. It had been his custom to kneel in the same spot in prayer every night before retiring and he was evidently doing so when death came upon him. Mrs. Burnett summoned County Physician Westcott, but on his arrival he declared that life had been extinct about four hours.

Mr. Burnett was fifty-two years old and had lived in Plainfield the greater part of his life. He was engaged in the stationery business on Pine street, New York, under the firm name of C. C. Burnett & Co. and the concern is well known in the metropolitan district. Mr. Burnett was one of the organizers of the Alert Hose Company, now exempt, and while it was in existence was one of its most active members. He also belonged to Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum; Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. O. U. W., and had taken his first and second degrees in Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. and A. M. He was of a particularly sunny disposition and had a host of warm friends.

Mr. Burnett married Miss Claire Force, daughter of the late George Force, who resided for many years on West Second street, and she with two daughters survive him. They are the Misses Claire and Clyde Burnett, both of whom are at home.

CHANGES IN THE CHOIR AT FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Miss Etta Raybert, Soprano Soloist, Resigns, and Miss Nicholl Will Also Leave.

Miss Etta Raybert, who has been the soprano soloist at the First Presbyterian church during the past two years, resigned on Saturday. The resignation will take effect immediately. Sunday morning Miss Josephine Serrell, of the First Baptist church, filled the position, and in the evening Miss Marie Hortense Sheldon, of Cranford, who has taken leading parts in the amateur productions of the Plainfield Operatic Association, sang.

Miss Sheldon, who at present sings in the Presbyterian church, Cranford, probably be the soloist at the East Front street church from now on. Another change will be made by the resignation of Miss Nicholl, the contralto, who will leave the church May 1. No one has been secured to take her place, as yet. Clifford Wilson, the organist, as well as Elmer D. Cutting, tenor, and F. C. Iglehart, jr., baritone, will continue another year.

Somerset Club May Disband.

The future of the Somerset Club, of the borough, will be determined at a meeting of the members to be held Friday night at the club rooms at Somerset street and Manning avenue. The club was organized in May of last year, but during the past few months there has been a lack of interest. Unless new life is infused in the organization it is quite likely that it will cease to exist after Thursday night. The club room is provided with pool and billiard tables and is a comfortable place to spend idle moments, but the membership has fallen off. Quick action is necessary to determine whether the club be continued or not. Several members of the club favor the plan of selling the furnishings, which are worth several hundred dollars, and giving the proceeds to the Children's Home or some other local charity. Others, it is said, want to continue the organization.

Regimal Roome Injured.

Reginald Roome, of this city, brother of Howard Roome, the star football at Yale, and who is a Yale student, class 1910, received a gash in the back of the head in the First Washington's Birthday fight between Yale freshmen and sophomores. The fight under the new rules went to a finish. Another freshman was blinded by a cash over the eye.

Lectures On Commercial Law.

J. Henri Crane, a lawyer, whose office is in the Jeffrey building, Park avenue, has taken charge of a class in commercial law at the Plainfield Business College. He will lecture every Monday morning. There are 100 pupils in the class.

BIG DEVELOPMENT SCHEME

TO ERECT COTTAGES

Handsome Country Places to Be Built On Slope of Watchung Mountain—Trolley to Be Extended.

There is much more in store for Watchung and the surrounding countryside in the way of improvement besides a big artificial ice lake. It has been learned that the lake, plans for the digging of which by a company of capitalists, were made public exclusively in the Daily Press Saturday, is only one step in the development of the district.

Convinced that the Watchung district has a splendid future as a location for all-the-year-round and summer residences, real estate investors have secured options on many hundreds of acres in the mountain neighborhood. The ice company holds 400 acres suitable for building purposes. It is the general idea of the men interested in the development of the district to put model villas, bungalows, cottages and more elaborate country places all along the slope of the mountain, upon the mountain top and in the valley beyond. The land holdings making such operations possible have been brought within the reach of the men working on the scheme.

The aspect of the country will not be changed. The semi-rugged beauty of the locality is its chief asset and it will be preserved. The roads will be macadamized, and the trolley line may be extended to the base of the mountain, but there will be no landscape flippery or puerile "parking."

MERGER HEARINGS TO BEGIN MONDAY

Having listened to the views of a number of men prominent in both city and borough who are familiar with the subject, the bi-municipal consolidation commission has at last decided to throw its meetings open to the public, that conclusion having been arrived at Monday afternoon when the commissioners held a session in Mayor Fisk's office. Only one citizen was heard yesterday, former Mayor Benjamin A. Hegeman, of North Plainfield, responding to an invitation to give his views. W. W. Howland, one of the leaders of the anti-annexationists in the campaign five years ago, had also been invited to be present but he sent a short formal letter of declination.

For half an hour, Mayor Hegeman discussed the subject in its various aspects, dwelling at length upon the history of the movement to merge the two places. In his usual forceful manner he explained clearly why he had always favored an union, adding that time had not changed his views in the least for in his opinion the longer the delay the greater the hardships the borough would have to endure. North Plainfield had not kept pace with Plainfield in the way of progress and improvements and to support this assertion he pictured how the city had grown so rapidly while the borough had made little headway. During the course of his remarks, the former mayor explained the reasons why the borough could not hope to make any rapid progress without consolidation with the city.

W. W. Howland in his letter stated that while some had changed their views regarding the merits of the question, time had not given him any different opinion than he held five years ago. He admitted, however, that there might be some good reasons for a merger as proposed, but added that he did not care to enter into the controversy again.

By an unanimous vote the commission passed a resolution inviting all interested citizens of both city and borough to attend the first of a series of public meetings to be held in the city mayor's office on Monday afternoon at 4:30. Those who cannot attend are asked to send their views by letter.

To Consider Kinsman Device.

F. E. Kinsman, who has just returned from Washington, where he has been interested in the adoption of a bill which provides for an exhaustive examination into the various devices which are intended to prevent railroad collisions, says that he is much gratified over the passage of the bill. He now believes that his invention, which is now in use on the express tracks of the New York subway, will receive favorable consideration and ultimate adoption by the leading railroads.

Want a Pool Table.

The Misses Tweedy have given a fine billiard table to the Y. M. C. A. and the directors will be grateful if some other generous persons will donate a pool table. Anyone wishing to do so may address Joseph W. Gavett.

MYSTERIOUS

BELIEVED ACCIDENTAL

Graduate of Plainfield High School and Son of Late Stephen Burr—A Brilliant Man.

The mutilated and dismembered body of Rev. Dr. Everett T. Burr, a former resident of this city, was found Sunday lying beside the eastbound tracks of the Boston and Albany division of the New York Central, near the Summer street bridge, Westborb, Mass. The body was discovered by the crew of a Worcester bound freight train. Dr. Burr's home was at Newton Centre, Mass. He spent his boyhood days here, attended the Plainfield High School, from which he was graduated. His father was also graduated in 1876. His father, Stephen H. Burr, was for several years superintendent of the First Baptist church Sunday-school.

During the past few months Dr. Burr had been engaged in visiting various Baptist churches in the interest of the reform movement in behalf of the Congo Free State and he spoke at the First Baptist church here on the first Sunday in December last.

Dr. Burr left his home at Newton Centre Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock without informing his family as to his destination. Earlier in the day he received a telegram from a friend in New York, and it was supposed that he was on his way to that city in response to it. He had been suffering from a severe attack of grip, and had not fully recovered. It is the opinion of his friends that he was suddenly attacked by dizziness while passing from one car to another on one of the New York trains and fell to the tracks. It was a matter of surprise that both Dr. Burr's watch and purse were missing when the body was found. The watch was a valuable one and it was known that the purse contained between $50 and $100.

In the opinion of Medical Examiner Charles S. Knight, of Westboro, who viewed the body, death was accidental. He said that the victim had undoubtedly fallen from a moving train while passing from one car to another; that his clothing had been caught by some p ortion of the train and the body dragged over the ties for about 400 feet, the blood on the sleepers indicating that the body had been dragged that distance.

Papers and a memorandum book found in the clothing disclosed the identity of the victim. No hat or coat was found. The body was frozen, showing that it had been beside the track for a number of hours. The memorandum book contained a number of preaching dates, and showed that Dr. Burr had spoken at Cleveland last week and later in New York city.

Dr. Burr was one of the best known clergymen of the Baptist denomination in Massachusetts. He was an alumnus of Brown University at Providence and Crozier Theological Seminary at Chester, Pa. He attended Yale for a time prior to going to Brown and was for a short period a student at Rochester Theological Seminary before going to Crozier. For several years he was pastor of the Ruggles Street Baptist church, Boston, one of the wealthiest in that part of the country. Six years ago he declined a nomination to succeed John D. Rockefeller's church in New York. He was forty-five years old and a wife and two children survive him.

REV. DR. J. A. CHAMBLISS ASSISTS AT DEDICATION.

Preaches Scholarly Sermon in the New Baptist Church at Rahway Sunday Night.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, was the principal speaker at the dedication services held in the new Baptist church, Rahway, Sunday. Despite the bad storm, the recently-built edifice was crowded with worshippers, and all enjoyed the scholarly sermon by the Plainfield divine.

The dedication services began yesterday morning and will continue until Wednesday night. Yesterday morning Rev. Dr. J.E.Vassar, of Elizabeth, preached the sermon, and in the afternoon the formal dedication took place, when Rev. W. G. Fennell, of Newark, preached the sermon. There was the reading of the church history and dedicatory poem by H. S. Barnes, deacon; dedication hymn, composed by Abram Colyer, M. D., LL. Dd., of Newark; responsive dedicatory service, prayer and dedication, hymn and benediction.

The new building is situated at Elm and Esterbrook avenues. Its exterior architecture is pleasing in design. The church will seat 400 and the Sunday-school room has a seating capacity of 200. The two rooms can be thrown into one. The cost of the building was $25,000. Operations were begun in May and the cornerstone was laid in July of last year.

BAD TIME FOR A RAISE

State Superintendent Baxter Warns School Board to Figure Closely.

R. R. TAX IS UNCERTAIN

Shouldn't Be Counted Upon, He Says, and Figuring On Certainties Boards Should Make Bigger Budgets.

In a circular letter to all the school boards of the State, Charles J. Baxter, State superintendent of public instruction, has warned the governing bodies of all the school districts to be careful of their estimates of moneys to be received from the local taxpayers, and the amount to come from the State apportionment. The warning of the especial interest to Plainfield because the school board has just voted to raise salaries.

Mr. Baxter advises the boards to ask for more money in their budget, instead of less, because the only increase they can count upon, that growing out of the large amount of ratables, will be over-balanced by enlarged expenditures.

He says:

"This increase will not be sufficient to make adequate provision for the unusual outlay that will be required for the ensuing school year. Our rapid growth in population, the general tendency toward higher educational standards and the greater demand for well-equipped teachers, together with the necessity of increasing their salaries, will make a material and inevitable increase in 'current expenses.' Therefore, to provide against financial embarrassment and possible detriment to our schools, it will be necessary for boards of education and boards of school estimate to assign the items of this year's budget a larger total sum than was appropriated one year ago."

Especially vehement warning is given against counting upon the railroad tax money, the payment of which is being contested in the courts.

"Though the amount due from the said increase in railroad tax has been apportioned among the several counties," says the circular, "and, as provided by law, will be sub-apportioned among the school districts, it has not been collected. As you are undoubtedly aware, the allied railroads have paid the former tax of one-half of one per cent. into the State treasury and propose to contest, on the ground of unconstitutionality, the payment of all direct tax upon main stem property. How long this will take and the ultimate result are matters entirely problematical. We believe, however, that because of the said contest, the much needed fruition of the Acts of 1906 is almost certain to be delayed.

"At no time in the past have you permitted any portion of the support of your schools to be precarious, and you will be unjustified in taking such risk now. Therefore, in making provision for the school year of 1907-1908, boards of education and boards of school estimate should not take into account the amount apportioned from railroad tax. An apportionment whose validity is questioned until the outcome of a contest in the courts is not an appropriation, and contracts for the ensuing year cannot be made in anticipation of funds whose availability is not assured.

"It is greatly to be regretted that many boards are compelled to worry citizens and as good friends of the schools, either fail to appreciate the magnitude of our school system or are sadly misinformed as to the amount expected from the railroads. Said amount, when received, will not, as has been asserted, be sufficient 'to wipe out the district school tax,' or 'provide boards of education with an embarrassment of school funds.' These are not simply harmless day dreams, but obstructive and mischievous delusions. Those who indulge them and give them currency are doing much to create an unfortunate public sentiment, to stimulate false hopes and to embarrass those intrusted with the responsibilities of school administration."

Whether or not the Plainfield board consulted on the railroad money in ordering the raise in salaries could not be learned today, for everybody connected with the board, excepting President Probasco, was out of town, and the president was not at home. If the board was figuring on that money the circular will disturb the members mightily.

Something to add to the disturbance is brewing now. The State board is said to have prepared an order asking Union county to pay $200,000 State school tax this year, which is exactly $162,000 more than last year. The school tax rate a year ago was 9.8 points; the new rate may be 20 points.

Co. K to Elect Officers.

When Co. K meets on Monday night the newly chosen officers will be formally elected according to the rules. At a previous meeting the members picked Lieut. Harry B. Kitchell for captain, Charles Peterson for first lieutenant; Albert L. Littell for second lieutenant, and O. E. Pearson for first sergeant. Following the election there will be the installation. The new captain will announce his plans for the coming year.

VOTING MACHINES TO GO

The Lower House Passes Bill Abolishing Devices Which Cost State a Big Sum.

AFTER A HOT REBATE

Ayes, 38; Noes, 20—Civil War Veteran Creates Uproar.

The anti-voting machine bill passed the House at Trenton yesterday. After Speaker Edgar B. Lothbridge had called for order, Major Smith Lesher Ahman of the House, moved that the House be placed under call, and Sergeant-at-arms Frank Hasse secured the doors.

The Assembly bill No. 1, abolishing the purchase of voting machines, was at once taken up. Mr. Holcombe, the sponsor of the bill, made a few remarks, asking that the bill be passed.

"What will become of the money the State has paid for the machines, and what will become of the machines?" was asked. "I would suggest that they be thrown into the junk heap," replied the member from Hunterdon. Minority Leader Alfred N. Barber said that was very good, but he did not think that money of the State should be wasted.

Assemblyman Randolph E. Perkins said he was not in favor of repealing the law unless those opposing could show some reason why the voting machine is not the proper method of voting.

Assemblyman Levi H. Morris then entered the debate. He said:

"I do not call that money wasted. There are paid men in the corridors to show how the machines operate. People are deprived of the secrecy of the vote. Many voters refuse to go to the polls to vote because they are afraid they cannot vote the proper ticket. The officers know what men 'split' tickets. Let us return to the simple method of the ballot."

Mr. Barber tried to get a question to Mr. Morris, but the latter continued:

"I hope that you do not put politics in it and pass the measure."

Assemblyman Frank Crowther, of Middlesex, spoke in favor of the retention of the voting machines. He said:

"The machine gives an actual and honest result, and is absolutely the best method. It will abolish the practise of driving men like a gang of sheep, to the voting place, to have them receive their ballots in envelope on which there is $2, for which they sell their American right. We should have some universal system of voting in this up-to-date State."

Mr. Kienert took up the discussion then. He said:

"I am very glad to know the price of votes in Middlesex county. In Passaic however, no such thing exists. I agree with the member for Middlesex that there should be a universal system of voting—the ballot."

"I carried the flag in the Civil War and I can't vote now."

The House was in an uproar in an instant, and the gavel of Speaker Lothbridge beat a tattoo on the marble to restore order. He ordered the sergeant-at-arms to eject the old man. Mr. Kienert then continued, saying that he thought the machine ought to be abolished.

Mr. Crowther continued his defense of the machine, and made reference to the rhetorical effort that Assemblyman James Baker had just made regarding Mr. Crowther's stand.

Assemblyman Daniel J. Brady did some plain talking in opposition to the voting machines. He said:

"I am in favor of them all because I think the founders of the country never intended that citizens should vote by any other agent than the citizen himself."

"Newark pays $1,200 a year to store them. If that be true in Newark, it is proportionately true in every other place. To make a careful survey of that, would be interested, might stagger them."

Assemblyman Archibald Alexander, of Hudson, cited instances of how the machine had been tampered with, in his explanation of why the bill should be passed. Mr. Careful suggested that if a man had not manhoodenough to split the ticket he should not have the right to vote.

Assemblyman Mark A. Sullivan, of Hudson, asserted that no man was sure of his vote and could make no affidavit to that effect. The matter was then put to a vote and the bill passed by a vote of 38 to 20.

The Republicans who voted with the Democrats to pass the bill were Messrs. Drake, Cattell, Brick, Stille, Elvins, Moxon and Perkins.

CAST COMPLETE FOR PRODUCTION OF "PINAFORE"

MRS. F. M. WARD AND A PROFESSIONAL DANCER WILL BE FEATURES.

The cast for the production of "Pinafore," to be given at the Casino, on Thursday, May 2, is now complete and was announced at the rehearsal last night. Several changes have been made, three being of special interest. William Holmes, who has previously directed the productions from in front of the footlights will take one of the leading parts, that of Sir Joseph Porter, and his place will be taken as director by Anton Klosckner, of Elizabeth, who will supply the orchestra.

Another important announcement is that Mrs. Ferdinand M. Ward, formerly of this city, who scored a success in previous operas, will take the part of Little Buttercup, and Arthur Chamberlain, of Park Avenue Presbyterian church choir, has been secured to take the part of Captain Corcoran. William N. Runyon has an important part in Dick Deadeye, while W. J. Tallamy and J. C. Martin have parts that will be well adjusted to their ability. Miss Hortense Sheldon will impersonate the part of Josephine and Miss Elizabeth V. Day that of Hebe.

William Holmes will have charge of the rehearsals as usual. There will be a chorus of seventy people and a feature will be the appearance of a professional woman dancer. She will do the Sailor's Hornpipe.

The complete cast follows:

Sir Joseph Porter, William Holmes; Captain Corcoran, Arthur Chamberlain; Ralph Rackstraw, William J. Tallamy; Dick Deadeye, William N. Runyon; Bill Bobstay, Joseph C. Martin; Tom Tucker, Carlton Dunham; Josephine, Miss Hortense Marie Sheldon; Hebe, Miss Elizabeth V. Day; Little Buttercup, Mrs. Ferdinand M. Ward.

MRS. PIKE PRESIDENT OF A MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Women's Home Association of First M. E. Church Holds Annual Election.

The annual meeting of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the First M. E. church, held in Vincent chapel, yesterday, was combined with an all-day sewing meeting. The early part of the day was devoted to sewing and quilting and making various articles for the missionary barrel to be sent away soon. At noon luncheon was served and in the afternoon the annual meeting was held.

The various reports showed a year of much work for the cause of home missions. The society previously having partly furnished the dining room in the Alberquerque Home, New Mexico, decided yesterday to purchase new silverware for the home.

These officers were chosen for the year: President, Mrs. Noah W. Pike; first vice president, Mrs. George H. Whitney; second vice president, Mrs. George M. Rittenhouse; third vice president, Mrs. S. Edgar; recording secretary, Mrs. J. Hervey Doane; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Nelson A. Miller; treasurer, Mrs. J. W. Jackson; mite box secretary, Mrs. Samuel Bingaman; secretary mothers' juniors, Mrs. David S. Duncan; librarian, Miss Susie Jackson; secretary sewing meeting, Mrs. I. L. McVoy. It was decided to hold a sewing meeting on the first Tuesday in each month.

The society was favored in having present Mrs. Mary Leonard Woodruff, of Framingham, conference president of the Women's Home Missionary Society, and bureau secretary of the Porto Rican work. Mrs. Woodruff has just returned from a missionary trip to Porto Rico and she related much about her experiences there. An incident that touched the hearts of the women was that in reference to the efforts being made to save a nine-year-old girl from being sold. Her father has already sold two of his daughters and threatened to sell this third. It is necessary to raise $40 to prevent this and the local society decided to assist in this worthy enterprise.

Mrs. Wooruff's account of the work being accomplished in Porto Rico aroused the interest and enthusiasm of the women and they will strive to do more in the future than heretofore.

Sang Gounod's "Gallia."

Gounod's sacred cantata, "Gallia," was rendered by the choir of Grace Protestant Episcopal church last night. The work is short, but very effective, and the choral work was excellent. Mrs. Theodore Manta sang the solo parts. The congregation was of good size.

WANT DOCTOR'S STORY IN DUNN DIVORCE CASE

ALIMONY WILL NOT BE GRANTED UNTIL AFTER COURT GETS HIS AFFIDAVIT.

Vice Chancellor Emery, at Newark, yesterday issued an order to take the deposition of a Plainfield physician in the divorce proceedings instituted by Mrs. Olive B. Dunn against her husband, Wesley J. Dunn, a grocery clerk. An application was made by former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer, on behalf of Mrs. Dunn, for counsel fees and alimony, but after an argument the court held the matter over until the physician's deposition is taken.

The Vice Chancellor appointed John H. VanWinkle special master to take testimony in the case and also set Tuesday, March 19, as the date for the argument on the application for alimony and counsel fees. William G. DeMeza, lawyer for the defense, has associated with him Winfield S. Angleman. It is reported that the case will be bitterly fought and that there will be some sensational testimony. Mrs. Dunn alleges that her husband treated her cruelly and this alleged conduct is made the basis of the suit.

MANY ENJOY MUSICAL AT HUNTER AVE. TABERNACLE.

Prof. Korff's Orchestra and Other Local Talent Present the Programme.

Under the direction of Prof. Martin A. Korff and his orchestra a musical was held at the Hunter Avenue Tabernacle, last night. The orchestra was assisted by other local talent. There were vocal duets by the Misses Jennie and Alice DeMott; recitations by Miss Helen Louise Woolley. Edson C. Martin entertained with a bass solo and William F. Richards gave several harmonica solos. The tabernacle was prettily decorated for the occasion with American flags and flowers. Refreshments were served after the entertainment.

On Friday night the Ladies' Aid Society will give an entertainment for the boys and girls. There will be mandolin solos by John Richards, selections on the phonograph by W. D. Williams and harmonica solos by William F. Richards.

CITY PRACTICALLY FREE FROM CONTAGIOUS DISEASE.

Thirty-six Births; Twenty-seven Deaths and Eight Marriages In February.

Reports were read at the regular monthly meeting of the Plainfield Board of Health held yesterday afternoon, showing the sanitary condition of the city for the past month. The city has continued to be practically free from contagious disease. During the month there were but six cases of scarlet fever and two of diphtheria. There were five deaths during the month from tuberculosis.

The following permits were granted: To sell milk, W. W. Wilson; to collect garbage, Sylvester Cuff; to locate temporary privy vault, N. W. Forney.

The following returns were made during the month: Marriages, 8; births, 36; still-births, 2; deaths, 27.

Annual Reports In Book Form.

For the first time in the history of Plainfield the annual reports of the various departments of the municipal government for 1906 is published this year in book form. The book, which was issued this week, contains the reports of the city treasurer, Board of Health, chief of police, chief of the fire department, inspector of buildings, streets and sewer committee, lights and trees committee, city physician, city judge, public library, alms committee; also Mayor Charles J. Fisk's annual message this year, together with the officers of the city government, chairman of the Common Council committees, Board of Assessors, members of the Board of Health, Board of Education and Public Library and Reading Room.

Library Wants Appropriation.

The Board of Directors of the Public Library at the regular meeting last night determined upon the amount necessary for the maintenance of the library for 1907, and a resolution naming the sum will be sent to the Common Council before the next meeting. Miss Emma L. Adams, librarian, was authorized to represent the library at the annual meeting of the New Jersey and Pennsylvania library associations, to be held at Atlantic City on Friday and Saturday, March 15 and 16.

Funeral of Sam. J. Yates.

The funeral services of Sam. J. Yates, who died in Redlands, Cal., Monday, February 25, will be held at the home of his mother, Mrs. Joseph W. Yates, on East Seventh street, Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Interment will be at the convenience of the family.

DOCTORS WARN PEOPLE

Physicians Explain Dangers of Contracting Tuberculosis and Tell How to Prevent It.

FRESH AIR NECCESSARY

Drs. Farrand, Hedges and Bailey Speak at Big Meeting—C. W. McCutchen Presides.

Charles W. McCutchen presided at the meeting in the interest of an educational movement against the spread of tuberculosis, held last night in the Sunday-school room of Trinity Reformed church. In opening the meeting he spoke of the work of the Plainfield Society for the Prevention and Relief of Tuberculosis and made a very strong plea for everyone to become a member. There were 250 people present.

Dr. B. vanD. Hedges spoke of the work that had been done in Plainfield toward the prevention and relief of tuberculosis and called particular attention to the purpose of the new organization, which is the spreading of information among the citizens concerning the simple facts in regard to the prevention and care of the dreaded disease. He also told of the hope of the society to start a small camp on the mountain for caring for persons in the early stages of the disease.

Dr. Farrand, of New York, the executive secretary of the National Association for the Study and Relief of Tuberculosis, referred to the work that has been done throughout the United States by the association which he represents and what could be accomplished by a local society. Mr. Farrand said tuberculosis is a preventable and, in its early stages, a curable disease. Formerly a diagnosis of consumption meant a sentence of death; today it means permission to live. The cure of consumption, he said, consists of three things: fresh air, proper food and rest. A consumptive, he declared, should have fresh air, if possible, twenty-four hours out of the twenty-four. He should live out of doors day and night and breathe all the fresh air into his lungs that is possible. He should have proper food; in the most general terms proper food for a consumptive means plenty of good, fresh milk and fresh eggs. These should be taken only under the direction of a physician. And lastly, he said, the consumptive should have rest. These three, fresh air, proper food and rest, are the principals of the cure of tuberculosis.

It has been absolutely proved, Dr. Farrand declares, that tuberculosis is a preventable disease. It is known how it is transmitted from one person to another and it is known how it can be prevented. The most common method of transmission of the disease is through the sputum. In certain cities in the west there is a maxim, "No spit, no consumption." If a consumptive is allowed to expectorate in the street the sputum will dry and the germs will be blown about in the dust and breathed into the lungs by people passing. It is in this way that people become infected with tuberculosis. In speaking of the local society Dr. Farrand said that it merely needed the active endorsement of all the citizens that in less than seventy-five years tuberculosis could be wiped out of Plainfield.

Dr. Frederick Bailey, of Elizabeth, was the next speaker. His lecture was illustrated by stereopticon views which showed the growth of the tubercle bacillus in the lungs.

Continued interest was shown in the State tuberculosis exhibit yesterday afternoon and evening when fully 450 people visited the store in the Stirling building on Park avenue, making nearly 900 for the two afternoons and evenings. Many inquiries were made of Miss Olive De Lany, the trained nurse in charge, and cheerfully answered.

It has been arranged to have Dr. Charles B. Lufburrow, the city physician, take charge of the exhibit tonight and he will answer all questions relative to tuberculosis and explain the various models shown. The exhibit will be open every afternoon and evening the rest of the week, including Sunday afternoon and night, at which time it will close.

Yale Dinner Speakers.

President Hadley, of Yale, will be the principal speaker at the annual banquet of the Plainfield Yale Club to be held at the Casino, Friday night, March 15. Other speakers will include D. W. Richards, of Orange, brother of Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, together with representatives from Harvard and Princeton and several local college men.

NERVY SNEAKTHIEF GETS WOMAN'S JEWELS

FOUR PROMINENT FIRMS WILL TAKE—MANUAL TRAINING ROOM.

Exhibiting colossal nerve, a sneak-thief snooped into the reception hall of Dr. Guy H. Hillman's flat in the Stillman house on West Front street, shortly after noon yesterday, and got away with a jewel box containing a gold watch and several pieces of jewelry.

The thief worked quickly. He slid into the reception hall swiftly, jumped the chiffonier standing at one side, snatched the jewel box from it and ran out. Mrs. Hillman heard the noise of him going, and got to the hall just in time to see the crook leave the building. The man disappeared down the street. Dr. Hillman, at work in his office across the hall, did not see or hear the thief.

The robbery was reported to the police, but no clues have been secured that would lead to an arrest. The police believe the work was that of a person well acquainted with the surroundings and one who knew just where to find the jewel box. Mrs. Hillman says she did not see the thief closely enough to give a good description of him and she does not know whether he was white or black.

DATES AND ZEMZEM.

Nobles of the Mystic Shrine Will Enjoy Them Tomorrow.

There will be doings for the illustrious nobles of the Mystic Shrine in Newark tomorrow night. Salaam Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., of which Harry W. Marshall is chief rabban and a number of other Plainfielders are members, will meet at the Krueger Auditorium, at 7:30 o'clock, to emmoy, according to the official call from the Temple, a Mournful Solemnization, Martyrdom of Hussein (in red ink) Sorrowful Mysteries, Grand Processions, Dervish Ordeals, Realistic Flagellations, Human Immolations, Glorious Apotheosis and Zikers on the Son of Ali.

After that stupendous round the nobles will recuperate on date and zemzem.

The session is called in honor of the Imperial Potentate, Alvah P. Clayton, of Missouri. The illustrious potentate and officers of Crescent Temple will also be guests.

C. E. UNION DECIDE ADVERSELY ON MISSION.

Work at Hunter Avenue Tabernacle Will Continue Under Present Management.

There was not a sufficiently large conugh representation at the Christian Endeavor mass meeting in the Seventh-Day Baptist church, last night, to definitely settle the question of continuing the work at the Hunter Avenue Tabernacle under the auspices of the union. It was the opinion of those present that the union should not undertake the work, there being a question of previous expense that served to defeat the purpose in view. Those who have been conducting the work at the tabernacle have been obliged to incur an expense of $200, which the union does not feel like assuming, and this must be done before the Endeavors can acquire the property under the present plan.

The work will be continued for the present as in the past, but it is still an open question as to whether the union will take it up. One thing is certain, it will remain an interdenominational mission. It is possible that later on, another mass meeting of the Endeavorers will be held and the question voted upon again.

The mission is now sufficiently established to continue it. There is not only growing interest in the gospel meetings, but the largest Sunday-school has been established.

HOPE MEN'S CLUB INSTALLS.

Organization Also Plans For An Active Spring and Summer.

The Men's Club of Hope chapel held an important meeting, last night, at which the following officers were installed: President, John Slorah; vice president, Ralph Eckert; treasurer, John Vogel; chaplain, Rev. L. R. Howard. The president named these committees: Lookout, Thomas Hendry; Ralph Eckert and James Penny; entertainment, Ralph Eckert, Wallace Morton and David Bowden.

The club discussed plans for a series of entertainments to be held in the near future and an active spring and summer campaign was arranged for. By resolution, the club became affiliated with the Presbyterian Brotherhood of America, recently organized. G. Herbert Condict, who is superintendent of Hope chapel Sunday-school, was elected to membership.

COMPETITION FOR NEW SCHOOL PLANS

FOUR PROMINENT FIRMS WILL TAKE—MANUAL TRAINING ROOM.

Competition among four firms of architects for the plans of the proposed new school at Darrow avenue was decided upon by the Board of Education at its meeting last night. The four firms from whom bids will be received are Marsh & Gatty, Tracy & Swartout, Hale & Rogers, and H. V. B. Magonigal, all of New York. Several firms submitted figures. The competition will be confined to the four named.

The general scheme of construction was discussed by the board members. It was agreed that the building have twelve rooms, with an auditorium, and probably, a manual training room. It will be the first structure of the primary grades to be fitted with a manual training room in this city, if that feature is finally decided upon.

The custodian of school moneys reported a balance of $22,540 on hand February 28. The collector reported the collection of $1,901 in February.

MRS. J. A. CHAMBLISS HEAD OF BAPTIST SOCIETY.

Officers Chosen By Women's Foreign Missionary Society.

The election of officers in the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the First Baptist church took place at their quarterly meeting held yesterday afternoon in the lecture room, with the following result: President, Mrs. J. A. Chambliss; vice-presidents, Mrs. D. J. Yerkes, Mrs. Robert Lowry; secretary, Mrs. B. J. Shreve; treasurer, Miss Ida Yerkes; executive committee, Mrs. David J. Boice, Mrs. I. Manning Runyon, Mrs. F. H. Biglow, Mrs. S. T. Wilson, Mrs. William White, Mrs. J. A. Powlison, Mrs. O. B. Leonard, Mrs. J. D. Runyon; collectors, Mrs. Alexander Thorn, Mrs. Charles H. Smith, Mrs. Isabel Milne, Mrs. Harold Serrell, Mrs. Firman Coon, Mrs. Charles Conover, Miss Jennie Whitney, Mrs. A. D. Mallinson, Miss Annie Boice, Miss Laura Runyon; honorary collector, Mrs. W. Johnson.

Mrs. Robert Lowry presented a paper full of absorbing interest on "New Zealand, New Guinea and Malaysia." The first-mentioned island is called the gem of the Pacific and Mrs. Lowry read from a personal friend's letter a description of the beautiful harbor of Aukland and the charms of Honolulu. In her account of New Guinea, she spoke with great praise of the missionary chalmers, with whom Robert Louis Stevenson had an intimate friendship and who met with a tragic death at the hands of the people he was trying to save. The paper concluded with the history of mission work in the islands of Malaysia and the testimony of observers who declared that civilization could not be attained except through the ministry of the gospel.

Current events were given by Mrs. D. J. Yerkes.

In connection with the meeting of the Foreign Missionary Society there was an all-day sewing meetinng under the auspices of the Women's Home Missionary Society. They spent the morning and early part of the afternoon preparing articles and making ready for the missionary barrel. At noon a box luncheon was served under the direction of Mrs. S. W. Dunning and Mrs. Walter C. Dobbins.

SENATOR BRIGGS HONORED.

Associates in State House Present Loving Cup.

Trenton, March 6.—United States Senator Briggs received yesterday afternoon a handsome loving cup from his associates in the State House. The presentation speech was made by Governor Stokes. Among those in attendance were Mr. Dickinson, Mr. Lewis, Mr. Riker and Colonel Bryant.

Senator Frelinghuysen offered concurrent resolutions, which were at once adopted, expressing the regret of the Senate over the retirement of Senator Briggs and extending the thanks of the Senate for his services. The approval of the joint meeting that went over the State treasurer's accounts was expressed.

Dr. Ard to Speak.

The Plainfield Mothers' Association will meet at the High School Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, when Dr. F. C. Ard will give an address on "The Care of Children's Ears and Eyes." All mothers are cordially invited.

—The contract case of Dr. Ambrose Brennan against Lawrence Kerwin, for services, which was to have been tried before Justice Warden at Dunellen on Monday, was adjourned for two weeks on motion of William G. DeMeza, Esq., counsel for the plaintiff.

QUARTER MAY COST LIFE

Colored Waiter Seriously Shot in Quarrel Over Twenty-Five Cents.

SHOOTER MAKES ESCAPE

In a quarrel over twenty-five cents, Lee Johnson, colored, 35 years old, a waiter employed at Truell Inn, was shot seriously, perhaps fatally, last night, by Thaddeus Payne, also colored, 28 years old, a driver in the employ of A. M. Griffin, hardware merchant. The shooting occurred in a poolroom frequented by negroes, at 148 East Front street, at 9:20 o'clock. Payne escaped, and the police are still hunting for him.

From a statement made by Johnson and by friends of both men, the police know that bad feeling had existed between the two over a quarter-dollar borrowed from Payne for several days. They had quarrelled two or three times over the matter, and when they met in the poolroom last night the bickering was resumed. Payne seemed to be roused to a white heat, and drew a forty-four calibre revolver. He fired at least two shots, and one of them struck Johnson in the stomach. Payne jammed the revolver back into his pocket and ran out through the front door. Johnson started to run as the shooting began, and kept on in spite of the ball in his body, going out the back way. Both men left their hats behind.

Payne ran down Front street to Watchung avenue, and was seen to turn there in the direction of North Plainfield. That was the only clue to his trail that the police had secured up to this afternoon.

Johnson exhibited a remarkable degree of vitality. The bullet passed through his liver, travelled up through his lung and went on almost through his body, but he kept on his feet and walked through the yards to Second street, and went into a stable there, got a hat from one of the hostlers and went out into the street again. There he met Patrolman John Payne and told him he had been shot. He walked with the officer to police headquarters, Dr. C. B. Lufburrow, the city physician, was summoned and he ordered the negro to the hospital. Johnson retained consciousness, and told Chief Kiely who had shot him and what led up to the shooting. The ball was located in his back and removed last night. It was said at the hospital this morning that his condition was serious, but that he was resting easily.

Chief Kiely ordered all the available men on the search of Payne as soon as he learned of the shooting. Negro colonies on both sides of the brook were raked with fine toothed combs in vain, and every avenue of escape from the city was guarded without result. Chief Kiely was confident this morning, however, that the shooter would be run down within a day or two.

The witnesses to the shooting are known. Elijah Harris, who was left in charge of the poolroom while John Bimber, the proprietor, and Henry Wilkes, the manager, were at a theatre, is locked up as a witness, and Walker Hamler, who is known to have been in the place when the shooting occurred, has been located.

Payne has been employed by Mr. Griffin for over a year, and the police have no occasion before this to go after him. Johnson is said to have a reputation among his companions as a "fast fighter," and there is a tendency among the colored men to justify Payne on the ground that he probably had to shoot quick to keep himself from being hurt. Johnson had no weapon on him when he was brought to headquarters. The police learned this morning that Payne bought the revolver with which he shot Johnson from his employer two weeks ago. That was before he quarrelled with Johnson. Another revolver was found at his home on Plainfield avenue.

Glinton Hofler, colored, took a bundle with him to the theatre, last night, and made an alcoholic nuisance of himself. He was bounced by Patrolman George Dobson, and made the mistake of starting a fuss with the policeman. He was given his choice between paying fifteen dollars or going to jail for twenty days, in the city court this morning.

Board and Lodging for Vag.

Charged with vagrancy, G. W. Frazee was arraigned before Judge Runyon in the city court this morning. He was sent to jail for sixty days.

CHANGING THE AUTO LAW

Senator Jos. Frelinghuysen's Amendments Provides for Twenty-five Inspectors.

TOURISTS' LICENSES

State Commissioner to Get $1,500 Extra a Year—Chief Inspector $1,500—Other Provisions.

In the event of the enactment of a measure introduced in the State Senate by Senator Joseph Frelinghuysen Wednesday, there will be two important changes in the present automobile laws.

It provides first, for increasing the number of paid inspectors to 25 and also that there may be appointed 25 additional inspectors who are to serve without pay. The paid inspectors are to receive $3 a day.

The present law provides for seven inspectors, but on the recommendation of the joint committee on appropriations the Legislature last year fixed the compensation so low that only three individuals competent to act in that capacity could be secured with pay and the other inspectors served without remuneration of any sort.

The services rendered by the unpaid inspectors were of such a high order that State Commissioner of Motor Vehicles J. B. R. Smith gave them praise in his annual report and Senator Frelinghuysen, who has fathered all the automobile legislation in this State, is so pleased that he desires to largely increase their number.

The second feature of the bill provides for short-term licenses for tourists in this State, to be issued in such manner as the State commissioner shall direct. These licenses are to be for three days and the charge is $1. These tourists must file the address of counsel upon whom service may be made in case of accident in this State.

Another innovation incorporated in the new bill gives the State commissioner $1,500 a year, in addition to his salary as assistant secretary of State, which is $3,000. It also fixes the salary of the chief inspector at $1,500 a year.

The provisions regulating the use and speed, license and registration fees and penalties are practically the same as in the present law.

DOUBLE CELEBRATION AT THE HIGH SCHOOL.

Anniversaries of Washington and Longfellow Appropriately Observed.

Exercises in commemoration of Washington and Longfellow were held Wednesday in the Plainfield High School. It was the one hundredth anniversary of the birthday of the great American poet. The programme was of a strictly patriotic nature and one of unusual interest.

The exercises opened with "Hail Columbia," sung by the school. Miss Rose Siegal recited "Under the Elm." "An Appreciation of Longfellow," written by Miss Corlelna Leasbury, was read by her. Miss Sadie Brouwer recited "The Cross of Snow." A trio, composed of the Misses Irene Dunham and Henrietta Winn, and the Messrs. Guin Fountain and Doane, sang "She Sleeps, My Lady Sleeps." "Snow Flakes" was recited by Miss Ruth Klein and "The Skeleton in Armor," by Richard Harrison. A vocal solo entitled "The Arrow and the Song," was given by Miss Queena Tillotson. "Moriturl Salutamus," the poem which Longfellow read at the fiftieth anniversary of his college class, was recited by Adelbert Van Brakle. The exercises concluded with "America," by the school.

REV. A. F. TULP TO BECOME PASTOR OF NEWARK CHURCH.

Accepts a Call Extended Him by the New York Avenue Reformed Congregation.

Rev. A. Peter Tulp, who filled the pulpit of Marcounier chapel for some time and who has frequently preached in Trinity Reformed church, has accepted a call extended to him by the New York Avenue Reformed church, of Newark. He is a represent the pastor of the First Reformed church of Hasbrouck Heights, where he has been doing a splendid work. When he assumed charge of the congregation three years ago the membership was forty bpt it is now 150 and there is a Sunday-school with an average attendance of 200.

Mr. Tulp is but twenty-seven years old and he has had several successful years in his work among young people. He received his early education in New York but was graduated from Rutgers Theological Seminary in 1904. While pursuing his studies he preached Sundays in the Communipaw chapel and relieved Rev. De Schenck at Trinity church on numerous occasions. He was ordained as the pastor of the Hasbrouck Heights church on June 3, 1904.

Married In Quebec.

Word has been received in Dunellen of the marriage of Edward Maurer, of that place, to Miss Ellena Agatha Way, of Quebec, Canada. They were wedded on February 25, at the home of Samuel F. Way, father of the bride, in Quebec. They will live in Dunellen after a Southern wedding trip.

VARIED PROGRAMME AT WARREN CHAPEL

UNDER AUSPICES OF MISSIONARY AND AID SOCIETY.

Under the auspices of the Missionary and Aid Society, one of the most delightful entertainments that has ever been given in Warren chapel was conducted Wednesday. It was for the benefit of the furnishing fund of the new chapel and was witnessed by a large gathering.

The programme opened with mandolin selections by Theodore Gavett and LeRoy Long, accompanied by Miss Goddard on the piano. It dressed as an old lady. In an entertaining way she told all about the members of her family and the familiar folks in the village where she lived. As she mentioned each character, the cover of the album was turned over and they were revealed as if in a photograph. They were posed for by various young people and as Miss Goddard related facts about them there were accompanying songs appropriate to each, sung by Mrs. A. J. Schultz and William Holmes.

Those who represented characters were the Misses Kamsman, Jewitt, Brown, Honeyman, Alice and Ella Osborne, Ferry and Pope; and Messrs. William and Lester Gleaney, J. Whitney Baker, LeRoy Long, Jones Gavett and Charles Monfort. The final "picture" was given by Miss Goddard and Rev. W. E. Honeyman.

Miss Nora Schenck and Mr. Holmes sang a duett and Mr. Holmes contributed a solo after which another original number was given by Mrs. A. V. D. Honeyman and was styled her "Musical Notes." A large sheet was stretched across the platform and on it was a musical staff, but the faces of young men and women appeared where the notes should have been. Mrs. Honeyman was supposed to have collected the "notes" while on a European trip and they assisted her in telling the audience about it. The audience enjoyed it very much and showed its appreciation by frequent applause.

The entertainment was given by a committee from the Missionary and Aid Society and an offering was taken on that netted a substantial amount. Mrs. J. O. McKelvey acted as accompanist during the evening.

INTERDENOMINATIONAL.

Women of Various Churches Meet to Talk Over Missions.

Over 100 women attended the annual interdenominational missionary meeting at the Congregational church Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Curtis Bates presided, and offered the opening prayer.

Three-minute talks were delivered by representatives of different churches. Mrs. Wardner, of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, spoke on "The Public Schools;" Mrs. Kennant, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, on "Cry of the Children;" Mrs. L. H. Howard, of Hope chapel, on "Immigration;" Mrs. Bodine, of the First Presbyterian church, on "Stumbling Blocks;" Miss Neal, of the First Presbyterian church, on "Sabbath Keeping;" Miss Wilkins, of Trinity church, on "Mountaineers of the South;" Mrs. Knox, of the First Baptist church, on "Mormonism;" Mrs. Pierson, of the Crescent Avenue church, on "Alaska;" Mrs. Felckert, of Grace P. E. church, on "The Philippines."

Mrs. John M. Whiton, of the Congregational church, gave a brief talk on the missionary outlook. Mrs. Charles L. Goodrich offered the closing prayer.

ARMY SURGEON'S THRILLING ACCOUNT OF BOXER UPRISING.

Dr. Harold Corbusier Lectures for the Benefit of Grace Church Colored Mission.

Dr. Harold Corbusier, of Watchung avenue, who served as a surgeon in the U. S. Army during the campaign in the Philippines and during the Boxer uprising in China, gave his illustrated lecture in the parish house of Grace church, Thursday, for the benefit of the colored mission. The room was filled with persons interested in the achievements of the army in China, when Uncle Sam's soldiers were the first to scale the high walls at Pekin.

The speaker told of Dr. Titus, a trumpeter of the 15th Infantry, who was the first man to reach the top of the wall and place thereon an American flag. He also described the successful efforts of the various troops in quelling the Boxer troubles. He told of the part taken in this campaign by the troops from other nations, not forgetting to give due praise to the American soldiers.

Colored Fireman a Composer.

Daniel Epps, colored, a fireman at the local electric light station of the Public Service Corporation, is the author and composer of a song, "The Undying Germ of Divine Love," published by the Success Music Company, of Chicago. It is writen in waltz time and has literary and musical merit. Mr. Epps is a musician of no mean ability and has a large number of compositions to his credit but this is the first that has been given publication by an established house.

CONVICTED OF KILLING, HE GETS A NEW TRIAL

ITALIAN WHO FATALLY STABBED FELLOW COUNTRYMAN WINS ON APPEAL.

Luigi Scaduti, of Bayonne, who on June 7, 1905, murdered Lorenz Fauchi, a fellow fish peddler, in this city, and was sentenced by Judge Vail to three years in State Prison for manslaughter, is given a new trial by a decision of the Supreme Court given Wednesday.

Scaduti was indicted at the October term of the Grand Jury in 1905, tried and convicted of manslaughter. His counsel, J. P. Owens, assisted by W. W. Wilson, of Elizabeth, appealed the case. In the meantime Scaduti was released on bail.

The two Italians at the time of the murder were engaged in selling fish in this city. Each had a certain territory and it was understood that one was not to interfere with the other's customers. It was claimed at the time that Fauchi violated the agreement and repeatedly went into Scaduti's territory. On June 7 the two men quarrelled and Fauchi was killed. Scaduti claimed that he was acting in self-defense.

CALVERT SEES FIRT AS NEXT GOVERNOR

COUNTY CLERK BELIEVES JUSTICE AS STOKES'SUCCESSOR.

A boom has been started by some Republican politicians at Elizabeth for Supreme Court Justice J. Franklin Fort, of Essex county, for Governor. The movement is said to be headed by County Clerk James C. Calvert, who is one of the most prominent of the party leaders in Union county and for several years chairman of the Elizabeth city central committee.

Mr. Calvert said yesterday that he favored Justice Fort because he thought him the strongest, most popular and available candidate that the Republican party could select.

Mr. Calvert declared that from information which had come to him, he felt pretty confident that the next nominee for Governor of the Republican party would come from Essex county, and he did not know of any man from that section who would be more acceptable to the rank and file of the party throughout the State than Justice Fort.

The demand for his nomination, Mr. Calvert predicted, would grow in strength from now on until the time for the election of delegates to the Gubernatorial convention.

CENTRAL LODGE, A. O. U. W. ENTERTAIN THE WOMEN.

Central Lodge, No. 48, Ancient Order United Workmen, gave a "ladies' night" entertainment in its rooms on Park avenue, Thursday night, the features of which included instrumental music, magic and skits by a sketch artist, and an address by Grand Master Workman F. P. Fowle, of Irvington. Harry R. Thorn, the lodge recorder, was master of ceremonies and he gave a short address of welcome to the members and their women friends, who were present in large numbers.

There were piano solos by Miss Anna Boss and Prof. Irwin, of New York, gave a clever exhibition of magic. Frank King, also of New York, entertained with humorous selections and Grand Master Workman Fowle gave a brief sketch of the order, telling of its marvelous growth and great benefits. Refreshments were served after the entertainment. The committee in charge consisted of L. J. Spicer, Harvey R. Thorn and Theodore J. Mason.

Real Estate Transfers.

The following real estate transfers have been recorded at the office of the county clerk: B. Frank Corlell et ux. to Christopher H. Stahl, southeasterly side South Second street, 508 feet northeasterly of Clinton avenue, Plainfield, $1; Minnie Thies to George Zepp, Liberty street, corner *R. R. Corlell, Plainfield, $2,500; Harry Ullman et ux. to Philip Kline, Washington street, corner Amy L. Moore, Plainfield, $1; Ella T. Manning et al. to Charles F. Randolph, northwesterly side La Grande avenue, 304 feet southwesterly of Cherokee place, Plainfield, $1; Frank A. Pope et al. to Jacob B. Luttbeg, southeasterly side East Front street, corner J. B. Luttberg, Plainfield, $1,500; George Wiegand et ux. to Randolph W. Vail, southwesterly side Liberty, 216 feet southeasterly of West Third street, Plainfield, $2,450.

Annual Meeting Park Golf Club.

The annual meeting of the Park Golf Club to be held at the Park Club on Tuesday night, March 13, will be one of great importance to every member as several questions concerning the coming season will be discussed and decided. There will be the election of trustees, followed by the choice of officers, together with the annual reports for the year.

OF THE NILE FROM CAIRO TO THEBES"

DR. CHARLES MOLDENKE GIVES ILLUSTRATED LECTURE.

Dr. Charles Moldenke, of New York, gave an instructive and interesting illustrated lecture at St. Peter's German Lutheran church, on Grove street, Wednesday, on the subject, "Up the Nile from Cairo to Thebes." The lecture was given for the benefit of the church and was attended by an audience that filled the edifice. Dr. Moldenke has taken this trip two or three times, his last visit to Egypt being just ten years ago this month. He being an egyptologist he made a special study of the ancient temples, devoting much time to the inscriptions to be found thereon, as well as in the noted tombs.

The views shown last night are probably among the finest ever taken in Egypt and Dr. Moldenke gave lucid description of his journey which covered about 400 miles up the Nile. He told in detail of the conditions to be found in that ancient land, explaining the method of raising crops, the natural fertilization caused by the overflowing of the Nile, and mentioned the fact that one section is so fertile that three crops are raised in one year.

For the Bible student and those who have made a study of Egyptian writings, the views of the temples and tombs were probably the most interesting and being so well versed in his subject the doctor was able to explain them in a way that was easily understood by all. Interpersing his reference to the more serious features of the trip, he related many amusing incidents which helped to make it a real pleasure for all. The lantern was operated by the speaker's brother, Dr. Richard Moldenke, of Watchung.

NANSEN'S GREAT DASH IS VIVIDLY DESCRIBED

REV. SAMUEL D. PRICE TELLS OF HIS THRILLING EXPERIENCES.

While perhaps it was not attended with that intense interest which characterized Peary's vivid description of his dash for the North Pole, it being the story of the hero of himself, the illustrated lecture given at the Park Avenue Baptist church, last night, by Rev. Samuel D. Price, of Camden, on "Nansen's Polar Expedition" was attended by a large audience and fully enjoyed. Mr. Price had a great many of the views taken on the Nansen expedition, and he closely followed the explorer's story as written by himself. The fact that Nansen and his brave companions did not reach that farthest northern point, touched by Peary, his trip was nevertheless attended by perhaps as many hazardous experiences.

The views included many scenes in the polar region, showing several pictures of the famous ship, the Fram, how she was pinned in the mountains of ice and how the party spent two winters amid the hardships of the north. The views and story of Nansen's dash from the Fram to the pole was the most thrilling part of the lecture. He came within forty miles of reaching the point touched by Peary, and was then obliged to return to Franz Joseph Land, where he and his party met the Windward and came home. Mr. Price cited the fact that Nansen's expedition was different from that of Peary in that the former practically bore the entire expense of his trip, outside of providing the ship. This was furnished by the Norwegian Government. In many respects Nansen's experiences were not unlike those of Peary and in many instances there was a decided similarity. During the evening a silver offering was received.

George E. Hall, superintendent of the Sunday-school, operated the lantern. Mr. Price is the pastor of the Presbyterian church at Camden, and lately has devoted much time to the study of explorations in the polar region.

Discussing a Y. W. C. A.

The parlors of Mrs. Frederick G Mead's home, "Sunnyside," were filled on Thursday afternoon with an interested group of one hundred women, who came together to hear Miss Louise Holenquist and Miss Blanche Snider, of New York, speak of Young Women's Christian Association work. The world-wide organization was outlined Thursday afternoon with a view by Miss Holenquist. Miss Snider told of the investigation which had been carried on in Plainfield, and reported that more than 250 young women had signed the petition asking that an association be organized here. An informal discussion followed. The chairman was empowered to appoint a provisional committee which should further the investigation and it thought advisable to work toward the organization of an association in Plainfield.

Engagement Announced.

The engagement of Miss Gerda Ohgren, of Hillside avenue, and Hogan Hansen, of Duer street, is announced. No date is set for the wedding.

PEOPLE'S NATIONAL OPENS DOORS APRIL 1

MESSRS. M'CUTCHEN, SAUNDERS TOWNSEND AND CASE AMONG DIRECTORS.

The People's National Bank, of Westfield, which has been fostered by the Plainfield Trust Company, was formally organized Wednesday with a capital stock of $50,000 and a surplus of $10,000. The citizens of that town have been enthusiastic over the proposition and have over-subscribed to the amount of stock issued. It was decided to open the new institution for business in the Abbott building on Broad street, about April 1.

While the directors are mostly Westfield men, several Plainfield capitalists are interested. Yesterday's meeting was held at the Westfield Club. These directors were elected: Joseph E. Gallagher, R. P. Grant, W. E. Tuttle, Jr., E. A. Case, H. L. Case, Dr. R. E. Sindelar and E. T. Perrine, of Westfield, and Charles W. McCutchen, Samuel Townsend, J. Herbert Case and William L. Saunders, of Plainfield. All of the Plainfield directors but Mr. Saunders are officers of the Plainfield Trust Company. A meeting will be held in a few days to elect officers.

ALONE IN NEIGHBOR'S HOUSE, OLD MAN DIES

WOMAN FINDS INVALID DEAD ON RETURNING FROM SHORT JOURNEY.

George Shaffar, 70 years old, who for years had lived alone in a house on Walnut street, Dunellen, fell to the sidewalk on North avenue, that borough, Saturday afternoon, in the grip of a heart attack. He was revived by Dr. P. W. Brakeley, but suffering a repetition of the attack he made arrangements to stay at the home of Mrs. Theodore Kuldoshes. On Wednesday at noontime Mrs. Kuldoshes left him alone in the house while she went on a trip to this city. When she returned early in the afternoon she found the old man dead on the floor.

Mr. Shaffar had apparently gained in health. He had gone out in the street several times since Monday, and was getting down with Mrs. Kuldoshes left. He urged her to make the trip when she expressed reluctance to leave him alone. Asthma is said to have complicated his heart trouble.

The dead man's only living relative is a sister, Mrs. Henry Wagner, of Newark. She has been notified and will make arrangements for the funeral. The body is at the undertaking parlors of Walter G. Runyon, Dunellen. Mr. Shaffar lived in Dunellen for fourteen years; his wife died six years ago. He was a pensioner.

BIRTHDAY SOCIAL NETS $25 FOR CARPET FUND.

The Ladies' Aid Society of First M. E. Church Provides Fine Entertainment.

The birthday social held Thursday under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church, in Vincent chapel, netted about $25, which will go toward a fund to purchase a new carpet for the chapel. There was an excellent programme, including piano solos by Miss Beatrice Miner and vocal selections by F. C. Iglehart, Jr., of the First Presbyterian church choir.

An enjoyable feature was the display of a large number of views from all parts of the world, including many from Plainfield, by J. Hervey Doane. The affair was arranged by Mrs. J. Hervey Doane, and all the women of the society whose names are included in the alphabet from A to H, assisted. Refreshments were served after the entertainment.

Swimming Hole to Be Abandoned.

Convinced that the swimming hole on his property is more of a nuisance than a benefit, H. C. Compton, of West Front street, has decided to have the bath-house removed and the place fenced in to prevent its being used during the coming summer. It was through the efforts of the Board of Trade that the place on Mr. Compton's land in the West End was opened as a swimming hole and through the generosity of Senator Ackerman that the bath-house was erected, but the boys have abused the privileges given them. Boys of all sizes have gathered at the place and besides making a nuisance of themselves in the water have used the bath-house as a place to smoke. In the future the boys will have to seek another place to swim.

Annual Meeting Baptist Church.

The annual business meeting of the Park Avenue Baptist church will be held in the lecture room on Wednesday night, March 27, at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of electing four deacons, each for the term of three years, to succeed Deacons William M. Tallman, Isaac R. Giles, Thomas H. Cumming and Charles F. Dayton, all of whose term of office will then expire; and for the election of a church clerk for the term of one year to succeed Harry C. Runyon and for the election of a treasurer of teh benevolent fund, for the term of one year, to succeed E. Frank Vall.

MUIR'S MINSTRELS IS NOW "EN TOUR"

GOLD MEDAL TROUP WINS FAVOR AT SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

"Tom" Muir's Gold Medal minstrel troupe, of this city, continued its tour of the suburbs, Wednesday, by appearing at Washington hall, South Plainfield, and presenting one of its popular black-face entertainments. It was given under the auspices of the South Plainfield school for the benefit of the piano fund and standing room only was on sale before the curtain rose.

The programme was similar to

those the Gold Medals have been giving at Scotch Plains, New Market and other places and the audience was quick to show appreciation of the artists' efforts by frequent and enthusiastic applause. Several local jokes and an original song relative to the South Plainfield borough matter "brought down the house."

The Four H. Quartette, which has become a widely known organization, presented its singing and talking act, "Twenty Minutes of Harmony and Fun," and made one of the biggest hits of the evening. The quartette is composed of Harry Roberts, first tenor; Horace J. Martin, Jr., second tenor; Hugh Ricketts, baritone, and Harry Blimm, bass. During the act the members introduced several new songs that took well. As usual Mr. Muir was enthusiastically applauded.

Following the show an informal dance was held, the troupe having been accompanied from Plainfield by a large delegation of friends.

The company will continue in nearby places and has already arranged for a show at Bound Brook on March 12 and another at Mount Bethel on March 19.

LEAL'S '09 LOST.

Y. M. C. A. Boys' Five Win Fast Game; Heavyweights in Line.

With two heavyweights in the lines, the Y. M. C. A. boys' five and the Leal's '09 five played a fast game Thursday afternoon. Y. M. C. A. won for the third time, 28 to 22.

The heavyweights were Brown, of Leal's, and Physical Director Listman. Brown is a beefy youth and weighs more than the Physical Director. He is a '09 lad, right enough, but he is a member of the "varsity" five, and it was agreed that the director go into the game to balance matters. They opposed each other at center, and played the star games for their sides. Mr. Listman got a shade the better of the meeting; he made eight goals to two for Mr. Brown.

The line-up and summary:

Leal's.		Y. M. C. A.
Gluck		Conroy
Lawrence		Manley, Robbins
	forward
Brown		Listman centre
Campbell		R. Miller
Duke		Vall, Richardson guard

The Land of Opportunity.

Twenty-five years ago the cattle trade of Western Canada totaled twenty-five head. Now there are a million and a quarter animals grazing on these great pastures; just double that of two years ago. One-half of this number, it can be safely said, are cattle, the rest sheep and horses. An authority claims that there are not less than one hundred million acres of good grazing country in Canada's west. The figures are staggering, but they are no doubt true. The possibilities of stock-raising pass beyond the limits of mathematical computation. Horses, cattle and sheep winter out well, and in many sections no shelter is provided against the snow and winter cold, for the simple reason that none is needed.

COME INTO A FORTUNE

Three Plainfielders Get Possession of $500,000 By Court's Decision.

A WILL IS ASSAILED

Third Cousins Try To Break Testament Benefitting H. J. Storrs, Miss Mary Storrs and Mrs. Electa Storrs Craft.

Through a decision of Surrogate Jackson, at Mineola, L. I., Tuesday, Henry J. Storrs, Miss Mary Louise Storrs and Mrs. Electa Storrs Craft, all of this city, have come into possession of half a $1,000,000 estate. They were bequeathed the fortune by the late Stephen Mott Wright, their cousin.

The other half of the estate was left to Mrs. Ida Beach Stuart. William H. Dodge and Stephen S. Dodge, third cousins of the testator, applied for a revocation of the will on the ground that they were not served when the will was probated, and alleged, further, that fraud and undue influence figured in the drawing of the instrument.

Henry J. Storrs is an assistant controller of New York city. He has lived here, on Kensington avenue, for more than thirty years. The late Mr. Wright spent much of his time with them.

The Wright residence at Sea Cliff, and its contents, go to Mrs. Stuart.

P. P. A. OFFERS TO AID THE BOROUGH COUNCIL

WILL CO-OPERATE IN EFFORT TO GET BETTER LIGHTING SERVICE.

Aside from the sewer committee's report, the Borough Council transacted nothing but routine business at the regular monthly meeting Friday night.

The Greenbrook Improvement Association presented a communication protesting against the emptying of any sewage matter in the Plainfield disposal beds that might have a tendency to pollute Green brook. A similar communication was read at the meeting of the City Council last week. The matter was referred to the sewer commission. Another communication was received from the Plainfield Protective Association, referring to its investigation of local electric light and gas conditions and offering to aid the borough in any effort to better them. It was referred to the committee on fire, water and lights.

Mrs. Sarah McNabb asked permission to erect a frame dwelling on Westervelt avenue in the fire limits and same was granted. Constable Dolliver reported eleven arrests during February and $21 in fines collected. Charles Keller was appointed a regular marshal on one month's probation.

Councilman Smith reported that the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company is now furnishing the power for the fire alarm system and that it is working successfully. He also announced that he had received a bill from the company amounting to $137.50 for repairing the wiring occurring but that the work was not done to his satisfaction and he had decided to defer payment. The mayor approved of his action. In response to a question he stated that the fire alarm system as a whole is in good order but that the bell ever needs repairing. A new platform is to be erected at the top at soon as the weather moderates. In connection with fire matters Mr. Smith informed the Council that H. B. Dunham, a call man in the department, had submitted the regular semi-annual bill of $12:50 for services, but that as he had failed to attend seventy-five per cent. of the fires he had reduced it to $2.50.

On a resolution offered by Mr. McGee $500 was ordered borrowed to meet payment of bills.

MISS REYNOLDS' FUNERAL.

Service Carried Out As She Had Requested Just Previous to Death.

Before a large gathering of relatives and friends, the funeral of Miss Ethel J. Reynolds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hazelton C. Reynolds, of Summit avenue, was held at the parents' home, Wednesday. The service was carried out in strict accordance with the wishes of the young woman as she had planned the details just previous to her death. Rev. J. O. McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel, was in charge and Elmer D. Cutting sang two of Miss Reynolds' favorite hymns, "Some Day We'll Understand" and "One Sweetly Solemn Thought." Judge William N. Runyon acted as accompanist.

There was an unusually large array of floral tributes that included many set pieces, among them a large one from the New York Yachting house in which Miss Reynolds was employed at the time her illness began.

Interment was made in Evergreen cemetery, the pall bearers being Thomas DeMeza, George Pope, Thomas M. Muir and Harry Blimm.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning March 30.

By REV. S. H. DOOLEY.

Topic—Lessons from the Life of Abraham. II. Abraham—Heb. xi. 8, 9.

The patriarch Abraham was the son of Terah, a descendant of Shem. He was born in Ur of the Chaldees, beyond the Euphrates. Here Ur he was called of God "to go out into a place which he should afterwards receive as an inheritance." The place referred to was the land of Canaan, and God called him to leave his own people and go to a new land that he might make him the founder of a people peculiarly His own and through whom the Savior of the world was to come. His life is most interesting and instructive, and every Christian endeavorer should make himself familiar with it in all its details. It will thus best have a blessed influence upon our lives.

1. The life of Abraham teaches us a lesson on faith. This is the most conspicuous thing about his life. Abraham lived in an age of the grossest idolatry, and yet his faith in the one living and true God was never been surpassed. His faith led God was put to the severest test, and yet it never wavered. "By faith Abraham when he was called to go out to a place which he should after receive for an inheritance obeyed, and he went out not knowing whither he went." In this call God no doubt called to test the faith of Abraham, as he did afterward in calling upon him to sacrifice Isaac, his only son and the child of promise. And Abraham stood this as well as all other tests. He did not know what he was undertaking, but believing implicitly in the God who called him. "By faith he sojourned in the land of promise, as in a strange country." Where God told him to go he went; where God told him to remain he remained.

Abraham's faith should be an example to us. God calls us to duties and to trials, yet how often our faith is weak! We want to know where we are being led and why we should stay. Abraham never questioned God. He never asked God to explain His dealings with him, but his faith was whole hearted and unquestioning. Let us aspire to this kind of faith. It is the faith that brings real joy and peace to the heart and success in our religious lives.

2. The life of Abraham teaches us a lesson on obedience. Faith and obedience should go hand in hand. They are not antagonistic. Saline are not saved by faith, and others by obedience. Every one must fulfill the requirements both. Faith inspires obedience, and obedience is the proof of faith. "By faith Abraham * * * obeyed." Obedience is always the test of faith. "By their fruits ye shall know them." "Faith, without works, is dead, being alone." Works without faith are just as dead as faith without works. Morality not based on saving faith can never save a human soul. If we believe in God, we must show it by our obedience. And this is the way he is pleased with obedience. "Obedience is better than sacrifice."

3. The life of Abraham teaches us a lesson on God's faithfulness to His promises. God made covenants with Abraham. Great promises were given to him, and God kept them. The land of promise became the possession of his descendants. According to the promise of God, his seed is like the stars for multitude, and through him all the nations of the world have been blessed, for through his race came the Redeemer of the world. God is faithful, who has promised." All His promises are yea and amen in Christ Jesus." And He is just as faithful to us as He was to Abraham. Let us more and more strive to be faithful to Him as Abraham was.

Fanny Crosby to Rev. Clark.

One interesting feature of the recent meeting of the Bridgeport (Conn.) local union at Stratford was the presentation to Dr. Francis E. Clark, founder of the address of welcome, of a beautiful album containing the autographs of the climbers to which the collection of the union belong. The album is a rich and tasteful souvenir, and the first page is an original poem by Fanny J. Crosby, the blind writer, well known to all the workers in Bridgeport and is an honorary member of the Bridgeport local. Below we append the poem, which was signed by her own hand:

A DEDICATION.

Another gospel message
Of hope to those that mourn
Across the mighty ocean
The faithful heart is borne.
And, while that heart is pleading
With souls in climes afar,
Thy message is the sword.

Thy name our guiding star.

Thou art the noble founder
Of our Endeavor band,
And now like happy children
We clasp our father's hand.
Our ranks are marching forward,
Our voices ring with cheers,
And thou art loved and honored
By all the Christian world.

Thy perfect consecration
To Christ, our Lord and King,
Thy sacrificing spirit,
A bright reward will bring.
Thy life of true devotion
He passed on high shall see,
Will be thy glorious welcome
To yonder home above.

It Happened.

It was in a boarding house parlor.

Young Lady—And I have done so much church work!

Old Lady—Do you belong to the Christian Endeavor society?

Young Lady (sharply)—No. I never go to that church. I'm a Methodist.

Old Lady (with a smile)—Sure?

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

FRELINGHUYSEN AND TILLMAN.

Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of Somerset county, Jr. has announced candidate for Governor, to succeed Governor Stokes. He is about thirty-eight years old, a fire insurance manager, is wealthy enough to have a reported income of $150,000 a year and bears a name that is among the most honored in the state's history. He is possessed of a degree of ability, is ambitious and persistent. The first time he ran for Senator in his own county he was defeated by Senator Childs, but the second time he ran he defeated the man who had defeated him. He is the father of the State laws governing automobiles.

Senator Frelinghuysen is an organization man, but he is something more; he is a machine man. This was made manifest by his vacillating conduct in the matter of the Senatorial re-election. He seemed at first to be of the same independent opinion as his colleague Assemblyman Smalley; viz., that Senator Dryden had made himself the issue and had failed of re-election on election day. Later, he became Senator Dryden's champion, was in several conferences with him and worked hand in glove with the machines to secure Mr. Dryden's re-election. He told his fellow Senators that he considered it a disgrace age to oppose Mr. Dryden, but it required a great deal more to favor him and he was going to do the latter. Undoubtedly, Mr. Frelinghuysen would have behind him all the forces that he represented, when he showed the supreme, the superlative courage necessary to stand by the machine, and later by the slate made by the "Big Five." It remains to be seen whether this support will prove helpful or detrimental, but whichever it may be Mr. Frelinghuysen will have it. That is, unless he vacillates once more and comes out on the side of the independent Republicans. Several months must elapse before the next Gubernatorial election; time enough for opportunity to be given to thorough study of the situation and a change of political heart.

As for the candidacy of Assemblyman Peter Tillman, of Union county, it will startle a good many people of New Jersey. Tillman is a candidate for Governor, without any doubt. He has said so himself to a News representative. Everybody in every county in the State, excepting Union, will at once inquire, "Who's Tillman?" and this is perhaps his greatest handicap. Tillman is one of the Union county men who signed a paper saying he would not go into the Republican caucus, and then went in the caucus. He resides in Rahway, and though well-to-do is not very wealthy. He is about as near to the millionaire's chair in Rahway is to the moon. The latter is within sight, but not within reach. In the meantime the candidacy of William M. Johnson, of Bergen, is not languishing, though Tillman and Frelinghuysen are in the field. Johnson served very acceptably in the Senate from 1896 to 1900, was President of the Senate in the latter year and was afterward First Assistant Postmaster-General under President Roosevelt. He is wealthy and is a philanthropist, having given to Hackensack a splendid public library. What he and his friends will do to head off the Frelinghuysen candidacy remains to be seen. Mr. Johnson is an organization man, and has also been known to quiet old and comfort to his county machine, but not so aggressively as Frelinghuysen. The latter can never be acceptable to the independent Republicans; whether they can favor Mr. Johnson or not only time will tell.

It is not impossible, however, for the Colby Republicans to name a candidate of their own, and to elect him. —Newark News.

JAMES E. MARTINE.

Our good and much esteemed contemporary, the Hackensack Record, seems to think that there was some corporation taint in the Democrats going to James Martine.

It evidently does not know Martine.

Why, there is not in the broad confines of the nation a better Democrat or radical in the fullest sense of the word than James Martine. He has always been a Democrat, and *from his very constitution must al*ways be a Democrat in the strictest and truest sense. He is a Democrat 365 days in the year, and when it is leap year you can add another Democratic day for James Martine.

He carries his Democracy into every rule of his life. He is a true Democrat because he tries to treat other people as he would be treated and only those who take the golden rule for their guide through life can be called real Democrats. Being a Democrat means a great deal more than voting the Democratic ticket on election day. It means a regard for the rights of others as vigilant as for one's own. It means a Democrat recoils from trespassing on the rights of others as he would resent an encroaching on his own.

That is the kind of a Democrat James Martine is.

He is a Democrat in the general, radical sense, from the top of his head to the ground and several feet into the ground.

There is no more corporation or any other taint on James Martine than there is on the heaven sent snow of yesterday. He never knew what it was to seek or have a lick at any corporation ladle.

Martine is worthy of any honor. The Herald [illegible] account of coming before the people for United States Senator. But it has as high a regard for Martine as a Democrat as it has for any Democrat in the State.

Martine's life is one of pure serenity. He doesn't smoke, chew, nor drink, he loves God, hates the devil, and religiously votes the Democratic ticket. This is the way he performs whether he is running on it or not, which shows his Democracy to be a different brand from some more pretentious Democrats not a thousand miles from Passaic.

The Trenton Times says that Martine will never again be an candidate for office. Mr. Martine has certainly done his share of running and has always preached Democracy pure and undefiled every time he did run. He seemed to look on his candidacy rather as an opportunity to preach the gospel of Democracy than a chance to get an office. He knows people will always listen to a candidate when they will not come to hear a lecturer. But whether Martine runs or does not run his life will be to teach and live Democracy.

Success to Martine. May his tribe increase.—Passaic Herald.

ERNEST R. ACKERMAN.

Union county, usually fortunate in the choice of its representative in the Upper House of the State Legislature, is especially so in the present instance. Senator Ackerman's course last winter gave promise of much merit, and he will next year be the choice of United States Senator, and later, in the choice of State Treasurer, has demonstrated that he is one who listens only to the voice of his constituents, and is controlled only by the highest principles of right. He is, first of all, a party man, and is controlled by the will of the organization to which he belongs, in the truest sense of that term. When the election of United States Senator produced a situation somewhat embarrassing to him, he did not hesitate. First of all, he ascertained the will of the individual members of the party and of the county of which he was the chosen representative, and this done, he did not hesitate to incur the odium of selfish individuals who posed, because of their prominence in the party organization, as bosses and dictators of his action. He did not bolt the party caucs. He only bolted the caucus of the pseudo leaders who assumed to control his action. He was the true will of his party organization. Later, when Senator Dryden had withdrawn, he cordially announced his willingness to abide by the decision of the caucus which would name Senator Dryden's successor. Even certain over-zealous friends of Senator Dryden unwisely assumed that Briggs stood for all that Dryden had stood for, and that they themselves had brought about the change from Dryden to Briggs. It simply required time to investigate the statements and find out whether or not these assumptions were true. This time could not be allowed, and he accordingly refrained from going into the caucus, until he could make such investigation. Had he time to investigate, as he been given, he could have found the falsity of the claims and charges and there would have been no trouble. Later, when the question of the State Treasurership, which involved the same claims and charges, was presented, he did investigate and found that there was not only no truth in them, but that they were entirely he work of unwise, and in some instances, false friends of the Morris county gentleman. Upon ascertaining these facts he did not hesitate to place himself squarely on record as in favor of Mr. Voorhees' election. And in every other case where Senator Ackerman has been called upon to act, he has consulted only the interests of right and his constituents. He is in the highest and best sense a party organization man.—Warren Tidings.

THE MALE OPERA HAT.

Why It Rises Superior to Any Passing Fashion Dictates.

Men generally protest against the changes of style in hats, and one of the sex has written to the New York Mail this complaint:

Why attack as a "collapsible, many memories pretender" the opera hat, or chapeau de claque?

I have such a hat and also a silk hat, in which respect I think I differ from most Gothamites. Whenever I have an option I wear the opera hat rather than the other. It's more convenient.

At the theatre or opera you can carry it better on your between the acts promenades. If there is no rack for your hat under the seat you can tuck it in your overcoat and put it on the floor under you without destroying it, as you would do with a silk hat.

If you put your hat in the rack under your seat and then rise and stand close to it the chances are some one to pass an opera hat suffers no damage. A silk hat would be either ruffled or crushed.

The opera hat looks as well at all times as the silk hat and requires much less attention. Indeed, I think it looks better. The glossy surface of a silk hat, like the glossy bosom of a stiff white shirt, is an uncomfortable survival of the time when men wore polished helmets and breastplates.

There is so much reason in the opera hat that men of discrimination will continue to wear it, the style of the moment regardless.

CAREER OF T. A. EDISON

Something About Greatest Inventor Who Was 50 This Week.

BEGAN AS A NEWSBOY

The Amusing Story of the First Check He Received—Says Time Is Valuable.

When Thomas A. Edison said on celebrating his sixtieth birthday anniversary last week, "we do not know anything, probably less than we shall have collected sufficient data to suspect," he showed that he was not afflicted with "exaggerated ego."

*"All things come to him who hus*tles while he waits," Mr. Edison once wrote across a photograph of himself, sent to the Sellers Library of Columbia University, and he himself has always acted exactly on that principal. All the world knows he has had to wait; not once in those long years did he cease his hustling.

What are his patents today? In telegraphy only there is the automatic repeater, the machines for duplex, quadruplex and sextuplex transmission; the printing-telegraph, and the carbon telegraph transmitter. In broadest fields of applied electricity is to be thanked for the microtasimeter, for the detection of slight changes in temperature; the megaphone, the aerophone, the kinetoscope and the storage battery, to say nothing of the new system transmitter for the telephone, which brought lips moving slightly as if computing time. "Yes—nineteen—no, twenty years ago, I had wireless system working for the freight lines of the Lehigh Valley road. I remember I once flashed a message to a kite two miles in the air. Then something else came up to interest men more and lo! here's Marconi finding out lots more than I ever knew on the subject. That's all right. There's room for more than one man, or even two, to dig for truths in nature."

That he was born in Ohio (in Milan, Erie county, in 1847) may have helped him to get on. However, less which Edison has since achieved, but its real cause is to be found in the earnest young fellow's persistent efforts and the sound common sense which lay behind all he attempted. It is to be remembered that he began a newsboy on the Grand Trunk lines, was branched off into railroad telegraphy, began to finger keys in Michigan when 17, began to experiment with borrowed sounders while employed in Indianapolis, and was at last drifted East to Boston and then to New York. The story of how he forced the Western Union seriously to consider his ideas, however, is not too old for retelling.

Edison for months pestered the officials of that concern to take up his inventions, but all to no purpose other than to seem to them part bore, part crank. Then one day, as he entered the offices of Dr. Norvin Green, president of the system, where several of the "bigger fellows" had gathered in consultation, he was greeted with this: "Mr. Edison, you're timely. You seem to think you know more about telegraphy than all of us put together, so suppose you locate the trouble which is holding up our communication with Albany."

The lone was obviously sneering, but the newcomer seemed not to notice that he spoke. "Let me see. Give me two or three hours," and then he added: "If I straighten this out in that time will you seriously look into my proposals?"

"Surely," came the half-bantering rejoinder, "if you can untangle us in two or three days," and as Edison left the room there was another laugh at his assurance. Yet in less than an hour he was back with this advice: "Send a repair crew up the line to mile post 31, Poughkeepsie. The wire is down there."

Wisely enough, he did not tell anyone how he had found out, but all he really had done was to go to the main Broadway offices, call up Pittsburg, get the operator there to call up Albany and instruct him to wire southward as far as he could, and report back. Albany soon answered that he could not get Poughkeepsie, and guessed the trouble to be some where on his side of the line. Then Mr. Edison reported this—and it was right. It was simplicity itself—the wonder is no one else had thought of doing so obvious a thing—but it meant the first long step toward the immense fame and success of the practical scientist who met a difficulty with good common sense.

The First Check.

When Dame Fortune once started to smile she did so generously, and she has smiled ever since. The first check from financial success (the thing for Edison's patent on his stock indicator) was for $40,000, a sum that today would not seem staggering to him, though then, he has himself said, he so little realized all that it meant that he stood "willing to sell it to the first bidder who might have offered two crisp $1,000 bills for it." A workshop was soon set up in Newark, the Menlo Park laboratory followed that (1876), and then the present workshop in West Orange, and let it be chronicled in passing that the proprietor of those "shops" has from the first given a half-holiday to all his hundreds of assistants, not in summer only, but all the year 'round. "Wizard" on one side he may be, on the other he is most "human."

Himself he never thinks of saving, when work is in the question. On his very wedding day (his first marriage, that is), he was called to his laboratory soon after the ceremony and promptly became so wrapped up in the experiment then on his tables that he was still there at midnight, when a friend looked in. On the opening of the door brought him to himself, and hurrying into his coat and hat, he started homeward, saying "Excuse me, but I guess I'll have to be getting along. You know I was married today."

The present Mrs. Edison has undertaken the task of keeping her husband "sensible" (as she puts it), however, and does not permit him to forget his meals, as he used, to do, nor to work through the night periods without some relaxation—usally taken, by the way, in a little electric au*tomobile on a circular track within* the factory inclosure. It may be added, too, that Edison predicts for the auto car: "It's going to be the poor man's wagon yet, but its motive power is not going to be gasoline then: electricity is to prove the secret of its future usefulness."

Mr. Edison is the best of friends and the most entertaining of talkers, but he is hard to reach, for the simple reason that he places so (properly) high a value on his time. To him time is too valuable to waste even by taking account of it. It means the chance to get things done; how long it has been at it to get a small bit of importance to him. In his safe there is carefully locked away a $2,700 Swiss watch, presented by some great European scientific society, but it is never used. Mr. Edison carries in a diminutive silver watch in his trousers pocket, and never looks at it.

The preoccupation which accompanies his intense and sustained concentration of attention to the work under hand is also to be seen in his habit of "dry smoking." He is fond of tobacco, yet cigar after cigar goes out as he labors incessantly away, goes out, is slowly eaten up and then tossed aside. There is a story told by his tobacconist that bears on this point.

Mr. Edison had come to the conclusion that someone besides himself was making free wit his box of panatellas, and so ordered some "fakes;" they were to be filled with horsehair and hard rubber. These were duly made and delivered—and three weeks later the inventor asked when they were to be sent to him.

"When?"

"Nearly a month ago. They were in a flat box and born green labels."

"Oh!" drawled Mr. Edison, reflectively, adding slowly: "Do you know I smoked every one of those myself."

Philopohy and Promise.

"The Wizard's" splendid health may be largely due to the watchful eye of Mrs. Edison. "Philip, the Nuisance," he sometimes calls her jokingly, but the man holds and follows a philosophy which has no little to do with his youthful spirit and activity. "I work a good many hours a day," he once told the newspaper men, "but when I'm not working I'm where my heart is wrapped up, and there the rest of my life is very quiet. I don't worry. I'm fond of fun. I like good company as much as I dislike 'high society.' I avoid 'functions' and men who spend all their time chasing the dollar. I take a little outdoor exercise. And I don't play golf. I guess that's all."

With work always before him, each completed task inspiring him to some other, what are the promises the world in the near future? In the first place, hating inaccuracy above all else, he promises nothing till he sees before him a reasonably clear road to its early fulfilment. We are to have, it is reported, a storage battery which will last 500 miles on the market by April, according to some brother scientists in touch with the plans of this master of their craft. Perhaps, too, all this story is nto wholly a joke. Perhaps there really is to be a "sound motor."

WANT MORE FOR MILK.

Dairy Farmers May Organize to Force Higher Prices.

Franklin Park, March 4.—To endeavor to get for their milk half the price paid by consumers, the dairy farmers of this vicinity are attempting to form an organization of owners of the various herds that supply New Brunswick and adjacent towns.

Several informal meetings have been held and altogether from forty to fifty have taken part and discussed the question of milk prices. The result has been that John L. Totten, one of the best known farmers of Somerset county, has been selected chairman of the movement and directed as a committee of one to look into the matter and see if it is not possible for the farmers to get a better price for their milk without raising the cost to the consumer. Mr. Hötten is endeavoring to interest all dairymen of Middlesex and Somerset counties to meet and attend a public meeting on the subject.

At present, the herd owners declare, they get an average price for the year of three cents a quart for their milk. In summer it runs from two to two and a half cents, and in winter from three to three and a half. The retailer, however, sells milk in New Brunswick and its neighbor communities for six cents in summer and eight cents in winter.

SOMERSET CLUB WILL NOT BE ALLOWED TO DIE

MEMBERS SAY IT IS FOLLY TO TALK OF DISBANDMENT.

The Somerset Club took a new and exceedingly firm grip on life Friday night. At a meeting that was called, as a result of dissatisfaction with the way things were going, to discuss the advisability of disbanding, it was decided to continue the organization and make it stronger than it ever has been.

There was nothing very serious the matter with the club management, but the men to whom the members looked for steady work as towers of strength, substantial pillars, and rocks of that sort, didn't devote all their spare time to the club, and some pessimistic brethren thought everything was going to pot.

The meeting changed the hopeless feeling in rightabout fashion. There is over $1,000 invested in club furnishings, no debts are on the property, and it was agreed that no rea*son existed to doubt that the* organization would be very successful under a new style of management.

"It was the feeling last night that it is folly to talk of disbanding the club, which is in a flourishing condition financially," said a prominent member this morning. "There is no doubt that the club will take on new life and prosper."

The work of reorganization will be completed at a meeting on March 11. The club rooms will be kept open nights, and borough residents may call freely.

TRINTY REFORMED'S MISSION BAND COMMITTEES NAMED.

Disbursements to Mission Causes—Make Bandages for Trained Nurse.

The Young Women's Mission Band of Trinity Reformed church held its first meeting since the annual session in the lecture room Friday afternoon, when the newly-elected president, Miss Mabel Wilson, announced her committees for the year. There was the annual distribution of money to the various fields and the eight mission causes. The following committees were appointed:

Entertainment—Mrs. F. S. Cutter, Miss Lillian A. Force, Mrs. Leonard S. Smith, Mrs. Frank Pearson, Miss Cora Case, Miss Hannah Stansbury, Programme—Mrs. H. F. Crawford, Mrs. F. E. Woodruff, Miss Wilson. Paper —Mrs. Corra Ryno, Mrs. E. Seisz, Mrs. H. F. Crawford, Mrs. Arthur Smith. Birthday—Mrs. Leonard S. Smith, Miss Edna Cole, Miss Edna Force, Miss Edith Lech. Foreign and Domestic Missions—Miss Lillian A. Force, Mrs. William Olmsted, Miss Cora Miller, Miss Anna Bodine, Miss Fanny Hand, Mrs. Theodore Manta, Miss Edna Cole, Miss Lillian Dunn, Miss Jeanette Neal. Flower—Mrs. William Olmsted, Miss Jessie Hockridge, Miss Cora Gano, Miss Alice Vroom, Miss Marie Kling, Miss Rosalie Kling. Membership — Mrs. F. S. Cutter.

The disbursement of money for various causes was as follows:

Women's Board of Foreign Missions, $20; Arabian Missions, $20; support of native girl in India, $30; women's work at Chiang Chiu, China, $5; Women's Executive Committee of the Board of Domestic Missions, $20; Student Volunteer Movement, $10; Girls' Student Fund, $15; Indian Missions, $10; Comanche Indians, $10; Kentucky Mountain Work, $10; making bandages.

A portion of the afternoon was used in making bandages to be sent to the trained nurse on the mission field at McKee, Kentucky.

"Do not at any time force or urge milk or solid food upon the child; if he should refuse part or the whole of a feeding, let that meal go and do not give any food until the next feeding hour comes," says Marianna Wheeler, the famous baby expert of Harper's Bazar. "For the first twenty-four hours after birth very little food is necessary; feed the infant about once in five hours. If it is possible, the baby should be nursed by the mother, as the nourishment it receives from her contains certain ingredients which are necessary to cleanse the stomach and intestinal tract of the newly born, as well as to stimulate the digestive juices to activity. If for some good reason it is not possible for the mother to nurse her child, give as a substitute a little boiled water slightly sweetened or thin grued essential. After the first thirty-six hours milk can be given in a dilute form. Cow's milk can be diluted, plain, or in the form of top milk. The diluent should be thin gruel or boiled water."

Have you ever thought why it is that a dog turns around and around when he jumps upon the cushion or starts to settle himself anywhere for a nap? Well, that you are reminded you can recall that you have seen a dog do it many times, can't you? This habit is about all that is left to our tame little doggies of the days long ago, when they were a race of wild animals and lived in the woods. Their beds then were made of dead grass and leaves, and it was to trample enough grass and properly arrange the leaves that the dog always trod around a narrow circle before he would lie down. The dog of today keeps up the same old habit, although there is no longer any need for it, and of course the animal has no notion why he does it.

THE NEXT GOVERNOR.

Although the Gubernatorial election is a long way off, there are no end of boomlets for the Republican nomination. Up to the present time no less than half a score of prominent men in various quarters of the State have been "suggested" but it is altogether too early to get any line on their relative strength. Naturally the State machine will pick a man not unfriendly to it, but at the same time there is a general understanding that no matter who is picked he must be a relatively strong candidate before the people.

Should the candidate agreed upon by the leaders not come up to the standards of the new idea in politics, it may be said without fear of contradiction that the independent Republicans of New Jersey will bitterly oppose his nomination. If they fail in their effort, one may look for a Democrat to be Governor Stokes' successor. Included among the names "mentioned" for the nomination are such men as Justice Mahlon Pitney, Judge J. Franklin Fort, State Senator Everett Colby, former Justice Skinner, State Senator Joseph Frelinghuysen, the present First Assistant Postmaster General William Johnson, Mayor Charles J. Fisk and Crandon Riker. That anyone of these will be the lucky individual is far from certain. The great majority of these "possibilities" represent the best type of citizenship and would make excellent chief executives.

Now that the Common Council has invested in the Mayor the power to grant licenses other than those for the right to sell liquor, may we ask Mr. Fisk if he intends to review the license for a restaurant on wheels to block a street in order to do his meat? The wagon in Second street near Park avenue is an unsightly obstruction which should be removed without delay.

In the language of the famous Mr. Cobb, after hearing from one lawyer that the Consolidation Act is unconstitutional and the scheme impracticable and from another exactly the opposite, it may be asked, where are we at?

It has been decided that a woman cannot act as a special police officer. Of course she is still free to rule in her own home.

Congress has gone out of business but the "big stick" is still on its job.

N. CARMAN DUNN PASSES AWAY AFTER LONG ILLNESS.

Was Formerly a Prominent Plainfielder and Leaves Several Local Relatives.

N. Carman Dunn, who was a prominent resident of Plainfield shortly his removal about 18 years ago, died at 12:30 Monday morning at his home, 3436 North Eighteenth street, Tioga, Philadelphia. He had been ill for a long time with an incurable growth but had been a patient sufferer.

Mr. Dunn was sixty years old and in his younger days was identified with Plainfield and its growth. His boyhood was spent in the city and when he left to engage in the manufacture of brass furnishings in Philadelphia there was hardly another man who had more local acquaintances. He was a member of the Plainfield volunteer fire department for twelve years and at one time was assistant foreman of Gazelle Engine Company.

He leaves a wife and family of four children, Messrs Carroll and Addon Dunn and Messrs. Rae and Earl Dunn. Mrs. Dunn was formerly Miss Emma Laing, a sister of Mrs. Julia L. Force, of Westervelt avenue. He is also survived by three sisters, all of whom live in this city. They are Mrs. W. H. VanWinkle, of Park place; Mrs. Jacob R. VanWinkle, of Elm place, and Mrs. Hetty Phillips, of Somerset street.

The funeral was held at his late home yesterday afternoon at 2:30 and was conducted by Rev. Charles Dunn, who is also a former Plainfielder. He is pastor of the Tioga Presbyterian church, of which Mr. Dunn was a member.

Similarity of Writing.

"From my pile of autographs I take one of a statesman well known and lay it side by side with the autographs of a great author and a great ecclesiastic, writes a British publicist. "All three are very small, exquisitely neat, very little slanted, absolutely legible. Well as I knew the three writers, I doubt if I could tell which wrote which. They were Cardinal Manning, Mr. Froude and Lord Macaulay. Will the expert tell me if in this case similarity of writing bodied forth similarity of traits or qualities?"

George Schenck has laid in a big stock of salt hay to use for packing about his ice crop.

"Mayor Bill" Smith visited friends in the village this week.

AMUSEMENTS.

Last night's audience in the Savoy theatre to see "The Man of the Hour" had a good laugh not provided in the lines of the author. George H. Broadhurst. In the second act, the scene of which is laid in the Mayor's office, Frank MacVickers, who plays the role of Richard Horrigan, supposed to represent Charles Murphy, walks up to Frederick Perry, who essays the role popularly supposed to represent Gen. McClellan, and says: "A fine figure you cut posing as you do. Why, your father before you was one of us. He was a grafter and I have the facts to prove it." Before Mr. Perry could go on with the lines denouncing the supposedly Tammany boss a man sitting down near the stage jumped up and yelled "You're a liar." Then, realizing that his emotions had carried him away the interrupter slid back into his seat, while the audience joined the actors on the stage in a hearty laugh.

One of the latest favorite among the singers in Oscar Hammerstein's new Manhattan Grand Opera House, is Mlle. Regine Arta. She is a dramatic soprano of rare merit, and has an appearance and a personality which instantly appeal to her auditors. Mlle. Arta has quickly fitted herself for the brilliant operatic career which she has been enjoying for several years in France and Belgium. Arta has been heard several times this season at the Waldorf-Astoria, and at the Manhattan Opera House in New York. Mlle. Arta has the advantage of being young and beautiful, as well as talented and accomplished.

A cruel joke was perpetrated on Miss Julia Sanderson, the clever little vaudeville singer and dancer. When Miss Sanderson was rehearsing for her new song, "Beside and Her Little Brown Bear," her little nephew, a boy of fourteen, was visiting the charming young actress at her New York home. Spying the brown "Teddy Bear" that she uses in her act, lying on the sofa, the young hopeful crept up to it, unbuttoned the loom, ripped it open, and substituted Miss Sanderson's pet bull terrier for the sawdust interior. When Miss Sanderson resumed rehearsals, her nephew handed her the hybrid terrier, thinking that no one can be imagined when the supposedly inanimate bear began to wriggle and growl. It was several hours before she recovered from the shock.

Telharmonic Hall, at 39th street and Broadway, New York, the enormoth electrical plant of the Cahill Telharmonic System, continues to draw thousands of visitors weekly. The "new music for an old world" ac McClure's Magazine styled it, is heard and felt in wonderful production fully explained, with a view of the hundreds of dynamos. The musical staff, under the direction of Elliott Schenck, renders at this week's recitals a programme including Schumann, Rossini, Gounod, Grieg and Chopin. All the elements of orchestral tone are illustrated. The musical arc lamp continues to excite amazement, while a new feature is the biographic representation of distant audience. Any piece of music may be heard in thousands of distant audiences at once. Daniel Gregory Mason in the current Outlook says of it: "It is not a substitute for an orchestra; it is something better." Composers, Caruso, Melba, Calvé, Porcini, Herts and other great musicians have been recent enthusiastic visitors to Telharmonic Hall, where recitals and demonstrations are given every afternoon and evening.

Fredrick Thompson's production of 'Brewster's Millions," the dramatization by Winchell Smith and Byron Ongley of George McCutcheon's celebrated story of the same title, moved to the Hudson theatre last night from the New Amsterdam, where it has been breaking the records of that playhouse. Edward Abeles assisted by Mary Ryan, George Probert, Sumner Guard, Olive Murray, Emil Lilton and others, seems likely to remain at the Hudson theatre for an indefinite period.

Rose Stahl, who has just begun her eighth month at the Hackett theatre in the James' Forbes comedy, "The Chorus Lady," made an equal success the other day in the role of "Lady Bountiful." She sent to her father, Colonel E. C. Stahl, of Trenton, a certified check for $10,000 for a new home in Trenton, N. J. Last Wednesday Miss Stahl received the news that the old homestead was destroyed by fire and she is now at work about replacing it. The sum expended by her represented a portion of the earnings of her first year in vaudeville in the one-act play, "The Chorus Lady."

There was little that was romantic in the first meeting of Kean, the great tragedian, and the woman who was to bear his name. It was on the stage of the Cheltenham theatre that Charles Kean and Miss Chambers, a pretty young actress, first saw each other. "Who is that shabby little man with the brilliant eyes?" Miss Chambers asked in the hearing of the king of the stage. "And who," Kean retorted by asking aloud, "is that odd little woman?" From this similarly inauspicious opening Kean's love drama proceeded so swiftly that before a month had gone the curtain was rung down at the altar.

The annual New York engagement of the Ben Greet Players in Shakespearian and classic plays will this year be played at the Garden theatre beginning Monday, March 4, and continuing for four weeks. The first week will be devoted to "The Merchant of Venice," the second week to "Macbeth," then comes "Julius Caesar" and one of the comedies will be given. During Holy Week, beginning Monday, March 25, Mr. Greet will give, as a special Lenten attraction, the fifteenth century morality play, "Everyman," the wonderful allegory in which he company was first seen in this country and which they have not acted in New York for three years. Mr. Greet's remarkable success in America has been a tremendous surprise to those theatrical wiseacres who assert that Shakespeare spells ruin—and who might assert that Shakespeare with only one set of scenery should spell suicide. Every leading university in England and America has endorsed his work by inviting the company to act before the students in the college auditoriums.

It did not take long for the lovers of all that is good and substantial in the drama to welcome the return to the old stock company policy at Keith and Proctor's Fifth Avenue theatre. The inaugural week was marked by crowded and enthusiastic audiences, and the subscription list pleases innovation at this house was in creased most encouragingly. Early applicants were fortunate in having secured choice seats which will be held for them every week throughout the season. "Leah Kleschna," C. L. Hall's remarkable four act drama, will be the attraction next week. This is the play in which Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske made the greatest triumph in her professional career and which brought Mr. McLellan to the front as one of America's foremost playwrights. Miss Henrietta Browne, a young and clever actress, will play "Leah," while Alphonz Ethier will be seen as "Paul Sylvaine." John Mason's original part. Others in the cast are: Wilson Melbourne, Eugene Shakespeare as Valentin Favre; Fannie Marinoff as Sophie Chapponniere, Emelie Melville as Madame Burton, and James A. Bliss as General Burton. As is customary at all of these stock houses the week's vaudeville novelties will be introduced between the acts.

Margaret Anglin and Henry Miller in "The Great Divide" at the Princess theatre, New York, are about to add another feature to their unique and record breaking career in that play. On Monday evening, March 4th, the two stars interrupt their all season run in New York to William Vaughn Moody's famous drama for one night and go to Washington for a single performance of "The Great Divide" to be given at the Belasco theatre, in honor of President Roosevelt, the Cabinet, members of Congress and the Diplomatic Corps. This will be the first time a reigning New York success ever left the city for any purpose whatever until its run was ended. The occasion will have something of the splendor of the "command performances" given before the King of England, being arranged upon desire of many of our most prominent executive officers and legislators. All the boxes at the Belasco have been reserved for use of the President, members of the Cabinet and foreign ambassadors. The orchestra floor promises to have the appearance of a joint session of the house of Congress. Every Senator and Congressman who has accepted the invitation extended by Mr. Miller and Miss Anglin. "The Great Divide" company will go to and from Washington in a special train which will also carry a hundred New Yorkers going to witness the unusual occasion. The return trip will be made in ample time for the play to resume its run at the Princess on Tuesday evening, March 5th.

The thousands of people who witness the performances of "Neptune's Daughter" and "Pioneer Days" at the Hippodrome, the number of people employed at this big institution, do not realize that the best of medical attention is given the 600 employees. Te Hippodrome maintains a private hospital of its own, especially to care for chorus girls who may need assistance; Indians or cowboys who may be injured in the realistic battle scene of "Pioneer Days," or a mermaid who becomes exhausted while swimming under water in the great tank scene. The wisdom of having a private hospital handy was illustrated only last week, when Miss Beryl Clifton, one of the mermaids, received a painful electric shock while under water and was unconscious for a few minutes. The mechanical contrivance by which air is furnished to the mermaids is fitted with electric lights, and as Miss Clifton made her descent into her submarine compartment, she touched an exposed electric wire. The shock in itself would not have been serious, but it was so unexpected under water that Miss Clifton fainted. The attendant who is always on hand in case of emergency while the mermaids are under water, supported her with his arms, so that her head would remain above water, and signalled to the wings. As soon as the scene was over, the hospital corps was on hand, waiting with restoratives, and Dr. O. W. Lesser, who is in attendance at the Hippodrome, speedily brought the young woman around. The electric shock was by no means serious, and Miss Clifton was more frightened than hurt. The hospital of the Hippodrome is located in the Forty-third street corner of the building, in the basement. It is a large room, comfortably furnished and fitted up with every modern medical convenience. Mrs. Hawley, the nurse in charge, is a graduate of a training school of Montreal, Canada, and served two years in Montreal as a private hospital. Afterwards she was in a private hospital in New York. During the war in Cuba, she was one of the volunteer Red Cross nurses sent to the front and served at Santiago. Afterwards she was sent to the fever camp at Montauk Point. Mrs. Hawley has been the nurse at the Hippodrome since the big playhouse opened. She has attended many patients in the Hippidrome chorus, and has also treated people who have been unexpectedly taken sick while in the audience. She is a great favorite with all the Hippodrome chorus girls, and is usually referred to as "the ministering angel."

BROKEN BONE THREATENS LOSS OF DAIRYMAN'S LEG

Blood poisoning, following the breaking of his leg, threatens Abram Gulick, a prominent dairyman and stockman of Lincoln, with the loss of his limb. It is feared that the leg will have to come off in order to save the man's life.

Gulick fell and broke his leg two weeks ago, right after he had experienced a piece of good fortune in securing a comparatively heavy verdict in a suit against the P. R. R. for damages in the Kleschka case in which a car. The company was ordered to pay $200 by the jury, and although District Judge Newcorn reduced the verdict as excessive, it was cut down only by $75 and the costs. Gulick was considering the advisability of appealing to court, to accept the reduced verdict or submit to a new trial of the action, when the accident occurred. Then he decided to take the $125.

When Dr. W. J. Nelson, of New Market, took charge of Gulick after the accident the break was supposed to be a simple one, but a day or two later the leg began to swell and discolor, and the dangerous symptoms increased. Dr. G. W. Endicott, of this city, was called into consultation, and there is a faint hope that the leg will be saved.

TWO MINISTERS OFFICIATE AT MR. PANGBORN'S FUNERAL.

Services Held at Late Contractor's Home and Interment In Presbyterian Cemetery.

The funeral services of William Pangborn took place at his late home in Chatham street, Saturday afternoon. For several hours prior to the service an opportunity was given to view the body. Rev. John F. Dobbs, of New York, a nephew of Mr. Pangborn, conducted the service, assisted by Rev. J. McKelvey, pastor of Watchung chapel, who offered prayer. The interment was in the Presbyterian cemetery. The pall bearers were James Manning, L. B. Woolston, W. C. Krausse, J. D. Loizeaux, Elias H. Bird and Henry Nischwitz. There were a great many floral tributes, including set pieces from Greenbrook Council, Royal Arcanum; Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. F.; Bricklayers and Masons' International Union, and from his employes as well as from members of the family.

Mr. Pangborn had been engaged in the contracting business in Plainfield for a great many years and had erected many of the finest dwellings and business houses. At the time he was stricken he had the contract for the Plainfield Savings Bank, extensive alterations to H. G. Runkle's house on West Eighth street and seven new houses on Evergreen avenue. During the past few months Mr. Pangborn's son, Albert Pangborn, was associated with his father in the management of the business and he will continue it.

MISS LILLIAN DUCKWORTH BRIDE OF PHILADELPHIAN.

Quietly Wedded to Adolph J. Kohler at Her Home Saturday Afternoon.

In the presence of only immediate relatives, Miss Lillian Duckworth, of this city, and Adolph J. Kohler, of Plainfield, but formerly of Philadelphia, were married Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock by Rev. L. R. Howard. The ceremony was performed at the home of Tom Chamberlain, of West Third street, foster-father of the bride, who gave her away in marriage. Miss Duckworth was attended by her sister, Mrs. Walter Simmons, and Edwin J. Howes acted as best man.

Following the ceremony the bridal party and guests partook of a wedding supper, during which Mr. and Mrs. Kohler received congratulations. They will make their home in this city, the groom being employed in one of the local shops. Mrs. Kohler has been pianist at Hope chapel and has a host of local friends. Both young people were the recipients of numerous wedding gifts.

Mrs. H. J. Piddington has returned from a stay out of town.

VOTERS WILL DECLARE CHOICE FOR SENATORS

BOTH PARTIES COMMITTED TO PASSAGE OF PROPOSED LAW.

Whatever the New Jersey Legislature may or may not do at the present session, it is certain to provide a means for the voters to register their choice for United States Senators at the party primary elections. Senator-elect Frank O. Briggs is the last to gain the office by individual legislative favor.

Governor Stokes in his annual message, started the ball rolling for a *popular vote on United States Sen*atorships by a strong recommendation, and the first administration bill introduced in the State Senate was one for that purpose, presented by Mr. Hillery, of Morris county, the Republican floor leader.

The Democrats in the House, who control that body, are committed by caucus action to the proposed change of system, and have a similar measure of their own, introduced by Assemblyman Hendrickson, of Hudson. Supported by the Legislators of both parties and by the Governor, such a measure cannot fail to become a law.

The temper of the lawmakers in the matter was shown last week when Assemblyman Barber, Republican leader in the House, urged unanimous support for a concurrent resolution offered by Mr. Alexander, Democrat, requesting the New Jersey delegation in Congress to go on record for a constitutional amendment to provide for the direct election of United States Senators by the people. This put the resolution through the House.

Governor Stokes regards the naming of United States Senators by popular selection as one of the most desirable of reforms, and with the adoption of his ideas on the subject in this State assured, he is watching with interest the favorable reception the same proposition has received in the Pennsylvania Legislature.

In his message, Governor Stokes said:

"United States Senators are elected under the provisions of the United States Constitution and United States statutes. The members of the Legislature are merely the agents of the United States Government in choosing these officials. The manner of voting and all details are regulated by national, and not by State laws.

"Whatever may have been the theory of our forefathers in vesting the election of United States Senators in the Legislatures of the several States, the presumption today is that the members of the Legislature, in performing their duty, voice the sentiment of their respective constituencies. * *

"So long as the members of the Legislature are directly responsible to the voters of their own county, any provision for the selection of a United States Senator by popular choice must be based upon that county as the unit of representation.

"Such a law could easily be added to our present elective machinery. The primary act could be so amended so that at the primaries for the nomination of members of a Legislature, who would at the next Legislative session vote for a United States Senator, every voter could indicate his choice for Senator upon the primary ticket. This would be a direct mandate from the voters of each county to their representatives in the Legislature.

"This provision is simple, requires little legislation, and gives the voters an opportunity to express their wishes—all that they can do under the present system of the United States Constitution."

Tuberculosis League Meeting.

The American Anti-Tuberculosis League will hold its annual convention at Atlantic City on June 1-8, and many of those interested in the movement in Union county are expecting to attend. At the same time there will take place the convention of the American Medical Association, which will also attract its quota from this city.

SCHOOL BOILER DISABLED BY BURSTING OF TUBE

JANITOR MISTAKES STEAM FOR SMOKE AND CALLS FIRE DEPARTMENT.

While Janitor Thomas Clarkson was in the Stillman building across the yard, at 7 Monday morning, a tube burst in the boiler at the Franklin school. It sent a cloud of steam all through the structure and as Clarkson was returning he mistook it for smoke. He promptly turned in an alarm from box 35 at Arlington avenue and Fifth street.

The gong gave the correct number of blows but the house tappers sounded 24 and the firemen went to the wrong box. A delay was occasioned in consequence and by the time they reached the school Clarkson had located the trouble. Captain James Daley and several of the men made their way through the blinding cloud and stopped the trouble. Clarkson was with them and in locating the valves, he stepped into the boiler pit which contained a couple of feet of water almost boiling hot. He was pretty severely burned before he could be hauled out. It is not known what caused the tube to burst.

The damage to the boiler naturally prevented the building from being properly heated and the pupils gained an unlooked for holiday.

MISS WHITNEY'S PUPILS GIVE A PIANO RECITAL.

Programme Delightfully Rendered at Newark Home On Saturday.

Several pupils of Miss May Vincent Whitney gave a delightful piano recital Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Georgia Lane Hedden, 226 Roseville avenue, Newark. They were assisted by Miss Helen Meeker Whitney, mezzo-soprano. There was a very large audience of music-lovers from New York, Newark, Montclair, Orange and Plainfield, and all praised the meritorious work of the young artists, whose rendition of the many difficult numbers was remarkable.

Special mention is due the work of Miss Marguerite Barkalew, of this city, and Miss Elizabeth Burr, of East Orange, who have had only five months' instruction. Their interpretation of several numbers was quite marvelous. The audience was an enthusiastic one. Little Ruth Hedden also played. Miss Whitney, as the soloist, was also well received. Her excellent voice was truly appreciated, while Miss May Vincent Whitney was highly complimented for her part as instructor. The programme follows:

Part I.—Duet, Little Study in G, Valse in F, Gurlitt; Sleepy Time, Mrs. Orth. Miss Marguerite Barkalew; The Doll's Dance, Mrs. Krogmann; My Son John, Mrs. Orth; Playtime, Hannah Smith, Miss Elizabeth Burr; vocal selections, Hills o'Skye, Victor Harris; Miss Helen Rose C. Nevin, Miss Helen Meeker Whitney; Barcarole, Scharwenka; Elfin Dance, Jensen, Miss Martine Weeks; Berceuse, Thome; Mazurka in C minor, Borowski, Miss Inez Hedden; Soaring, Schumann; Nocturne in G flat, Meyer-Helmund; The Chase, Rheinberger, Miss Frances Rittenhouse.

Part II.—The Doll's Funeral, Tschaikowski; Gavotte in D, Von Wilm, Miss Elizabeth Martin; In Slumberland, Mrs. Krogmann; The Chase, Gurlitt, Miss Mary Clarke; Lied, Bendel; Papillion, Lavallee, Miss Edith Hamilton; Valse in D flat, S. Jackson; Impromptu in E flat, Schubert, Miss Helen George; vocal selections, To My First Love, You'd Better Ask Me, Hermann, Lohr, Miss Helen Meeker Whitney; Kammenoi-Ostrow No. 22, Rubinstein; Hope, Kuhe; Polonaise, Paderewski, Miss Muriel Collins; I Love Thee, Grieg; Valse de Concert, Wienowski, Miss Myra Emmons.

Rutgers Glee Programme.

College songs sung in a college way, medleys, impersonations, solos, humorous quartettes and instrumental selections will be part of the Rutgers Glee Club concert at the Y. M. C. A. Friday night.

A Surprise Tea.

A "surprise" tea was tendered Mrs. James Johnson, of Albany, N. Y., who is visiting her daughter, Mrs. William Mayhew, of West Fourth street, on Saturday afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock. The affair also marked the wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Mayhew, and was completely a surprise and an enjoyable occasion. About fifty friends were present. The tea was arranged by Mrs. Albert Atkins and K. Kingslow. The pretty decorations of red and white being arranged while the hostess was detained by a friend under a pretext of visiting some friends in Dunellen.

Clark—Gardiner.

Miss Maud D. Gardiner was married Saturday evening to Harrison Clark, Jr., at the home of the bride's brother, Alfred Paul Gardiner, No. 7 West Seventy-Fifth street, New York. Her only attendant was Mrs. Alfred Paul Gardiner, who served as matron of honor. Mr. Gardiner and family were residents of this city 25 years ago, when they occupied their country home, corner of Grove street and Park place.

Boards of Education to Meet.

The Somerset County Boards of Education will be held at the court room, Somerville, Saturday morning at 11 o'clock. An address will be given by T. D. Sensor, of the State Department of Education. Other matters of importance will be discussed and business transacted, including election of officers. L. H. Schenck is president of the association and John F. Reger, secretary.

TILLMAN KILLS HIS BOOM

Assemblyman Says He is Not a Candidate for the Gubernatorial Nomination.

SITUATION IN UNION

Fisk Likely to Get County's Delegates If He Wants Them—Boom For Fort.

Assemblyman Peter Tillman, of Railway, has killed the boom launched for him for the Republican gubernatorial nomination by declaring that he is no sense a candidate for the honor and the use of his name in such connection is entirely without his authority and against his wishes. The boom was launched at Trenton and from a reliable source it has been learned that it was never intended to be taken seriously.

While County Chairman Frank H. Smith declares that it is not the province of the chairman of the Union county committee to state any preference for a particular candidate, one of the other members of the committee, County Clerk James C. Calvert, is actively at work in the interest of Justice J. Franklin Fort. The name of the honored jurist appears was originally mentioned by the Newark Evening News. A significant paper in discussing the situation said Saturday regarding Mr. Fort:

"There are many reasons why the people of Union county have a strong liking for Justice Fort. Before his appointment to the bench he went over to Elizabeth and spoke at the great mass-meeting that had gathered to fight the race tracks. Later he presided over the circuit of which Union county formed a part, and every recollection of him is pleasant to the people of that county. It is not at all surprising, as the time is rapidly approaching when a new Governor must be elected, that one Union county Republican leader—probably with the concurrence of the rest—should strongly favor Justice Fort's nomination. Essex county is under obligations to Union for thus seconding a suggestion that has been heard here several times.

Mayor Charles F. Fisk, whose name has been mentioned during the last few days, will get the Union county delegates, it is asserted, if he announces his candidacy, but he has not taken that step as yet. In speaking of him today, the Trenton correspondent of the New York Tribune says:

"It is be true that Charles J. Fisk, the Mayor of Plainfield, is to be pushed to the front as the Republican candidate for Governor there will be lots of fun ahead. There are several kinds of arrows afloat. One is that Mr. Fisk will be the candidate of the Kean, Fowler and other Union county Republicans. Another story is that Fisk is being urged in opposition to Senator Frelinghuysen of Somerset county, who is understood to express a desire to succeed Governor Stokes. So far as Fisk is concerned, he is not announcing his candidacy for anything. He rarely does. He gets elected Mayor no matter when because the people, regardless of party, insist upon it. If he should stand as the choice of his city and county it will be because this city and county insist upon it. His friends contend that if Mr. Fisk could be induced to make the fight he would keep all the other candidates busy."

There are many other booms being boomed for the nomination. Among the number are Justice Dalton Pitney, of Morris county; State Senator Everett Colby and Chancellor Emery, both of Hudson county, as well as former First Assistant Postmaster General William Johnson, of Bergen county. One one of these, it is understood, would make an ideal candidate. But it is a long way off before the convention time and there is apt to be much doing before any candidate is decided upon.

TRUSTEES WILL PROBE

To Consider Meskill Case at a Meeting Next Week.

HEARING WAS DELAYED

Postponed Saturday to Next Monday Afternoon—Board Meeting To Precede Court.

Frank Meskill, the South Plainfield school principal who is charged with assaulting Michael Savery, one of his pupils, was arraigned before Justice Von Minden in the borough hall at Dunellen Saturday afternoon. As had been arranged before court convened, the hearing was laid over until next Monday afternoon. It will be held in the New Market schoolhouse.

Before the hearing, the school trustees will hold a meeting to probe the case as a school matter. It is expected that the trustees will find formally for one or the other of the principals. Either the Saverd boy will be found guilty of insubordination and misconduct, and expelled from school, or the principal will be condemned for exceeding his authority and lose his position. The latter event would leave him in a disadvantageous position under the law; he would be open to a civil suit for damages.

It was said this morning that the school trustees are inclined to support Meskill, and had practically arranged to retain a lawyer in his defense. It was hinted that the principal will seek to show that the Saverd boy incorrigible, and that his father, who makes the complaint on his behalf, has encouraged him in his alleged toughness, and, further, that the lad had boasted of what he intended to do to Meskill if the latter spoke to him of the clash on the road.

Opinion in South Plainfield regarding the case is divided. Those who oppose the principal are bitter in their feeling, and say nothing could justify a teacher in striking a pupil as he is alleged to have done. Meskill's friends are as numerous as his opponent's, and they are as decided in their support as the others are in their opposition. The hearing will draw a crowded house and demonstrations are likely to occur whichever way the trial tends. The court will open at 4 o'clock. The school trustees are to meet at 2:30 o'clock.

COMBINED CHOIRS RENDER WEST'S "FAITH AND PRAISE."

Westfield Presbyterian and Plainfield First M. E. Choirs Give Cantata Twice.

The rendition of John A. West's beautiful cantata, "Faith and Praise," by the combined choirs of the Presbyterian church, Westfield, and the First M. E. church, at the latter church, Sunday, was listened to by a large congregation. The programme opened with an organ voluntary, "In the Morning," Grieg; a prayer by the pastor, Rev. A. C. McCrea, and the hymn, "Sing All Glorious," Barnby; an offertory selection, "Save Me O God," Randagger. Miss Bertha vanNuise Willis.

The rest of the evening was then devoted to the cantata. J. Edmund Stark was the director and Mrs. Harry A. Taylor presided at the organ. The soloists were Miss Bertha vanNuise Willis, soprano; Miss Susanne Zimmerman, contralto; Carlos C. Gallup, bass; Frederick Kreidler, baritone, and H. P. Annen, tenor. The chorus work was uniformly and harmonious, while the work of the soloists was particularly fine. Miss Willis and Mr. Gallup had the great part of the solo numbers and their interpretation was superb, as was also that of Miss Zimmerman, Mr. Kreidler and Mr. Annen.

In the afternoon the two choirs rendered the same cantata at the Presbyterian church, Westfield, before a large congregation.

Why Block Streets?

Will the Common Council allow the misuse of a street for another year by granting a license for a lunch wagon to block East Second street between Park and Watchung avenues? Just what excuse there may be for giving such a privilege, particularly when it interferes with traffic and is a constant menace to the fire department apparatus, is not clear to the average citizen.

Stopped Embryo Auctioneer.

George Cathers, proprietor of the Park stables, conducted an auction sale of horses, Saturday afternoon and attempted to act the part of auctioneer after the man engaged for the purpose had gone. He was stopped by Chief Marshal Weiss on the ground that he had no license to perform the duties of auctioneer. As a result the sale was abruptly ended.

MR. ARNOLD ASKS ADVICE

City Treasurer Requests Corporation Counsel's Opinion as to Publishing Statements.

UNDER ACT OF 1893

Mr. Marsh Seen Regarding the Law Which Puts It Up to Common Council to Make Known Monthly Expenses.

City Treasurer William A. Arnold has requested Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh to advise him as the application of the act of the Legislature of 1893 providing for the monthly publication in a newspaper by the Common Council of all expenditures. Although this statute was made thirteen years ago, so far as is known it has never been enforced by the city fathers, and the city treasurer desires to know whether it is incumbent upon him to see that anything is done. When Mr. Marsh was asked this morning concerning his opinion of the law he replied that he had nothing to say at this time.

"I have asked Mr. Marsh about the law," said Mr. Arnold today. "I don't know whether it has been repealed or not. It seems to me that there is some later ordinance regarding the matter. It has always been my custom to make monthly reports to the Common Council of detailed itemized expenses and the finance committee also acts upon my report. In addition, I make an annual report which goes into every detail of the city's finances for the year.

Mr. Arnold, it appears, has done his full duty under the provisions of the law by filing his monthly report as he always has done and if there is any oversight it is said to be with the Common Council.

Following is the Act, Chapter CCLXXVII, Pamphlet Lawe 1893, page 487:

"One, Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That it shall be the duty of the common council or other governing body in cities of the second and class, monthly, to publish in a newspaper printed and published in said city a detailed itemized statement of the expenditures of the public moneys by said board for the preceding month; and it shall be the duty of the treasurer of every such city to prepare the statements of such expenditures for publication.

"Two. And be it enacted, That it shall be the duty of the common council or other governing body in said cities of the second class, at their first regular meeting held after the passage of this act, to designate a newspaper in said city to publish the said expenditures of the public moneys as herein provided for, and which newspaper so designated shall publish the same for the period of one year, from the expiration of such year it shall be the duty of said common council or other governing body to again designate a newspaper for that purpose; and in like manner shall a newspaper be designated each succeeding year.

"Three. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act be and the same are hereby repealed.

"Four. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately."

SAMUEL TOWNSEND CHOSEN PRESIDENT OF NEW BANK.

Samuel Townsend, of the borough, a director of The Plainfield Trust Company, was chosen president of the People's National Bank, at a meeting of the board of directors of that institution, Saturday afternoon. Joseph E. Gallagher, of Westfield, was elected vice president and it was decided to allow the appointment of a cashier to remain open for the present.

A meeting for effecting an organization of the new bank was held last week at the Westfield Club, and at that time Samuel Townsend, William L. Saunders, Charles W. McCutchen and J. Herbert Case, of this city, were the Plainfielders elected to membership on the board of directors. The other members are from Westfield. The new bank will be opened in the Abbott building on Broad street, Westfield, within a few weeks. Eventually the institution will plan to have a home of its own.

10,000 PLAINFIELDERS NON-CHURCH MEMBERS.

In a sermon at the Christian church Sunday, Rev. Phil A. Parsons declared that the Christ of fifty years ago was God but that today He is Man. Then, he declared, He was head of the church, but that if He were on earth today He would not identify himself with any church.

There are 10,000 people in Plainfield, the dominie declared, who are not identified with any church and these are the people, he said, that Christ would labor with were He here at the present time.

HOLY CROSS DEBT PAID

Gift to Discharge Incumbrance and Another Towards New Building Fund.

IN MR. BROOKS' MEMORY

One Present of $1,500; the Other $2,000—Church to Be Built During Coming Year.

Announcement bringing surprise and pleasure to the members of the Church of the Holy Cross was made at the morning service Sunday by the rector, Rev. George A. Warner, when he stated that through the generosity of a member of the parish the total indebtedness, amounting to about $1,500, was about to be liquidated, thus clearing the church property of all incumbrance. He also announced that it gave him added pleasure to inform the parishioners that $2,000 have been given to the building fund in memory of the late Herbert Brentnall Brooks for the new church, which it is proposed to erect within the next year.

The rector made the announcement just before the sermon. He said that he hoped to see a handsome stone church, a larger and more commodious one than the present one, rise up on the present site within twelve months. He spoke of the present to the church which will be of lasting benefit.

It is proposed to build the new edifice as speedily as a goodly sum towards the cost is in hand. Mayor Norton B. Smalley expressed his purpose sometime ago to the rector to give all the stone necessary in the work of construction. It is also reported that several wealthy parishioners will step forward shortly and contribute liberally to the building fund.

WEATHER BELOW FREEZING 27 DAYS IN FEBRUARY.

Lowest on February 7, When Thermometer Dropped to 5 Degrees Below Zero.

While the weather cranks know that February was a remarkable month, the statistics furnished by Weather Prophet John Neagle, show some interesting facts. The minimum temperature was below 32 degrees on twenty-seven days of the month. The maximum temperature was 45 degrees on Feb. 14, the minimum temperature 5 degrees below zero on the 7th; mean maximum temperature, 32.2; mean minimum temperature, 13.4; mean temperature, 22.8; normal temparture, 28.5.

The total precipitation was 2.81 inches; greatest in 24 hours, 1.00 on the 5th; number precipitation, 4.04 inches; total snowfall, 24 inches; average snowfall, 11.4 inches; snow on the ground, 15, eight inches; 28th, 7.5 inches. The mean temperature was 5.7 degrees below the normal. The precipitation was 1.13 inches below the normal. The snowfall was 12.6 inches above the normal. Below zero weather occurred on the 7th, 5 below, and on the 12th, when it was 2 below. The ground was covered with snow the entire month and it was clearly the coldest month of the winter. The previous heavy snowfall occurred in 1899, when it measured 32.9 inches the entire month of February. In that year rain was recorded, the total precipitation being 5.79 inches. In 1902 the snow fall was 23.2 inches. Total precipitation, including rain, was 7.65 inches. In February of this year it was mostly snow, with very little rain.

PRESIDENT CALKINS APPOINTS EXECUTIVE COMMITTE FOR 1907.

Representative Golfers Selected by the Head of New Jersey State Golf Association.

Leighton Calkins, president of the New Jersey State Golf Association, has appointed the following to serve, with him, as the Executive Committee of the association for the coming season: Secretary and treasurer, J. Whitney Hoffman, Plainfield; chairman Tournament Committee, E. N. Todd, Baltusrol; chairman Handicap Committee, M. D. W. Thurston, Rosseville; committeeman, Hon. John W. Griggs, Jersey; committeeman, Percy Jackson, Yountakah.

This is a strong committee of representative enthusiastic New Jersey golfers. The annual championship will be held at the Baltusrol Golf Club, June 6, 7 and 8. A big entry is assured, owing to the popular regard for golf among the New Jersey players, and owing to that club's central location. The prizes will include eleven gold medals, and prizes besides for the handicap and for the team match. This tournament should be the best in the history of the association. Archie Graham, who won last year at Morristown, will be called upon to defend his title on one of, if not the most difficult links in the country.

B. M. Manchester Dead.

Mrs. W. S. Corey, of Scotch Plains, was called to Berlin, Rensalaer county, New York, last week, by the death of her brother, B. M. Manchester. He died on February 26 of heart failure. Mr. Manchester frequently visited in this vicinity and had many local friends.

BRISBANE BUYS VILLAGE

PRICE PUT AT $125,000

Place Famous Once as an Iron Foundry Centre and Gives Best Crops in Jersey—Price Put at $125,000.

Arthur Brisbane has bought the deserted village of Allaire, N. J., from the Allaire Water Supply and Land Company. The place takes in some 600 acres, and Mr. Brisbane understood to have paid $125,000 for it.

For years Mr. Brisbane has been deeply interested in experimental and scientific agriculture, and he intends to make Allaire one of the finest model farms in the East. Several streams and some small lakes in the vicinity furnish an abundant water supply for farm purposes. Mr. Brisbane has had the scheme of developing property under consideration for some time, and has frequently been seen at Allaire.

He intends to begin developing according to his ideas at once. In the spring a large orchard is to be laid out and the ground will be cleared for the crops. William Fosdick will have charge of the land, he being a graduate of the Agricultural Department of Cornell University.

Monmouth county, N. J., has always had a fine reputation for its crops, and in recent years it is said to have yielded more per acre than any farm place in the United States, or, for that matter, in the world. Allaire was the site of one of its most prosperous farms.

The place is on the Freehold and Jamesburg Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, about six miles from Lakewood and about twenty from Asbury Park. A collision between a Pennsylvania train and an automobile brought it into public notice last August, but it was famous once as an iron manufacturing centre.

That was in the long ago. John Allaire built a great iron works there and the village was named after him. The iron-work used in the construction of Robert Fulton's steamboat was made by Allaire. Steamboat screws were first manufactured there. John Roach, the shipbuilder, learned his trade under Allaire and lived near the works.

The company store, now a feature of all large manufacturing concerns had its inception in Allaire. In fact, the works were so prosperous for a time that the Howell Iron Company, as the corporation operating the works was known, issued its own currency to the 500 or more workmen it employed.

But the remoteness of Allaire from any of the mining centres led to its downfall. Its ore had to be shipped from Pennsylvania, and the company, soon after Mr. Allaire's death, found itself unable to compete with the Pennsylvania iron manufacturers, who were then just getting a real start in business. For a time it kept going, but it was wiped out as soon as the Pennsylvania foundries began active operations.

Now it is only a deserted village. The foundries, the old office building, and several of the smaller buildings used in the manufacture of stoves and marine castings, the principal output of the works, are still standing together with some of the cottages in which the workmen lived, but they are empty.

One of the cottages was made over and called the Delisle Inn. That alone is inhabited, but it is one of the principal roadhouses in that section of New Jersey. It is open summer and winter, and gains much of its prosperity from the sightseers who flock to the place from Asbury Park, and the seaside resorts in the summer months, and from Lakewood in the winter. The church also is used for worship by the farmers in Allaire and the near-by towns, but the workshops are simply picturesque ruins.

There are no direct descendnts of Allaire, the original manufacturer, still living. His son, "Prince Hal" Allaire, was graduated from Columbia University, died about seven years ago. He developed the farm idea on the site of the old works, but he lived more or less the life of a recluse. After his death the farm was run by a stock company in which several New Jersey politicians, including Senator O. H. Brown, were interested.

Since its decay as an iron town, however, Allaire has been one of the sight-seeing spots of New Jersey. In the summer stage lines have done a prosperous business there from both Asbury Park and the near-by resorts, and sight-seeing automobiles have been utilized to similar purpose.

Quietly Wedded.

Miss Ray Bowers, daughter of Ira C. Bowers, of East Third street, and Albert Fritz, of Prospect place, were quietly married at the home of the bride Sunday afternoon. The ceremony was performed at 5:30 by Rev. J. O. McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel, and was witnessed only by a few relatives. Miss Madge Fritz, sister of the groom, and Frank Dentz, were the attendants. Mr. and Mrs. Fritz will make their home with the bride's father for the present but will go to housekeeping in the spring.

REV. HOWARD CONDEMNS USE OF BAD LANGUAGE

"PROFANITY AND OBSCENITY" THE SECOND OF HIS SERIES OF SERMONS.

At the beginning of his sermon, Mr. Howard referred to his subject of a week before, "Gambling—Betting," and said that profanity and obscenity were much wore than these. Of the two, he asserted profanity to be the more vile as the practice defiled the name of sacred things. Obscenity, he declared, to be all too prevalent and asserted that Christian parents should make it their duty to talk with their children regarding it, laying aside all false modesty and making them understand how low and degrading it is.

In referring to obscenity, Pastor Howard touched upon the reports of a sensational trial that is occupying the New York courts today and declared that he was ashamed for the transcripts of conversations brought about in the examining of witnesses. The testimony is obscene to the last degree, he said, and the community would be better off if they were not printed. Papers containing the accounts, he continued, should be kept out of the hands of boys and girls.

In conclusion the speaker told by what manner users of profane and indecent language could overcome the practice and related several stories to show how men had done it.

Ice Wagon and Cart Collide.

A horse belonging to and driven by George Cathers, the livery man, and attached to a two-wheeled exercise cart, collided with one of John Morton's ice wagons on Somerset street, Saturday afternoon. For a few seconds it looked as if one of the three animals involved would be seriously injured but all escaped without a scratch though the pole of the ice wagon was broken off. The accident was caused, it is said, by Cathers driving on the wrong side of the street at a fast pace.

Young Men's Worthy Effort.

Fred Harding and Peter McDonough, operators for the Western Union, have been at work raising funds to secure an artificial foot for George Minery, the Western Union messenger boy whose limb was crushed beneath a freight train two weeks ago. They have already collected $50 and have hopes of securing the necessary amount before Minerd leaves Muhlenberg Hospital.

BOROUGH COMMISSION RECOMMENDS A SEWER

Its Report Gives Result of Investigation and Suggests One of Two Plans.

COSTLY UNDERTAKINGS

What promised to be one of the most interesting sessions the Borough Council has had in a long time, petered out suddenly Friday night and instead of an old-time typical North Plainfield argument, the big lobby on hand ended up with an impromptu love feast.

The gathering of the clans was brought about by the announcement that the sewerage commission of seven, the sub-body of the committee of fifty appointed by the Mayor and Council, would present its report on the question of installing sewers in North Plainfield and was ready to call for its acceptance. When the commission was instructed by the committee to investigate the proposition, the belief existing was that the smaller body could work much faster than the larger, it was understood by the majority that the report would be submitted to them before it was read to the Council. Naturally, when they heard that the commission had gone over their heads, some of the members were indignant and attended the meeting with the idea of protesting against its presentation. Some of them were induced to act in this way by the understanding that the commission intended calling on the Council to pin itself down to the selection of either one of two plans—the building of an independent disposal plant or connecting up with Plainfield's. However, no resolution of this kind was introduced.

When the Council had disposed of its routine business and Mayor Smalley called for the commissions' report, Charles W. McCutchen took the floor. He stated that the committee of fifty had appointed the commission of seven and the Council had approved the step by a resolution. The seven had promptly organized by electing Mr. McCutchen chairman and W. J. Buttfield secretary.

"The commission does not think it has completed its work entirely," said Mr. McCutchen, "as there are some negotiations that would have to be entered into and would have to be approved by the fifty and the Council. As Mr. Buttfield is secretary he will read the report."

The Mayor followed Mr. McCutchen by stating that letters had been received from Elston M. French and Charles B. Pope, both members of the committee of fifty, protesting against the reading of the resolutions, and he instructed the clerk to read them. The objection in both instances was because they believed the seven should have conferred with the fifty before going to the Council. They were ordered filed.

Mr. Buttfield took the floor immediately afterward and referring to the protests said that the commission had believed it was acting exactly as it had been empowered and that no slight was meant in presenting the report to the Council; that that was why the fifty had been notified to appear and hear it read. In reply, Captain W. C. Smith declared the seven had insulted nearly all the members of the committee at the first meeting they had and also had the recalled no action that permitted them to go over their heads. There was some further argument along the lines as to whether or not the seven had the right to report direct to the Council and then Mayor Smalley finally took up the discussion.

"This question is altogether too important to get divided over," he said, "and we ought to have no differences at present. The commission has or had no intention of slighting the committee and everybody will have a chance to discuss the matter. The report must not necessarily be accepted and I want harmony to prevail."

The Mayor's words removed objection from the reading of the report and it was given in detail by Mr. Buttfied. When he had concluded Mr. French asked permission to withdraw his objection as he had been laboring under a misapprehension. Captain Smith announced, however, that he held the same opinion as he had before but that he believed in a proper system of sewage and that he withdrew his protest.

The Mayor expressed himself as being greatly pleased with the way affairs had turned and he remarked that the committee of fifty was by no means out of business, as required that number of men to solve the problem.

"I want this committee to remain," he said, "and it is my idea for the seven to go further; the system we are to use is still a matter of conjecture and I want it to arrive at some decision. We ought to pass a resolution permitting the seven to follow up what it has already done and get the entire matter in shape for presentation to the people."

In a very few minutes, Borough Counsel Reed had prepared the necessary resolution and the Council passed it unanimously. It gave the sub-committee full power to keep at work but specified that it should report to the fifty before approaching the Council. The main object in view now is to decide on the independent plant or the acceptance of Plainfield's offer to use its beds.

The report as prepared by the commission and read by Mr. Buttfield was as follows:

Under the authority delegated to this Commission by the Committee of Fifty, and confirmed by resolution passed by the Council August 20th, 1906, we submit the result of our investigations to date, as follows:

It is superfluous for us to enlarge upon the work of this Commission, and will briefly state the conclusions reached and recommendations as to same.

The prime requisite to a successful determination of the problem before us, was the employment of a disinterested and competent engineer of unquestionable ability to advise a feasible system most efficient and economical under existent circumstances. With this in view, and after careful inquiry, we employed the services of Messrs. Hering & Fuller, and are confident that in so doing, we have served the best interests of the borough.

Under personal interview with the State Sewerage Commission, we were convinced that no new municipal sewerage system would be permitted to empty into any of the streams or rivers of this State, unless the effluent was first purified, and that the same degree of purification would be required, whether the effluent was discharged into a large river or one of our smaller streams. The trend of public opinion is strongly in favor of compelling the disuse of the rivers or even tide-water for disposal of crude sewage. It is evident, therefore, that a tide-water trunk line would be a useless additional expense, unless such was built jointly with the aid of other blickly populated municipalities. This course is not open to North Plainfield.

Negotiations were entered into with the city of Plainfield for the joint use of their disposal works, and we received a prompt and business like proposition, which in effect offers to contract for the disposal of the borough's sewage for a term of 10 years at the rate of $25.00 per million gallons. This proposition was placed before Messrs. Hering & Fuller for their comparative opinion.

The present population of the borough is about 6,000, and it is estimated that this may ultimately increase to 16,500. With this in view the collecting and outfall sewers are planned of ample capacity (insize) for this prospective growth.

The present residential section of the borough, above 452 acres embracing about 16 miles of built up streets and 1,200 houses. The confines of the area proposed to be now sewered are shown as per map herewith, and may roughly be described as the Mountain line on the northwest—Belmont avenue on the northeast—Greenbrook on the southeast and Westend avenue on the southwest.

Messrs. Hering & Fuller have worked out a plan whereby the entire borough (with the exception of two small areas referred to later) can be sewered by gravity, either to the city's present works, or to the borough's own disposal plant.

The system proposed includes 16 miles of collecting sewers and 1,200 house connections to the curb line. It is estimated that the 1,240 house connections can be completed within four years, and that thereafter 25 houses would be annually added to the system. Outflow from each house is computed at 400 gallons per diem.

The two small areas referred to above include a strip along Greenbrook road west of Grove street, and a triangle section on the southern corner of the borough. These two sections can be readily sewered by aid of a small, automatic and inexpensive pumping station, but not being required at present we have not included its cost.

On the assumption that the borough can borrow necessary funds at the rate of 4½ per cent. per annum, and presuming that the property owners are assessed for the cost of house connections, as well as 60 cents per running foot of sewer (30 cents for owners on each side of the street) we can summarize the following figures of Messrs. Hering & Fuller's estimates as follows:

The acceptance of the city's proposal, upon completion of the system, would entail a bonded indebtedness of $124,000, and for 10 years an average annual expense for interest, superintendence and rentals in Plainfield (but not including provision for sinking fund) of $12,000; to which annual expense must be added a dead loss of $9,000 for pipe line to city works, should the proposed ten year contract not be renewed. The installation of a system in connection with the borough's own disposal plant will call for a bonded indebtedness of $190,000, and an annual expense, including interest and maintenance, (but not including sinking fund) of $11,250. Under the above conditions there will be a saving of at least $15,000 to the borough in ten years by the installation of its own disposal works, and this saving would be augmented by any arrangement made by the borough of Dunellen for its joint use. (The Mayor and Council of Dunellen have intimated their willingness to co-operate with North Plainfield, and with this in view, have appointed a committee to confer with the Commission). A reduction on the city's rate from $25 to $20 would bring the two propositions much nearer a parity.

The disposal works proposed would take care of the sewage of a population of 8,000 to 10,000 people, and include a system of septic tanks, sprinkling filters and settling basins. They would be similar to those now under construction at Columbus, Ohio; Reading, Pa.; Washington, Pa.; and those recommended to Baltimore, Md. As compared with septic tanks and contact beds, the system is considerably cheaper both in first cost and maintenance.

It must be borne in mind that the above figures do not include any provision for sinking fund, and in this connection we call attention to a grave defect or difficulty in the present State Borough Laws, under which not less than 3 per cent. of the par value of the bonds shall be annually raised and set aside to retire the bonds at their maturity. Under such provision bonds can be issued to run not longer than 22 years, where as it is customary in improvements of this character to use a 40 year bond. Apart from the burden of such unnecessarily heavy yearly tax, it is questionable whether a 20 or 22 year bond can be sold on as favorable basis as that obtainable for one of a longer term. We think that steps should be taken to amend this provision of the State Borough Laws, also to secure the right to use short time notes pending a more favorable money market.

From an economic standpoint, there are certain factors in connection with the installation of sewers at the present time less favorable than in previous years, viz: The ruling high cost of material and labor, together with the extreme rates for money.

The figures given seem large, but it must be borne in mind that the plan advised covers practically the entire borough, and in capacity of collecting sewers, provides amply for posterity, thus accomplishing as an immediate and permanent improvement, that which in most cases has towns is installed section by section over a long term of years. There are decided objections to so extending the time of making this improvement, as far as our borough is concerned, as the expense is that for a 24 inch outfall sewer from the center of the borough, and this charge must be incurred irrespective of the area connected. The cost of lateral sewers will be largely offset by direct assessment against property benefited, and on the other hand there would doubtless be much dissatisfaction if any particular section was discriminated against.

While wishing to adhere strictly to that which is germane to the scope of our work, we cannot ignore the fact that many will wish to know what, if any, change will be made in the system proposed if "Consolidation" was consummated in the near future. We are advised that to reach the city's present works, no plan other than that now presented would be practicable. If on the other hand, it is found more economical to establish our own disposal plant, it might reasonably be argued that the same saving would be obtained under "Consolidation." We cannot, therefore, recommend that the present merger agitation be considered a factor which might of itself call for the postponement of action in this sewer question.

In the installation of any system we cannot too strong urge the necessity of safe-guarding the borough's interests by ensuring that no contract shall be entered into, or payment made, or employment given, except upon the closest scrutiny by all charged with the responsibility of carrying out this work. It is imperative that the borough should procure the most competent engineering advice obtainable, and that extreme care be taken as to the terms and conditions of any construction contract which shall be made. We believe this will be assured by retaining the services and advice of Messrs. Hering & Fuller until the completion of the improvement.

The fact that Messrs. Hering & Fuller are acting as consulting engineers of the city of Plainfield, tends to facilitate a harmonious solution of this difficult question.

We are indebted to the City's Committee on Sewers and Streets for their courteous and prompt response, and also to Mayor Fisk, and to Mr. A. J. Gavett for much valuable information given.

The work of this Commission has been without expense to the borough, except that incidental for engineering fees, which in the case of Messrs. Hering & Fuller is limited to a sum not to exceed $1,000 for the preliminary plans, estimates and report herewith submitted.

Conclusion.

After carefully considering the whole subject, notwithstanding the present high cost involved, the Commission concludes that the sanitary needs of the borough, the safe-guarding of the health of our community, and the economic advantages to borough residents and owners of property, render necessary the installation of an adequate and thoroughly modern system of sewage, and is strongly in favor of immediately undertaking the improvement, believing that the cost will be largely offset by the more rapid growth and consequent enhanced values in the borough.

Believing that the Mayor and Council of the borough will agree with the Commission in its opinion, we have the honor to recommend as follows:

That the Borough Council authorize this Commission, in conjunction with the Mayor, subject to the necessary formal approval of the Council, and subject to the consent of the property owners, and legal voters.

To negotiate with the city of Plainfield for the disposal of the borough sewage on terms and conditions that will best conserve the borough's interest.

Or to take the necessary steps to provide an independent disposal plant, and to negotiate terms and conditions for joint use with the borough of Dunellen, should it be so disposed.

To re-engage the services of Messrs. Hering & Fuller, engineers.

To prepare a contract for the construction of a sewerage system, to be submitted and approved by the Mayor and Council of the borough.

And to suggest and arrange a method of financing any accepted plan.

Respectfully submitted,
C. W. McCUTCHEN,
Chairman.

GUS HILL PAYS $16 TO SEE HIS OWN SHOW.

It Was All a Joke But He Vows He'll Get Square.

Despite the fact that he is the owner of a dozen shows and one of the biggest managerial stars in the theatrical firmament, it cost Gus Hill $16 to see his own company in "Happy Hooligan," Thursday. It was all the result of a joke put up by the New Plainfield theatre attaches.

"Happy Hooligan" was given at the local playhouse, yesterday, as the annual benefit to Treasurer Sam Cunningham and Hill came out from New York to see that everything passed off smoothly. He believes in "helping a good thing along." He brought three friends with him and bought $4 worth of box seats for the matinee. After the first act was over he and his party went outside to "get a breath of fresh air" (that's a new way of expressing it) and never thought of taking door-checks. The lynx-eyed Sam and Manager Counihan noticed the fact and gave the door-keeper his instructions.

When Hill and friends came back they were asked for checks and when they couldn't produce them they were refused admittance. Gus argued for a moment or so but all to no purpose and as a last resort he had to pay another $4 to get back. Last night the party appeared at the theatre again and for another time they were held up for tickets. The owner of the show realized it was up to him and again he handed out real money to see a performance he knew by heart. Some of the interlocutions the desire for "fresh air" came back to the quartette and they sallied out, taking the trouble to ask for checks but the man at the door waved them away and remarked that it would be all right.

When they returned, another employe was taking tickets and he absolutely refused to recognize Hill or his remonstrance that he had been inside. Gus vowed he wouldn't pay another cent and slipped around to the stage door but everyone was posted there and he was "shooed!" away as though he had been a pestiferous Johnny. There was no help for it and he had to come back and produce $4 for the fourth time. He went back to New York Thursday vowing he would get even with Counihan. Cunningham and all the rest of the New Plainfield theatre bunch if it took him ten years.

Large audiences were present at both performances of the show and the result was in every way gratifying to "Uncle" Sam. The performance was as pleasing as ever and Joe Sullivan made another big hit in the comedy role.

THE GENTLER SEX.

In one of his essays Mr. Benson pictures a simple life as led by a charming and fashionable lady of his acquaintance. Although she was the possessor of several magnificent residences, she purchased a cottage in a secluded spot, furnished it in the most austere—and expensive—fashion, and several times a year motored down there with two or three friends to spend three days in simple living. The only signs of simplicity in the complex mind, Mr. Benson declares, were that there were only five courses at dinner and that two goats were tethered on the lawn. The goats were understood to be the seal and symbol of the simple life. No use was made of them, and they were decidedly in the way, but without them life would have become complicated at once.—Youth's Companion.

The intelligent women of Washington, and there are many, who are inclined to like politics, much after the manner of Lady Glencora Palliser, will find Mrs. James Bryce very entertaining. She is the daughter of a wealthy cotton spinning house, the Ashtons of Flowery Field, her father being one of those British manufacturers who flourished intellectually as well as pecuniarly in the time of Gladstone, Bright and Cobden. The Ashton daughters were brought up in an atmosphere of politics, when politics consisted especially of questions of principle and the houses of the northern and western captains of finance and industry resounded with argumentation heated in the fire of moral indignation. The women of that kind of family know about that kind of politics, and if any ladies in Washington are ready to discuss free trade, reciprocity, universal peace, woman suffrage or colonial problems Mrs. Bryce will be the woman for the lady for them to know. But perhaps they would not find her caring much for the personal fortunes of any statesman but Mr. Bryce. Besides, she is very pleasant to look upon.—Harper's Weekly.

In the March McClure's appears a striking description of President Buchanan by Carl Schurz: "Such a portly old gentleman with a white head, always slightly inclined to one side, and a cunning twinkle in his eye which seemed to say that although he might occasionally not appear to be fully awake, there was a secret understanding between him and you, and that you might trust him for it. He always wore a white neckerchief like a divine. His moral weakness was of the wise-looking kind. He could pronounce the 'commonplace sophistries' of the pro-slavery Democracy with all the impressiveness of unctuous pondersosity. He had rendered the slave power, abject service in the Kansas affair, again and again putting forth statements of facts which he could not possibly believe to be true, and constitutional doctrines that could be supported only by the most audacious shifts of logic. He was mindful of the fact that he owed the presidency to the trust of the slave power in his fidelity to its behests. So far he had justified that trust to the full of his ability and of his opportunities. No southern pro-slavery fanatic could have served the slave holding interest with more zeal and—considering his position as a northern man—with more self-denial. By forfeiting the good opinion of his neighbors, he had really made himself a martyr to the cause of slavery. But when his southern masters now went so far as to strike out for the dissolution of the Union, the destruction of the republic itself, his situation became truly desperate. Thus he satisfied neither side, but won the contempt of both."

"Oh, well," she said presently, "don't mind what I say. I ain't very smart myself."—New York Press.

ADOPT ELECTRIC CHAIR

New Law in Effect and There Will be No More Hangings.

NO DEATH HOUSE

There Is No Place To Execute the Murderers, Because of Hitch in Legislature.

New Jersey's electrocution law went into effect Friday, but the indications are that it will be some time before the State will be ready to substitute the death chair for the hangman's noose. The execution bill was passed by the last Legislature, but the lawmakers forgot to include in it the annual appropriation bills and nothing could be done toward carrying out its provisions during the past year.

The framers of the bill made it effective March 1, 1907, in order to give time enough for the erection of a death house and the equipment of the place with the necessary electric al apparatus, but they were thwarted by the negligence of the appropriations committee.

A bill was introduced in the early part of this session appropriating $10,000 for the building of the chamber of death. It has passed the Senate, but is still hanging fire in the House. Even in the event of its passing both branches and being signed by the Governor, the appropriation will not become available until November 1 next, unless some special provision for the immediate payment of the amount. And even if this provision is made it is generally conceded that the amount is entirely too small for the purpose.

Dr. George R. Wight, State Commissioner of Charities and Corrections, who has charge of all the building operations of the commonwealth, declares that the building and equipment required for the electrocution of criminals cannot be erected and completed for less than $20,000. This places the State authorities in a quandary, for the electrocution bill provides that there shall be no more hangings after today.

The original intention was to have the electrocutions at the State prison, but 70 years people objected to such a test that last winter' bill was amended to have the executions at some isolated place. This adds to the cost of the plant. Dr. Wight urges that sentiment be cast aside and the death chamber be constructed within the prison, where executions can be conducted with greater economy for the State and with less horror and publicity for the condemned persons.

The electrocution law provides that condemned persons shall be delivered to the principal keeper of the prison and detained by him until the time of the execution. This seems to be abundant reason why executions should take place at the prison, where the necessary rooms could be constructed well within the $10,000 now asked of the Legislature.

WOMAN TRAVELER TELLS ABOUT PERU

MRS. ADAMS' ILLUSTRATED STORY SHED MUCH LIGHT ON THAT COUNTRY.

The superb illustrated lecture on "Peru," given at the Y. M. C. A. Friday night by Harriet Chalmers Adams of California, was received by a much larger audience than the one that greeted her, and the latter failed to stayed missed a treat. Aside from the thrilling stories, dangers and hardships related by the brave woman herself, the pictures, 80 in number, were perhaps the finest ever shown in this city. They gave a comprehensive and instructive idea of Peru, about which little is known by the average person.

There were views of the deserts, the highlands, the various large and small cities and villages, and depicted life and conditions in all classes. There was also a series of pictures showing a typical bull fight. Perhaps the most thrilling feature of the lecture were the vivid description of the perilous ascent through the Andes.

The story also gave quite an excellent idea of the customs and habits of the people of Peru, the great rubber industry, growing of coffee and coaco, from which cocaine is obtained. She said that some of the fleet-footed guides and messengers would travel all day through the intense heat with a wad of cocoa leaves, a supply of cocoa leaves. The lecture was listened to with deep interest and no doubt another opportunity will be given Plainfielders to hear it again.

SILVER JUBILEE PLANS

Bp.McFaul and Mgrs. O'Grady and Brady to Take Part in St. Joseph's Celebration.

ON SUNDAY, APRIL 17

Brief History of a Prosperous Parish Whose Original Edifice Was a Barn.

St. Joseph's parish will celebrate its silver jubilee on Sunday, April 17, with a pontifical mass. William H. Miller, is now engaged in preparing the programme for the occasion which will be an auspicious one. Bishop McFaul, the head of the Trenton Diocese; Monsignor O'Grady, together with several other noted prelates of the church will be present. An announcement of special interest is that Monsignor Brady, of South Amboy, who said the first mass at St. Joseph's church, will be at the anniversary and will celebrate the mass.

The beginning of the borough parish occurred when a few Catholics first gathered at the Verdon homestead on upper Somerset street, and then made arrangements to meet in the barn on that property. New Jersey was then under the supervision of Archbishop Hughes, of New York. this State not having been divided into separate dioceses. Finally, the congregation was enough that soon after two months time it was found necessary to secure a hall near the centre of the town. In the meantime, Mr. Verdon was appointed as a committee of one to visit Archbishop Hughes and secure services of a priest for the congregation. He assured Mr. Verdon that he would send one to Plainfield at the first opportunity, and Father James McDonough was sent in 1851. The congregation was then meeting in what is now known as T. A. B. Hall. Before the institution of the latter church the Catholics of Plainfield and North Plainfield met at T. A. B. Hall. In 1881 the State was divided into two dioceses one being called the Newark Diocese and the other the Trenton Diocese, and North Plainfield was in the latter. Bishop O'Farrell consecrated St. Joseph's church, and Father John Brady, now Monsignor Brady, said the first mass in the edifice on Palm Sunday, April, 1882, but he only remained two Sundays, when Father Thomas O'Hanlon succeeded him. He remained six years and through the earnest endeavors in building the present edifice in 1883 and the congregation has continued to worship there ever since. As the parish now numbers about 1,000 communicants, the church is far too small for the worshipers within its walls, and it is expected that a larger and more imposing edifice will be built.

Father Nicholas Freeman succeeded Father O'Hanlon, and he remained two years, as did also Father James McDonough, who succeeded him. The present pastor, Rev. William H. Miller took charge on April 17, 1893, and during that time has performed a noble work. Under his direction the parish has grown steadily and rapidly. The fact that Mt. St. Mary's College, now in course of construction, and which will be dedicated by Bishop McFaul in May, is located in North Plainfield, lends especial interest to the work of St. Joseph's church.

The college is being built on the picture land, given by David T. Kenney, of the borough, in memory of his mother, and the structure will be one of the finest of the kind in the State. In connection with the anniversary of the church there will be special music.

POND FOUNDRY BLAZE.

The truss roof of the foundry at the Pond Machine Tool Works caught fire in some way, Thursday, possibly from a spark from some source, and caused damage amounting possibly to $75. It was discovered first by Mrs. Lindsay, of West Front street, who telephoned Fire Headquarters but an alarm was turned in from box 47 as the men were responding.

The blaze had not gained full headway when the department arrived and it was put out without laying the hose. The men used extinguishers inside and out and stopped the progress of the flames in a few minutes. It is thought the sparks that started the blaze may have come from a locomotive on the foundry cupola.

A Big Calculation in Watey.

The ocean, sea and lake surface of our planet is estimated at something like 145,000,000 square miles, with an average depth of 12,000 feet, and is calculated to contain not less than 3,270,600,000,000,000 tons of water. The rivers of the earth are estimated to have a flow sufficient to cover thirty-six square miles of the above area each day. Now, if all the oceans were suddenly dried and the rivers could keep up their present rate of flow, which, of course, they could not without ocean evaporation, it would take 3,500 years to fill the basin.

Cupid Busy.

If what Dame Rumor says be true, Cupid has been busy lately and Plainfield is soon to lose one of its most attractive young widows.

LEADERS FAVOR MR. FISK

"SILENT" SMITH'S VIEWS

E. T. Barrows, Andrew McCardell and George Tobin Declare Plainfielder Would Be Excellent Choice.

State Senator Ackerman and many other prominent Republicans Friday went on record as favorable to the nomination of Mayor Charles J. Fisk for Governor. The Senator declared that should he allow his name to be used, he would pledge his support in the effort to secure the nomination for the State ticket.

State Senator Ackerman said:

"Mayor Charles J. Fisk is a fine type of a public-spirited citizen who would make an excellent Governor of New Jersey. He is a man of ideas and energy who is always ready to give his time and talents to the work of the people. His long, continued and unselfish labor on behalf of Muhlenberg Hospital will illustrate the character of the man. Mr. Fisk is able and very diplomatic; a business man and financier; conservative and progressive; thoroughly in accord with the ideals and ambitions of the people.

"If Mayor Fisk becomes a candidate I shall heartily support him because I believe he would make a worthy and admirable Governor."

County Chairman Frank H. Smith told a Daily Press man today that he considered Mr. Fisk eminently qualified for the Governorship position and should he become a candidate Plainfield's delegates to the convention would undoubtedly be for him. Furthermore he stated that in his opinion Union county would lend its support.

"It is a little early to be talking about candidates," said "Silent" Smith. "The Republican party naturally always picks the strongest man it can find for that office and it is a question whom the people will agree is the best man to make the fight. It is going to be a hard fight and the best man will be picked to be the standard bearer. No man could say anything against Mr. Fisk when it comes connecting his name with the Gubernatorial nomination. He is clean-cut, honest, efficient and possesses extraordinary executive ability. I agree fully with what Senator Ackerman has said about Mr. Fisk's fitness for the office. Personally I would be favorable to Mr. Fisk, but I do not believe that a county chairman should take any sides in such a matter, especially when more than one excellent man in Union county is mentioned for the honor."

"He would be a crack-a-jack," was the way Andrew McCardell expressed himself, when he was asked what he thought of Mr. Fisk as the next Governor. "If he could be prevailed upon to stand for the nomination I believe he would make the strongest run of any candidate that could be selected."

Former Councilman Elliott T. Barrows was asked for his opinion as to the candidacy of Mr. Fisk for Governor, and he declared, "I want to tell you that that is no joke. Mr. Fisk is in every way qualified for the high position. They speak about Senator Frelinghuysen as a possibility. He was the man who stood by Senator Dryden, when he was opposed by a majority of the people of State and who was distasteful to them. I think Mr. Fisk would be an ideal candidate."

"He would be a fine Governor," said George J. Tobin. "He stands well with the leaders and would be an ideal choice."

VAN AND CAR COME TOGETHER; HORSE DIES

P. S. C. OFFICIAL SAY DRIVER, ASLEEP, DROVE INTO CONVEYANCE.

A van owned by George Conover & Son, Jackson avenue, and an eastbound main line trolley car came together at Richmond and East Fourth streets at 2:37 o'clock Saturday morning, and one of the van horses lost its life in consequence. According to a statement of the accident given out at the P. S. C. trolley office on Watchung avenue this morning, the driver of the van, John Cuff, went drove squarely into the car while asleep on his seat.

The trolley men say the car was absolutely motionless at the corner, when the accident occurred. The van, coming from the east, it was said, ran right into it. One of the horses was thrown, with a broken leg, a post on the car was damaged, and Cuff fell from his seat. He was only bruised. The motorman was not hurt.

Conductman Nicholas Myers reached the scene soon after the crash, and shot the injured horse. The wagon was pulled from the track and the car went on. The trolley officials say the driver acknowledged that he was asleep.

The van was no one at the office of Conover & Son, Saturday, who knew the details of the accident.

CITY FATHERS FAIL TO COMPLY WITH LAW

Common Council Has Failed to Carry Out Provisions of Statute Ordering Publication of Expenses.

REQUIRED MONTHLY

By An Act of Legislature Passed in 1893, It Is Necessary to Publish Detailed Itemized Expenditures Every Month.

Despite the provisions of a law that has been on the statute books of New Jersey since March 28, 1893, the Common Council has continually neglected to make public monthly the amount of its expenditures in the administration of municipal affairs during the preceding month. The law is mandatory and is couched in plain language. It has never been repealed or amended in any form.

By the terms of the Act of the Legislature enacted the thirteen years ago yesterday, the Common Council of a second class city, Plainfield being in that class, is required to have published every month a de*tailed itemized* statement of its expenditures during the preceding month. These statements must be published in a local newspaper designated by the city fathers and are re*quired to appear in the same paper* for the term of one year. Moreover, the city treasurer under the direction of that body must prepare the financial reports in question.

"One. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That it shall be the duty of the common council or other governing body in cities of the second class, monthly, to publish in a newspaper printed and published in said city a detailed itemized statement of the expenditures of the public moneys by said board for the preceding month; and it shall be the duty of the treasurer of every such city to prepare the statements of such expenditures for publication.

"Two. And be it enacted, That it shall be the duty of the common council or other governing body in said cities of the second class, at their first regular meeting held after the passage of this act, to designate a newspaper in said city to publish the said expenditures of the public moneys as herein provided for, and which newspaper so designated shall publish the same for the period of one year, at teh expiration of which year it shall be the duty of said common council or other governing body to again designate a newspaper for that purpose; and in like manner shall a newspaper be designated each succeeding year.

"Three. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act be and the same are hereby repealed.

TEMPLE AND HIS MOTHER.

"In the biography of Archbishop Temple, one of the most robust and masterful men that ever sat in the throne of Canterbury, there is placed opposite the title page a photograph of Temple and his mother, taken when he was head master of Rugby," says Bishop Potter, in Harper's Bazar for March. "It was an intuition of genius that placed it there; for nobody can read the splendid story of Temple's life so resolute, so courageous, so untiring, without seeing that in that woman, humanely speaking, was his highest inspiration. It was not a great while before the widow of Captain Temple and the contributor to 'Essays and Reviews' drew apart, so far as their theological opinions were concerned; but never, through all his long and memorable life, was there in Temple the faintest movement of surrender of that high ideal of duty which his mother, long before, had taught him!

"Turn now, if you will, to the modern mother and the modern home. 'Oh, Tom, you must not bother me! I am dressing to go to the play, and your father is swearing downstairs that if I'm not ready in five minutes he will go without me. Oh, mother, suppose that you had let him go without you, and had given your evening to your boy: perhaps the time would never have come when, a few years later, he sat at your table with coarse speech and averted eye, and went from companionship on vile and vicious that you dared not even think of them."

There is joy and solid satisfaction in every whiff of the clear Havana *cigars of M. C. Dobbins, North ave*nue. Old favorite Yaras, with no flavoring, fresh and fine, on hand.

PLAINFIELD LIBRARY NOTES

Recent Fiction Added to the Public Library Since November, 1906.

Part 1.

Brown, Alice.—County road.

"Miss Brown has long been recognized as one of the most successful and entertaining writers of rural New England. She has a happy combination of sympathetic knowledge of New England character, with keen appreciation of the genuine humor that is one of the real New England traits."

Bowen, Marjorie.—Viper of Milan.

"For so young a writer, Miss Bowen shows a remarkable sense of style, which, in conjunction with her energy and imaginative power, make her a welcome recruit to the ranks of adventurous romancers."

Conrad, Joseph.—Mirror of the sea.

"He knows the souls of the sea and ships, as he knows the souls of men, but that would be worth but little to us, did he not possess a still *more wonderful faculty of interpre*tation and expression—a faculty that was never better shown than in these sketches." New York Times.

Couch, A. T. Quiller.—Sir John Constantine.

"As a tale of romantic adventure we have had hardly anything since Stevenson's time so good as Mr. Quiller-Couch's new story. The story as a whole, indeed, is excellent of the kind that one wishes that the author had recast some parts of the book and subjected it to a severer test of his judgment as to construction, probability, and humor. The time is the seventeenth century, when Corsica was in arms against Genoa's occupation and oppression, and the people were rallying to Paoli." Outlook.

"Its chief charm, alike from the development of a double plot, which is so delicately conceived and carried out with so much artistic finish as to obscure the end before the end comes, and in the vitality of its characters and their consistently preserved personalities." New York Times.

Crawford, F. Marion.—Lady of Rome.

The author "is one of the few novelists in the world who are actually cosmopolitan: the Italian characters in his novels are really Italians, and the French people are French. This new story from his pen is said to be noteworthy, even among Mr. Crawford's novels, for the beauty and attractiveness of its heroine."

De Morgan, W. F.—Joseph Vance: an ill-written autobiography.

"It is ill-written only in the sense of not being composed according to the present trim, abrupt fashion of novel-writing. We hardly know how to suggest the mellowness of this story, and therein lies its charm. We doubt if any reader who has a sense for true humor will find it tedious." Nation.

Donnell, Annie Hamilton.—Very small person.

"The stories here are about children but their lesson is entirely for grown ups who have in their trust the developing child. The little comedies of war in the nursery regardless of children grow pathetic when there is no one near with whom to share them. It is to such a lonely group of children that the author turns in her sketches. It is a book for every mother."

Eschstruth, Nataly von.—Baroness Heidendorff, Joseph K. B., freiherr von.—Happy-go-lucky; or, leaves from the life of a good for nothing, tr. from the German by Mrs. A. L. Wister.

"Mrs. A. L. Wister has made an excellent translation of this charming German story of irresponsibility and genius." New York Times.

Fenollosa, Mrs. E. F., (Sidney McCall, pseud.)—Dragon painter.

"One does not need to have had any personal knowledge of the land of which Mrs. Fenollosa writes in order to be perfectly certain that these pages give a truthful picture of Japanese domestic life and a faithful re*velation of the inner depths of Jap*anese feeling—not one of those specious translations of Japan in terms of modern 'Westernism.'" New York Times.

"Although brought out as the second novel in the author's series, 'The patriot' was written many years before 'The Saint,' and published with the Italian title Piccolo mondo antico. It has to do with the file of the father of 'The saint,' Don Franco Maironi, and is the last production to free northern Italy from the Austrian yoke in the middle of the last century."

Fowler, Ellen Thorneycroft.—Subjection of Isabel Carnaby.

"The reader's feeling of gratitude to the author is not due for any subtle analysis of character, but for the brilliant powers of repartee with which she invests here characters." Spectator.

Fox, John, Jr.—Knight of the Cumberland.

A most attractive and delightful love story, told with all Mr. Fox's knowledge of the mountaineers, his *humor and skillful character draw*ing. The tournament is a unique incident, described with the humor and dramatic force that no other writer of today can combine in the same way."

"The story is well arranged, the persons concerned are sufficiently lifelike and the general effect . . . is dignified and wholesome." Outlook.

"In its present form is a simple healthful love-tale of the West, adapted to beguile an idle hour." Literary digest.

Gilson, Roy Rolfe.—Katrina.

"He combines a sympathetic understanding of the young child's point of view with an equally rare understanding of the sorrows and disillusions of age." Bookman.

Gordon, Charles William. (Ralph Connor, pseud.)—The doctor: a tale of the Rockies.

"The best thing Ralph Connor has done since "The sky pilot," and perhaps the best thing he has ever done. Is a good book, both in the religious and literary sense of the word." New York Times.

The March Century is a Garden Number, covering a wide and varied range of outdoor interests—Charleston gardens, Persian gardens, workingmen's gardens, flower arrangements in Japan, and a review by a Dutch expert of Luther Burbank's work in scientific horticulture. The Luther Burbank's review, from the pen of Hugo de Vries, Professor of Plant Anatomy and Physiology in the University of Amsterdam, is the article of most scientific value in the magazine. It brings to American readers a new, suggestive and authoritative presentation of Mr. Burbank's claims and achievements. All the charm of Charleston's gardens—probably the loveliest gardens in this country—is in Miss Frances Duncan's article, and there are delightful illustrations by Anna Whelan Betts, including two full pages in color.

March Lippincott's Magazine breathes a foretaste of summer in its leading feature, the complete novelette. "The Smuggler" is its title, and the author, Hall Middleton Tybout, has already to her credit several successful full-grown novels, notably "The Wife of the Secretary of State." This newest story does not deal with smugglers and pirates of the past, but with the modern manner of setting jewels into our fair land without asking Uncle Sam's consent. The characters are mightily convincing in their various roles; and her rapid-acting plot makes the reader unconscious of the flight of time until he has devoured the last word.

The National Child Labor Committee in its department officially conducted in the Woman's Home Companion, announces the receipt of a letter from William Jennings Bryan, in which the latter expresses his approval of the Beveridge bill and the bill now pending in the House of Commoner. Mr. Bryan said: "The plan which Beveridge adopts for the prevention of child labor is identical with the plan which I have urged for the suppression of the trusts. I believe that the power which Congress has over interstate commerce enables it to apply a very simple and effective remedy."

The National Magazine for March has another article on the Jamestown Exposition, and also contains an appreciation by William Hemstreet, of Anthony Comstock, who is perhaps the least understood and most abused of any great reformer of the age. The "Homes of Longfellow;" by Mary H. Northend, "Natural Beauties of Utah," by W. C. Jenkins, and "On the Site of the White City," are strong articles that appear in this number.

Philosophy is at once the most subline and the most down to human pursuits. It both works in the minutest crannies and opens out the widest vistas. It "bakes no bread," as has been said, but it can inspire our souls with courage; and repugnant as the manifold, unending and challenging, its quibbling and dialectics, often are too common people, no one of use can get along without the far-flashing beams of light it scatters over the world's perplexities. These illuminations, or leads, and the contrast-effects of darkness and mystery that accompany them, give to what it says an interest that is more than professional or technical.—Professor William James in The Popular Science Monthly.

The March number of Scribner's Magazine opens with a novel account of a journey during race-week "Down The Kennebec to Bath," by E. C. Peixotto, the artist, who furnishes a number of beautiful sketches of the scenes along the way and writes a *pleasant account of this com*panion sport to automobiling. No journals in this country ever had stronger opinions to express and expressed them with more frankness than E. L. Godkin. The vigor and clearheadedness of his judgments are embodied in "Some Letters," which have been chosen by Rollo Ogden, the present editor of the Evening Post. Many of these were written to Mr. Godkin's friend, Charles Eliot Norton, and they range from 1863, when he gives vivid pen-pictures of Greeley, Ripley, Seward and the important men of that day, down to 1886.

C. J. FISK FOR GOVERNOR

In Political Circles the Name of Plainfield's Mayor is Being Discussed.

A PARTY HARMONIZER

For some weeks a story has been going the rounds in Union county's political circles that a boom is about to be launched for Mayor Charles J. Fisk for the Republican Gubernatorial nomination. Much credence has been given the tale inasmuch as it is known that Mr. Fisk is held in high esteem within the councils of the State leaders and that he has made many friends and gained ardent admirers by his years of work in behalf of the party. When seen by a Daily Press man some days ago, the mayor refused to discuss the subject. With his usual smile lighting up his countenance he said. "Oh, there's nothing in it; how could I be made Governor?" Despite his assertion it is reported that close political friends high in the service of the party in New Jersey have made favorable comments on a proposition to make him the party's standard bearer for Mr. Stokes' berth.

For many years, Mr. Fisk has spent his time and money in behalf of the party and there is probably no single man in Plainfield who has done so much to bring about Republican success. Moreover, he has been a commanding figure in Union county politics and has often been the means of restoring harmony whenever dissension has rocked the party's ranks. Time and again he has acted as chairman at conventions. In such capacity he served when Congressman Fowler was last renominated. He has also been the chairman of committees. His advice has always been sought when ways and means for party success at the polls was being considered.

As chairman of the Republican city committee before leaving that office recently he restored harmony where for several years there had been confusion and even an open split in the last primary campaign.

He is a close political friend of United States Senators John Dryden and Kean and of United States Senator-elect Frank O. Briggs. In fact there is not a State leader of any prominence whose confidence he does not hold. He is eminently qualified to discharge the duties of Governor and should he announce himself a candidate for the office, it is needless to say that Union county would immediately fall in line behind the banners of Plainfield's model mayor.

REASON FOR INCREASE IN STATE SCHOOL TAX

GROWS WITH VALUES; LOCAL SCHOOL FUNDS MATTER OF CONJECTURE.

A letter regarding school taxes has been received by County Collector N. R. Leavitt from State Comptroller J. W. Morgan. It shows that the figures in the school budget for this year will present a radically different appearance from what they did last year, as exclusively told some days ago in The Daily Press. Each year the State Comptroller writes to the Collector of each county school tax. This year it is $292,213.45 for Union county. By an act of the Legislature twenty-five per cent. of this is appropriated out of the State fund, so that Union county must actually raise $219,160.09 for the support of the schools, which is payable to the State Comptroller on or before January 20, 1908. The system is such that when this money is paid to the State the greater part of it is immediately returned to the respective counties.

A year ago this county had to raise only about $98,000. The reason that the figures have doubled is the large increase in valuations, since. Two and three-quarter mills on each $100 of valuation must, according to the school law, be raised for the support of the schools. The rate always remains the same, but in the past year valuations in this county have jumped from $56,260,709 to $106,259,437, which explains why the amount to be raised for the schools is more than doubled.

The final appearance of Plainfield's school money receipts for this year will not be known positively until July, when the apportionment of the State money is made. Until that apportionment everything in the way of a statement as to school taxes or school funds here must be the veriest guesswork. Last year the amount received by Plainfield from the State was $27,814.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Wadsworth and daughter, Miss Mattie Wadsworth, of West Eighth street, will sail for Europe on April 10.

D. F. Stewart, of John street, who has recently returned home from Muhlenberg Hospital, is doing nicely and his complete recovery is looked for within a short time.

TO CONSECRATE CHURCH

All Saints' Parish Mortgage Liquidated and Edifice Will Be Made Sacred.

BY BP. SCARBOROUGH

The mortgage on All Saints' church, Scotch Plains, has been paid off at last and it is expected that the edifice will be consecrated in May. Rt. Rev. Dr. John Scarborough, bishop of the diocese of New Jersey, will have charge of the ceremony and will be assisted by a large number of the clergy.

Rev. Arthur R. Peck, the rector, is now at work making plans for the celebration and it is believed that the observance will mark a red letter day in the history of the parish.

An historical sketch of the parish shows that services were first held in the old schoolhouse at Scotch Plains by Rev. Erskine M. Rodman, now rector-emeritus of the church, in the year 1873. Later services were held in Excelsior Hall and from these services originated All Saints' Mission and the Rev. Charles L. Sykes took regular charge in December, 1873, or January, 1874. For several months prior to that time and through the kindness of Rev. Mr. Rodman and others among the neighboring clergy and by means of lay-readers engaged occasionally from the General Theological Seminary, services were maintained every Sunday. Rev. Mr. Sykes continued as rector for nearly sixteen years.

On April 21, 1882, the cornerstone of the present church edifice was laid and the building was opened for worship on October 31 of the same year. Bishop Walker preached the sermon and Mr. Arthur Organist of St. Ann's church, Brooklyn, with the choir from that church, furnished the music.

The church building is of brown stone with terra cotta trimmings. The ground was given by the late Christopher Bell, M. D., of New York. The chancel rail was given by St. Ann's church, Brooklyn, with which some of the founders of All Saints' church was connected. The building is an attractive one and well furnished.

Among those first identified with the parish were Charles Kyte, D. T. Duykinck, George Moore, Augustus Frentz and Edward Pattison and their families; and the Rev. Karl and Rush, of Westfield, frequently officiated. Rev. William M. Reilly succeeded Mr. Sykes and was assigned in 1892. Under his administration new carpets were purchased and laid and other additions to the interior of the b uilding were made.

In 1892 the mission was organized as a parish under the laws of the State and the canons of the Episcopal church. Rev. Edward M. True became the first rector and resigned in 1898. Rev. R. E. Pendleton then took charge for a period of seven months, rendering effectual service. On December 17, 1899, Rev. William R. Mulford, the present rector, commenced his work in the parish. The following are now members of the vestry: J. H. Thompson, senior warden; Charles Bartlett, junior warden; Augustus Frentz, Henry S. Fullerton, Wright Babcock, H. Froal Robinson and Charles Kyte, vestrymen.

COMPANY K'S ELECTION OF OFFICERS DEFERRED

NO ORDERS PERMITTING VOTE ISSUED, CONFERENCE ON BRIGADIER ELECTION

Company K held its monthly meeting Monday, but no vote was taken on the officers to be elected. It was expected that balloting would be done, but there were no orders for an election, and without orders an election could not be held.

The reasons for the withholding of the election order was not known to the rank and file, and speculation regarding it was rife. The commissioned officers and some of the ranks men may know what is back of the delay, but they are not making statements for public consumption.

The company members are rather more interested in the deadlock over the election of a brigadier general than in their own election. The brigadier is elected by the votes of the ten field officers of the Second and Third regiments, who compose the brigade; each regiment has five field officers — colonel, lieutenant-colonel and three majors. The votes of the Second regiment are for Col. Dennis Collins, and those of the Third regiment for Col. John Mathes, of that regiment.

A conference of those interested in the election was called at Trenton Monday, and James E. Martine appeared in his old role of backwater and breaker of deadlocks. He was asked to come into it by friends of Col. Collins, who hope that his influence will be such as to effect some satisfactory smoothing of the difficulty.

M'CARDELL'S BOWLERS DEFEAT ELIZABETHANS

The Polishers' bowling team from the Singer factory at Elizabeth, headed by Factory Inspector Neil A. McCarthy, came to Plainfield Saturday with the intention of applying the "wallop" to a team picked by Factory Inspector McCardell. The county seat aggregation failed to make good, however, as the local men proved to be quite some pin-hitters and laid it on to them for two games out of three on the Saengerbund alleys. The Polishers brought a big crowd of rooters with them and not to be outdone the Plainfielders had a bunch of their friends on hand to help things along. The result was a terrific racket when both sides got working but it never phased McCardell's men a particle.

In the first game, the Plainfielders failed to catch up properly and they were defeated by 52 pins, but that's the only look-in the Polishers had. In the second clash, the local men refused to be sociable and forged ahead from the start and in the last they won out again. McCarthy used every effort to urge his men to the lead but all to no purpose, simply because McCardell's team had it on them and the Elizabeth leader had to acknowledge the fact. It is said that he brought a newspaper reporter and a camera artist with him to give the series a fine write-up in the event of his aggregation winning but that he sent them him home in a hurry when he saw how things were going.

Following the games, both teams dropped hostilities for a lunch and listen to an informal programme of songs and addresses. A return match will be rolled at Elizabeth next Saturday and McCardell has given warning that his men will not have a grain of charity and that the Polishers won't have the satisfaction of getting even one game. He says Plainfield can lick Elizabeth out of its boots in bowling, baseball and politics.

LACKAWANNA LEAGUE PLAYERS BEING SELECTED.

Line On Make-Up of Aggregations Composing Combination In Which Plainfield Is a Member.

Lackawanna League plans for 1907 are beginning to take on a tangible form, and while the schedule is not completed the make-up of the different teams in the League is practically decided upon. The two new nines, admitted to the League at the last meeting, Plainfield and Elizabeth, which will take the place of Morristown and the Orange-Cliffton teams of last year, will be dark horses in the pennant race this season, and from the efforts their managers are making to obtain first-class players, they ought to prove important factors in the championship toss up.

Dave Driscoll, the old Hoboken first baseman, who is manager of the Elizabeth nine, has this coterie of players picked out: Lamar, Summit, catcher; McKenna, Orange, pitcher; Driscoll, Hoboken, first base; Curley, Chatham, second; Skelley, from Elizabeth Invaders, third; Hartter, Elizabeth Stars, short stop; Cosgrove, Ridgewood, center field; Rogers, Chatham, right; Lynch, Red Bank, left; Middleton, from the Stars, also left.

"Billy" Gilbert, of the New York Nationals, will be Dover's trump this year. The team make-up will be Plunkitt and Crutcher, catchers; Stroud, Kelly and "Doc" Newton, pitchers; Adams or Wolfe, alternating at first and third; Boutellier and Gilbert, second; Wasmer, short; Acker, centre field; Rodgers, of last year's team, right; Lynch, Red Bank, left; Middleton, from the Stars, also left.

Chatham will make few changes in its roster, the only ones planned so far being one or two additions to the infield.

Orange will be several changes in Summit's line-up, both in the infield and outfield positions. Linderman will be the star of the pitching staff again, and Kurfess will fill second. Reinacher at short.

With one exception, nothing can be said definitely in regard to the composition of the new Plainfield nine, as none of the players have been signed yet. It is known that Phil Swift will be in the box.

Manager Hogan, of Irvington, has not made any statement yet as to the makeup of that nine.

Miller John Otto is reported to be improving in health.

Grover Kratzel has recovered from a brief illness.

STREET SPRINKLING AWARDED TO KEELY

The question of giving out the contract for street sprinkling during the coming year, called forth considerable discussion at the March meeting of the Common Council Monday. Mr. Ginna, chairman of the street committee, presented a proposed contract with John E. Keely, who did the work last year.

The contract price per month has been $667, but this year it is raised to $850. A stipulation is made that the men working for Keely are to receive at least $2 per day.

The contract extends from May 1 to October 31, 1907. Sixteen horses and eight drivers, together with all equipment, are to be furnished. During the months of April and November and December, in this year, and February and March of 1908, sprinkling is to be done as designated by the street commissioner, at the rate of $4 per day for each wagon. As usual the work is to be under Mr. Gavett's personal supervision. Mr. Keely is to furnish an extra horse and wagon for his own supervision of the work at no expense to the city.

If at any time it is considered that the work is not performed satisfactorily other arrangements may be made and the proportionate amount deducted from Mr. Keely's contract price. A fine of fifty cents is to be imposed for every failure to close hydrants so as to prevent flooding the streets. Mr. Keely is to take care of the wagons, and for each wagon not supplied for use is to be a proportionate deduction.

After the presentation of the contract by Mr. Ginna, which he said he would move be adopted, Councilman Charles C. Randolph wanted to know whether the street committee had attempted to secure bids for the work. He thought that with the increase in the price to be paid that other taxpayers should be given an opportunity to procure the work, and that the fact should be advertised. Mr. Ginna said that he had heard nothing about other people being anxious to bid for the work and he didn't suppose that anyone else could be found who would want to take it. He had no objection to securing bids, but he thought the price named in the contract was very low.

Mr. Hibbard made a motion at this time that the matter be referred back to the committee and that bids be advertised for before April 1. The motion was subsequently lost, all the members excepting Councilman C. C. Randolph, H. D. Hibbard and President Daniel, voting against it. Mr. Ginna's motion that the contract be accepted at the sum named was adopted, all the members but the three named voting in the affirmative.

MAY NAME TILLMAN FOR UNION TAX BOARD

POLITICIANS WANT HIM APPOINTED IN MR. ANDREWS' PLACE.

Under the law creating the present county boards of taxation the Governor will have to send to the Senate, before the adjournment of the present session, nominees for members of the entire twenty-one boards. The act provides that those who were appointed last year after the adjournment of the Legislature should hold office only until the next session of the Legislature, which is the present, when the Governor should send to the Senate for confirmation nominees for all the boards.

It has so generally been taken for granted that the Governor would reappoint those whom he took so much trouble and care to select last year that there has been very little noticeable effort on the part of those not members of the present boards to secure the places.

An exception to this, however, is found in the case of Union, where, it is said on good authority, a determined fight is being made to have Assemblyman Peter J. Tillman, of Kearney, appointed to the tax board of this county in place of Frederick A. Andrews, of this city.

Mr. Andrews was one of the men recommended to the Governor last year by Senator Ackerman, a Republican politician, as that term is generally accepted. Assemblyman Randolph Perkins and other "regular organization" men are after his official scalp.

MAYOR TO GRANT LICENSES.

Ordinance Amended Giving His Honor This Authority.

Hereafter the Mayor will grant the usual batch of licenses to cabmen, truckers, peddlers, hucksters, etc., that heretofore have been acted upon by the Common Council. The ordinance relating to these licenses was amended giving the Mayor this power and was adopted on final reading at the March meeting Monday.

The ordinance now provides that all persons holding such licenses shall have them renewed March 15. Thus the city loses the revenue for fifteen days, this year.

CONSOLIDATION ACT UNCONSTITUTIONAL?

Mr. Angleman So Arguing Before Bi-Municipal Commission, Also Holds Plan Impracticable.

MR. REED DIFFERS

No Citizen of City Present to Speak In Favor of Scheme Though Several From Borough Do.

Although the meeting had been given wide publicity, there was not a single citizen of Plainfield present to speak in behalf of the proposed scheme at the open session of the bi-municipal consolidation commission at Mayor Fisk's office Monday. There was, however, one to voice his belief that the proposition in its present state was impracticable. For nearly half an hour, Winfield S. Angleman held the attention of the commission while he argued from a legal standpoint that there were serious defects which would prevent consolidation without change of the county lines.

The consolidation scheme, Mr. Angleman argued, was a business and legal one and not a purely sentimental question. Legal obstacle would prevent a Consolidation unless annexation be first accomplished and as that Act had been repealed further legislation was needed before anything else was done. The Consolidation Act, he declared, was unconstitutional and further to be presented it was impracticable. Invariably the city's policy had been opposed to experiments and to carry out the present plan would be against all its settled principles.

Why Unconstitutional.

Mr. Angleman held that the Consolidation law passed in 1902 was unconstitutional on the ground that the body of the act was not the same as the title. This, he said, was a fatal defect in itself. The title says that it is an act to "unite and consolidate," while the body of the law makes it an act to "annex" North Plainfield. In the very words of the law, he said, these meant two distinct and different things. The Consolidation Act, he further argued, was never intended to be put in effect unless the law providing for a change in the county lines was enacted upon favorably. The one presupposed the other. The Act to annex North Plainfield's territory, "in the county of Somerset, to the county of Union," was first enacted and intended to be voted on affirmatively by the inhabitants of both places following the fixed policy in other similar cases in the past in order to allow the consolidation of communities situated in different counties. The very wording of the latter act, for Consolidation, showed that it had been the plain intent of the Legislature and the framers of the bill not to consolidate unless annexation to Union county was first brought about. The title of the Consolidation Act mentions Plainfield as being in Union county but it does not mention where North Plainfield is, but the body of the Act shows where it is supposed to be for it states that North Plainfield is to be annexed and made a part of Plainfield, "in the county of Union."

City Charter Useless.

Another point made by Mr. Angleman was that the present city charter is not broad enough for any such purpose. The charter of Plainfield says that the city is "in the county of Union" and therefore would not apply to that territory beyond Green brook, the county dividing line if consolidation were effected. A new charter would have to be obtained before any official act was done when the two places were merged. A city in two counties would conflict with the authority of the boards of freeholders and would upset the entire election machinery for in the territory now embraced in what is North Plainfield they would be using one set of ballots and carrying on the election under a set of election officers who had nothing to do with the sets of ballots or the election officers on this side of the brook. In addition, he alleged, that the whole theory of State legislation would have to be changed if a merger be made without change of county lines for the State laws were made according to common law theories which recognized counties as the distinct line of separation. Almost all the laws of the State, he alleged, would conflict with the condition that would be presented by the plan proposed. The c ounty division line, moreover, he said, would still be in use and would lead to all sorts of difficulties. One that he mentioned regarded the commitment of prisoners. A man arrested on Manning avenue, for instance, could not be sent to the Union county court or jail while a man arrested on North avenue could not be sent to Somerville. Arrests for State offenses would also lead to complications because of the lack of authority of an officer in Union county to act in a part of the city in Somerset county. The apportionment of county school funds moneys would likewise present an obstacle. This money is apportioned by counties and therefore what was sent to that part of Somerset county, now North Plainfield, but what would be a part of Plainfield, could not be lumped with the fund coming to what is now Plainfield for it would be used contrary to law inasmuch as it would be spent in Union county. The election of county officials, justices and the like were also alleged to seriously effect the situation.

After Mr. Angleman had concluded his remarks, Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed was asked by President Gilbert, of the commission, to tell what he thought of the legal aspect of the proposition and without change of county lines. He reiterated what he had stated at a previous meeting that there were no insurmountable legal obstacles and that he did not believe that the consolidation act in its present form unconstitutional. Neither did he believe, he added, that the scheme as proposed was impracticable.

Boroughites Make Petition.

Next to Counsellor Angleman the principal speaker was Samuel Townsend, who, as a resident of the borough, expressed the hope that consolidation should be brought about and that it would be a good thing for North Plainfield. With a brief preface to his remarks to this effect, he read a communication from thirty-seven property owners in the Washington Park section addressed to the commission as follows:

"As we have reason to believe the arguments in its favor have already been placed before you, we do not think it necessary to go over the same ground. We would, however, respectfully urge that irrespective of your report as to the desirability of the proposed consolidation that you meet the views of the subscribers and many others by recommending that the question be submitted to our voters."

Following the reading, Mr. Townsend spoke of the difference in settlement between the city and borough and specified certain sections to show that it has not been in proportion.

"Take the borough west of Giraud avenue," said Mr. Townsend; "with the exception of the settled portion on lower Myrtle and Willow avenues, it is all open country. On the city side of the brook the streets are built up so that vacant ground is the exception rather than the rule. It's the same thing at the east end of town. Beyond Westervelt avenue in the borough there are very few houses and no sign of especial growth except where the Hyde property is being developed. On the city side the land is well built up and lots more in prospect.

Townsend Voices Sentiment.

"As the natural conditions are the same it must be the artificial conditions that are responsible," continued Mr. Townsend. "From our point of view it would be an advantage to consolidate with the city; looking at it from the Plainfield point of view the city would benefit by the move through enhanced values. It is certainly going to be done some time and if you make your mind to can be brought about if you want it to come about. The majority of the residents in our section have always believed in consolidation and the remaining portions of the borough are looking at it in the same light."

"In your opinion, Mr. Townsend," said Mr. Gilbert, "what influence has caused this growth in Plainfield?"

"There are a number of reasons," was the reply; "Plainfield has always set the standard and we are in the position of a competitor. When a man comes here to locate we try to get him; we aim to give as good as the city offers—sewers alone are lacking but Plainfield had the growth before it had that advantage. There has never been any attempt to locate industries in the borough because it has no railroad and it is only small concerns that can engage in manufacturing away from them. There is not what could be called a factory class in Plainfield but it has secured the great advantage in this respect."

Woolston's Ideas.

L. B. Woolston, of the borough, who is persident of the Board of Trade, was another speaker who argued in favor of consolidation. He declared himself at the outset as preferring annexation to that if the one were secured first the other might be brought about later.

"One of the things that binds me to believe that something should be done," said Mr. Woolston, "is the fact that the borough schools are not as good as Plainfield's. The North Plainfielders may think they are but it is only false pride because it is not so. When the High School department was established I was opposed to it because it would be cheaper for us to send the pupils to Plainfield. The number in the upper grades has never been over thirty and they could receive the education in Plainfield for $1,500 a year while it is costing us $3,000. There is a large attendance of small children brought about in a measure from the fact that laboring men who work in Plainfield, live in North Plainfield because it is cheaper. I firmly believe that if the question is put to the Plainfield people, they would vote for consolidation.

Hegeman Speaks.

Former Mayor B. A. Hegeman took the floor long enough to reply directly to the questions raised by Counsellor Angleman.

"We don't want legal questions to impede our way," said he with emphasis; "get the views of the people on the question at the polls—then consider the legal aspect. If the former could be done we could get counsel to pave the way afterward."

David T. Kenney was the only other citizen present to express his views in favor of consolidation and afterward there was an informal discussion of several minutes. The public hearing was then declared at an end by Mr. Gilbert and the commission went into executive session.

MR. RUSHMORE LOSES IN COURT OF ERRORS

HIGHER COURT AFFIRMS DECISION AND HE MUST PAY $500.

The judgment of William Addis against S. W. Rushmore was Monday affirmed in the Court of Errors. Mr. Addis was injured in a collision between his bicycle and Mr. Rushmore's automobile in May, 1904. He obtained from a Union county jury a verdict for $500 damages and Mr. Rushmore applied for a rule for a new trial on the ground that the weight of evidence was in his favor.

The Supreme Court refused to grant the rule, and on exceptions to the court's charge the case was carried to the Court of Errors. That court decided yesterday that the exceptions were not well taken and the judgment must stand. The opinion was filed by Justice Dixon.

Reed & Coddington were the counsel for Mr. Addis, and Craig A. Marsh for Mr. Rushmore.

Mr. Marsh said today that he would advise payment of the judgment and that he had advised against carrying the case to the Court of Errors, but was overruled. Former Judge William A. Coddington, of counsel for William Addis, said today that he had offered to settle the case before it went to trial for $200.

CLERGYMAN TO WED ON SATURDAY, APRIL 13

Announcement is made that the wedding of Miss Otalie H. Lohrke, a young society woman of Orange, and Rev. George A. Warner, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, North Plainfield, will take place at Grace church, Orange, on Saturday, April 13. Rev. Dr. Alexander Mann, rector of Trinity church, Boston, and formerly rector of the Orange church, will officiate. The maid of honor will be Miss Gertrude Yohrke, a sister of the bride, and the best man, Rev. Dr. Frank K. Staples, rector of St. Paul's church, Baltimore, Md., a classmate of Mr. Warner.

Rev. Mr. Warner was assistant rector of Grace church, Orange, until he took charge of the local parish a year and a half ago. He is one of the most popular divines in Plainfield and has built up his church to a remarkable degree since coming here. Miss Lohrke is a daughter of Otto Lohrke, of Orange, and is well known in society and church circles in that place.

BOROUGH HEALTH BOARD TO ASK APPROPRIATION

FIRST TIME IN THREE YEARS IT WILL HAVE CALLED FOR MONEY.

For the first time in nearly three years, the borough Board of Health, at its annual meeting Monday, decided to ask the Borough Council for an appropriation to carry on its work. The amount was fixed at $1,000 and the Council will be asked at its next meeting to grant it. Hitherto the board has been meeting expenses with a surplus from regular appropriations granted but it recently was compelled to call a number of heavy expenditures and its treasury was exhausted.

The annnual reports of the secretary and inspector were read and showed the borough residents to be enjoying generally good health. The number of deaths in the past year, in comparison with other years, was very low and there have been very few cases of contagious disease.

Officers were elected as follows: President, Joseph O. Osgood; secretary and treasurer, Dr. A. H. Dunden; inspector, Frank Denckla; counsel, Francis J. Blatz. Dr. Dunden was also reappointed register of vital statistics.

CITY BORROWS $20,000

Common Council Orders Issuance of Bonds to Meet Expense.

ORDINANCES OFFERED

Building Inspector and District Court Clerk Make Reports—Other Routine Business.

The adjourned February meeting of the Common Council was so productive of important business that but little outside of routine matters was left for the March session, held Monday night. A public hearing was granted in the matter of establishing the grade on certain streets, but no one was present to speak for or against the proposed action, and the ordinance was adopted on final reading.

Residents of West Third street, between Monroe and Clinton avenues, petitioned to have that street macadamized, and a similar petition was received from J. D. Loizeaux and others asking that Hillside avenue, between Evergreen and Martine avenues, be macadamized. Both petitions were referred to the street committee. The Public Service Corporation informed the Common Council that an electric light had been located on Leland avenue, as directed. The bond of H. L. Higgins, district court clerk, was received and will be referred to the corporation counsel for approval. Peter Morgan, of Poughkeepsie, who has the new sewer contract, communicated with the Common Council informing the members of his action in giving Thomas Cusack power of attorney. The communication was referred to the corporation counsel.

Building Inspector Doane reported the granting of twelve building permits during February, and the report of Clerk H. G. Adams, of the district court, for February showed the receipts to be $96.57 and the disbursements $39.25. The report was filed.

The bond of Collector John W. Murray, Jr., was ordered approved and filed when the acknowledgement of a New York County notary public is secured to one of the bondsmen.

Borrow $20,000.

Mr. Tolles offered a resolution providing for the borrowing of $20,000 for sewer improvements, the same to be obtained through the issuance of bonds. The resolution was adopted.

Mr. Ginna, chairman of the street committee, reported back the petition of the Greenbrook Improvement Company, relative to the establishment of sewers between the east end of the city, with instructions that before any sewer contract is made with North Plainfield, due consideration will be given its request.

Mr. Hibbard, chairman of the fire and building committee, reported that the petition of Trinity church, Boston, and formerly rector of the Orange church, will officiate. The maid of honor will be Miss Gertrude Yohrke, a sister of the bride, and the best man, Rev. Dr. Frank K. Staples, rector of St. Paul's church, Baltimore, Md., a classmate of Mr. Warner.

Borrow $20,000.

Mr. Tolles offered a resolution providing for the borrowing of $20,000 for sewer improvements, the same to be obtained through the issuance of bonds. The resolution was adopted.

Mr. Ginna, chairman of the street committee, reported back the petition of the Greenbrook Improvement Company, relative to the establishment of sewers between the east end of the city, with instructions that before any sewer contract is made with North Plainfield, due consideration will be given its request.

Mr. Hibbard, chairman of the fire and building committee, reported that the petition of Sigmund Frucht for permission to erect a one-story building on Park avenue, adjoining the building of L. E. Hart, be granted. The motion was adopted. Mr. Hibbard stated that the committee met Monday afternoon and a unanimous vote in favor of the petition was taken.

Another motion offered by Mr. Hibbard and adopted, provided for the location of one two-way hydrant on Martine avenue and one two-way hydrant on Jackson avenue and East Second street. His motion granting the petition for a fire alarm box at Denmark road and Belvidere avenue was also adopted.

Mr. Ginna offered a resolution, which was adopted, authorizing the street committee to prepare and advertise for bids for securing crushed stone, material for culverts and crosswalks for the coming year, the bids to be opened at a meeting of the committee on Thursday night, March 21, at 8 o'clock in the office of Street Commissioner Gavett.

The same member offered two ordinances, the first one providing for the opening and widening of Arlington avenue, between Fourth and Fifth streets, as petitioned for by the property-owners. It was adopted on first and second readings and ordered advertised. The second ordinance provided for the establishment of the side-lines on West Front street, between Grove street and Central avenue and West End and Grant avenues. It established a building line fourteen feet from the curb line and allows for the ten foot sidewalk, a four foot area, with 32½ feet on each side from the center line of the street. This was also adopted on first and second readings and ordered advertised. It is understood will be acted upon third reading at the April meeting.

A third ordinance offered by Mr. Ginna called for the laying out and opening of Orange place, between Elm place and Westervelt avenue, but as there was some doubt as to whether this action was not already a matter of record, the matter was referred back to the street committee for investigation.

Another $1,000 Bond.

Mr. Ginna also introduced a supplement to an ordinance calling for the issuance of an additional $1,000 street improvement bond to complete the work of permanent pavement contracted for. The bond is to be issued for three years, at 5 per cent, and can be retired at any period within that time. The ordinance was adopted and ordered advertised.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST

COLLINS NOW BRIGADIER

Second Regiment's Colonel Succeeds the Late Gen. Quincey O'M. Gilmore.

ELECTION UNANIMOUS

Colonel Dennis F. Collins, of Elizabeth, commandant of the Second regiment, Second brigade, National Guard of New Jersey, was last night elected as Brigadier General to succeed General Quincy O. M. Gilmore, of Princeton, who recently resigned on account of ill health. The election took place at Trenton.

Colonel Collins' election was unanimous, his opponent, Colonel John C. Mather, of Camden, withdrawing. This ends a contest that was a deadlock for forty-three ballots and diverts what threatened to be a political ward in the ranks of the guard.

The Governor favored Colonel Collins because he was senior officer and was acting commander of the brigade. Colonel Collins is a Democrat and the Democrats in the Legislature declared that they would cut down this year's military appropriation if a Republican was jobbed over his head.

The new commander of the Second Brigade has risen from the ranks. He was a captain a short time before the Spanish-American War and was then promoted to the rank of major. A short while later he was advanced to the colonelcy of the Second. His command attained great efficiency in behavior, drill and marksmanship and merited high praise from State officials.

General Collins is the presiding officer of the Elizabeth Comison Council, president of the Peter Breidt Brewing Company and a member of several Elizabeth lodges.

Following the election the officers and a number of guests were entertained in the Dutch room at Margerum's cafe in Trenton by the newly elected brigadier general.

General Collin's guests were Major General P. F. Wanser, who was judge of the election; Lieutenant Colonel Frederick Strube, Major Leon Manton, Jersey City; Major Edward B. Broadway, of Camden; member of the brigade staff; Colonel James V. Oliphant, Captain Harry Kramner, Camden; Captain Nelson B. Gaskill, Mount Holly; Captain J. H. McCullough, of Company A, Second Regiment; Captain Maalen Margerrum, of the Governor's staff; Captain Edward H. Gordon, of the Second Regiment field staff; Captain John M. Rogers, of Second Regiment; Captain David M. Flynn and Lieutenant Charles W. Stark.

Lieutenant Colonel Nelson Y. Dugan, of Somerville, will succeed Col. Collins as commander of the Second Regiment. Major George S. Forman will advance to lieutenant colonel; Captain John H. McCullough will advance to the rank of major. First Lieutenant Walter Morton is slated for captain of Company A, succeeding Captain McCullough and Second Lieutenant Edward Myatt is slated for first lieutenant succeeding First Lieutenant Morton.

Lieutenant Colonel Nelson Y. Dugan, of Somerville, who is slated for colonel of the Second Regiment, is one of the most popular officers of the National Guard of New Jersey. He enlisted in Company H, Third Regiment, July 28, 1891, and became a corporal in August of the same year. He was elected first sergeant in 1893; battalion sergeant major in 1894; captain and judge advocate in 1894. He retired in 1897 and reentered the service in 1900 as captain of Company M of the Second Regiment. He was elected major in 1901 and became lieutenant colonel upon the death of Lieutenant Colonel Jos. Clime, of Burlington.

NEW MANAGER.

Mr. and Mrs. Muff to Manage 'Plains Hostelry.

"Willie" Deegan, the baseball twirler, who is the proprietor of the old hotel at Scotch Plains which is a landmark of the village, has secured Mr. and Mrs. Adolf Muff, of New York, as managers for the place. This change will enable "Willie" has signed to pitch for the Jersey City Eastern League team this season, and will not be able to devote his time to hotel affairs. He will leave on Saturday to join the Skeeters at Jersey City.

Mr. Muff is an old hotel man, having been engaged in the business in New York State for several years. He will engage in the mushroom growing business on an extensive scale. He has also planned a number of improvements about the hostelry. Mr. Muff is a relative of Henry Podefleux, of Washington Valley, who has a reputation for growing mushrooms.

JOHN I. BROWER WEDS MISS JOSEPHINE GILMORE

REV. JOHN P. PETERS OFFICIATES AT CEREMONY AT BRIDE'S HOME.

Miss Josephine Louise Gilmore, daughter of Mrs. E. D. Gilmore, and John I. Brower, son of Mrs. H. W. Brower, of 144 East Ninth street, this city, were married Tuesday at the home of the bride's mother, 233 West 107th street, New York. Rev. Dr. John P. Peters, rector of St. Michael's church, officiated. The affair was a quiet one, being attended only by the members of the immediate families and intimate friends. The only attendant was Henry W. Brower, brother of the groom, who was best man.

The bride was gowned in chiffon and lace over white satin and she carried a bouquet of white roses and maiden-hair ferns. She was given in marriage by her mother. An informal reception was held after the ceremony. Gifts of great value were received by the bride.

The decorations in the parlor consisted of palms and pink roses, while the prevailing color in the dining room was red.

Following a honeymoon trip the couple will reside in New York, where the groom is engaged in the real estate business.

DENTON COLLEGE CHAMPION.

Plainfielder Wins Athletic Title at Brown University.

Arthur L. Denton, of Washington avenue, a student at Brown University, won the title of college gymnast at the Brown physical training exhibition on Saturday afternoon in Lyon's gymnasium, with a score of 136 7-15. It was visiting day and the gymnasium was crowded with members of the corporation, faculty, etc.

The exhibition included the various class drills, a competition to decide the gymnastic champion of the college, and finally a swimming contest, which included diving, racing, plunge for distance and a short water polo game.

Prior to entering Brown Denton had a reputation here as a gymnast, having made fine records while attending the Plainfield High School and in various Y. M. C. A. contests. Last fall he was one of the substitute players on the 'varsity football team and his showing upon the play acquitted himself creditably. He is also one of the honor men at Brown in his studies, having won several prizes.

PETITIONS FOR DISCHARGE.

W. N. Tier, Bankrupt, Granted a Hearing in District Court.

William N. Tier, of East Front street, was on October 13 last, was adjudged a bankrupt, declares that he has surrendered all of his property and rights of property and has complied with all the requirements of the law and the orders of the court relating to his bankruptcy, has petitioned to have a full discharge from all debts provable against his estate as are excepted by law from such discharge.

In view of this, notice has been given that a hearing on the petition will be granted in the United States District Court at Trenton, before Judge Cross, on Monday, April 1, giving all creditors and other persons interested an opportunity to appear and show cause, if any they have, why the petition should not be granted.

Dunellen Concert.

An entertainment will be given in the Dunellen Presbyterian church by the Special Grand Concert Company of the Ithaca Conservatory of Music tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. The personnel of the company is Miss Madge A. Rogers, reader; Miss Lillian A. Cropper, violinist; Miss Winifred Fuller, soprano, and Miss Lola Hulslander, pianist. Two are members of the faculty of the conservatory and the others specially engaged artists.

A. O. H. Annual Ball.

Division No. 4, A. O. H., will hold its thirty-second annual ball in Saengerbund Hall next Monday night. Suhr's Imperial Orchestra will furnish the music and the committee has secured Prof. Francis X. Hennessey, of New York, to give Irish bagpipe selections. The committee in charge of arrangements comprises Timothy Cullinan, Patrick O'Brien, Patrick Harrington, John Simpson, Thomas Brown, Thomas Farrell, Patrick Breen, James J. Dobin, Patrick Griffin and John F. Casey.

Dr. Richards Will Speak.

Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, pastor of the Brick Presbyterian church, New York, will address the Young People's Association of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church on Friday night, March 22. A social half-hour will follow, giving the young people an opportunity to meet Dr. Richards.

SOMERSET'S BOARD TO BUILD A ROAD

YES, OF COURSE IT IS AT OTHER END OF THE COUNTY.

Elijah C. Hutchinson, State Road Commissioner, refused to approve the contract awarded to William Hardgrove, of Somerville, for the construction of a clay-binder road from North Branch to the Hunterdon county line, near Whitehouse, at his bid of $27,262.15, and at a meeting of the Somerset County Board of Chosen Freeholders at Somerville yesterday the contract was revoked. It was understood that Mr. Hutchinson would approve a sand-binder road, and as Mr. Hardgrove's bid for this, $30,224.32, was the lowest the contract was at once awarded to him, subject to the approval of the State Commissioner.

Residents of Hunterdon county have secured the signatures of the members of the Somerset board to a petition to the State Commissioner urging him to approve the macadamizing of the road on into Hunterdon county. The Somerset people are anxious to have the road continued through to Whitehouse and Whitehouse Station.

MRS. REED EXPLAINS THE BABY CAMP WORK.

In response to an invitation from the Christian Endeavor Society of Warren chapel, Mrs. Charles A. Reed, president of the City Union of The King's Daughters, addressed the members at their weekly meeting in the chapel last night. She told something of the work carried on at the baby camp on the mountains every summer. The society has contributed more or less to this work, but it desired to know more about it that the interest might be aroused in such a worthy local charity.

Mrs. Reed told the brief history of the King's Daughters work and of the establishing of the baby camp work, which has resulted in so much good. She also took occasion to say something about The Day Nursery work, giving the Endeavorers an idea of the large number of children cared for during the year and enlisting their sympathy. The society will undoubtedly plan to lend more support to these charities in the future.

IDENTIFY TRAIN VICTIM.

Youth Killed by P. and R. Flyer Was Clinton Knapp, of Barclay, Pa.

The youth killed at East Bound Brook by a P. and R. flyer Saturday afternoon, has been identified as Clinton Knapp, of Barclay, Pa. The identification is positive and Undertaker Walter G. Runyon, to whose establishment in Dunellen the body was taken, is awaiting word from the dead boy's parents in Barclay.

The identification was established through letters found on the body. Knapp worked in Bayonne, as a machine man for the Insulated Wire and Cable Co. He was on his way home for a visit when struck by the train. The youth's identity was not established until Sunday, and as noon today arrangements for the disposition of the body had not been made.

Bible Talks.

"How the Bible Came to Us" is the theme of a lecture to be given at the Friends' Meeting-house, Watchung avenue and East Third street, Friday night, at 8 o'clock. All students of the Bible and others interested are cordially invited to attend. "The Bible Vindicated by Modern Science" will be the subject of an address by Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, editor of The Sabbath Recorder, before the Men's Club of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. The men's clubs of the other churches are cordially invited to be present.

Dislocated His Knee Cap.

Royal Phillips, of Madison avenue, is detained at home, the result of an accident at the Pennsylvania Railroad near Rahway ten days ago. He was getting off a passenger train at that place when his heel caught on the car step, throwing him to the ground. As he fell he dislocated his knee cap and was rendered helpless. Medical aid was summoned and temporary treatment given until Mr. Phillips could be brought to his home.

Johnson Better.

Lee Johnson, the negro shot by Thaddeus Payne, also colored, a week ago, is steadily recovering at the hospital. The doctors say he is gaining strength daily.

Cuff Begins Sentence.

Edward Cuff, colored, of this city, who was sentenced to two years in the State Prison for stealing, two weeks ago, was taken to Trenton this morning.

TRAIN KILLS BRAKEMAN

BROTHER DREAMS OF IT

Almost Exact Manner in Which Fatality Occurred Revealed To Him As He Slept.

In almost exactly the manner that his brother dreamed, Henry Ward James, of this city, a passenger brakeman on the New Jersey Central, was killed by the cars in the Somerville yards early Wednesday. In attempting to board an east bound freight train to get to Plainfield, he was struck by a coaler going west and badly mangled. The body was discovered at 4 o'clock lying between the tracks.

James came to this city from Morrisville, Va., two years ago and worked until a few months ago as conductor on the local trolley lines. Last fall he entered the employ of the New Jersey Central and was attached to the train that reaches this city from New York at 12:03 a. m. He boarded with Philip Maguire on West Fourth street and as the train reaches Somerville at 1:23, the only way for him to get back was by catching a freight due in Somerville at 2 o'clock. The operator at the station was in the habit of having it slow up for him and this was done as usual this morning. James was seen to run out to catch it and he was soon lost to view in the darkness. The coal train passed west a moment or so afterward and there is no doubt but that it struck him.

James' brother, Ambrose James, resides at 105 Somerset street and early Sunday morning he was roused from sleep by a vivid dream. It seemed to him that Ward, as he was known, had been struck by an engine and in the vision he saw him hurled between the tracks. He was so startled by the dream he related the facts to his wife and it was some time before he could get to sleep again. At 6 o'clock the Somerville authorities telephoned to North Plainfield fire headquarters, which are next door to his home, and asked that Ambrose be brought to the wire, when the messenger told him what was wanted, almost his first words were:

"I dreamed something happened to Ward and it must be so."

The facts he learned a few moments later bore out his conviction. The victim of the accident was but 29 years old and besides the brother in this city, he is survived by a mother, two sisters and two brothers, who live in Morrisville, and a brother, George James, of Brooklyn. The body will be sent from Somerville to Morrisville for burial.

BLACKJACKED AND ROBBED BY FOOTPADS

Michael Gleason, of Madison avenue, is nursing bumps and bruises, the result of a holdup on the outskirts of Dunellen. He was hit with blackjacks and lost sixty cents.

The hold-up occurred Saturday night, near the Aluminum Plate and Press Works, where Gleason works, at the Dewey Park line. It was just closing-down time when two men closed in on Gleason from either side, and demanded all the money he had.

Gleason had only sixty cents, and he told the hold-up men so. They wanted to know where his wages were. Gleason told them his wages were drawn for him, and he didn't carry the money. The struggle soon became pretish and hit him with blackjacks and took the sixty cents from him. They escaped swiftly.

It is supposed the hold-up men were local toughs. They seemed familiar with the neighborhood.

Greenbrook Council Entertains.

Greenbrook Council, Royal Arcanum, enjoyed a smoker, vaudeville entertainment and addresses at its meeting, Monday night in Columbus Hall, on East Front street. William Hand, of Bayonne, a clever impersonator, and Saunders and Sanders, a well known musical team, furnished the entertainment. In addition there was an address by Supervising Deputy Koester, of Bayonne, and the vice regent of Plainfield Council, No. 713, Royal Arcanum. It was a stag affair and all were pleased with the fine programme prepared by John Hillier, Horace Conover and John Dixon, the committee in charge.

YOUTH DISAPPEARS; POLICE ASKED TO SEARCH

HOWARD ELLIS, SEVENTEEN YEARS OLD, CARRIES OUT THREATS TO RUN AWAY.

The police were asked, this morning, to send out a general alarm for Howard Ellis, seventeen years old, who disappeared from this city last night. He is supposed to have run away.

The youth was employed at the office of the Sabbath Recorder, Madison avenue. He came to Plainfield, with his widowed mother, Mrs. Belle Ellis, and a married sister, from Alfred, N. Y., two months ago. He left his work as usual, early last evening, went home, changed his clothes, and left the house. He was seen to board an eastbound mail line trolley car at Richmond and Fifth streets at eight o'clock, and that is the last point to which his people or the police can trace him.

Ellis is said to have threatened to run away several times. His mother is worried over the disappearance, and is on the verge of prostration. The Seventh-Day Baptist church, of which the family are members, has interested itself in the search. The pastor, Rev. George Shaw, brought word of the disappearance to the police this morning.

BRIGHTSIDE CIRCLE ENTERTAINS FOR BENEFIT.

Mrs. C. H. Rugg Offers Her Home for Delightful Musical and Social Affair.

Under the auspices of Brightside Circle, of The King's Daughters, an entertainment and social was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin H. Rugg, of Grandview avenue, last night. No admission was charged, but a silver offering was received for the benefit of The Day Nursery, one of the charities of the City Union, of The King's Daughters. There was a large attendance of members and friends and a pleasant and profitable time was had.

The programme, an informal one, delighted everyone. There were vocal selections by Miss Emma Perdue, of East Orange, accompanied on the piano by Miss Lillian A. Force; recitations by Miss Alice Plano and selections by Miss Force. The several numbers were enthusiastically received by generous applause.

A social hour followed the entertainment and refreshments were served by Mrs. Rugg. The entertainment was arranged by Miss Elizabeth Claypoole and Mrs. J. A. Powlison.

PARK GOLF CLUB ELECTS.

Encouraging Reports Presented at the Annual Meeting.

Governors were elected and reports received at the annual meeting of the Park Golf Club, held last night at the Park Club. The reports were encouraging, there being a balance in the treasury. The membership is sixty-three. It was decided to continue the club another season and as soon as Charles W. McCutchen returns from his southern trip the officers will be chosen and plans for the season decided upon.

The governors elected last night were Charles W. McCutchen, George A. Chapman, Alexander Gilbert, Jas. F. Parker, Reuben Knox, Miss Lydie Loizeaux and Charles B. Morse.

Hearing On Osteopathy.

During the noon recess of the Legislature yesterday, the Senate committee on miscellaneous business gave the second hearing on the Hutchinson bill to create a State board of osteopaths for the licensing of practitioners of that science. Prominent practicing physicians from the State, including several from this city, were in attendance.

No Candidate from Hudson.

Report has it that "Bob" Davis, the leader of the Hudson county Democrats, is opposed to that county's delegation to the coming Democratic Gubernatorial convention having any choice for the nomination. His friends say that he does not want any Hudson man named.

King's Daughters Musicale.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McIntyre, Mr. and Mrs. Waterhouse will present the programme at the musicale to be given at the home of Mrs. Frank A. Marsh, on West Eighth street, tomorrow afternoon, under the auspices of Benevolent Band, of The King's Daughters.

In the Borough Court.

John Schenck was arraigned before Recorder Dolliver in the borough court, charged with drunkenness and disorderly conduct. He paid $5 in reference to going to jail for the same number of days.

—Albert W. Pangborn will continue the mason and building business lately conducted by his father, who died last month. Mr. Pangborn has been associated with his father for a number of years and is thoroughly familiar with all its details. See adv.

PLAINFIELD SINGER MAKES A HIT ABROAD

A beautiful Plainfield girl, Miss Josephine Schaffer, has just made her debut in Zurich, Switzerland, as Elizabeth in "Tannhauser." So remarkable was her success that she has received offers from both Munich and Berlin managers to remain there under contract. After the "Prayer Song" she received six curtain calls.

Miss Schaffer, who was a pupil of Miss Emma Thursby, studied in New York and Brooklyn for four years and by her teacher's advice she went abroad. There she has studied dramatic work and the languages for the past two years. She has been coached in her acting by Herr Direktor Fuchs, of Munich. Her voice is a clear dramatic soprano which, the notices from abroad state, met all the requirements of the exquisite role in the Wagnerian opera in which she chose to make her operatic debut.

Miss Schaffer sang small parts in the Metropolitan for two years before going abroad, and her work as the Priestess in "Aida" was most favorably commented upon by the local critics at the time. She will spend this year singing in various cities on the Continent. Next winter Miss Schaffer expects to return to Plainfield.

NOISY COUPLE IN COURT.

Colored Pair Fought Too Loudly for Neighbors' Peace of Mind.

Special Officer James Babbitt, colored, appeared as complainant in the city court this morning, against James Wilkins and his wife, also colored, whom he charged with disorderly conduct. Babbitt said they fought so much and so noisily as to be a nuisance to the other members of the negro colony back of French's mill. Wilkins pleaded guilty.

The couple have had more spats than a well conducted colored neighborhood is used to. They took to throwing furniture around, and even got to throwing pails of ashes. Mrs. Wilkins yelled murder and otherwise upset the tranquility of the neighbors.

Wilkins said he was through fighting. A night in jail had cured him so he wouldn't fight his wife above a whisper. He promised to move within three days, and sentence was suspended.

TO START IN BUSINESS.

Caspar F. Waglow, Veteran Dry Goods Man, to Open in Westfield.

C. F. Waglow, who is one of the veteran dry goods men of this city, has resigned his place with Levy Bros., West Front street, to go into business for himself in Westfield. He will leave the Levy's employ Saturday night to prepare for the opening of his store, the first of next month. His "line" will be general housefurnishings.

The store will be in a store built by Dr. Bettle on Broad street. Mr. Waglow was employed in Isaac Ledger's store for eleven years and for nearly nine years in the business now conducted by A. E. Force & Co. Mr. Waglow expects to have a formal "opening" and hopes to welcome a large number of his friends at the new store.

TALK TO S. S. TEACHERS.

Crescent Avenue Church Workers Hear Child Study Expert.

Patterson Dubois, of Philadelphia, addressed the Sunday school teachers of the Crescent Avenue church at the home of Sidney Williams, East Ninth street, last night. Mr. Dubois is a former editor of the Sunday-school Times, and an expert in child study and teaching. He spoke on Sunday-school work. Mr. Dubois is the guest of Rev. Dr. John Sheridan Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue church.

Practically the entire teaching and executive force of the Sunday-school attended the gathering. A social hour was enjoyed after the talk.

Funeral of Henry Homann.

The funeral of Henry Homann, who died Sunday from pneumonia, was held at his late home on Grant avenue, yesterday afternoon. It was conducted by Rev. E. E. Roberson, pastor of the Monroe Avenue church, and was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends. A large floral pillow was contributed by the employees of the local trolley lines. The body was placed in the vault at Hillside cemetery, the pall bearers being James Steward, John Traynor, Foster Johnson, Samuel Robinson, Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., and Mark Hipp.

NEW BRUNSWICK FIRE LOSS A HALF MILLION

Janeway & Carpenter's Big Wallpaper Factory Completely Destroyed This Morning.

DWELLINGS IN DANGER

Firemen Had Hard Time Fighting the Flames—May Not Rebuild —Other Towns Asked For Aid.

The wallpaper factory of Janeway & Carpenter, at New Brunswick, said to be one of the largest in the country, was destroyed by fire Wednesday, involving a loss of $600,000 and throwing 400 employes out of employment.

The fire is believed to have been caused by crossed electric light wires. It was discovered about 8 o'clock in the block-cutting room by an employe, who with the aid of fellow-workmen tried to put it out. Realizing that the flames were getting beyond their control, fire headquarters was notified and a general alarm given, calling out all of the department apparatus.

Difficulty was experienced in throwing sufficient water on the blazing building because of poor quality of coal used in the steamers. For some unknown reason it would not burn and make steam and considerable time was lost dumping the fires and rebuilding them with better coal.

In the meantime the fire was making rapid headway throughout the immense structure and the firemen, finding that it would be impossible to save it, directed their attention to the many frame structures on the opposite side of the street. This they were able to do, although the dwellings were thoroughly soaked and the families driven out. Rev. Thomas Brock, pastor of St. James M. E. church, opened the edifice and permitted the families to remain there where it was warm and comfortable.

The factory, which covers a whole block, was located directly on the line of the Pennsylvania Railroad within two feet of the embankment, and traffic was suspended on the road for three hours while the fire was at its height. Later it was possible to open up a couple of tracks and allow the passenger trains to go through.

One serious handicap in fighting the fire was the fact that the large building was not equipped in any way with apparatus for such an amergency. Several blockcutters, who attempted to save some of their tools, were burned about the hands and arms, but fortunately no fatalities resulted. Soon after the fire was discovered and the departments at Perth Amboy, Trenton and Elizabeth were called upon for assistance, but later the request was countermanded, the local department decided that it could handle the blaze. It was nearly noon before the fire was gotten under control, but the large quantity of debris will probably smoulder for two or three days.

Col. Jacob J. Janeway was the principal owner of the business, and it was definitely stated today that if the structure is rebuilt it will not be on the old site, while it is possible that it may not be rebuilt. Ever since the Pennsylvania Railroad elevated its tracks in New Brunswick, the wallpaper company has suffered by reason of having the sidings cut out. This compelled the handling of its material a considerable distance to the freight station. Another report circulated is that the company will rebuild along the canal near the Raritan Railroad, where better facilities are obtainable for moving goods.

There is another wallpaper factory in New Brunswick owned by Janeway & Co., Henry L. Janeway being the principal owner. He is related to the Janeways in the other company and Janeway & Company may arrange to take over the business of Janeway & Carpenter.

Mary Wright Memorial Society.

In response to a special invitation from Mrs. L. R. Howard, a number of young women met and organized a missionary society at Hope chapel to be known as the Mary Wright Memorial Society, in memory of the daughter of Major and Mrs. W. D. W. Miller, of East Seventh street, who died while engaged in mission work in China. The society will study both home and foreign missions. One meeting has been held and the society promises to be a large and successful one.

BOARD OF TRADE AWAKE, READY FOR NEW LIFE

Lemuel B. Woolston Retires as President and Harry W. Marshall Succeeds Him.

E. FEICKERT SECRETARY

Something like a meeting was held by the Board of Trade last week. To begin with, there were twenty-five members present—about twice the usual attendance. The spirit of the session was that of energetic maturity instead of moribund senility, and a new president, with a new policy of concentration, was given the tiller of government.

President Lemuel B. Woolston, who has served for seven years, refused to entertain the idea of re-election, and intimated that all the old officers should retire with him. The two others who were present tried to follow out the suggestion, but they were held in office by unanimous vote. Harry W. Marshall, proprietor of the American Steam Laundry and an officer of the Mono-Investing Co., was elected president. Judge W. R. Codington was elected first vice president, and B. F. Corlell was re-elected second vice president. Edward C. Feickert, assistant secretary of the Plainfield Trust Company, was elected secretary. E. M. Laing was re-elected treasurer. Guillermo Thorn was continued as collector. The election was by the usual one.

President Marshall's policy is energetic concentration. "I am in favor of going after one thing at a time," he said last night, "and in bending all our energies to getting it. When we have secured that one thing, we can turn undivided attention to something else, and keep up the good work in swift succession."

"I agree with Mr. Marshall in that policy," said Mr. Woolston, "and there are several matters I hope to see the Board tug hit on during the new organization year." He suggested that the Central Railroad be requested to put the word "Plainfield" after the names of the Netherwood, Grant and Grant Park commuter stations on their tickets, to keep the extent of the city to casual patrons of the road, and that the company be urged with particular emphasis to make a flat rate from all the stations in the city, instead of charging different fares from all four.

Mr. Marshall said the suggestions were ones that should be carried out at once; they were good things upon which to start the policy of concentration. A motion to appoint a committee to wait on the railroad was carried promptly, and Mr. Marshall, C. W. Runyon and Postmaster E. M. Bird were named.

On Mr. Feickert's suggestion a campaign of advertising was decided upon. Pamphlets descriptive of the city, its beauties, advantages and size, are to be printed and given out by the banks and business houses for distribution. The business men are to send the pamphlets out with their mail. Mr. Feickert, M. F. Pelerton and B. Frank Corlell were appointed a committee to prepare the pamphlets and distribute the copies. Mr. Marshall said he would be a good thing to hire advertising space in New York papers.

Mr. Woolston suggested the plan to convert the vacant fields near the industrial home into a play ground, where the boys might go for their baseball and other sports. The land might be rented to a town team, he said. Mr. Corlell disagreed with Mr. Woolston. He didn't think it was the part of the Board to fuss with playgrounds; the Board of Education might take it up. Mr. Corlell said he didn't believe in making places for boys to congregate anyway, unless the police made arrangements to keep order on them. He cited the failure of the swimming hole experiment. Mr. Woolston said he didn't believe the swimming hole made conditions any worse than they had been at the brook, and they might have been better if the place had been on their job.

Mr. Woolston brought up the old subject of more arc lights. The board has been asking for more for years. Everybody agreed that the city should be lighted better, but no action was taken. Mr. Runyon said the lights could be arranged without changing the present current, as the P. S. C. declared was necessary.

Mr. Woolston, in his swan song as president, explained the obstacles the Board had met with in securing for the trolley extension. One main obstacle had blocked the Watchung Valley addition and the trustees of the Baptist cemetery had stood immovably in the way of the tracks to South Plainfield along Plainfield avenue. Mr. Woolston said the people who were giving pessimistic and knock interviews on the Board of Trade to a local paper didn't understand conditions and what the Board had been up against in its work.

He admitted that new blood and more money was needed by the Board. He said he favored the reorganization that would ensue under the new management would include the boosting of dues from $2 to $5 yearly; the $2 rate, tried for a year, had failed to bring about increased membership, the only thing hoped for when it was made. It was up to the business men of the city to help the board, pay their dues cheerfully and promptly, and support the organization.

Mr. Woolston suggested a 10-trip ticket for $9 costs a trip as another concession to be sought from the railroad. It was decided to work for that in the near future.

The dinner committee reported a surplus of $32. The total expenses were $419 and something like $453 was taken in. The committee reported that the surplus was made possible by generous donations from J. Fisk and Alexander Gilbert. It is the first time a dinner has shown a balance in favor of the board, and Messrs. Fisk and Gilbert were thanked by resolution. The dinner committee was composed of Mr. Fisk, Mr. Gilbert, L. B. Woolston, H. W. Marshall and B. F. Corlell.

Secretary Feickert announced that he wouldn't accept any salary. Great applause.

President Marshall called a meeting of the newly elected officers and the two new committees for tomorrow afternoon.

Collector Thorn reported that he had taken in $203 in dues during the year. There are about 120 active members on the rolls. Two members were elected last night.

MISSIONARY SOCIETIES IN ANNUAL SESSIONS

THE FIRST PRESBYTERIAN AUXILFARIES ELECT OFFICERS.

The annual meetings of the Women's Foreign and Home Missionary Societies of the First Presbyterian church were held in the chapel, Wednesday, there being a large attendance of members at each session. Encouraging reports were presented by the secretaries and treasurers, showing an increase in the membership and funds of both organizations.

The foreign society met at 11 o'clock in the morning and enjoyed an address by Miss Alway, of Brooklyn, who has been a missionary in India for several years. She recently returned and had much to tell of her work and experiences abroad. She impressed upon all the fact the importance of mission work in India, describing the progress along the lines of education by the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions.

After the address these officers of the society were elected for the coming year: President, Miss Julia Noll; vice-president, Mrs. W. B. Hamilton; secretary, Miss Addie Dietrich; secretary, Miss Jennie Abbott; secretary of literature, Mrs. Elmer W. Poinier.

Luncheon was served during the noon hour by Mrs. Elmer W. Poinier, Mrs. W. Hamilton, Arthur Campbell, Mrs. James Petrie, Mrs. W. B. Clark and Mrs. Alvin E. Hoagland.

The Home Missionary Society convened at 2 o'clock for its annual session. The women were greatly interested in an address by Josephine Petrie, of this city, who is secretary for the Young People's Department of the Board of Home Missions. She travels considerably through the west and only recently returned from a trip to the mission stations. Her story was full of interesting incidents, which aroused much enthusiasm and promises for greater efforts.

The following officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows:

President, Mrs. Howard A. Pope; vice-president, Mrs. T. C. Bodine; secretary, Mrs. Alvin E. Hoagland; treasurer, pro tem, Mrs. Freeman; secretary of the Bible study, Mrs. John S. Johnston; secretary industrial department, Miss Fanny Kendall.

The funeral services of Sam. J. Yates were held from the residence of his mother, Mrs. J. W. Yates, on East Seventh street, Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. Dr. J. de Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, assisted by Rev. Dr. John C. Bliss, a former pastor, was in charge of the services. Both read appropriate passages of Scripture and Dr. Bliss made extended remarks on the life and character of Mr. Yates as he knew him. During the services William N. Runyon sang "Jesus Lover of My Soul," and two other favorite selections. The interment was in Hillside cemetery at the convenience of the family.

William Lambert, Editor.

The annual election of editors for the Plainfield High School paper, the Oracle, occurred yesterday: William Lambert, '08, editor-in-chief; Miss Sadie Brouwer, '09, literary; Walter Knowlton, '09, school; Miss Margaret Leggett, '10, alumni; Miss Eleanor VanTuyl, '08, exchange.

REV. MR. O'DONNELL TO GO TO NEWARK CHURCH

FORMER PLAINFIELD PASTOR ACCEPTS CALL TO TO ST. PAUL'S CHURCH.

Officers of the West Side Methodist Episcopal church in Jersey City heard unpleasant news at Wednesday's fourth and last quarterly conference of the year, it being announced that their pastor, Rev. W. C. O'Donnell, formerly of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, of Plainfield, had decided to accept a call extended him this week by St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal church in Newark. He has been in charge of the Jersey City church for the last five years and had been unanimously invited to return for another year.

The call is flattering, and one that the minister felt unwilling to decline. It is a larger field, where the capacity for good work is unlimited. The Rev. Mr. O'Donnell, who is thirty-seven years old, has already made a name for himself in the Newark conference. He has been a student at Drew Seminary and at Syracuse University. He is also one of the conference trustees of the latter institution. A fluent and interesting preacher, he has won a large congregation. The membership in the Jersey City church in the five years he has been there has nearly doubled.

The West Side church is one of the best known in the city, as it was built when the west slope of Bergen Hill was only partly populated, and since the first service the church has had a part in the life of the community. The Rev. Mr. O'Donnell has worked successfully, and his congregation are loath to have him leave.

The call will be made the first week in April, when the Newark conference meets in Morristown, unless the presiding officer of that body fails to confirm the action of the Newark church and the decision of the Jersey City pastor.

ANTIETM COMMAND, U. V. U., HAS GOOD ENTERTAINMENT.

Henry C. Drake Makes a Speech—Refreshments Are Served.

The members of Antietam Command, Union Veterans Union, together with a large number of their friends, enjoyed a social and entertainment in the camp rooms on East Front street, Wednesday. Edward E. Cowley was master of ceremonies. Henry C. Drake gave an address on the order of Union Veterans Union.

Then followed cornet and piano solos by Edward E. Townley, Jr., and, Miss Lydia Edgar; remarks by Comrade M. Bennett; solo by Comrade William Bowman, vocal duet by Miss Lydia Edgar and Miss E. Moffett, of Westfield; song by Comrade John W. Wagner, speech by John R. Taylor; sketch, "Doctor's Shop," by Andrew Mulford, A. D. Perry, Henry C. Drake and Albert Naylor; reading by Miss Harriett Gibbins; soprano solo, Miss Lydia Edgar; selection by vocal quartette, led by Miss E. Moffett; army songs by Edward Townley and comrades of Union Veterans Union; recitation by Miss Horton, president of the Women's Relief Union.

Refreshments were served after the entertainment. The committee in charge comprised Edward E. Townley, John R. Taylor, Lewis Willets, William Bowman, Henry C. Drake and Albert G. Perry.

Gets Magazine For Blind.

Percy Cannon, of East Second street, who has been blind practically all his life, has received a copy of the new magazine for the sightless, printed in raised characters. His copy is done in "New York point," a system of characters that has been used to read for twenty years. The magazine is a big publication, and costs a lot to issue. It was designed to furnish it free to all sightless Americans, but to save $8,000 a year, the difference between second class and third class mail matter, the publishers have made a subscription price of ten cents a year. Without a subscription list the magazine would have to be rated as third class matter.

Clubhouse Becomes a Stable.

The Fanwood Clubhouse, where, in years gone by, the fashionable affairs of Fanwood were held, is to become a livery stable. Mr. Hiter, the new owner of the building, has announced his intention of remodelling it into a stable and dwelling. The Suburban club, which has been occupying the clubhouse, will be left homeless by the change and will probably disband. The clubhouse was built by the original boomers of Fanwood.

Ushers' Benefit Performance.

The ushers of the New Plainfield theatre will have a benefit performance on Monday night, April 15, when the laughable production, "Tom, Dick and Harry," will be presented.

Removals.

S. T. Hand, from Central avenue, to 432 East Second street, to 121 West Second street, and Frank Lievers, from Somerset street to 182 Grove street.

Announce Engagement.

Mr. and Mrs. Garret Drake, of Arlington avenue, announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Miss Minnie Clare Drake, to Martin Hingle, of Plainfield avenue.

BRITTON AND FARLEE WIN

HAD LEAD OF NINETY

Nash and Skelly Finish Second—Britton Also Makes High Individual Score.

Scores of 200 and Over:

Britton,	255, 205,	200
Toense,		201
Skelly,	211, 204,	202, 223
Skinner,		204, 207
Dilks,		209, 201
Nash		231

By taking the lead in the fourth game and holding it by hard fighting until the finish, Joseph Farlee and Edward Britton won the twelve-hour bowling contest at McLaughlin's Wednesday. They made a grand total of 3,294 pins, ninety more than the second prize winners, V. W. Nash, Jr., and Louis Skelly. In addition, Britton knocked out high individual score, a 255. A total of eighteen games was rolled, the men being allowed to relieve each other at their own dictation.

The contest from every point of view was a big success and during the greater part of the time it was in progress the building was crowded with enthusiasts. At 9 o'clock at night the rail-birds extended three deep from the front to the alley pits and the spectators' benches back of the runaway were a solid mass of rooters. Every team had a bunch of supporters and any kind of a good play was greeted with cheers that almost raised the roof. Even at 1 o'clock this morning when the contest was being wound up, the crowd was still there, urging the men on and anxiously watching the totals on the big bulletin board.

When word was given to start at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon there were nine teams ready, the tenth, Frank Burke and Thomas O'Donnell, of Elizabeth, having dropped out at the last minute. O'Donnell was taken sick and it was impossible for him to stay in. "Fozzy" Firstbrook had a bunch of strikes up his sleeve for the first three games and during that time he held the lead. In the fourth game Joe Farlee passed over him and for the remainder of the contest, Farlee and Britton stood at the head. During the early part of the afternoon, Will Skinner climbed into second place and remained there until relieved by his partner, Harry Ackor, at 6:30. The latter is ordinarily a good man but he seemed to be in bad form and in a very short time the team had dropped to fourth. Nash and Skelley taking second and Gaddis third. Dilks and Koons remained in this position until the finish although there were times when it seemed as if Dilks would get to second. He made one of the greatest uphill fights in the contest but the nearest he got to Nash and Skelley was fifty pins. Gaddis had rolled in the afternoon with a split thumb and when Dilks came on he was holding down fourth. The newcomer went at the timber with hammer-and-tongs effect and by smashing out good scores he advanced to third and made Nash and Skelly look worried.

Late last night a large part of the interest centered about the struggle for fifth place, three teams being bunched for it. Mulien, Coney Koons and Ed Laing held it down until the last game but only a few pins stood between them and Mullen and Connors, while Muir and Firstbrook were casting eyes at itfrom seventh position. In the eighteenth round, Muir made a 179 and passed over Mullen and Connors by thirty-five and crowded Koons and Laing out of fifth place by a margin of two pins.

Britton's performance during the contest shows without the shadow of a doubt that he is one of the best amateur bowlers that ever rolled in the city. He put up eleven games for his team and his average was 189.8. Beside making the 255 high score he got a 209 and 205 and seemed to be better when he finished than when he started. In the endurance contest held at Madison a short time ago, the first of its kind in the State, the winners had an average of 184.4, while Britton's games they made an aggregate of 2821, while Britton and Farlee in the same number made 2948.

While the manner in which the contest was conducted could not be called in the strictest sense of the word a test of "endurance," the long grind told heavily on some of the bowlers. From a little before midnight until the close more than one of the men had a groggy appearance and when a ball slowly went off from where it was intended to go, the crowd yelled out, "'give him the dope,' "he's got brain fag," or "bring in his partner."

Members were kept busy bringing in coffee and sandwiches and the general appearance of things made the bicycle enthusiasts think of the six-day stunt at Madison Square Garden.

The contest was arraigned and conducted by G. E. Firstbrook and T. M. Muir and because of the manner in which it was received they will arrange another and more difficult one later on. The winning team got $15 as its prize and the second men $5. For making high score Britton got an additional $5.

Following is the result of the contest in detail:

PLAINFIELD BOWLERS DEFEAT NEWARKERS

HACQUER'S TEAM DEFEATS NEWARK NEWS AGGREGATION.

The Plainfield "newspaper" bowling team defeated the Newark News five on the Tuxedo alleys, Newark, Friday, two games out of three. It was the first time Plainfield newspaper workers ever won anything from a News sporting combination, and the victors are wearing dazed expressions today; they were a heap sight more surprised than "Fozzy" Firstbrook's whirlwinds.

Plainfield took the first and the third games. Every Plainfielder but Cutting and Stout limped in the second game and the five were badly trounced. But they came back strong in the third, piled up the high team score and handed the wallop to Newark in a big mitt.

Refreshments that refreshed were served in Fred Nelson's tap room after the game. The victors will meet the vanquished again in this city, in a week or two. The bowling matches now stand one and one, and when the teams shoot here friendship will be chucked overboard and everybody will go after the other fellow's scalp.

The scores:

Firstbrook	159	176	123
Gunn	88	160	106
Higgins	137	156	165
Hughes	128	148	147

FUNERAL OF MRS. APGAR.

Rev. Dr. Chambliss Conducted the Services Saturday.

The funeral services of Mrs. Henry H. Apgar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Saxton, were held at 2:30 o'clock Saturday from her late home on West Eighth street. Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, of which Mrs. Apgar was a member, officiated. There was a large attendance of relatives and young friends and there were numerous floral tributes, including pillows and wreaths. During the services E. E. Runyon sang two favorite selections.

The interment took place in Hillside cemtery and the pall-bearers were J. D. Voorhees, Chester Gaskill, Frederick Phillips, Maurice Sutphen, Richard Randolph, Clifford D. Manning.

Clock and Steam Engine.

An attraction in the show window of J. Hervey Doane, of Park avenue, is a French clock and miniature steam engine combined. There is indicated, in addition to the time, the temperature and forecast of the weather. The clock is owned by Fred Hand, of East Second street, and originally cost $250.

Mrs. Hall's Lectures.

Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, of Madison avenue, has returned from Pennsylvania, where she gave two lectures at the Birmingham school, entitled "The Cardinal Points of Good Manners," and "Manners of Home and School."

HE HAS LIVED A LIFE OF VARIED ADVENTURE

COL. JOHN DIETRICH WAS A FORTY-NINER AND A SOLDIER.

There lives at the Margaret Home for Friends on Arlington avenue a man who has lived a life of adventure, and is one of those attractive personalities known in history as "fighting Quakers." He is Col. John Dietrich, whose wife left the home to the New York Society of Friends at her death.

Col. Dietrich was born in Belvidere, Warren county, in 1821, and is consequently 86 years old. His mother wanted him to go to college, but he desired to learn a trade, and with her consent, he went to Bloomington, Ill., in 1837, with his brother Martin, to learn the tinker's trade in a little shop conducted by another brother, George. He learned the trade well and a few years later entered into the hardware business with a nephew in Bloomington.

In 1849 he went to New York to buy a bill of goods, and was caught by the California fever that was raging there at the time. He took passage to the Isthmus of Panama with a friend and made his way from there to San Francisco with an adventurous steamer load of forty-niners. He stayed in the gold fields seven months, but went to other parts of California after that time. He returned to Bloomington after two years and nine months with $10,000 in gold. He went back into the hardware trade and prospered in it diligently that his business was in a big brick building, four stories high, quite a contrast from the small shop where he had learned his trade.

While in Bloomington, Mr. Dietrich had made the close acquaintance of Abraham Lincoln, when practicing law, and of Gen. Grant, whose father had sold him a good bit of the leather he used in his business. He often visited Lincoln at his home in Springfield and learned to love and admire him as did all those who came into close contact with the great statesman. He heard Lincoln's first public address, at the Second Presbyterian church, Springfield, in 1842.

When Col. Dietrich left Bloomington in 1862 he went into the treasury department at Washington, where he remained until 1863. Then the feeling that his place was at the front impelled him to seek the fighting line. He proceeded straight to the army before Vicksburg, and was given a berth in the quartermaster's department. When Vicksburg fell, and the first Meridian raid was organized, Grant made Mr. Dietrich colonel of the First Mississippi regiment, on guard at the captured city. That was the way in which he achieved his title.

After the war Colonel Dietrich rendered valuable service in the work of reconstruction. He served as surveyor of customs of the Galveston District, Texas, and after that as postmaster of Calvert county. He held the latter office simply to straighten it out and suppress the disorder that was demoralizing the service. He did it most effectively, and so energetically, that he was the recipient of a Ku-Klux warning. He paid no attention to it, and demonstrated that he was not to be intimidated. On more than one occasion his knife and his revolver and the knowledge that he knew how to use both were the only things that kept him from harm.

In 1873, things quieting down sufficiently to allow of the move, Col. Dietrich retired, and came to Plainfield. He married his second wife, who was Miss Margaret B. Laing, here. His life since 1876 has been quiet. He lives contentedly, active though in his 86th age, among an interesting collection of relics. Among the latter are pictures of Presidents Lincoln and Grant, presented to him by the originals, at the White House.

SOMERSET FREEHOLDERS ABSENT; NO CONFERENCE.

Matter of Wing Walls for West End Avenue Bridge Hangs Fire.

Business of little general importance was transacted at the March meeting of the Union County Board of Freeholders, yesterday. A new committee, comprising S. P. T. Wilbur, J. Hervey Doane, Adolph Gruener, John Robinson and C. A. Smith, was appointed to look after the new bridge on West End avenue, and see to the completion of the wing walls, to be built by the two counties.

This committee was to have met members of the Somerset County Board of Freeholders, at the office of Engineer Frank J. Hubbard, this morning, but the Somerset members failed to appear and Freeholder Wilbur, as chairman adjourned the meeting subject to his call.

The director also appointed a committee of Freeholders, Thomas Pierson, chairman; S. P. T. Wilbur, Thomas Donohue, Henry Krausse and John Robinson to confer with the Elizabeth and Staten Island Ferry Company looking to a more favorable rate of fare across that ferry. The present fare is five cents and the distance is so short that it is considered exorbitant.

Attention was also called to the fact that cables run across a bridge in Rahway and were out of position and need repairs. This matter will be looked after by the Rahway member of the board.

PROBERS HEAR REPORTS

Municipal Ownership Commission's Committee Present Findings.

WANT APPROPRIATION

Have Not Estimated As Yet Probable Cost—Engineering Work in the Spring.

Seven of the fourteen members, comprising the water investigation committee, appointed by Mayor C. J. Fisk, attended the regular session held in the office of the Mayor Friday night. They were George H. Frost, Harry L. Hall, Dr. J. H. Cooley, Joseph O. Osgood, William Newcorn, William A. Coddington and W. S. Tyler. Preliminary reports from the legal and engineering committees were presented. It was decided to ask the Common Council for an appropriation of money for the necessary expenses of the commission.

At the last meeting it was decided by a vote that the legal committee should confer with Corporation Counsel Marsh with a view to obtaining definite information as to the rights of the city in relation to the operation of the Plainfield-Union Water Company in this city, and especially that feature of selling water out of the city to other towns and cities.

While no definite report was presented on this question, it is understood that the legal committee has satisfied itself as to vested rights enjoyed by the water company, that its interests are well protected in every way and that there is no barrier to selling water in other towns and cities outside of Plainfield.

It is understood that the legal committee has examined the original charter of the water company and investigated facts relating to the merger of the Plainfield and Union Water companies, now the Plainfield-Union Water Company, and has learned that the company has extensive rights and privileges which will be difficult to overcome.

There seems to be no question but that the city would have the right to condemn the holdings of the water company for the purpose of purchasing the plant, but whether this would be an advisable procedure is still an open question. The commission has not yet reached that point where it has any idea as to the probable cost of acquiring the present plant by purchase or establishing an independent plant. The principal question to be decided first is what rights the city has and how and upon what lines it can legally proceed. When these things are determined, then will follow an investigation into probable cost.

The report of the engineering committee was more of a preliminary character. It does not feel like employing an expert engineer for the present, until some progress is made for expenses and until the weather is suitable for carrying on that part of the work.

The next meeting of the commission will be held on Friday night, April 12.

MERWIN INVESTIGATING THE OPIUM TRAFFIC.

Sails for Orient to Use "Muck Rake" for Public's Benefit.

Samuel Merwin, of this city, who is on the staff of Success Magazine, has been commissioned by that periodical to unearth the details and get at the true facts regarding the opium trade. He is now on his way to the Orient, and within the next few months the magazine will begin the publication of a series of articles on the opium traffic. These will be accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. I. S. Stephenson and Miss Ethel Stephenson, will sail on the Cedric, of the White Star Line, March 22, to meet Mr. Merwin in Liverpool.

While Mr. Merwin is in the Orient he will make a complete investigation of the Japanese grievances, regarding the alleged treatment of the Japanese children in the public schools of San Francisco, and he will also visit the Philippines in the interest of Success Magazine.

Mixed on Time of Meeting.

Thinking that it was Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock that they were to meet the bridge committee from the Union County Board of Freeholders, instead of in the morning, the members from the Somerset County Board came to Plainfield in the afternoon. They failed to find any of the Union county members, but later they got in communication with Freeholder Wilbur, chairman of his committee, and Wednesday, March 20, was the next date fixed for the meeting to decide about the wing walls for the West End avenue bridge. This time the meeting will be held at the Hotel Iroquois.

Will Reside in Detroit.

Mr. and Mrs. Blake Broadbent Tatham, who were recently married at the home of the bride's parents, Freeholder and Mrs. S. P. T. Wilbur, of Westervelt avenue, have changed their plans and will reside in Detroit, Mich., where Mr. Tatham has a position with a large automobile house. They had been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur and left on Wednesday over the Lehigh Valley Railroad for their new home.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

March 17: "Immortality."

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

John xi. 25, 26; xiv. 1, 2; Rom. viii. 16, 17; II Cor. v. 1-8.

A little span of years bounded by occurrences mystery before and behind and all around—such is the existence of ours. We came here, we did not remember when, we do not know whence or how. We go, how soon none can tell, whither? Who can answer?

Ah, but it is not so important whither we go as what we are when we go. Myself is the thing of moment, and not the place I choose to be in, but the garments I have for the journeying put on. Whether hither or yon I may go, the one thing that abides is myself. And life is not in place of things so much, not the outward, but the inner, thinking, feeling and doing side. I am I whether at home or over there in distant lands, among friends or strangers.

And life is not in years so much either. Life is in the fullness of our thinking, feeling, doing. Life is just simply being me. But what me? If is not some life to feel the ugly, vengeful, proud, boastful, coveting, hating, evil loving, hateful powers and feeling growing more powerful and clamorous and choking down all the sweeter and gentler elements.

It is to feel the good and delight and joyous and cheerful emotions gaining strength and filling increasingly all the channels of existence. It is in getting more of the God power and love within and working out in all our activities that is living.

What, then, is immortality? Is it simply the extension of time, the adding to earthly years a greater number, the piling up of earthly sensations and experiences a greater stock? Is that immortality? Hardly.

Immortality is a new existence, different in quality from the sensuous and earthly. It is of the inner spirit. It has thought and feeling and action of spirit in doing. But it has love and joy and sweetness of hope and all the heavenly graces which a human spirit can receive from God the Father of Spirits. It is communion with God in all that pertains to spirit-life. This is what is meant when in the new Testament eternal life is represented as being had in time on this earth. But there is more to it than can ever be developed on earthly soil.

These bodies are earthly and mortal. When these have been laid aside, then the spirit, freed from this body of corruption, will be clothed upon with that body which is from heaven, like unto the glorious body of our blessed Lord Jesus Christ.

What is that to be like? We ask. But who can answer? No one could describe it, who could understand the meaning of it all?

You have seen fish and you have seen the flesh of animals. You have seen how these live. If you had seen only the flesh, could pictures, would you ever be able to imagine what a bird was like if any one should describe one to you?

That glorified body is to be different from anything we have ever seen or that has ever been known since Adam, is now in the possession of our Lord. We are to be like Him. Fancy can picture it rightly. What use to attempt the task?

Enough for us that we shall have the body fitted for the purified spirit and shall be with the Master in the mansions of our Father's house.

Our care should be to so cultivate the eternal life now within that we shall be ready when this tabernacle is dissolved to receive the new one, the building of God.

Rejoicing in God's Goodness.

Why should we not rejoice in the good things of life? Nothing is pure and sweet, we enjoy gladness. Why should we not rejoice in the serene light of truth that shines from heaven upon us? We find joy in the presence and cheerful greeting of our friends. Why should we not look up to heaven with a pure heart and most loving face look upon us with divine affection and with most tender desire to cheer and help us? Having an almighty and most loving Father, in whom we live and move and have our being, let us rejoice in Him. Having a most loving Saviour, who has made Himself our brother and feeds us with His life, we ought surely to rejoice in Him. Having the Holy Spirit of God with us, making us His temples and pouring His love into our hearts, we ought to rejoice in Him. Rejoice and rejoice in His overflowing goodness. "Rejoice in the Lord always, and again I say, Rejoice."—William Bernard Ullathorne.

Christlike.

How easily and contentedly we speak of Jesus Christ as our example. Do we realize what it means? If we did, it would revolutionize our life. Do we begin to know our Divine Master? He did? Do we begin to pray as He did? How thoughtful He was for others, how patient toward dullness, how quiet under insult! Think of what a moment for Him to take a basin and towel, like a slave, and wash the disciples' feet! Do we stoop to serve? Can any one say of us, as was said of His, that we go about "doing good?" Think of His words, servants of His, "I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you."

"Christlike" is a word often on our lips. Do not speak it too lightly. It is the heart of God's predestination. It is our high calling.—Maltbie D. Babcock.

Sacrifice.

Very few of us will have the chance of heroic self devotion, but every day brings the petty, wearing sacrifice which weighs full weight in God's scales.—Ongoa?

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic—What is success?—Prov. iii. 1-18.

Success in a purely technical sense "the attainment of a proposed object." In this sense the man who makes it the object of his life to win a great fortune and does so is successful in that he accomplishes what he has aimed for. But the word as used in our topic has a much broader meaning. It refers to success in life. What is a successful life? To this question varied answers would be given by different people. It all depends upon our conception of life. To many people the amassing of wealth is success, to others the attainment of high position, and to others again it is the winning of fame in one form or another. But life is made up of many interests, and the reaching of no one goal will necessarily mean success. Many men have reached positions of wealth, of high honor and fame, and yet their lives have been failures. They themselves in so few instances would be the first to pronounce them so. Let us then get no false idea of success.

What, then, is success? If compelled to answer this question simply and plainly, what better answer could be given than that success is the faithful performance of all the duties of life that devolve upon us. God brings every human being into this world for a purpose, and he who comes the nearest to the fulfillment of that purpose is successful, whether he be rich or poor, occupying high or humble position or his name be known or unknown to the world. He is successful who at the end of life can look back and say with the Master, "I have accomplished the work which Thou gavest me to do." And nothing else is success. Honors won in one direction will not make up for failure to perform the duties of life in other directions.

Success in life, broad and truest sense embraces the duties owed to God, to our fellow men and to ourselves. God must stand first in every successful life. The life that ignores or neglects God is a failure, a total failure. To neglect God is to neglect the soul, the highest, the immortal part of our being, and of course there can be no success in such a life. Then we sustain various relations to the rest of the people of the world. A selfish life is never a successful life. The man who thinks not of his duties to others, or, even worse, mistreats them for the accomplishment of his own personal ambitions, cannot be looked upon as successful. We owe duties to ourselves, and these are not to be neglected or abused.

Solomon was most competent to speak with authority upon the subject of success. His experience in those things which the world commonly looks upon as success make his words of especial value upon the subject. He had wisdom, wealth, pleasure, power, honor, fame. Perhaps he has never been surpassed in the glory and splendors of earthly honors that were his. And yet he does not declare that these things spell success. He ignores them and exalts especially obedience to God, the right treatment of our fellow men and the cultivation of the personal virtues that make a good character as the essential things in life. As his life drew to a close he looked back upon it all, and, forgetting all earthly splendor and glory, he declared: "Fear God and keep His commandments: this is the whole duty of man." Do this, and your life will be successful. Otherwise it will be a failure. Which will you choose to make it?

Prov. i. 7, 10; ii. 9; iii. 1-4; xi. 1-8; xxii. 1, 2; Eccl. ii. 1-11; xii. 1, 13, 14; Matt. v. 1-12; vi. 24-34; John xvii. 1-4.

The New General Secretary.

At a recent meeting of the board of trustees of the United Society of Christian Endeavor William Shaw of Boston, who has been identified with the Christian Endeavor movement for more than twenty years, was chosen general secretary of the United Society of Christian Endeavor in the place of Von Ogden Vogt, who has resigned the general secretaryship in order to take up a position with the Presbyterian home mission board. Mr. Shaw is unusually gifted for his new position. During the last year alone he has traveled tens of thousands of miles, addressing not less than 125 unions in twenty-eight states. During the past three years there has been a net gain of 5,000 Christian Endeavor societies, as shown by the records in the general secretary's office at Boston.

Patriotic Endeavor.

The Christian Endeavors of Winnipeg, Canada, showed their patriotic spirit in the erection of a monument in front of the town hall to the memory of Queen Victoria. The C. E. monogram is carved on the stone at either side of a turfed bend, and the pillar is surmounted with a bust of the queen.

Conventions Mean Work.

In preparing for the recent Australasian Christian Endeavor convention 3,500 items of correspondence were issued by the convention secretary.

The Recruiting Office.

LITERARY

The Pacific Coast has a District Attorney who does things. Francis J. Heney, who has recently been selected to push the prosecution of the grafters of San Francisco, established a new record for effective public service in securing the conviction of the Oregon land thieves a year ago. Success Magazine for January contains, under the title "Francis J. Heney—Fighting Man," a forceful characterization by Henry Beach Needham, of the methods and achievements of this Government attorney, who has been hailed as "the biggest man in the West." Out of thirty-four men, Government and State officials, bankers, lawyers and timber speculators, says Mr. Needham, thirty-three have been found guilty! Surely a remarkable record. Mr. Heney has lately joined the governing committee of the People's Lobby, the new bureau lately organized to operate in the interest to further congressional bills in the interest of the people.

The homes of a hundred and fifty thousand families in America have, in the last six years, been perturbed over the problem of the best choice in the first purchase of an automobile; there are still other hundreds of thousands to whom the same crucial question is every month getting nearer and nearer, and the longer it is postponed the more the car will cost. Few, very few automobiles have been ultimately disappointed, and whenever it has been the case, it has arisen from the buyers' lack of thoroughness in determining beforehand exactly what they wanted and the particular automobile to accomplish. In the hurry and excitement, and in the ever present fear that, if they did not make a swift selection, they would have to wait for a future delivery, they threw prudence to the winds. They wanted an automobile and they wanted it badly, and they fell victims to the ready tongues of the salesmen, who glazed over the fact that all automobiles are not alike, any more than all horses are. —Charles Quincy Turner in March Recreation.

The March Atlantic fittingly observes the centenary of Longfellow by printing a brief but position is an eloquent poem upon the well-beloved poet by Thomas Bailey Aldrich. The quality of the piece is worthy of the author, than which there can be no higher praise. Coming as it does from one of the most American poets, who was an intimate friend of Longfellow's, it is likely to be as significant a centennial expression as we shall see. The number also contains a study of Longfellow's genius and influence by Lafcadio Hearn and Bliss Perry. Of the more solid contributions to the number, special mention must be given to the first installment of a keenly interesting examination of The Statesmanship of Abraham Lincoln, by Horace White, an important and helpful paper upon Efficiency in Making Bequests, by W. H. Allen, agent of the New York Association for the Improvement of the Condition of the Poor, an instructive presentation of the events of the year in Mexico by Frederic R. Guernsey, and an important paper on The Study of National Culture, by Professor Kuno Francke.

The Circle Magazine for March is a big number, beautifully illustrated, and has a good showing of original articles and fiction on many subjects, besides the twenty-five regular departments that make this magazine such a strong favorite in the home circle. The original articles include "The Adventurous Army of Bible-Sowers," by William George Fitz-Gerald; "The Beauty and Youth of Japan," by Yone Noguchi; "Curios," Edward Everett Hale, Senator William P. Frye, John Burroughs, Thos. Wentworth Higginson, Edwin Markham, and others; "A Singer's Art and Philosophy," by Madame Emma Eames-Story; "The Magic of Salesmanship," by Clifton Johnson; "Old Violins and Their Makers," by Elizabeth Mitchell Stephenson; "The Making of a Singer," by Madame Anna Arnaud. The fiction includes several stories by Lillian Trowbridge Taylor, Edith Hugenet, Marion J. Brunowe and others. The current issue of this beautiful magazine, now on the news stands, contains some exquisite results in color work. The frontispiece is a study from a reproduced in dark shade of red by the photogravure process. Another color study is from a photograph of Margaret Anglin in her remarkable success, "The Great Divide." The art form contains a brief sketch of Titian with reproductions from his most famous paintings reproduced in an exquisite art tone ink. An interesting story on life in Mexico is superbly illustrated with unusual photographs. Under the heading of People of Note William Dean Howells, ex-President Cleveland, Mrs. Cleveland, President Diaz of Mexico, and the Hon. James Bruce, the new English Ambassador, are given prominent place. A special form consists of many prominent singers in the operatic world and a number of prominent actresses.

There are about 4,000 lepers in Colombia, or one to every thousand inhabitants. Most of them are now isolated. Cases are rarely found among the classes living with hygienic care.

The village of West Rutland, Vt., with its 3,000 inhabitants, probably has more churches in proportion to its size than any other town in New England. There are nine, all of different denominations.

The world has only 10,000,000,000 tons of coal now available, and these Germany has twice as many tons as the United States. Russia and France each have 400,000,000 tons more than this country. Our consumption is placed at 35,000,000, which is more than a third of the world's total consumption.

Black walnut is produced in this country at an annual rate of about 33,000,000 feet. The larger portion of it now comes from southwestern Missouri, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Indian Territories, although there is some scattering growth still picked up in Indiana, Ohio, Tennessee and West Virginia.

At one of New York's most select boarding schools for girls some of the pupils have formed a society for the abolition of slang and fine themselves 10 cents for every slang word they use. One golden haired miss recently reported at the secretary's desk in a silvery voice, "Thirty cents—two 'swells' and a 'beaut.'"

The improvements to the Suez canal now under way include an increase of depth throughout to thirty-one feet and the bottom width to 128 feet, which will permit an increase of speed of vessels passing through it from six to nine miles an hour. This will enable ships to make the passage through the canal in twelve hours, about six hours less than at present.

Any one who is acquainted with the insect life of Florida will remember the ubiquitous ant, and now comes the alarm sounded in the Entomological News that several varieties of tropical ants have been discovered in Florida and Alabama, being recent introductions. One of these, which is an especially destructive pest, feeds on either vegetable or animal substances.

YOUR BEDROOM.

"How do you ever do it, Beatty? Your room always looks as if it had just been cleaned and arranged for my arrival, no matter when I come, while as for myself, a cyclone would refuse to strike it!"

"Nonsense, Laura! My neatness is nothing compared with Mabel's, for instance. Why, when she wants to remember an engagement in the morning she puts something a trifle out of place on the bureau before."

"Well, it's too much for me. How do you both manage?"

"I'm sure I don't know about her, but if I have any rules at all it is, 'Put everything back as soon as you're through with it.' That is to say, when I go to bed I don't leave my things hanging around to be put away in the morning, but I do it at once. Then, when I'm through writing at my desk, too, I see that everything is in order before I leave it. That's all there is to it—simply the old adage, 'A place for everything, and everything in its place."—Philadelphia North American.

The Spring Hat.

Cute and saucy are the terms that best describes the sprint hat, as it is presaged in advance models for southern wear. It is small, coquettishly bent and twisted and of that delightfully piquant becomingness which women so like and millinery have awaited in vain for some years.

SILVER IN MEXICAN CHURCHES.

One Altar Railing in Cathedral Which is Valued at $3,000,000.

"The amount of pure silver found in the Mexican churches is almost fabulous," said William P. Beyer, of Mexico City, as quoted in the Milwaukee Sentinel. "In the Mexican Cathedral, which has stood for several centuries, the altar railing is composed of virgin silver and represents an outlay of $3,000,000. All the altar coverings are generously covered with silver, and it is estimated that there is more than $30,000,000 work of the valuable product used in decorating the Mexican cathedrals. Up to the present day the Mexicans have little use for silver as a commercial product, and even the poorer classes use the greater part of their silver possessions for decorations.

"In the days of the Spanish rule, when the cathedral was built, there were several historically fabulous silver mines near the city, one containing surface ore of great value. The ignorant Indians had no knowledge of its value, and when the explorers discovered them wearing large chunks of it in necklaces they found where the valuable mines were.

"Most of the silver was deposited in the churches, and when the people were unable to use it as money they decorated their houses and churches. Every rich home in Mexico has hundreds of dollars worth of silver ornaments. When the American visits a Mexican home he is told by the polite host that whatever he wishes is his. This, of course, is only a polite Spanish expression, and oftentimes the American does not understand this and selects some costly silver ornament. As the rich Mexican is too polite to explain matters, he often loses many valuable silver articles, and many of them have found their way to American homes and are prized beyond value."

FACTS ABOUT PHILADELPHIA.

Philadelphia, with one-sixtieth of the population of the United States, produces one-twentieth of its manufactures. Its output equals the total product of New Jersey and is twice that of California.

Philadelphia's 15,887 manufacturing establishments represent a capital investment of $476,529,407; employ 246,445 persons; pay annually $111,847,076 in salaries; consume annually raw material worth $226,-827,444, and have a total annual output valued at $603,446,526.

Philadelphia, with over 1,000 wholesale houses, has a wholesale trade estimated at $500,000,000 a year.

Three leading railroad systems—the Pennsylvania, Baltimore and Ohio and Philadelphia and Reading—have their main offices in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia leads the world in manufacturing carpets and rugs with 150 mills employing 16,500 persons and having an output worth $25,000,-000 a year.

Ninety-three establishments manufacture woolen cloths worth $18,-340,012 annually, 32 firms make worsted cloths valued at $16,242,250 annually and 150 knit goods mills produce $15,000,000 in goods each year.

Eighty-four hat and cap factories, 397 clothing manufacturers and 66 shirt houses produce goods to the total value of $33,000,000 a year.

The Man of the Hour.

An unusually large number of people have been attracted to the performances of "The Man of the Hour" at the Savoy theatre, New York. Many men and women in eminent positions have witnessed performances of this wonderfully successful production of George Broadhurst's unique play, and they have with one accord been loud in their praise of the production. On Friday night last United States Senator Robert M. La Follette, of Wisconsin, was the guest of Wm. A. Brady and Joseph R. Grismer, and after the performance said: "The Man of the Hour" is indeed a great play, ably acted. The action of the piece develops along lines that I have been following in my political career for many years. It shows up 'graft' in public affairs, and illustrates the great pressure brought to bear upon a public official who seeks to fulfill his obligations to the people. Such a play should have tremendous influence, for the stage is as powerful in its influence as the press or the pulpit." There is reference to Senator La Follette in "The Man of the Hour" in the debate between the mayor and the political boss, and this reference called forth much applause complimentary to Senator La Follette.

A Wonder.

A number of military men in a Washington hotel were giving an account of an incident of the Civil War. A quiet man who stood by at last said:

"Gentlemen, I happened to be there and might be able to refresh your memory as to what took place in reference to the event just narrated."

The hotel keeper said to him:

"Sir, what might have been your rank?"

"I was a private."

Next day the quiet man as he was about to depart asked for his bill.

"Not a cent, sir; not a cent," answered the proprietor. "You are the very first private I ever met."—New York Times.

HOW GIRLS HAVE CHANGED.

Boast of Having No "Parlor Tricks" and Are Most Practical.

"What has become of the "accomplished girl?" Whither has she gone and why did she depart? She was very conspicuous a generation or two ago. All the Araminias of our grandmothers' day spoke with a little French—they invariably began their letters "Cher ami," if history is to be believed—they could thrum an accompaniment on the guitar while they warbled entertainingly of "Juniata," and usually they could play the harp and the piano as well.

Many of these young women could paint and draw, all could sew and not a few could embroider beautifully.

Unless they were equipped at least as well as this they were considered hopelessly uneducated and uncivilized.

They were not "up" in algebra and geometry, to be sure. They knew little of philosophy and political economy, having given their masculine studies, but they had the accomplishments.

Moreover, they had beautiful manners, and they spoke good and not hurried or slipshod English.

The average girl of the day seems proud to boast that she has no "parlor tricks." She can play on the piano a little, perhaps, but she is not particularly proud of that fact; her French is miserable, despite the four or five years she sat under a teacher of modern languages, and she notes to her friends in the next row. She cannot sing a bit. She would disdain to paint the trifling things in which her grandmother took such pleasure. She wishes to be a Murillo or a Velasquez or nothing.

Her equipment is more of the solid sort which has to do with the sciences. She can't even recite "The Maniac's Lament," to add to the gaiety of drawing-rooms.

She's nothing if not practical and prosaic.

OLDEST LIVING TREES.

It may, of course, be known to scientists, but it will come to the ordinary "man in the street" as news, that trees are standing in this country which are 2,000 or 3,000 years old, says the London News.

The point has been evolved by a correspondent in The Times. Some time since the claim was put forward that the famous plane tree of Stanway was the oldest living tree. But Sir George Birdwood makes short work of the pretension.

"We have not to cross the channel," he writes, "to find trees of a standing long prior to the date of St. Luke—the yew trees of Braburn, Kent (3,000 years); Darley Churchyard, Derbyshire (2,096 years); and Firtingal, Aberfeldy, Perthshire (2,500-2,600 years); while other long-lived British yews are those of Crowhurst, Surrey (1,400 years); Grasford, North Wales (1,400 years); and Fountains Abbey, Ripon, Yorkshire (1,200); these instances and figures being taken from Humboldt's 'Views of Nature.'

"Otherwise, remote from 'this other Eden' of ours, there is the colossal arbor-vitæ tree of Orotava, in Teneriffe, of limitless date in the dark backward and abysm of time,' the immemorial worship of the aboriginal Guanches, and, like them, an isolated survival from the lost Atlantean lands of the Hesperides. Adanson reckoned the baobabs of Senegal to be at least 5,000 years, and an equal age must be accorded to the deciduous cypress of Mexico, the Wellingtonias of California, and, as some insist, the chestnuts of Mt. Etna.

"Also among the oldest of old-world trees must be ranked the double cocoanut of the Seychelles, and the sacred Bo, that is, Buddha's trees, and allied banyan trees of India, including Ceylon.'

MONEY.

Norway even now uses corn for currency.

Absolutely pure gold is twenty-four carats fine.

In some districts of New Guinea female slaves form the standard of value.

Seashells were the earliest forms of money, the skins of animals coming next as a substitute.

It is an interesting fact that the Japanese coins in the matter of fineness are superior to all others.

The Danish and Irish laws yet have traces of the ancient cattle for money. Many Teutonic fines were paid in cattle.

In the days of 1849 of California the ounce of pure gold ($16.50) formed the common medium of exchange. The most interesting form of money was a lump of gold, called a slug, equaling just $50.

The Evils of Divorce.

Wilfred and Elsie were quarreling over a costly doll. Wilfred had a good grip on the doll's leg, and Elsie held on to the china head with both hands. They pulled and quarreled simultaneously.

"Elsie," came mamma's voice from somewhere in the kitchen, "what's all that noise about?"

After a short pause Elsie replied: "Nothin', ma. We're only playin' divorce, an' Wilfred's fightin' for the custody of our doll."—Judge.

INDIANA'S FIRST VOTE.

This story was told by an Indiana Congressman at a private dinner in Washington, says the New York Sun. It interested all who heard it, and to some it was new history. The point of the story is that Indiana enjoyed a distinction different from all other States in the Union in that it cast its electoral vote for a President of the United States before it was admitted into the Union.

"Indiana adopted her Constitution June 16, 1816," he said. "It was admitted as a State on December 11 of the same year.

"In the summer, between the adoption of the Constitution and the admission as a State, Indiana elected a Governor, Lieutenant-Governor and a Legislature. The Legislature met in November, elected two United States senators, and chose three Presidential electors.

"The two houses of Congress met in joint session in February, 1817, to canvass the electoral vote. When the vote of Indiana was to be opened a Representative from New York—I do not recall his name—objected to the vote.

"He was about to speak his objection when Henry Clay, then Speaker, ruled that as the two houses had met for a specific purpose of per*forming a constitutional duty, they* could not perform any business not prescribed by the Constitution. A Representative from a New England State rose to say privately to the papers I could give his name and State—suggested that the matter could be considered by the House if the Senate would retire.

"The Senate retired by unanimous vote. The Representative who had objected to receiving Indiana's vote thereupon took the floor and argued the proposition that Indiana was not a State when its election took place He moved that a joint resolution be passed declaring that the vote of Indiana was illegal.

"The debate turned upon the question whether Indiana was a State after the adoption of its Constitution and before its admission into the Union. I recall it, the power of Congress to reject the vote—if it were not a State—was not questioned by the House. But at that point a motion to postpone indefinitely was carried unanimously.

"The Senate was then informed of this, and that body returning to the House, the count was resumed. In that count Indiana cast its first electoral votes, three in number, and they were for Monroe and Tompkins. But "Unless my memory has slipped a cog no State in the Union has a similar history in the electoral college. I have always said that the prompt ruling of Henry Clay saved the State."

PROBABLY HEIRS TO A $250,000 ESTATE.

If the contents of a letter received yesterday by the family of the late James P. Smith, of No. 95 Brill street, Newark, are true, the family will be raised from its present humble station to one of affluence. So will Thomas Smith, a brother of James, and Elizabeth Martin, of Lexington avenue, Manhattan. The three named were first cousins of James Bell, a bachelor, who made a fortune in the diamond fields of Africa and died some time ago in County Craven, Ireland, leaving an estate valued at $250,000.

The letter, which was addressed to James P. Smith, who died four years ago, was opened by his son, Thomas P., who with his mother and several brothers and sisters still occupy the Smith home. It came from H. P. Kennedy, a crown solicitor in Cavan, Ireland. It told of the death of Bell and the fact that the heirs to his estate are James P. Smith, of Newark, and Thomas and Elizabeth Martin, all first cousins. It suggested that they take steps at once to secure the property.

Mrs. Smith, the widow of James, and her brother-in-law, Thomas Smith, after having read the letter, said there could be no doubt they are the persons to whom it refers. Smith added that "Jimmie" Bell left home many years ago to take up mining in South Africa. James Smith followed some time after and wrote Bell to get him to return, but he refused. Nothing was heard of Bell after that. It was believed by the family that he had died long ago.

The Smiths expect Thomas Curry, of Elsiefontein, E. L., to whom the letter will be taken by them, to prove they are the heirs. Curry, who also was a miner in South Africa, was well acquainted with Bell and also with the late James P. Smith and his brother Thomas. Curry will be secured as to the identification of the Newark Smiths, and they will then take steps to obtain the money left by Bell.

Short Rotation of Crops.

Every farmer realizes the value of a short rotation of crops in maintaining the fertility of the soil. Yet it is not at all uncommon to seed to timothy and clover and mow the field for three or four consecutive years till every vestige of clover has disappeared and nearly all the value of the clover plant as a renovator of the soil is lost, says a writer in Ohio Farmer. I believe sowing timothy with the clover is all right. I always practice it. Then I am quite sure of a catch, and I get more and better hay. There are also other advantages which space forbids I should enumerate here. I believe, though, that the meadow should be mowed but once and clover more than twice before plowing.

WHAT CAUSES CONSUMPTION?

After years of investigation and experiment, Prof. E. vonBehring, of the University of Magburg, Germany, makes the somewhat startling statement that notwithstanding the teachings of Prof. Koch and other recognized authorities on tuberculosis, pulmonary consumption is rarely acquired by breathing in contaminated air ladened with tubercule bacilli which lodge in the lungs. The world famous discoverer of diphtheria antoxin, who is the peer of Koch as a bacteriologist, holds to the theory that in the great majority of cases the bacili find their way into the human system through milk absorbed by the intestines and carried to the lungs through the blood and lymph. He reasons that the disease is really contracted, in most instances, in infancy, while Koch says that it works into the human system more frequently in adult life.

In an exceptionally instructive discussion of the struggle against tuberculosis, in the current issue of The Independent, Dr. von Behring says that he considers the care of cattle consequently, the most important element in the battle with this greatest curse of humankind. Dr. Koch on the other hand, has always held to the view that the only way to get rid of the disease is to prevent human beings from inhaling the consumptive sputum.

All this brings to mind the work of the Plainfield Board of Health which is fighting the battle on both theories, although there is no doubt that that body as well as the Plainfield Clinical Society places more confidence on the milk theory. At best judging from the regulations the local health authorities have established concerning the remedy and prevention of pulmonary consumption, the view is shared here in common with other such bodies throughout the country that the bacili breathed into the lungs is the root of the evil and that the best way to end the plague is to stop consumptives expectorating in such places where dried sputum is likely to be inhaled by healthy persons.

PEOPLE APATHETIC.

Excepting among a few enthusiastic and public spirited citizens little or no interest is being taken in the proposition to merge North Plainfield into Plainfield. In fact the Boroughites are lukewarm and the people of Plainfield appear to be indifferent on the subject. This situation is in marked contrast to the condition five years ago when the annexation campaign was at fever heat.

Just why this state of affairs exists it is difficult to say, though several causes have been assigned by those in a position to know whereof they speak. One delcares that the rule adopted by the bi-municipal commission to prevent publicity regarding the proceedings of its meetings has had a bad effect, while another is equally sanguine that the taxpayers of the city do not see what is to be gained by the suggested merger. That North Plainfield has everything to win and nothing to lose, and that the reverse is the case so far as Plainfield is concerned, is frequently stated.

The membership of the commission is composed of the most intelligent class of men to be found on either side of "the brook." The investigation therefore is being held in a most conscientious and thoroughgoing manner. Consequently it is reasonable to suppose that the report will be an able presentation of the results of the work combined with recommendations that may be safely followed.

It is to be hoped that when that report is issued, public interest will be aroused and the question speedily settled for all time.

A BAD PRECEDENT.

In disregard of the recommendation made by Mayor Fisk in his annual message, the Common Council on Monday night awarded a $3,000 contract without first receiving competitive bids. No public notice was given that there was any intention to make the award at the time, and the solitary bid was presented. The excuse given by the chairman of the Councilmanic street committee when asked by a fellow member of that body whether any attempt had been made to get any other bids was that he had heard nothing about anyone else wanting to get the contract and he did not suppose that another person could be found who would take the job. It was also called to the fact that no public notice had been given, but notwithstanding the contract was awarded on the spot. Councilmen Leslie M. Daniel, Charles C. Randolph and H. D. Hibbard alone respected the wishes of Mayor Fisk.

A Western lawyer, who has figured in over a score of murder trials, has coined a name for the atheists who swear to almost anything. He calls them "callisthenic artists."

The safest answer to give "Constant Reader" as to when Plainfield will inaugurate a system of municipal collection of garbage is to say "You Never Can Tell."

Newark man, who has been prohibited by Judge Runyon from setting foot on Plainfield soil for one year, may well ask "Is life worth living?"

Dr. Dowie has gone but Prophet Crowdy and Mrs. Eddy are still with us.

AMUSEMENTS.

Ethel Barrymore is drawing crowded houses to see her in "Captain Jinks" at the Empire theatre, New York. The first fortnight of her engagement has passed, and it has been a record of enthusiastic capacity audiences, every one of which found the comedy and humor of "Captain Jinks" delicious and the acting of Miss Barrymore in the role of Mme. Trentoni, as exquisitely artistic as anything the American stage has had to offer. If it were not that the number of performances is limited, because Miss Barrymore has other plays in which she will appear during her stay at the Empire, there is no telling where the present "Jinks" popularity might end. The play is a jolly one, with an excellent love story, and several highly interesting romantic moments. Nearly all the delicious humor of the work falls to Miss Barrymore, who does not fail to give it exquisite expression. The love scenes between herself, and Bruce McRae are charmingly simple and natural, and they are acted in that spirit. The next play in which Miss Barrymore will be seen is "The Silver Box," in which she will have an unusually strong acting character.

William Collier is still playing to big audiences at the Garrick theatre, New York, where he has been doing this since his first night there in "Caught in the Rain," the 100th performance of which will be reached on March 25. The comedian's popularity in the role of Dick Crawford, and the popularity of the play itself, is unbounded on a splendid foundation, and for that reason they are bound to endure. There are several hundred good hearty laughs, in these Collier performances and there is no better eventide's enjoyment to be had in the city of New York than which is furnished at the Garrick. Matinees of "Caught in the Rain" on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Sam Bernard's popularity as a laugh-maker extraordinary to New York theatregoers, is as great as it ever was at Wallack's theatre. He is still drawing crowded houses to see him in "The Rich Mr. Hoggenheimer," the fifth performance of which was celebrated last Friday. Mr. Bernard in his capacity of laugh-maker, certainly delivers the goods, and he is very generous in the way he hands them out. There are three hours of the liveliest laughter to be enjoyed in the "Hoggenheimer" performances at Wallack's. There are handsome girls, and gorgeous gowns, and of the two score tuneful song hits, there are at least three that may be classed as the best songs New York has had this season. These are, "The Bagpipe Serenade," "Don't You Want a Paper" and "Poker Love."

The thousands of people who witness the performances of "Neptune's Daughter" and "Pioneer Days" at the great number of people employed at this big institution, do not realize that the best of medical attention is given the employees. The Hippodrome maintains a private hospital of its own, especially to care for chorus girls who may need assistance. Indians or cowboys who may be injured in the realistic battle scene of "Pioneer Days," or a mermaid who becomes exhausted while swimming under water in the great tank scene. The wisdom of having a private hospital handy was illustrated only last week, when Miss Bertha Clifton, one of the mermaids, received a painful electric shock while under water and was unconscious for a few minutes. The mechanical contrivance by which air is furnished to the mermaids is fitted with electric lights, and as Miss Clifton made her descent into her submarine compartment, she touched an exposed electric wire. The shock in itself would not have been serious, but it was so unexpected under water that Miss Clifton fainted. The attendant who always on hand in case of emergency while the mermaids are under water, supported her with his arms, so that her head would remain above water, and signalled to the wings. As soon as the scene was over, the hospital corps was on hand, waiting with restoratives, and Dr. O. W. Lesser, who is in attendance at the Hippodrome, speedily brought the young woman to consciousness. The electric shock was by no means serious, and Miss Clifton was more frightened than hurt. The hospital of the Hippodrome is located in the Forty-third street corner of the building, in the basement. It is a large room, comfortably furnished and fitted with every modern medical convenience. Mrs. Hawley, the nurse in charge, is a graduate of a training school of Montreal, Canada, and served two years in Montreal at a private hospital. Afterwards she was in a private hospital in New York. During the war in Cuba, she was one of the volunteer Red Cross nurses sent to the front and served at Santiago. Afterwards she was sent to the fever camp at Montauk Point. Mrs. Hawley has been the nurse at the Hippodrome since the big playhouse opened. She has attended many patients in the Hippidrome chorus, and has also treated people who have been unexpectedly taken sick while in the audience. She is a great favorite with all the Hippodrome chorus girls, and is usually referred to as "the ministering angel."

MANY CURIOUS WATCHES MADE IN VARIOUS LANDS.

A man in Switzerland has just made a watch entirely of ivory, obtained from an old billiard ball. Works, hands and case are all of the same material. And yet it keeps very good time.

The first phonograph watch was made in Paris in 1897. It was large and heavy but was regarded as a great curiosity, nevertheless. However, watches that speak the hours in place of chiming them are not at all uncommon.

They are, says the House Beautiful, still somewhat bulky, as compared with the best ordinary modern timepieces, although not so much so but that they can be easily carried in an ordinary waistcoat pocket.

Beneath the crystal back of a valuable chronometer owned by an English tradesman six tiny gold and silver fish with ruby eyes are seen, apparently swimming about in real water. The fish, infinitely small, are beautifully modeled, and the effect of movement in their natural element is due to a combination of hair springs with a background of quicksilver.

Far more wonderful, because of its small size, is the watch owned by the Czarina of Russia, originally presented to the Empress Elizabeth on her coronation.

At the back is inset an exquisitely beautiful little model of the Holy Sepulchre, over which is seen standing, stern and motionless, a Praetorian guard.

This is viewed through the crystal of the case. On opening it the imitation stones roll away from the mouth of the miniature vault, the sentry kneels reverently, angels appear at opposite sides of the opening and at the same time the hour hand moves and sweetly the music of one of the sacred Easter songs beloved by all orthodox Russians.

The watch weighs only seven ounces, but the maker is said to have worked at it almost uninterruptedly nine years.

One of the most treasured ornaments of a London star of burlesque is an exquisitely pretty little blouse watch which plays a couple of selections from "The Belle of New York." The watch is keyless so far as its ordinary mechanism is concerned, but a tiny key has to be used to start it playing. The music is low in tone, but very sweet and clear.

FROM THE FAR WEST.

The Young Men's Christian Association of San Francisco is about to begin the erection of a $500,000 building on the site of the one that was burned last April. It will cover a lot 87.6x187.6, will be nine stories high and, with the exception of three stores on the ground floor, will be devoted entirely to the association's uses. It will be the largest and most complete building of its kind in the United States.

Edward B. Condon, who went to Tanana, Alaska, without a dollar three years ago, now owns mining property worth a million dollars. On Christmas Day his friends gave a dinner in his honor at Fairbanks and presented him with a handsome watch fob. The old man burst into tears. He declared it was the only gift he had ever received.

A bill has been introduced in the California Legislature to allow the people of the State to vote at the next general election on the question of Japanese exclusion, as they voted in 1848 on Chinese exclusion. At that election the vote was almost unanimously for exclusion.

Mrs. Lina Catherine Carlisle, whose father was a cousin of Abraham Lincoln and whose husband was a cousin of ex-Senator John G. Carlisle, of Kentucky, is living in poverty at 349 South Olive street, Los Angeles. She was found starving there the other day by a chance acquaintance.

A German letter carrier in Bellingham, Wash., was found to be distributing letters and papers on his route fairly and impartially as to quantity, but regardless of addresses. When he was overhauled he said it was too much trouble to read the addresses.

JERSEY EXHIBIT FOR FRANCE.

Winton C. Garrison, chief of the New Jersey bureau of statistics of labor and industries, has received a special invitation from the managers of the International Book and Paper exposition to be held in Paris, France, to make a department exhibit there. The exposition will be held from June to November, this year.

The Jersey exhibit will consist largely of documents, books and pictures. It is being designed practically to illustrate two matters. The first important of these will be the extent to which the state bureau has occupied the field of sociology in this State, and incidentally it will be made to show what states can do in keeping sociology and its advancement before the public. The other matter to be presented will be the extent to which the betterment idea has progressed in New Jersey manufactories.

THE MASSAGE TREATMENT

STROKING, KNEADING, RUBBING AND STRIKING.

Like all other things, massage requires to be well done, and with knowledge. Attempting such things on the cheap, as a rule, spells failure, and those who are brave enough to undertake to massage their own faces should be duly instructed by those who do it with a to right methods, or the chances are they will be doing a very great deal more harm than good, and when you do harm in massaging you most probably do a lot of it. To make the flesh and muscles flabby is not at all what you desire, yet this is what you are likely to effect if you do not follow the right course of the muscles, rubbing upward across the lines and altogether do the work properly.

There are four movements which the beauty culturists, as well as the health promoters, in massaging have to execute—stroking, kneading, rubbing, and striking. This striking is not unlike slapping, but is decidedly stimulating. The strokes are given rapidly with the palm of the hand, and when applied to the body should be directed toward its centre. It stimulates the blood in our veins, and helps to produce that delicious sense of invigoration, an inclination to rest without any due sense of fatigue, and a desire to sleep. Judicious massage is invaluable to those who are anaemic, for it increases the red corpuscles in the blood.

Exercise is as essential to our health as is proper food, and massage, in a great measure, takes the place of exercise. Even the filling in of hollows in the neck and throat is accomplished by exercise, for the massage that does it works the muscles and builds the tissues. For this, one kneads with the knuckles. A firm but not violent touch is needed. But kneading also means more than this. The skilful manipulator regulates the force with entire mastery this movement, perhaps the most difficult of the necessary ones. The tissues are to be treated and grasped, tightening and loosening the hold in a way that has to be learned and very carefully followed.

Rubbing in massage is on a somewhat different principal to ordinary rubbing, finger tips and thumbs, or the entire hand, being employed in small circles.

Massage greatly improves the texture of the skin, and a woman who regularly uses it and kneads in this manner has fresher complexion and much better color. This is because the blood vessels and tissues are constantly being stimulated and strengthened, and her blood circulates there as it does only after a body after a brisk walk. It will eliminate traces of fatigue more quickly than anything else, always remembering that a good cold cream, a skin food, should be used with it.

For medical purposes massage is most beneficial in the morning, and as a means of beauty culture it is better in the evening, but at night, but there is little hope of it doing real good unless it is done regularly and with perseverance. This is particularly so where the removal or obliterating of wrinkles is the thing desired. Worry, ill health and neglect are potent foes to beauty, and they should be met by constant care and skilful manipulation by the masseuse.

The object to be effected is the strengthening of the muscles and the stimulation of the blood. Few women have the slightest idea of the structure of the face, how the muscles are attached to the fundamental bone, the fatty and connecting tissues filling up the vacuum under the skin. We have to leave the bones as they are, but the muscles and the tissues may be most successfully manipulated, so much of the beauty of the face depending in the fatty fibre overlaying the muscles. Any shrinkage brings wrinkles and flabbiness, and with careful massage we can increase the fat and improve the hue of the complexion also. It is the capillaries or blood vessels which are most minute, that help to produce healthy conditions. When these vessels do not act satisfactorily, then pimples and blotches come, flushings and much else are anxious to avoid. Where the health is weak, massage combined with rest brings about wonderful results. A week in bed or a month, especially in cases of anoemia, is simply invaluable, and in young women acting on the threshold of life it will often bring about a good state of health. But the rest must be accompanied by fresh air and sunshine, the room must be fresh and cool and the surroundings cheerful. Massage will promote appetite and all the benefits of active exercise.

There are certain don'ts to be observed in massage, but they are so few and simple as not to be dangerous. The skin must not be stretched by it, nor the muscles overexerted. If there is superficial soreness the exercise should be abandoned for a few days. Some skins, being thicker than others, require more forceful treatment, but this each must learn for herself.—Washington Star.

FOUND DEAD ON TRACKS

WILD STORY AFLOAT

Rumor Had It That Man Had Been Murdered—Body Found By Track-walker.

Alexander Pandolino, an Italian laborer, forty-five years old, who resided on Cottage place, was struck and instantly killed by a New Jersey Central train near the Washington street bridge at 5:30 Sunmorning. Appearances indicated that he had been gathering coal from cars on the siding and failing to notice the approach of the locomotive because of the storm, stepped directly in front of it. His body was hurled some distance away, the skull being fractured and the head otherwise injured.

Some resident of Cottage place who has an imaginative brain started a story soon after the body was found that Pandolino had been murdered. The nicely concocted tale asserted that the man's clothes had been removed from his body and that they were picked up at one side of the tracks, everything in one heap. It had semblances of truth about it and the police and newspapermen got busy but all for nothing. There wasn't a thing suspicious about the man's death and the fact was quickly established.

Pandolino was seen by the track-walker about five minutes before he was struck and Michael Cerrano, who found the body, had been in the vicinity all the time. He had evidently been out for the same purpose that the victim was but he wouldn't *admit it to the police—probably be*cause they have been on the lookout for coal thieves around that way. And beside this, the only bit of apparel that was cut in the body was a belt. The police and railroad detectives in looking about the scene of the accident found a bag half-filled with coal that had undoubtedly been taken from a car belonging to Joseph Harrigan, the East Fourth street dealer. A coalbin was also also found to be well-filled with coal of various sizes, this being taken as an evidence that he was in the custom of visiting the car sidings.

The victim was employed as a general workman about the Hillside cemetery for four years but was laid off a short time ago. He leaves a wife and two children.

A PEEP INTO THE FUTURE.

Prof. Robert Ellis Thompson, of the Philadelphia Central High School, has been taking a peep into the future, and has seen some marvelous things. Professor Thompson says: "There will be no cooking in the home of the future. Your food will be prepared in one large central kitchen by men who are experts. It will be purchased at wholesale by experts. It will be served by contract, the dishes being kept warm between layers of fat, as in Norway. All sweeping, washing and dusting *about the home will be done by cor*porations employing experts, on a strictly business footing. Stairways will give place to safety elevators; great pipes connecting with a large exhaust engine will suck out the foul air and dust and ensure perfect ventilation. The drudgery now resting upon the wife and mother will be so lightened that she will have plenty of time to improve her mind and take part in the activities of the time beyond the home circle in addition to presiding with grace and beauty as the queen of the family."

Really, we hope that no one will be unkind enought to awaken Professor Thompson. "Twould be a pity to spoil a dream like that.

AGED FARMER A SUICIDE

Brant Waved Goodbye to His Grandchildren, Then Cut His Throat.

NEW MARKET TRAGEDY

Bernard Brant, 70 years old, killed himself at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. P. Noble, with whom he lived, in New Market, Monday. He cut his throat with a razor, and died within a few minutes. His mind is supposed to have been unbalanced by illness.

The Noble home is on a farm known as the Stuts place. The farm is run for the Nobles by Ad. Stuts Shortly after 9 o'clock this morning, Stuts started from the house with Mrs. Noble's children, to take them to the New Market school. As they walked down the road they turned and saw the old man standing at a window in his room upstairs, before a glass at which he was in the habit of shaving himself. He waved his hand at them in apparent cheerfulness.

It was about five minutes later that Mrs. Noble and a sister, who was in the lower part of the house with her, were startled by the sound of a falling body from the old man's room. They hurried upstairs, to find their way into their father's room blocked by a fastened door. It was not usual for his door to be locked, and the circumstance frightened them. They tugged at the door and finally pulled it open.

They found their father lifeless beside his bed, with his throat cut straight across and deeply. Blotches on the pane showed that he had drawn the razor across his neck in front of the glass, and then turned to walk to his bed. He stashed all too well, and fell dead before the short journey could be completed. He had fastened the door with a rope.

The suicide had been ill with grip and suffered much with rheumatism. He had made no threats of self-destruction, but the family are convinced his ills and the pains of old age had led him to plan the act. The care with which he fastened the door is taken to indicate that the suicide *was not the result of momentary im*pulse.

KITCHEN HELPS.

Keep all the kitchen utensils in one place, and a small one at that. It will save time and steps.

Keep the cookbook directly over the cooking table on a slanting shelf, where it will remain open to be easily read and stay clean.

Let the water in which cabbage has been boiled cool before pouring it down the sink. This precaution will avoid an unpleasant odor in the kitchen.

When a pot or teakettle has boiled dry pour boiled water into it, never cold water. There will be little danger of the vessel cracking or the enamel peeling if this is done immedi*ately.*

A kettle that is placed directly upon the fire soon becomes coated with soot and lampblack, which are difficult to remove. To prevent this grease the bottom of the outside of the kettle. The black can then be easily rubbed off with a newspaper.

League Basketball.

The Orange Y. M. C. A. basketball five will play the Plainfield five tonight, here, in the association league. Orange leads the league. The second Orange team will not be able to come. Some game will be arranged for the second team.

Father Bogan One of the Speakers.

Father Bogan, of St. Mary's church, who is a charter member of the organization, will attend the annual banquet of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick to be held at Elizabeth next Monday night, and will be one of the speakers.

2 KILLED BY EXPLOSION

Locomotive Boiler Blows Up at Metuchen With Terrible Results.

WHOLE TOWN SHAKEN

Engineer and Brakeman Killed and Two Others Dying—Several Fires Started.

Two men killed, two mortally injured, a number of others hurt, and Metuchen was shaken and threatened with many fires today when the boiler of engine No. 2294 of the Pennsylvania Railroad, exploded while drawing a long freight train through the town.

The Dead—Fischer, E. C., of Newark, engineer of the train; Smith, —, head brakeman, of Scranton, Pa. The names of the injured could not be learned by the Metuchen police. They reported that the fireman of the train would certainly die and that one brakeman was not expected to live. Others of the train crew were also injured, some of them seriously.

The train rolled out of Jersey City for the West last night, and at 1.05 o'clock this morning had reached Metuchen. The engine, one of the largest in the service of the Pennsylvania road, was making good headway with its big load, when just opposite the depot there came an explosion that was likened to the roar of many cannon.

Bits of broken iron and steel and fire were hurled two hundred yards away. Hahn's drug store, two blocks from the depot, caught fire. At the same instant McCutcheon's pharmacy, a block from the station, burst into flames.

Half-clad men and women ran from their homes to the street. There was not a whole window light within two blocks of the station, and the people were of the opinion that an earthquake had shaken the town.

The flames in the two drug stores were threatening adjoining property when the firemen arrived. Then there came the report that the postoffice was on fire. Every window in the postoffice was broken, and the walls of the building were cracked.

Not until the frightened people had got close to the depot was it learned that the boiler of the engine had blown up. Then the cries of injured men attracted attention.

Freight cars were piled one above the other, and there was hardly anything left of the engine except its wheels, and the tracks on both sides were torn up.

One hundred yards from the engine was found the body of Fischer, so mangled and scalded it could hardly be recognized. Another lay the body of the head brakeman.

Several men were buried under the overturned cars, including the fireman and one brakeman. The wreck had caught fire, but the citizens made short work of that danger.

The fireman and brakeman, both unconscious, were taken to a nearby house. Physicians said they would die. Others in the crew who were injured were treated by physicians and kept until the arrival of a special train, hurried from Jersey City.

P. H. S. GIRLS DEFEAT WESTFIELD IN BASKETBALL.

Local Five Add Another Victory to Their Long String, Winning by a Score of 21 to 4.

Sustaining its reputation and adding to its long string of victories, the girls' basketball team from the Plainfield High School defeated the girls' team from the Westfield High School on the local court Saturday afternoon, by the score of 21 to 4. The home team was far too strong for its opponents and had no trouble at all in scoring a victory. The first half of the game was a trifle slow, but in the last half the Plainfield girls played their best and fairly ran away from the visiting team.

Miss Edith Crampton, Miss Barbara Fleming and Miss Moody did the best work for the Plainfield team, while Miss Wittke, Miss Johnson and Miss Hohenstein excelled for the visitors. The game was marked by fast, clean play for which the local team has become noted. The lineup:

P. H. S.—Forwards, Miss Barbara Fleming, Miss Gertrude Moody; center, Miss Louise Andrews, Miss Minnie Line; guards, Miss Edith Crampton, Miss Bessie Alpaugh.

Young Woman's Responsible Position

Manager W. J. Counihan, of the New Plainfield theatre, is entertaining his sister, Miss Hannah Counihan, of Chicago. Miss Counihan is the personal representative and private secretary of Harry Deakin, head of the Deakin Art Rooms, of Chicago, one of the largest establishments of its kind in the middle west. She has been in the business for several years and in that time has become an expert in the selection of bric-a-brac, tapestry, pictures, etc. Miss Counihan's visit east at the present time is to represent Mr. Deakin at a big sale that is to be held in New York this week.

YOUTH RUN DOWN AND KILLED BY P. & R. FLYER

HE WAS WALKING ALONG THE TRACKS AT EAST BOUNDBROOK.

Walking along the track, a youth abot 18 years old was struck and instantly killed by a westbound P. and R. flyer at East Bound Brook late Saturday afternoon. The body was badly mangled. Up to noon today the victim was unidentified.

The body was taken to Bound Brook on the train, the engineer of which saw the youth go under the wheels. Nobody in Bound Brook knew the victim, and as the accident occurred in Middlesex county, the body was taken to the undertaking establishment of Walter G. Runyon at Dunellen, Saturday night.

The boy was fairly well dressed and did not look like the usual hobo. There was a time card of a machine shop in his pockets and the Dunellen authorities are working on that clue.

TUBERCULOSIS EXHIBIT CLOSED ON SATURDAY.

Attempt to Reopen Yesterday a Failure On Account of the Snow Storm.

The State tuberculosis exhibit which was held in the Stirling building, last week, was practically closed Saturday night, although it was opened for a couple of hours yesterday afternoon, when only a dozen people called. The storm made it impossible to continue it through the afternoon and evening. A record attendance was had on Saturday, when 832 people visited the exhibit afternoon and evening. The total attendance for the week was 3,200 or 3,500, including the lecture given at Trinity Reformed church. The exhibit will probably go to Orange from this city.

The unusual interest in the exhibit here exceeded the expectation of the Plainfield Society for the Relief and Prevention of Tuberculosis, under whose auspices it was held, and the physicians believe that it will result in great benefit to people, not only to those who may be suffering from tuberculosis, but as a means of education to others who are now better informed as to methods of prevention and treatment.

IMPROVEMENTS AT CO. JAIL.

Annex Being Made Into a Prison for Women.

Work is progressing on the new quarters for the female prisoners at the county jail, and Warden Dodd expects to be able to move the women prisoners from their present place in the basement to the new rooms by April 1. The new quarters are in the jail annex, which was used for the county offices while the new courthouse was being constructed. They are being fixed up in an up-to-date manner and will compare well with any in the State from a hygienic and sanitary point of view.

There will be nineteen cells in the cutlers, nine below and ten above. The upper tier is enclosed with iron latticework. The lower cells have each two cots, one above the other, and managed by chains so as to be raised or lowered at will. The upper cells have each one cot. At the same time that the female quarters are being fixed up there are some improvements being made in the public and private offices of Warden Dodd.

HOPE CHAPEL TO HAVE SPECIAL EASTER SERVICE.

The Easter Sunday services at Hope chapel will be of special interest this year. There will be an elaborate programme of music, both morning and evening by a considerably increased choir. At the morning service there will be children baptism. Mrs. Robert Patterson hopes to have the memorial to her son, Harvey Patterson, completed before that day. This is a beautiful marble baptismal fount to be placed on the attractive standard recently put in position.

Probably, the most interesting feature of the day will be the offerings. They will all be for the Squires' Memorial organ, at both church services and the Sunday-school session. If the amount obtained is what is hoped for the organ will be ordered at once. The organ fund now amounts to $600 and it is desired that $200 be added to it this month. The organ desired will cost something over $1,600, and will require five months to build.

Party for H. P. Henriques, Jr.

Mrs. William Barlow, of Prospect place, gave a children's party at her home Saturday afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock, for her grandson, Harry Percy Henriques, Jr., whose third birthday anniversary occurred at that time. There were nine children present between two and three years of age and the little folks had a jolly good time playing games and joining in a general romp. Later refreshments were server. The little fellow in whose honor the affair was given received a number of useful gifts. Those present were Isabelle and Edward Wilson, Felecia Ridley, James French, Penelope Overton, Louise Brown, Norman McGee, William Barlow Stillman and Harry Percy Henriques, Jr.

LITERARY.

Beatrix Demarest Lloyd is the author of the novel which opens the April Smart Set. Her story is entitled "The Miniature," and she has never written a finer piece of work. The scenes are laid in Paris, and the absorbing narrative, which grips the reader's attention at the outset, moves along to the most unexpected and thrilling conclusion. Of the younger writers of today, none is more promising than Miss Lloyd, and The Smart Set is to be congratulated on publishing so notable a novel. John G. Neihardt contributes a piece of fiction entitled "Beyond the Spectrum," which, because of its power and weird setting, deserves a place side by side with some of Edgar Allan Poe's short stories.

"Pure sunlight is now being made by man!" So writes Eugene Shade Bisbee in the Technical World Magazine for April. "The incandescent lamp which has been for twenty-five years the standard of the world's artificial illumination must take a back seat or retire from commercial activity. The arc, the mercury vapor and every form of illumination at present holding sway in centers of industry are doomed to extinction by pure, true, pure, commercially possible light that came and after years of experimentation has been brought to a practical basis of manufacture.

The boys of America will surely say that the March American Boy is the best ever. The stories are as varied as boys' hobbies, and every one is good, clean, and intensely interesting. Further chapters of the serials by Hunteyer, Alger, Shute, Sprague, and Tomlinson are given which will increase the reader's interest in the various characters. A new serial by Edward S. Ellis, entitled "Off the Reservation," dealing with the notorious Apache chief Geronimo, starts in this number and will prove a winner with the boys. The shorter stories include: "A Hot Twenty Minutes," telling of a thrilling naval battle during the Civil War. "The Coddish," a fine story of trawling on the Grand Banks; "Bray's Kid," showing how the innocence and purity of a child can soften the roughest of men; "A Race with a Moose" tells how one of these big deer towed a boat with a little girl in it out into a lake; "Dave the Dauntless," a story of the dangers attending the capture of seals in the Far North. Installment No. 3 of How to Become Strong tells "How to be a Good Runner." The Boy on His Muscle is a new department which all healthy boys will like. It is edited by Arthur Duffey, the champion sprinter.

ENTERTAINMENT FOLLOWS CHRISTENING OF BOY.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Adelberg's Reception Was Largely Attended.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Adelberg, of East Second street, entertained fifty friends at their home Sunday afternoon and night in honor of the christening of their son. The ceremony took place in the afternoon at Temple Beth Jacob, this city, officiating. The boy was named Charles. Judge William Newcorn acted as godfather and Mrs. Newcorn godmother, while Morris Abrams was the former's assistant.

Following the christening, dinner was served and at its conclusion an informal social session was enjoyed. The decorations throughout the house were elaborate but tasty.

The guests present included Mr. and Mrs. A. Adelberg and Max Adelberg, of Flatbush; Dr. Adelberg, of Coddish; Mr. and Mrs. L. Goldin, Mr. and Mrs. Samson, Mr. and Mrs. J. Simon, Mr. and Mrs. M. DR. WILLIAM H. ANTHONY PUT ON THE HOSPITAL STAFF.

Appointed Pathologist and Bacteriologist By the Board of Governors.

Dr. William H. Anthony, for several months the house physician at Muhlenberg Hospital, and who has since entered into general practice here, has been appointed pathologist and bacteriologist at the hospital. The appointment was made last night by the Board of Governors on the recommendation of the medical board.

The medical board submitted the following report for February:

Patients remaining at last report, 36; admitted, 57; total number treated, 93; discharged cured, 40; improved, 8; not improved, 1; died, 5; remaining, 39; operations, 51; hospital days, 1,019. There were 41 patients in the dispensary, 103 visits of patients and 10 operations.

Lawrence Developing.

Lawrence, the Leal's boy who made such a good showing in the Plainfield-Elizabeth Y. M. C. A. meet last week, did good work with the shot in practice Saturday night. He put the sphere 39 feet 6 inches, about two feet further than he threw it in the meet.

Prof. John B. Smith Says Expenditure of $350,000 would Rid State of the Pest.

DUE TO THE MARSHES

Although a little out of season the illustrated lecture by Prof. John B. Smith, of New Brunswick, before the Men's Club of the First Baptist church, Monday, proved to be one of the most interesting in the series of club entertainments. The pestiferous little insect so well known to all was shown up in all his glory and the peculiar traits for which he is noted explained in the minutest detail. Not only was the lecture interesting, but highly instructive and served as a means of showing how one can rid his home and surroundings of mosquitoes.

Prof. Smith's talk covered that part of the mosquito's existence from birth to the time it is banished or allowed to multiply and inflict whole communities and even a State. He explained that there are forty different kinds of mosquitoes and that it is quite important to be able to tell at least a few species and know where and how they breed.

He began with the common variety, known as the house or rain-water barrel mosquito, which has its birth as a wriggler. Prof. Smith explained at the outset that where there is no water you will find no mosquitoes. They cannot exist without water.

In speaking of the house mosquito the speaker said that they are to be found now in the cellar waiting for the warm weather so that they may lay their eggs. He stated that this variety is provided with brush-like wings which are kept constantly in motion gathering in the microbe organism to be found in water and upon which they live.

This variety does not exist in the grasses, where there is no dampness. By covering the pool or rain water barrel with oil it serves to choke the insect so he is unable to get air through his tubes.

The peculiarities of the malaria mosquito were then explained. This variety, he said, has spotted wings and his method of laying eggs is different from all others. They are to be found on top of the water and feed on things to be found on the surface. Its habits are different from the house mosquito. In the case of the latter variety they maintain a perpendicular position, while that of the malaria insect is always in a horizontal position. Each mosquito has a battery of six different lancets with which to carry on its troublesome work. One peculiarity noted was that the male insect cannot draw blood, but in the case of the female it obtains blood first by dropping a little poison beneath the skin which tends to thin the blood, otherwise it would not be able to take it up.

Prof. Smith described the method of infection carried on by the malaria mosquito, showing how it carries disease from one person to another, and exhibited pictures of infection of the blood in the different stages, declaring that the insects are a nuisance in any form.

Views taken in New Brunswick and other places were shown, giving an idea how the insects breed in pools and marsh lands. He stated that one cubic foot of water would breed 100 mosquitoes. Contrary to the accepted belief, the Hackensack meadows are not a good place to breed the insects. He considered the oil treatment only a means of temporary relief, declaring that strict sanitary inspection and the removal of all pools of water of every description the only safe and sure way of ridding a section of them.

In referring to the salt marsh mosquito, Prof. Smith said that Plainfield is a little too far away to be bothered with this variety much, yet he cited the fact that in the summer of 1903 there was a plague of the pest throughout this part of the State, due to the fact that an unusually large number were bred on the salt marshes and became very active.

In the opinion of the professor the State can be rid of the mosquito by the method of digging ditches to drain off the surface water to be found in hundreds of places. He stated that there are 296,000 acres of marsh land in the State, one-third of which breeds mosquitoes and that $350,000 would permanently rid the State of the pests.

Prof. Smith exhibited a large number of views showing the mosquito in every stage of its existence. He also displayed pictures of the experimental stations where tests are carried on for the purpose of studying every phase of the life of a mosquito. Prof. Smith inaugurated this work over five years ago in this State and has made substantial progress. He has plans which will carry on even a more progressive campaign against this common nuisance—the mosquito.

At the close of the lecture a vote of thanks was given to Prof. Smith for his instructive and entertaining talk.

ANOTHER COLD COUNTRY TRAVEL TALK HEARD

DILLON WALLACE TELLS OF LABRADOR AT CRESCENT AVENUE CHURCH.

Dillon Wallace, the Labrador explorer, who went into the wilderness after the body of Leonidas Hubbard several years ago when the latter starved to death after an unfortunate choice of trails, spoke to a large audience at the Crescent Avenue church Monday. He appeared under the auspices of the Boys' Mission Band.

Mr. Wallace did not speak of the Hubbard expedition, but of a later trip of 2,000 miles by himself. He showed a great many views—more than he usually did, he said,—and they made his talk highly interesting. He spoke of Dr. Grenfell and his mission at Battle Harbor, at some length, and the audience heard him with natural interest. Dr. Grenfell's picture was applauded warmly.

Mr. Wallace gave interesting hints of life in the Labrador country. The audience learned, among other things, of how pemmican of a certain kind is made. Dried beef, tallow, currants and raisins are mixed, and a pound is supposed to be a man's ration for a day.

NEW SOPRANO SOLOIST.

Miss Anna L. Case Engaged By the First Presbyterian Church.

Miss Anna L. Case, of South Branch, a talented soprano, who has been the organist and soloist at Nohanic during the past year, has been engaged as soprano soloist at the First Presbyterian church for the coming year and she expects to assume her new position about April 1. She sang at the church on trial last Sunday and was enthusiastically received by the congregation at both the morning and evening services.

Miss Case, who is nineteen years old, has a voice of remarkable sweetness and perfect control. She was a pupil of Miss Kate Opdyke, of Somerville, and during the past seven or eight months has been studying with Mme. Renard, of New York. She has natural musical talent and is an exceptionally fine reader of music. Next Sunday Miss Jessamine Burd, of Somerville, contralto, will sing at the church on trial for the position to be vacated by Miss Edna Nichol), who resigns May 1.

BRASS CANNON FOR MONUMENT.

Condemned Metal May Be Used By Elizabeth for Scott Memorial.

At last night's meeting of the Scott Monument Association at Elizabeth, the president was authorized to appoint a committee of fifteen to solicit subscriptions, and the executive committee of twenty to consider the advisability of having printed certificates or some kind of insignia of membership. Letters were received from Senators Kean and Dryden and Congressmen Fowler, Hughes, Hamill, Loudenslager, Howell, Parker and Wood, assuring the committee that they would do all in their power to effect the passage of the bill introduced by Senator Kean, which provides for the appropriation of 25,000 pounds of condemned brass cannon out of which to cast the proposed memorial.

Former Plainfielder's Success.

The new banking house of the First National Bank, of Williamstown, this State, of which Jan vanHerwerden, formerly of this city, is the cashier, was opened on Saturday for business and was thrown open to the public Saturday night and evening. Three years ago Mr. vanHerwerden went to Williamstown, unknown and with opposition to his scheme of establishing a bank there. He succeeded in securing subscriptions to 25,000 worth of stock, and on May 23, 1904, opened the First National Bank. Through the efforts of Mr. vanHerwerden the institution has grown to be one of the leading institutions in the State. The directors drafted and adopted resolutions, expressing their high regard for Mr. VanHerwerden and his untiring efforts.

Hold Two Meetings a Month.

It was the suggestion of President Leslie M. Daniel, of the Common Council, that that body has been holding two meetings a month, one regular and the other adjourned. He thought that while the press of business was on it would help to facilitate matters and prevent the extra long sessions. There will be an adjourned meeting on Thursday night to complete the business for the month. The idea seems to have met with much favor and the councilmen welcome it as a change from lengthy sessions.

The Mayor Met Gov. Hughes.

Mayor Newton B. Smalley and William F. Williams, of North Plainfield, returned last night from Albany, where they spent a week. On their way home they met Governor Hughes on the train of Senators and Assemblymen from the New York State Legislature.

Boys Go To Elizabeth.

A big delegation of Y. M. C. A. boys visited the Elizabeth juniors at their gym Saturday afternoon. They were to engage in a dual meet, but a kink in the arrangements prevented it. They played games and had a good time, for all that.

CORPORATION COUNSEL ADVISES COMMISSION

Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh appeared before the bi-municipal consolidation commission Monday afternoon at Mayor Fisk's office. He had been requested at the last meeting to give an opinion regarding the legal aspects of the proposed merger of North Plainfield and Plainfield and this he did in an informal but thorough way.

It is not known whether he advised that there were any insurmountable constitutional barriers to the proposed consolidation for President Alexander Gilbert, who is the only one authorized to speak for the commission declined to tell. His refusal is in compliance with a rule adopted by the commission weeks ago not to give anything out in which a report is made to the governing bodies of the two places. It is reported, however, that Mr. Marsh holds that consolidation may be accomplished provided remedial legislation is passed by the Legislature.

L. L. MANNING TO BUILD.

L. L. Manning, owner of the property at West Front street and Central avenue, has decided to erect thereon a handsome brick building four stories in height. The first floor will be devoted to stores, while the three upper floors will be used for comodious apartments. The building will be a modern one in every particular. Mr. Manning has signed the contract for the same work with Townley Brothers, of North Plainfield, and a little later the other contracts will be executed.

It was the intention of Mr. Manning to erect the proposed building two years ago, but material and labor were so expensive that he abandoned the project at that time. He has since completed his plans, although they have not yet been filed with the building inspector. It will be several stories on the West Front street side and also on Central avenue, while the apartments will be the finest yet constructed in this city.

ADDRESSES ALLOWED ON SOUVENIR POSTAL CARDS.

Last Friday, March 1, was the day when it became permissible to mail souvenir post cards with writing on the address side and receive them without being compelled to pay penalty postage. Nobody was more joyful than the postoffice men themselves, especially the postage-due clerks and the carriers. What with the enormous growth of the souvenir card custom, and the general disregard by the public of the antiquated rule which forbade writing on the face of the cards, all of the large offices, Trenton among them, have for a year or longer been confronted with a problem that was annoying, to say the least.

The charging of the postage-due accounts against the different carriers' routes and the collection on their part of the money for penalty postage is believed to have cost more in time than the actual amount recovered by the exactions of the old regulations. It has been stated that many of the carriers, rather than be delayed by the collection of the odd pennies, paid the penalty postage out of their own pockets, though this would probably not apply to certain sections of the city where the penalty postage charged against one route would sometimes figure as high as $2 for a week's delivery.

However that may have been, it is done away with now and the public may use the left side of a souvenir for a message of greeting, provided the address side on the right is left open enough for a legible address. Expert postal men are of the opinion that the department's sensible conclusion in the matter will save considerable time in the handling of the cards and that the revenues will not be seriously affected, because nobody believes that the writing ever added much weight to them. The public ought to be pleased because it will now be possible to send a card that is attractive, without being compelled to write the message into the picture, unless one paid letter postage.

NEW JERSEY HAS MANY SMALL INVESTORS.

The State Not Given Up to Large Corporations Only.

"Perhaps on account of the large number of foreign corporations which incorporate in New Jersey," said one of the leading business men of the State yesterday, "there seems to be more or less of an impression that the State is given over principally to industries involving a large amount of capital, to the exclusion of the smaller or individual industry. The impression could be more erroneous, for the latest figures of the industrial census show that New Jersey, while being the home of many large industries, is also peculiarly adapted to smaller businesses. Of the 7,010 recorded producing establishments in the State, 3,324 have annual products of less than $20,000 each, and 1,900 of these reach less than $5,000 each. In addition to this, there are something like 10,000 still smaller establishments not included in the census figures, most of which of course belong in the less than $5,000 class.

"This should not be taken to mean that the industries of the State are small and unimportant, for in the same connection it should be remembered the New Jersey has 955 establishments each of whose annual products is worth from $100,000 to $1,000,000, and 121 establishments each producing over $1,000,000 annually. But it does show that New Jersey is a good place for the manufacture of small means, and the number of small establishments in the State shows to what a surprising extent such men are contributing to the healthy development of the State. Of course, there are various causes which attract the small investor to New Jersey as compared to New York. Development is very rapid here and legitimate investment is sure of rapid growth."

OLD NEW YORK.

Four Hundred Years Ago New York Was the Wilderness.

Few people think nowadays, said an old New Yorker, of how child-like and looked 400 years ago. Now one sees nothing but brick and stone and hurrying people. There are three stories of transportation lines, piled one upon another, and houses from fifteen to thirty stories high. It is hard to look back to the time before the white man sailed up the bay. Then New York island was forest clad, with wide meadows facing the bay and the rivers, and perhaps with little open parks among the woods on the higher land. Of course, there must have been plenty of game here—deer, bear and turkeys; and springs and ponds with brooks running down to the salt water in all directions.

Why, I myself can remember when we used often see quail and woodcock not so very far from where Central Park is now, and where the herons used to breed in a patch of woods which stood in blocks now covered with big apartment houses. The ponds in which boys used to go fishing, and about the edges of which woodcock were sometimes started, have long been filled up. But underneath this big city the springs still pour out their floods and the brooks still run to the salt water.—Century.

WHEN EMPEROR WILLIAM TRAVELS.

Even when traveling the Kaiser is at work, for being the chief of a great nation he must keep the government machine in motion.

A large staff of government officials accompanies him. A high official from the foreign office attends to the duties of foreign politics, making reports on the affairs of state, receives the orders of the sovereign and keeps up the communications between the Kaiser and the Chancellor. Then there is a privy councillor, who takes dictations, deciphers telegrams and transmits the same. Besides, two adjutants accompany the suite.

For the very lively exchange of messages between the Kaiser and the Chancellor special arrangements is made by the imperial postal department. Telegraphic messages must be presented at once to the Kaiser. When necessary to be deciphered a postal official is in the nearest telegraph office to attend to this duty.

When the Kaiser is out hunting special messenger goes after him in case urgent messages must be delivered. Even at a late hour in the night the Kaiser has ordered that regardless of his own convenience he shall be awakened if important communications arrive. In addition to these telegraphic reports, mail matter, which arrives daily by courier, must be given to the reports of Ministers from other departments, conferences must be held at all times of the day, and long dictations given in the study where the Kaiser is stopping, be it on board of the Hohenzollern or in his sleeper.

Added to this must be reckoned the hours when he is working alone, consisting of the reading of newspaper clippings, the active correspondence with his wife, from whom he receives a daily letter, and the correspondence with royalties or friends. —American Review of Reviews.

THE GOLDEN PLUM.

The original tree of the Golden plum is said to have been grown in 1887 or 1888 by Mr. Burbank from a seed of Robinson, which was the result of a cross with pollen of Abundance, one of the best known and most widely disseminated of the Japanese plums in America. It was named Golden by Mr. Burbank in 1892 and appears under that name in his catalogue of new creations in fruits and flowers in 1893. About that time the original tree and right of introduction were purchased by a Missouri nursery firm which catalogued it as "Gold." The name "Golden," however, has been generally adopted by pomologists. This variety has been planted in most of our plum districts, and, while not of the highest dessert quality, it is a hardy, productive and excellent fruit in most of the territory where either the Japanese or the Chickasaw plums succeed.

The fruit is medium in size, surface a golden yellow, lightly flushed with carmine, when well ripened, and covered with a thing bloom, with numerous dots of russet all over. The skin is thick, rather acid and bitter when picked prematurely; the stone small to medium cling; flavor rich, subacid, pleasant; quality good to very good, season medium, about July 20 to 30 at Augusta, Ga., where the specimens here illustrated were grown.

The tree, dwarfish and compact, with small foliage, resembling its Chickasaw rather than its Japanese parent in these respects, is pronounced by Pomologist William A. Taylor of Washington to be a good bearer, apparently hardy throughout all but the coldest plum districts and particularly well adapted to the south Atlantic and Gulf States.

Rockefeller's Amusing Story.

Several years ago, when the University of Chicago held its decennial celebration, John D. Rockefeller was its guest for several days. A bewildering succession of functions followed one another with such rapidity that each affair was from one to four hours late, relates Lippincott's.

At the great banquet on the closing day, Mr. Rockefeller, in his after-dinner speech, told the following story:

"I have felt for the past twenty four hours like the Boston business man, who lived in the suburbs and came in to his office every day. One winter afternoon he took the train for his home, but a terrific snow storm was raging, and about half way to his suburb the train was snowed in. All night the passengers were imprisoned, but early in the morning they managed to reach a nearby telegraph station, and the Boston man sent the following dispatch to his office:

"'Will not be in the office today. Have not got home yesterday, yet.'"

Which?

Once upon a time two young women came to a wise theatrical manager and applied for positions as stars.

"It is not our custom to engage stars who have had no dramatic experience," he said. "And neither of you has been on the stage?"

"No, sir," they replied.

"Then what qualifications do you possess?"

"I, sir," said the first young woman, "have ambition and a future."

"I, sir," said the second young woman, "have ambition and a past which would make copy."

And so the manager made out a contract for one of them.—Judge.

ASSEMBLYMAN PERKINS SAVES DROWNING MAN

GOT GOOD DRENCHING

Deluded New Yorker Struggling In Water When Perkins Lowers Ladder and Pulls Him Up to the Boat.

Assemblyman Randolph Perkins, a man with a little body but a big brain, played the role of a life saver Friday morning and was wildly cheered by onlookers. The lawmaker pulled a drowning man out of the North river and in doing so got a good drenching, but he stands a show of getting a Carnegie medal for his heroic work.

When the ferryboat "Newark" of the Pennsylvania Railroad's fleet, left the Cortlandt street ferry landing at 8:30 this morning, Mr. Perkins was aboard with a big pile of lawbooks tucked in his pockets, and so was a man named Eugene Joly, who lives at No. 202 East Thirteenth street, New York. Perkins was absorbed in thoughts on legislation and his attention was not attracted by the peculiar actions of his fellow-passenger, Mr. Joly. The others aboard, however, noticed the strange movements of the latter. When the boat was in midstream, Joly suddenly pulled off his hat and coat and made a leap into the briney deep.

"Man overboard," shouted a deckhand and the self-possessed passengers joined in the cry while several women fainted. Losing no time the watchful pilot signaled the engineer to reverse the engine. The boat was quickly slotten alongside of where Joly went down, and there, where Perkins got his chance to become a hero. Grasping the opportunity while his fellow-passengers looked on speechless, the assemblyman and a deckhand lowered a ladder. Joly went Perkins' coat and hat and in a minute he was holding on to the bottom rung of the ladder with one hand and twisting a rope beneath the drowning man's neck with the other. Then taking a firm grip about the would-be suicide's body he climbed up the ladder while deafening cheers filled the air from the crowd.

When the boat was tied up at Jersey City, Perkins made a dash for the company's offices where he lost no time telephoning to his home for a dry suit of clothes. In the meantime, Joly was being questioned by the captain of the Newark. He said that a man had threatened to kill him and that he had become so worried that he decided to end all by drowning himself. It was said that the man is slightly demented.

MR. JOY'S LECTURE.

Illustrated Talk on Yellowstone National Park.

James R. Joy gave his illustrated lecture on "The Yellowstone National Park," under the auspices of the Junior Christian Endeavor Society of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, Thursday. Nearly 200 members and their friends were present. Mr. Joy has given this lecture on several occasions, but it was never-the-less as enjoyable as ever and it made those present an excellent idea of the wonders and beauties of the National Park.

The views shown by Mr. Joy are among the finest taken in the Yellowstone and the descriptive talk by Mr. Joy was entertaining and full of amusing incidents. During the evening a silver offering was received for the benefit of the society.

Do You Know a Knauss?

William C. Ludwigh, of Hamilton, Ohio, has written to the police, asking if they can give him any information as to the whereabouts of August, or William Knauss, who lost himself on several years ago and left this city. Ludwigh says he has important news for Knauss. The police said this morning that they could not locate Knauss. So far as they have been able to discover, he didn't come here.

REAL JUICY LEMON FOR EACH GUEST

AND THE REFRESHMENTS CONSISTED OF LEMONS, TOO.

All kinds of parties have been given in Plainfield, but it remained for the saleswomen in the employ of the Woodhull & Martin Company to plan something new, a "Lemon Party." It was given Thursday in honor of two of their number, Miss Ella Mullen and Miss Squier, who resign this week to enter business for themselves.

The young women met at the home of Miss Nora Schenck on Manning avenue, and the Misses Mullen and Squier were invited to call when they were met with a hearty reception in the form of a shower of articles for use in their business, each article being tied with ribbons of a lemon color.

After a social time refreshments were served consisting of lemon gelatine, lemon cake, lemon candies, lemonade, etc., each guest being presented with a lemon in which a stick of lemon candy had been placed. There was a programme of vocal and instrumental music, phonographic selections and games.

Those present were the Misses Nora Schenck, Sara Hopewell, Minnie Young, Ethel Young, Ursula Auten, Anne Kelly, Edna Ryan, Agatha Badun, Bertha Enwright, Minnie Barker, Elizabeth Wilcox, Grace Ulrick, Florence Carver, May Day, Agnes Bailey, Mamie McKain, Carrie VanArsdale, Bertie Wilcox, Mrs. L. F. Schenck, Mr. and Mrs. John Schenck.

F. MORTIMER SLATER FOUND DEAD IN BED

PASSED AWAY WHEN HIS BREAKFAST WAS AWAITING HIM.

Fred Mortimer Slater, Sr., was found dead in bed at his home in Jackson avenue, at 6:40 Friday morning. Although he had been quite ill during the past three or four months and was unable to attend to business, his condition was not such as to give the family any immediate alarm. When he retired Thursday at the usual hour he did not complain and there was nothing to indicate a change for the worse in his condition. Friday morning his wife went to call him for breakfast and she found him dead.

During the twenty-three years that Mr. Slater lived in North Plainfield he was always identified with the best interests of that municipality. He was one of the early members of the Borough Council and gave valuable service.

Mr. Slater was born in Elizabeth fifty years ago. His father died when he was sixteen years old and for four years he worked in a grocery store, spending his evenings studying civil engineering. At the age of twenty years he joined a corps of surveyors and he advanced from a chainman to the position of chief engineer of the National Storage Company, of Communipaw. When he reached the age of thirty-four years he went with the Long Island Railroad, supervising the building of the extension of the line from Great Neck to Port Washington. That work being completed he identified himself with the Kalbfleisch Chemical Company, which was about the time of the Spanish-American War. He superintended the construction of nine nitrate reforts for the manufacture of nitrate used in the war. Later he was employed by the Plainfield Water Supply Company for a year and then became interested in the building of the high speed trolley line built between Newark and New York. Since that time he was unable to do any work, owing to failing health.

Mr. Slater was a member of the First Baptist church and for many years was a regular attendant at the services. He was also a member of Plainfield Council, No. 741, Royal Arcanum. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Catherine Slater, who is about seventy-five years old and in feeble health; a wife, one son, F. Mortimer Slater, and a daughter, Miss Clyde Slater. Plainfielder to Wed New York Girl.

Mrs. Harry Warrick, of New York, has issued invitations for the wedding of her daughter, Miss Ethel Frances Warrick, to Frederick Squires, son of Mrs. Henry C. Squires, of Watchung avenue. The ceremony will be performed at the Church of the Ascension, Fifth avenue and Tenth street, Wednesday afternoon, March 20, at 4 o'clock. After a wedding trip the young couple will make their home at 326 Central avenue, this city.

Acquires More Property.

Albert Lederer, real estate broker, has sold to Solomon Mann, of the West End, two stores and four apartment buildings at West Third street and Stebbins place, and a double dwelling on the opposite corner, the latter property being owned by Mrs. Eleanor Stelle. This makes a total of $32,000 worth of property Mr. Lederer has sold in that vicinity during the past year.

PLAN STATE TOURNEY FOR BALTUSROL LINKS

NEW JERSEY GOLFERS TO MEET JUNE 6-8 FOR THE CHAMPIONSHIP TITLE.

Baltusrol has been chosen by the New Jersey Association for the annual championship and June 6, 7 and 8 have been selected as the dates. The Montclair and Atlantic City clubs had made formal application for the tournament, and the selection of Baltusrol was somewhat of a surprise, as the club had merely stated its willingness to hold the championship if requested to do so.

"We had a successful tournament at Baltusrol in 1903," said one of the New Jersey officers Friday, "and we expect a repetition of that meeting, especially as the new railroad station has made it easier to reach the course. It was up to us, too, to be loyal to Baltusrol, for although it has been the scene of three national championships, the course has been recently assailed by a prominent golfer in print as a poor testing course. We regard Baltusrol as one of the best inland links in the United States."

Leighton Calkins, elected president of the *New Jersey State Golf Asso*ciation, at the annual meeting, had, under the rule, to name the executive committee. His selections were given out Friday. J. Whitney Baker, of the Plainfield Country Club, will be secretary-treasurer; R. N. Todd, Baltusrol Golf Club, chairman of the tournament committee, and M. D. W. Thurston, Roseville Golf Club, chairman of the handicap committee. To complete the executive committee, those named are: The Hon. J. Griggs, North Jersey Country Club, and Percy Jackson, Yountakah Country Club. Each member selected is active on the links and in the affairs of his club, with a sound knowledge of the objects of the State league.

The contest championship will be the eighth in the series. The places and respective winners have been: 1900, Essex county, Archibald Graham; 1901, Englewood, Allan Kennaday; 1902, Montclair, Allan Kennaday; 1902, Baltusrol, M. J. Michael; 1903, Englewood, F. Murray Olyphant; 1905, North Jersey, John M. Ward; 1906, Archibald Graham.

MR. AND MRS. HENRY CONNETT CELEBRATE SILVER WEDDING.

Mr. Connett, formerly of Plainfield, Now a Resident of San Jose, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Connett, the former a native of Plainfield, celebrated their silver wedding anniversary at their home in San Jose, Ill., recently. The San Jose Metropolitan contains this account of the observance:

"Mr. and Mrs. Connett are among our most congenial residents, (especially is this so of 'Hank'). True to their name, they has abounded in their home, and on this day, this same genuine hospitality was paramount and the guests departed, thankful for the privilege of being present, delighted with the treatment accorded them and ringing praises for the pleasant hours passed *at their home. Seated at this anni*versary were three persons, Mrs. Frazee Connett, Miss Mattie and John L. Eyrse, who had taken dinner with the subjects of this write-up on their wedding journey, a quarter of a century ago. Every arrangement of this affair was carried out in the minutest details.

"Henry Connett is a native of Plainfield, New Jersey, and was born in 1851. As a young man he came East and on February 26, 1882, he was united in marriage with Miss Mollie Eyrse, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel G. Eyrse, the marriage occurring at the Eyrse homestead in this city. Mr. Connett had always followed the vocation of a farmer and has been successful and prosperous. He is a good neighbor and holds the respect and confidence of a large circle of friends and acquaintances, he having served as school director for years at his district and at different times held other offices of trust in his vicinity. To Mr. and Mrs. Connett have been born four children, two sons and two daughters."

Miss Augusta MacQuoid, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth D. MacQuoid, of 304 East Fifth street, and Samuel Alexander Clouston, of 304 East Front street, were quietly married yesterday afternoon at Grace church, New York. Those who accompanied the couple and witnessed the cere*mony were Mr. and Mrs.* Charles MacQuoid, Miss Minnie MacQuoid and John Mantz, the last two named of this city.

After the ceremony the bridal party and a number of friends had dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria, and later the couple left on a wedding tour. They will reside at 212 East Fifth street, where the groom has furnished a home.

The bride wore a handsome tailor-made gown of black material with hat to match, and she carried a bouquet of bride roses. She has been a resident of this city for several years and has a host of friends and acquaintances. Mr. Clouston has also resided in Plainfield many years. He is employed by one of the local press works.

PLAINFIELD LIBRARY NOTES

Harben, William Nathaniel.—Ann Boyd.

"The story has a certain elemental vigor which is characteristic of all Mr. Harben's work. In some portions of the book the writer has succeeded in imparting a suggestion of the rude pathos and unaffected sentiment that we associate with the peasant pictures of Millet."

Hawkins, Anthony Hope.—Sophy of Kravonia.

"The conspiracy which thickens the plot is capitally developed, and long before the matter is solved the reader has quite forgotten that at the outset here was a certain sense of oppressiveness in the very serious marshalling of documentary evidence, as if for the history of a nation or the biography of a nation's hero."

Hichens, Robert Smythe.—Call of the blood.

"Mr. Hichens' style harmonizes excellently with his subject. Its colour is at times rather heavy, but in the main it seems to heighten the effect of a remarkably interesting and dramatic study of the survival of pagan and primitive instincts."

Howells, William Dean, and Alden, H. M., eds.—Under the sunset: Harper's novelettes.

"Many of the stories are exceedingly good, and the variety, within the broad limits of the western localization and inspiration, is strikingly wide."

Jane, Edward Verrall.—Listener's lure: a Kensington comedy.

"Attractive as are the characters in the book, the main interest lies in the delightful things that are said by the way. Mr. Lucas is essentially an essayist."

McCutchen, George Barr.—Jane Cable.

"As a good melodrama should, the story takes hold in the first pages with a grip that releases the interest only when the problems are all solved."

Mears, Mary Martha.—Breath of the runners.

"There is much knowledge of the art world, much keen insight into the hearts of men and women, and no small amount of healthful philosophy of life in this unpretentious story." Bookman.

Murfree, Mary Noailles.—("Charles Egbert Craddock").—The amulet.

"The scene is laid in a stockade fort in Tennessee in the year 1763, where a little band of English soldiers maintains this outpost of civilization among the Cherokee Indians."

Parrish, Randall.—Bob Hampton of Placer.

"Its theme, indeed, is so like that of Harte's 'Protege of Jack Hamlin's' as to make it seem rather more reminiscent than original. A certain racy quality of its own, however, it preserves." N. Y. Times.

Reed, Myrtle.—Spinner in the sun.

"There is a mystery in Miss Reed's new story. 'It is a tale of village tragedy working out the purification and redemption of its actors.' 'Nothing but humor, could redeem the extravagant, sentimental presentment offered as a reading of life. But humor is nowhere present.'" Literary digest.

Roach, Abby Meguire.—Some successful marriages.

"Its limitation is a lack of humor, which results in a self-conscious style from time to time, and leads one to suspect that the characters are not quite average—as they are intended to be—but ultra-introspective, thinking their way through difficulties that over and over should dissolve in fun." Outlook.

Viaud, Louis Marie Julien, (Pierre Loti, pseud).—Disenchanted.

"This situation M. Loti has developed in a story of rare delicacy and beauty, full of refinement and feeling, and sketched in those sensitive colors, with that extreme sensibility of feeling, which have made him perhaps the foremost of impressionist writers." Outlook.

Warner, Anne.—Seeing France with Uncle John.

"It is quite impossible to read this little satire by Anne Warner without laughter." Outlook.

Weyman, Stanley John.—Chippinge Borough.

"Mr. Weyman's latest romance has for its background the passing of the reform bill of 1832. No novelist is more conscientious in his treatment of historical events, and the picture he presents of the fierce struggle between the old governing class and the advocates of the 'People's bil' is singularly faithful and vivid. . . . Into this political struggle he has successfully woven a romantic story." Athenaeum.

White, Stewart Edward, and Adams, Samuel Hopkins.—The mystery.

"The story is well told in a lively style, and the characters are strongly portrayed. Perhaps there is in the dialogue a dash too much of smartness, but the credibility of the reader is at times overstrained. But the novel has real merit and is a notable contribution to the 'thrillers' of the sea." Literary digest.

"The intent is to present a friendly picture of real American life, to hold up the mirror to 'society,' and to provide a sort of guide book of America's typical institutions but it's all done upon such meagre knowledge of the facts that British visitors must be warned not to take it seriously." N. Y. Times.

MOODY'S CAMPAIGN TALK

Union County Democratic Leader Gives Version of Talk With Smith

TELLS OF CORRUPTION

John Moody, of Cranford, addressed a large audience in he parish hall of St. Stephen's church, Newark, Thursday night, on the topic "Sources of Political Corruption." He made caustic comment upon the influences exercised in political affairs by the "men higher up," and did not hesitate to intimate that Senator Smith declared to be crying evils of the time. Incidentally, he told of a visit he once made to former Senator James Smith, Jr., and the latter's observation about grafting at Trenton.

"A few years ago I was the chairman of the Union County Democratic Committee," said Mr. Moody. "I thought then there was far less corruption in politics than people believe. My ideas have changed. I know now the big men are more corrupt than the little ones. We had a campaign in our county, and an opportunity to elect three Democratic members of the Legislature, but the county is normally Republican, and we were poor. I went to the State committeeman from our county and asked for assistance. He said he would try to get help from former United States Senator James Smith. He did try, but did not succeed, but returned and said the Senator wished to see me.

"I found him in New York at the headquarters of the Shipbuilding Trust. He greeted me like a long-lost friend and exclaimed: 'Dear Mr. Moody, how are things in your county?' I told him I came to get some sinews of war. He replied:

"'That's the same old story I've been getting from every county in this State. For fifteen years I've been spending $15,000 a year out of my own pocket because I love the Democratic party, and today I'm practically poor.'

"I said to Mr. Smith, 'Senator, I'm not asking you to give me money. I only want your advice and influ*ence." He said it he didn't give the* money that I should get any from any. Then he went on to say that the trouble with the Democratic party had been the sending of too many grafters to Trenton, and asked me: 'How can you expect me to get Democratic governors, legislations or railroads, if our party sends men down there to graft on the railroads?'"

In other words, added Mr. Moody, as long as the big grafters could not get anything like the free corporation legislation, the little grafters couldn't get their share.

Mr. Moody, who spoke under the auspices of the Young Men's Club of St. Stephen's church, began his remarks by describing a meeting he had with a wealthy man and wo*man at Lakewood shortly after the* election of 1904. The man deplored the placing of the country's government in the hands of what he termed was a "vulgar class of people" of no social standing. The woman remarked that in her State, Massachusetts, the Governor's picture looked surprisingly like that of the picture in advertisements of a man who makes shoes and she believed they were related.

Mr. Moody said he ascertained that both the man and the woman derived their incomes from stocks and added:

Chief Source of Corruption.

"These people represent a class in this country who are identified closely with the chief source of political corruption. In my opinion the people who are politically corrupting this nation are the philanthropists, who endow libraries, from education boards, build universities and churches and who are looked upon as leaders of finance, captains of industry, with their vast crowd of hangers-on and parasites. They are a sort of men who never go into politics and who regard it as too vulgar and corrupt to be identified with, unless to be to join some reform movement which dies out before it accomplishes the purpose for which it was formed. They are the sort of men who constantly condemn their neighbors who go into politics.

"During the past seventy years the United States has grown tremendously in population, material wealth and in all other ways. A visitor to this country in 1830 said the most remarkable thing he observed was the equality of conditions between man and man. The change since that time has been tremendous. The national wealth has increased from four billions to 120 billions of dollars. The comfort of the average citizen should have increased in proportion, but as a fact, he is not nearly so well off. There is a tremendous unequal distribution of wealth. One fact the people overlook in discussing this question is that half of this wealth may be called tangible and the balance fictitious or unearned increment. Less than five per cent. of the people of this country are in*terested in the unearned increment.*

"Let us look at the Public Service Corporation, which owns every mile of street railroad in this State worth having and all the gas and electric light plants of any account. The corporation has stocks and bonds outstanding of about $210,000,000. It could be replaced today at a cost of $80,000,000. The difference between the two amounts is the unearned increment. The same thing is true all over this country. The Union Pacific Railroad in 1898 was sold for $44,000,000. Since that time it has grown to $170,000,000. The difference in the unearned increment with which the public has nothing to do.

"It is a kind of wealth created by the legislation in this country. Sit down and trace the Public Service Corporation's history since it started and you will be astounded at the ingenuity, the slick methods employed whereby men who have never been supposed to possess any exceptional intellect has been able to wring out fortune after fortune and yet have the average man believe they were almost on the verge of bankruptcy.

"Look at the annual statements in the Street Railway Journal, the official mouthpiece of those big interests, and you will be surprised what tremendous capitalization there has been of the stock and yet what insignificant returns. If this city's population jumps in the next ten years, will there be a reduction based on increased earnings? Not likely, but there will probably be another capitalization and a new stock issue ordered, and the results from that sale pocketed by a few in such a way that the average man will not see it."

Mr. Moody said the distribution of shares to the public had been used as an argument that there was no such thing as concentration of wealth, but the argument was false, since before the public was invited to buy the capitalization had been performed and the real wealth pocketed by the few. Great monopolies are the result, he held, of governmental favors of one kind or another bestowed on private interests. The men who seek these financial power seek to do it through the enactment of laws which will prevent interference by the great majority of people. The game of politics, he said, is to keep the public ignorant and secure laws that will prevent reformers from accomplishing their ends. If corruption is necessary to do it, then corruption is employed.

"Then men who are usually pointed out by the average man as the leaders of corruption are only instruments of other powers," continued the speaker. "They do their work for a consideration, but they are not the men higher up." In concluding, he said:

"This elimination of political corruption will be a life and death struggle in this country for years to come. *It will be the problem of the cen*tury. The government must be more closely in touch with the people. The more people get into the hands of the majority the better it will be, for the great mass of the people are honest."

Regarding the philanthropy of Carnegie and Rockefeller, Mr. Moody said: Possibly, if conditions continue, a trust will arise that will make either of these men's millions look like toy fortunes. He considered it no generosity to give back a trifling part of money wrung from the public by questionable means.

EPISCOPAL CHURCH HISTORY IN AMERICA

INTERESTING LECTURE BY REV. DR. COODER WELL ILLUSTRATED.

Rev. Dr. Charles L. Cooder, of Rahway, delivered an interesting lecture on the history of the Episcopal church in America at Grace Protestant Episcopal church parish house, Thursday. The talk was finely illustrated with stereopticon pictures.

Dr. Cooder traced the history of Episcopalian effort in this country, from its beginning at Jamestown in 1607, when the missionaries under Capt. John Smith brought over their chaplain, Rev. Robert Hunter, through the period of its awakening from 1700 on, down to the present. He touched on the beginning of the church in New Jersey, by Keith, one of the first two missionaries sent out from London, in 1703.

Commenting on the generally accepted idea that Episcopalians were not patriots as a rule in the war for independence, Dr. Cooder brought out the fact that sixty per cent. of the members of the first continental congress were churchmen.

Following the lecture, contributions were received for the men's missionary thank-offering.

*Mrs. Robert Lowry, of East Sev*enth street, has gone to Philadelphia to visit friends.

Miss Mary Smith, of Raritan, has been visiting her sister, Mrs. George Weaner, of this city.

Mrs. Michael Moynihan, of Bound Brook, has returned home after a few days' visit with borough relatives.

The publicity committee and the officers of the Board of Trade discussed plans for the campaign of advertising decided upon at the last meeting of the Board, at a conference in Liefke & Laing's office, Park avenue, Friday afternoon.

Following out the new policy of concentration, the Board will devote its energies for the present to the advertising idea, and get it started right. It was decided yesterday to have pamphlets on the city and its advantages printed, and give them to all the business houses. The business men will be asked to put copies in all their outgoing mail. Copies will be sent to New York for distribution among apartment house dwellers.

The advertising scheme will be spread out as the funds in the hands of the committee permit. A subscription list has been started to swell the committee with the sinews of a fast and extended campaign. All the business men will be asked to contribute, and the man who refuses to subscribe will lose caste. Advertising in the New York papers and in the New York elevated, subway and surface cars was discussed, but that line of publicity will have to wait on the funds.

Secretary Feickert has prepared the handbill for the pamphlet. Facts setting forth the attractions and advantages of the city as a home town and as a site for factories are concisely presented. The illustrations to accompany them will show views of Plainfield's streets, schools, churches and other institutions.

All the merchants, manufacturers, real estate men and business men generally as well as commuters will be asked to bear a share of the necessary expense to carry on the work properly.

PLAN INTERSCHOLASTIC ATHLETIC MEET AT Y.M.C.A.

WESTFIELD, CRANFORD, PLAINFIELD NORTH PLAINFIELD AND LEAL'S ENTER.

Representatives of five schools met at the Y. M. C. A. Friday afternoon, and arranged for an interscholastic athletic meet at the Y. M. C. A. on April 9. The schools to take part are Plainfield High, North Plainfield High, Leal's, Cranford High and Westfield High.

The events will be standing broad jump, running high jump, standing high jump, three standing broad jumps, 15-yard dash, shot put, and potato race. The school winning the meet will get a silver cup. There will be first, second and third prizes for individuals, and ribbons and second medals on total points records.

The meet will be the largest interscholastic affair held here in a long time. The meet of last year was confined to Plainfield, Cranford and Westfield high schools. Plainfield won it.

To Tell of Their Lives.

On Sunday, March 24, E. C. Mercer, assistant superintendent of the old Jerry McAuley Mission on Water street, New York, will bring some of the men from the mission and speak in the Crescent Avenue church. One of the speakers will be a son of the late S. H. Hadley, for so many years the superintendent of the mission. Mr. Mercer is a graduate of the University of Virginia. Through the drink habit acquired in college he became a tramp on the streets of New York and was rescued in the Jerry McAuley Mission. He will probably tell the story of his life on the 24th.

Veils.

Black veils do not look well with a very light hat or gown, unless blue is introduced elsewhere in the costume.

The small woman should never wear very large spots on her veil, whereas a large woman should eschew tiny, pin dotted veils.

Dr. Eastman to Speak Here.

Dr. Charles A. Eastman, a full-blooded Sioux Indian, will lecture before the Monday Afternoon Club on Monday, March 19, following up the course of study taken up by the club this season. Dr. Eastman is the only North American Indian on the lecture platform. He is a graduate of Dartmouth College and Boston University. He is not only well educated, but is a highly entertaining speaker.

Mrs. Fred Tyler, of West Front street, has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Scott, of North Branch.

TELL OF JERSEY ROADS

Commissioner Hutchinson and Supervisor Meeker Speak Before National Body.

AT PITTSBURG, PA.

Plainfielder Explains How a Good Road Is Made—Jersey Well Represented.

State Road Commissioner E. Hutchinson, State Supervisor of Roads R. A. Meeker, together with County Engineers Joshua Dausch, Jr., of Somerset; Colin H. Wise, Passaic; Frank J. Epple, of Mercer; J. J. Albertson, of Camden, and W. H. DeNyse, of Monmouth, who have been appointed as delegates by Governor E. C. Stokes, to represent the State, left yesterday for Pittsburg, where today and tomorrow they will attend the National Congress of Road Builders to be held in connection with the fourth annual convention of the American Road Makers' Association. The sessions will be held in Carnegie Hall.

Of special interest to New Jersey is the fact that Commissioner Hutchinson presented this morning a paper on "The History of Road Building in New Jersey." This paper shows that road building in the State began in 1868 at Orange, and it gave an interesting sketch of improvements made from that time to the present date, including the history under the State Aid Act, New Jersey being the first State to adopt such a measure.

New Jersey leads the States of the Union in road building, Massachusetts being second, Connecticut third and New York a poor fourth. New Jersey has been able to build the best roads for $7,000 a mile, while New York has been paying $15,000 a mile. Under the State Aid Act this State has 1,154 miles of macadamized roads, while under the county bonding act, the various townships, boroughs and towns have built as many more miles of macadam roads, making a total of 2,300 miles on this side of the city streets.

Following the paper by Commissioner Hutchinson, Mr. Meeker also has been closely identified with road building in the State for several years, having supervised much of the work, read a paper on "The Fallacies, Fallacies and Facts of Road Building." This was unique in that Mr. Meeker chose for his subject a Scripture selection that proved to be appropriate. It reads as follows: "Make straight in the desert a highway. . . . Every valley shall be exalted, and every mountain and hill shall be made low: and the crooked shall be made straight, and the rough places plain."

Mr. Meeker referred to Claudius Appius, the old Roman road builder, and the famous "Appian Way," well known in picture and story, and said that it was too hard for the travel of horses and is today as much avoided as possible. While the Indian lived after Appius no one ever thought of copying it. It was only in the use of thoroughly drained earth was to be found the surest foundations for good roads and only then is progress made.

Some people were prone to look upon macadamized roads as something nice to have as a luxury, but very expensive. Mr. Meeker cited the fact that New Jersey has added hundreds and thousands of dollars to the yearly value by having good roads. He referred to the first road built in this when he used 16 inch telford. This he found to be expensive and hard and the top wears off easily. Using a case of macadamizing in Plainfield, he spoke of twelve inch telford used on Park avenue and four inch used on East Front street. The latter was found to have more elasticity and would wear better, while with the twelve or fourteen inch the frost would heave it.

Mr. Meeker then explained according to his ideas and his own experience how to build a model road. In the first place he said that there should be a grade of five per cent. or less, fill up the flats one half or one per cent., cut off all waters by underdrain, establish a crown on the road three inches or an inch per foot. Cut out the sub-grade, being careful to give it the same curvature as a finished road. Roll the sub-grade until it is hard and smooth, removing all spongy and vegetable earth. Broken stone course on every roll and add binder and continue rolling until the stone ceases to sink and creep in front of the roller.

Then spread the second course and roll it with additional binder and water until the whole surface is hard and smooth, carefully filling with stone any depressions that may appear and then finish the whole with a course of three-quarter inch stone and screenings. The last must be soaked with water and rolled until a wave of mud is found in front of the roller, being careful to commence rolling at the sides and gradually working it toward the center, for by so doing the crown of the road is preserved.

Mr. Meeker stated that if this work is well and thoroughly done the road will be hard, smooth and convenient for travel at all seasons of the year.

After the presentation of the paper there was an informal discussion of it in which many of the foremost road builders in the country took part, explaining their individual experiences and comparing it with that of Mr. Meeker.

HEAT OF ACETYLENE FLAME.

Some Parts Have Higher Temperature Than Others.

From the best of combustion of acetylene, its temperature, writes Nikolk in Physikalische Zeitschrift, is calculated to be between 2100 degrees Centigrade and 2420. But the experimental values so far obtained vary from the melting point of platinum down to 1400 degrees. That some parts of the flame possess a temperature higher than the melting point of platinum may be proved by introducing very fine platinum wires into it and showing that they melt. Herr Nichols has made some careful measurements by means of thermocouples, consisting of fine platinum and platino rhodium wires. The difficulty in all such measurements is to avoid conduction, which reduces the temperature of the hot junction below that of the flame into which it is immersed. The author has heretofore employed the expedient of using four different diameters of wires, ranging from 0.19 millimeters to 0.03 millimeters, and extrapolating the curves thus obtained down to a zero diameter. The highest temperature of the hottest portion thus obtained was found to be 1920 degrees, or 100 degrees above the highest temperature obtained with thinnest wire. An ordinary gas jet gave under the same conditions a temperature of 1780 degrees, or a few degrees above the melting point of platinum.

P. H. S. Oracle Prize Number.

The March number of the Plainfield High School monthly publication, The Oracle, came out yesterday with the prize cover design, drawn by Weston Gavett. Each department is headed with a design, for some of which prizes were awarded in the recent competition. "Underneath to a Nihilist" is the title of the prize story, written by DeLancy Ferguson. Other stories in this number are: "Mrs. O'Grady's Interview with the Census Man," by Miss Helen Whitney; "Short," the "Monkey," by Guion H. Fountain; "When Kenmore's Horse Ran Away," by William Lambert; "'Hickory' Jones' 'Health Joint,'" by Walter Knokiton; and "The Book Agent and the Lady who No Time to Waste," by F. Williams. This issue also contains cuts of the school glee club and instrumental clubs.

TEA FOR RETIRING PRESIDENT.

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society, of the First Presbyterian church, a reception and tea was given to the retiring president, Mrs. David K. Young, at the home of the new president, Mrs. Clarence Bond, of East Front street. The affair was attended by more than one hundred women from the church.

Mrs. William H. Shotwell, Mrs. Abram Cadmus and Mrs. Campbell Marsh were honored guests, and they were assisted in serving by Miss Linda Cave, Miss Charlotte Cave, Miss Clara VanVliet, Miss Bertha Hill and Miss Bessie Bond.

Elias Nadel Marries in New York.

Elias Nadel, of this city, and Miss Sarah Bardach, of New York, were married Sunday night at Lafayette Hall, New York, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends. The groom is a member of the Young Men's Hebrew Association, of this city, and that organization attended in a body. Samuel Rothberg, the president, presented the bride with a handsome clock on behalf of the association. The Young Men's Progressive Club, of New York, also attended in a body. Mr. Nadel being an officer of that organization. The couple have gone to Niagara Falls on a wedding trip. They will reside at 311 Liberty street.

Funeral of F. M. Slater.

The funeral of Fred Mortimer Slater, who died suddenly Friday morning, was held at his late home on Jackson avenue, Monday afternoon. It was attended by a large gathering of friends, many being from New York, Elisabeth and other places. Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, was in charge. There was an unusually large display of floral tributes. Interment was made in the North Plainfield cemetery, the pall-bearers being James K. Arnold, John H. Williams, E. A. Vermeule and Charles Steiner.

Plainfield Theatre News.

Manager Counihan has secured Edward Waldmann in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" to play Friday, March 22, under the auspices of Wetumpka Tribe of Red Men. Waldmann has his own strong company that played with him through the East. He will play in Plainfield, Elisabeth and Newark before coming his engagement in New York at the Bijou in April. "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" is a high class play which theatregoers will appreciate. It is a great lesson that Stevenson portrays and is sure to be greeted with a crowded house.

Annual Meeting Hope Chapel.

The annual meeting of Hope chapel will be held Thursday night, April 4. There will be reports from officers of the chapel, Sunday-school and various societies of the chapel. The church treasurer and assistants will be elected and other matters of importance considered.

PLAINFIELD MAY GET A COAL INSPECTOR

IF DAAB'S BILL IS PASSED COMMON COUNCIL CAN APPOINT ONE.

Assemblyman Philip Daab's bill, authorizing governing bodies of second class cities to appoint inspectors of coal, ice and other wares and merchandise sold in said cities, salaries of such inspectors to be fixed by such governing board, not exceeding $1,000 per year, was passed unanimously last night in the House at Trenton.

Under the provisions of this bill, should it pass the Senate and be signed by Governor Stokes, the Common Council of Plainfield will have power to appoint a citizen to inspect coal delivered by local dealers and ascertain whether it comes up to the required standard in weight and quality. The same act will apply to ice and wares and merchandise. For some time there has been considered agitation in this direction particularly regarding coal and ice, but in the absence of legislative action nothing could be done.

Addition to S. S. Building.

The trustees of the First Baptist church have decided to make some extensive improvements in the Sunday-school room of the church, which will provide four large size class rooms, that can be shut off from the main room during the teaching of the lesson. The rooms will be built on the Grove street side of the room and will be so constructed that the partitions can be rolled back, throwing the whole room into one open space, when necessary.

Start New Normal Building.

E. Brognard Betts, of this city, a member of the committee of the New Jersey State Board of Education, which has in charge the construction of the new normal school at Montclair Heights, joined other members of the committee on Friday afternoon in the ceremony of opening the work on the building by throwing a shovel full of earth with a silver shovel provided for the occasion. The building is to cost $195,000, and will be ready for occupancy by February 1, 1909.

Brightside Circle Fund.

Mrs. Calvin H. Rugg, of Grandview avenue, has offered the use of her home to the Brightside Circle, of the King's Daughters, for an entertainment to be held there tonight. Mrs. J. A. Powlison has charge of the entertainment and the affair will be given for the purpose of raising funds with which to meet the circle pledge for the salary of the city nurse.

Another P. H. S. Prize.

In addition to The Daily Press prize award another new prize is to be given for the first time this year to the Plainfield High School. The prize is a silver cup and is offered by the Yale Club of this city to the student who has the best standing in both scholarship and athletics. This cup will be on exhibition at the coming meeting of the Yale Alumni Association of this city.

Celebrated Tin Wedding Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Schilling, of Rahway, celebrated the tenth anniversary of their wedding on Friday night, when they entertained a large number of relatives and friends. The celebrants were generously remembered with tinware, receiving enough to stock a store. The couple are known here, where they have many friends.

An Evening of Games.

The Men's Club of Grace Protestant Episcopal church enjoyed an evening of games last night. They met in the basement of the Casino, instead of at the parish house, and the members divided their time between bowling, pool, billiards and smoking. The affair was much enjoyed.

Mr. Warner Slightly Improved.

Henry H. Warner, brother of Rev. George A. Warner, of Washington avenue, who is quite ill at St. Luke's Hospital, New York, is reported to be slightly improved. He is suffering from a case of blood poisoning and the physicians are not yet decided whether it will be necessary to operate or not.

Railroad Victim Buried.

The funeral of Alexandreo Pandolino, who was killed on the railroad Sunday, was held at St. Mary's church this morning. The mass was conducted by Rev. Father Sciola and interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery.

Frelinghuysen Bill Passed.

Senator Joseph Frelinghuysen's concurrent resolution No. 16, providing for a constitutional amendment to allow of the election of members of the Assembly by districts, passed the House as quickly last night as it did the Senate recently.

Stole $24.

James Davis, colored, arrested on complaint of John Gilliman, also colored, from whom he stole $24 by breaking open a trunk, was held by the grand jury in $200 bail this morning by Judge Runyon. He acknowledged the theft.

Opdyke Funeral Private.

The funeral of Charles W. Opdyke, who died at his home on Watchung avenue, Saturday, will be private. Interment will be at the convenience of the family.

TRAMP HAD TO BE SHOWN.

His Scheme to Get An Apple Did Not Work at Grocery.

"Sir," said the tramp to the grocer as he turned his back to the hot stove and looked longingly at a basket of red apples, "the returns of the agricultural department this year show that the apple crop reached the enormous yield of over 150,000,000 barrels, saying nothing of those saved out for cider."

"Don't doubt it at all," said the grocer.

"Under those circumstances doesn't it look to you as if you might spare me one single apple?"

"Not at all."

"Sir," continued the tramp as he backed two inches nearer the stove, "all medical men are agreed that the apple is a necessity to human health. The system needs the phosphates contained in such fruit. You agree with me, do you?"

"I would have agreed with you a year ago, but now it's different. Something better has been found. See here."

And he took the tramp by the shoulder and led him to the door and gave him a shove out into the cold world. The man returned, looked through the window and said:

"Oh, I'm not kicking at all. This is a world of improvement, and if I'm a few years behind the times it's my fault, and I'm not saying a word. If shoving is better than phosphates, why, shoving it is."—Detroit Tribune.

WITH THE JOKE MAN.

Hubby—"Wife, what makes the baby scream so furiously?" Wife—"I think the little dear is suffering from a brain storm, dear."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Bacon—"Does he recognize the eight-hour law in his business?" Egbert—"Oh, my, no! He couldn't! He's a professional chess player!"—Yonkers Statesman.

First Tourist—"These customs officials seem to take a positive delight in their work." Second Tourist—"Yes, they combine duty and pleasure."—Philadelphia Record.

"Where," asked the tenderfoot, "was the last man killed here?" "He ain't been killed yet," replied Arizona Al. "There's gold in the hills, at least one prize killed as soon as him and me comes face to face."—Chicago Record-Herald.

"Haven't you sometimes sacrificed your conscience in conducting your trust operation?" "Oh, yes," answered the financier, "but a man who succeeds in the world must expect to make some sacrifices."—Washington Star.

YALE STUDENTS EXPENSES.

Statistics Show They Run From $293 to $2,000 a Year.

New Haven, March 12.—The danger of a too liberal allowance to students in Yale University is set forth in statistics gathered by Professor William B. Bailey, of the department of political economy, and just made public. He obtained his data from 500 students.

Five groups were made, beginning at the students who spend less than $500 during their college year, up to those who spend more than $2,000. The average amount spent by students working their way through college is $292.30. The largest group spend between $500 and $1,000, while only nine spend over $2,000. The man in the $500 group spends 6 per cent. on clothes, while it is 25 per cent. with the man who spends more than $2,000 a year. The week's statistics make many gifts, spend more on intoxicants than on tobacco and liberally patronize the theatres. Statistics show that the pipe is the favorite with the Yale smoker, and that for every dollar spent by the poorest students the wealthiest spend $8.43. By a table of percentages the wealthiest students are shown to spend eighteen times as much on pleasure and eighty-two times as much on tobacco and intoxicants as the poorest students.

SEASONABLE REMINDERS.

Sow some grass or clover seed on the winter grain.

A good garden should be the pride of every farmer.

Burn brush, prunings and the rubbish gathered in the fields.

Parsnip and salsify roots still in the ground should be dug before any growth begins.

Fall plowing is to be suitable for raising two crops in one season must be rich, and in good tilth.

Do not expect to raise good crops from poor seed. The penny-a-packet seeds are the most expensive in the end.

Let those plants which were covered for the winter retain their protection until the weather becomes more settled.

Earliness is all-important with the market gardener. A few days will make a considerable difference in his receipts.

Preparation of the soil must be pushed as fast as its condition will allow. Use an abundance of manure and plow deeply.

If fruit trees are planted for orchard purposes, select only a few kinds that are known to succeed in the locality where they are to be grown.

OLDEST PRISON TO GO

SITUATED AT SANTA FE, N. M., AND WILL BE TORN DOWN.

Its History Is Lost in the Dim Past —Walls of Sun-Dried Brick Four Feet Thick—The Adobe Roof.

Kansas City, Mo.—The old Spanish prison in Santa Fe, N. M., one of the most ancient and historic buildings in the City of the Holy Faith, with the exception of San Miguel church, is to be razed and in its place will be erected a modern jail building of vitrified brick, steel cages and steam heat. The county commissioners have let the contract for tearing down and disposing of the old prison, and work has already begun upon the new structure. The half dozen prisoners now in the jail will be guarded elsewhere until the new structure is completed.

It is impossible to secure data on the old prison. It has stood as long as the oldest inhabitant can remember and looked nearly 200 years ago as it does to-day. The building has been remodeled a dozen times, but the cells and massive doors have never been changed. The old prison is of adobe entirely. Its walls are of sun-dried brick four feet in thickness. The roof, which is of adobe, laid over massive pine logs roughly hewn into shape with an ax, is also several feet thick. The cells are dirty, dark and unfurnished except for piles of straw covered with old blankets, or rickety cots upon which prisoners are expected to sleep. Earth, hardened and worn by the tread of many feet, is the only floor. In the walls of the cells are still fastened the great, hand-wrought chains and cuffs with which prisoners at one time were made fast. The cell doors are of iron beaten and welded into bars by hand. They have resisted mob violence in times gone by. The old prison was originally constructed about a placita or little yard, the buildings forming three sides and a high adobe wall the fourth. In recent years, however, the buildings on two sides of the placita have fallen into ruins and the remainder on the opposite side were used as stables for the sheriff's horses, leaving only the main cellhouse as a prison. In the center of the placita back of the prison was an old scaffold, which rattled and swayed in the wind. Upon it many an early "bad man" paid for his crimes with his life. The method of execution was rough. After the knot was placed about the neck, the executioner kicked a prop from beneath the trap on which the prisoner stood.

The books of the prison have been lost, only a few in recent years having been preserved. They are written principally in Spanish and give little information.

The agitation for a new prison began about six months ago when a portion of the roof over one cell fell in. The following night a prisoner made his escape, leaving a note in which he said that he did not want to run away, believing that he would be acquitted upon bringing it to trial, but he deemed it foolhardy to remain longer in such a death trap. The publication of the letter called the attention of the people to the old prison. They had long forgotten it, considering it only one of the many relics of other days.

LABOR CHEAP IN BELGIUM.

Thirteen Hours of Hard Work Poorly Recompensed.

The hours of labor in Belgium are very long, says Daily Consular and Trade Reports. The laborer begins work at six a. m., and ceases work at seven p. m., with the usual breaks for meals. He is paid on the average of seven cents to nine cents an hour for women, and 25 per cent. more for two additional hours, making his daily wage 84 cents to $1.08 for 12 hours. Children begin their life work as early as 12 years of age, though the law compulsionately states that no child under 16 years of age shall be kept at work more than 10 hours a day. A Belgian statistician estimates the average earnings of an artisan, child labor being included in his calculation, at about $168 a year. Numerous factories have been established there by British capital, owing to the very low rate at which labor can be secured.

Japan's Cotton Manufactures.

Japan is making notable progress in the manufacture of cotton goods. New factories are being projected and established mills enlarged. It is predicted that between 50,000 and 100,000 new spindles will be installed during 1907. It appears that there is a prejudice among Japanese mill managers against American textile machinery and that nearly all such machinery is purchased in England. Japan will, in the not remote future, undoubtedly have a very large share of the Asiatic market for cotton goods.

GOT THE DAUGHTER AND A JOB.

"So you want my daughter do you?" said the proprietor of the newspaper to the young man who was sitting nervously on the edge of a chair in the parlor.

"Yes, sir."

"Have you spoken to her on the subject?"

"She's willing, sir, and referred me to you."

"But how do you know you love her?"

"How do I know!" gasped the young man. "I give you my word, sir, that I haven't eaten a square meal in two months, and sleep is almost out of the question for thinking of her."

"Young man, there's some style to that talk. I think you may come into the family. I need a man of your ability to swear to the circulation of my paper."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Victorious.

Two young men, both residents in a large Scottish city, met one day in the street.

"Weel, Tam," said the first, "I hear ye're in love wi' bonny Kate McAllister."

"I must say," replied the other, "I was near—verra near—it; but the lass had nae siller, so I said to myself, 'Mac, be a man.' And I was a man, and so I pass her wi' silent contempt."

TWO DIFFERENT THINGS.

Ethel—Yes, dear, he can marry on it, but he can't live on it.—Chicago Journal.

Hardened.

Mrs. Keyson—Weren't you frightened when the bull bellowed at you because of your new red costume?

Mrs. Puson—No; you see my husband went on just the same when he got the bill.

Then They Went Off.

"It strikes me that you are loaded," said the pistol to the double-barrel shotgun.

"Oh, not quite," rejoined the latter. "I'm only half-shot."

Whereupon they both exploded with laughter.—Chicago Daily News.

Knew Better.

"There's no changing a leopard's spots," remarked the visitor at the zoo.

"Oh, yes there is," said the keeper. "I saw a lion fighting with one once, and he knocked the spots clean out of him."—Detroit Free Press.

Married For Money.

"Here is an interesting item about a man who has married 1,400 times."

"Gracious! He must be some eastern potentate?"

"No, the item says he is an Indiana justice of the peace."—Houston Post.

Hard to Believe.

"I'm listening."

"He always thanks the telephone girl when she tells him the line is busy."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

When Love Does Fly.

"Love," remarked the sentimental maid, "makes time fly."

"It does during courtship," rejoined the young widow, "but after the parson has said his say, time begins to make love fly."—Chicago Daily News.

Why She Suffered.

"Yes, she is a woman who has suffered a great deal because of her belief."

"Indeed! And what is her belief?"

"That she can wear a No. 3 shoe on a No. 6 foot."—Royal Magazine.

Not Positive.

He—Are you fond of Chopin, Miss Fangle?

She—Yes, I enjoy it as a rule; but the shops are fearfully overcrowded just now.

As Evidence.

Employer—Have you had any experience as chauffeur?

Applicant—Well, I can show you receipts for all the fines I have paid.

Too Well Posted.

Jinks—How did you come to lose so much money on the races?

Winks—Got too many tips before I started.—N. Y. Weekly.

FAVOR PURE FOOD BILL

Many Citizens Pronounce the Frelinghuysen Measure Better Than Federal Laws.

SUGGEST AMENDMENTS

One Is to the Effect that Proprietary Medicines and Foods On Hand Should Be Exempted from Its Provisions.

The State Senate public health committee, Senators Colby, Frelinghuysen and Price, held a hearing yesterday afternoon at Trenton on what is known as the "Pure Food Bill," and which was introduced by Senator Frelinghuysen.

Hugh Gordon Miller, a New York lawyer, gave a history of the Federal pure food act, and pronounced the pending bill even better in some respects than the United States law. He suggested, however, that some safeguards were necessary to protect the bill, one of which was in relation to the power of the State Board of Health in making the standard of weight and measurement which the bill provides.

Dr. Mitchell, secretary of the State Board of Health, advocated the passage of the bill, the purpose of which was, in part, to perfect a revision of all the present statutes and the methods of collecting the penalties prescribed.

Dr. Kebler, of the Federal Department of Agriculture, was introduced, but said that he would prefer to defer his remarks until Miss Alice Lakey, chairman of the New Jersey State Federation of Women's Clubs' pure food committee, and wife, Dr. Mitchell said, represented about 500,000 women, had spoken. She suggested that New Jersey should follow along the lines of the Federal law, until something better could be had. The bill under consideration, she said, was a good one. She said the national law was passed because there were not a number of Congress who dared to oppose it. The sentiment of the women of New Jersey was solid in favor of the Frelinghuysen bill, she said, and wanted it passed and the members of the Legislature would be "most miserable men if they opposed it."

She advocated an inspection of the slaughter houses of the state, and the women wanted the bill to go into operation as soon as passed because it meant the immediate protection which was demanded by the families of the State.

George White, of Jersey City, and a member of the State Board of Pharmacy, spoke generally in favor of the bill, but suggested a few amendments to perfect it.

Mr. Barringer, of Camden, also indorsed the bill in the main, but thought that the fact should be fully shown that a drug was adulterated before any prosecution could be made. This the pending bill did not require or provide. He added that if the bill should be passed in its present form, every druggist in the State would find that his interests were imperilled. The book issued by the Federal government on the subject of drugs was never intended to be regarded as a legal standard.

The Board of Health signified its willingness, through Mr. Frelinghuysen, to cut that part of the bill which indorsed the Federal formula, and Mr. Barringer took up that feature of the bill which refers to proprietary medicines. He suggested that the second provision of section four of the bill should be made to differentiate between proprietary articles and physicians' prescriptions.

Dr. Mitchell objected to the changes proposed by Mr. Barringer.

Dr. Kebler, after saying that he represented no individual or prejudice, but only the Federal government, said that there were men in this country who were advertising proprietary medicines for the cure of all sorts of diseases, and who called themselves physicians. It was of vital importance, he said, that these men, purporting to be doctors, were trafficking in deadly drugs to the almost universal detriment of those who were induced to use them. Referring to the homeopathic pharmacopoeia, Dr. Kebler said that he was not in favor of the introduction of it into any law.

Mr. Barringer defended the homeopathic pharmacopoeia, because he believed it had been accepted by the Federal government as a standard authority. He advocated an amendment to the bill which would compel all persons trafficking in proprietary medicine to submit the formula thereof to some recognized State board or other competent board of health. Mr. Barringer then asked for an amendment to the effect that proprietary medicines and foods on hand should be exempted from its provisions.

Dr. Mitchell explained that if the bill did not take effect until October, 1908, the druggists would have sul-

AGED BANKER DIES AFTER BRIEF ILLNESS

FATHER OF H.P. TALMADGE SUCCUMBS AT THE AGE OF EIGHTY-TWO.

After an illness of three weeks Henry Talmadge, who, until a few years ago was senior member of the banking firm of Henry Talmadge & Co., with offices at No. 50 Pine street, New York, died yesterday at his home, No. 538 Madison avenue, New York. He leaves one son, Henry P. Talmadge, of this city.

Mr. Talmadge was born in Westfield, Mass., eighty-two years ago. He was a trustee of the Central Trust Company, vice president and director of the Cossit Land Company, and a director of the Mechanics' National Bank, both of New York. Mr. Talmadge was a member of the Chamber of Commerce, the Society of Mayflower Descendants, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and for more than thirty years had been a member of the consistory of the Collegiate Reform church of the City of New York. His son, Henry P. Talmadge, who is president and director of the Augusta Lumber Company, president and director of the Haviland Lumber Company and president and director of the Southern Pine Company, of Georgia.

At one time Mr. Talmadge was the partner of the late Joseph Myers in the Jackson Insurance Company, of Memphis, Tennessee.

PREACHER EXPELLED FROM HOUSE FLOOR

ANTI-SALOON AGITATION ROASTED—ASSEMBLYMEN EXONERATED.

Practically all of yesterday afternoon was spent by the House of Assembly at Trenton sitting as a committee of the whole to investigate charges made by Rev. Dr. J. Frank Burke, secretary of the New Jersey Anti-Saloon League, to the effect that Assemblyman Perkins, of Union, Republican, and Assemblymen Kienert, of Passaic, and Aleander, of Hudson, Democrats, had corrupted as members of the Judiciary Committee to kill the League's Option bill, recently introduced by Assemblyman Buck, of Cumberland county. The final decision of the House was that the charges were not proven that the accused members were fully exonerated and that the privileges of the floor should be forever denied to the Rev. Mr. Burke.

The three Assemblymen were received with cheers when they returned to their seats after the verdict of the House had been announced, while the condemned clergyman left a seat he was occupying in the gallery and quitted the Capitol.

Seldom if ever before has such a rebuke been administered to any man and never to a minister of the Gospel. A remarkable feature of the case was that Mr. Burke was entirely alone at the hearing, save for the men he brought to Trenton as witnesses, no clergymen or fellow temperance workers appearing with him, although the time and place of the hearing had been widely advertised.

Previous to the formation of a report on the testimony as presented, Assemblyman Tumulty, of Hudson county, made a strong speech in condemnation of the preacher, calling the scandal monger, who had sought to blacken the reputation of honest legislators." Mr. Sullivan, also of Hudson, spoke in the same vein, declaring that Mr. Burke was seeking to intimidate legislators for campaign purposes. Dr. Crowhter, Republican Assemblyman, of Middlesex, declared that last winter, while the local option bill was pending, he was seriously ill at home, yet Mr. Burke's paper, in this issue, published a story to the effect that he was pretending to be sick so as to dodge the question of voting on a temperance measure. He then moved that Mr. Burke be expelled from the floor.

Runaway Strikes Another Rig.

A horse attached to a runabout, belonging to John H. Keely, the city street sprinkling contractor, ran away on Park avenue near the railroad bridge shortly before 9 o'clock this morning. Near Fourth street the rig collided with James Hansen's paint wagon and when the mixup had been straightened out, the latter vehicle was pretty well banged up. The runaway was stopped by Hansen, who jumped from his own wagon in time to catch it from keeping on after the crash.

Reception and Loan Exhibition.

Invitations have been issued by the Women's Club, of Westfield, for a reception and loan exhibition to be held at Westfield on Monday, April 8. It is expected that a number of Plainfield women will attend the affair.

N. J. MASONS IN SESSION

State Grand Lodge in Annual Communication at the Temple at Trenton Today.

PLAINFIELDERS THERE

The New Jersey Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons convened in Masonic Temple, Trenton, this morning, for their 120th annual communication. It is conjectured that Austin H. McGregor, of Newark, the present deputy grand master, will be elected grand master to succeed Walter Chandler, of Elizabeth.

The delegates from Anchor Lodge, No. 149, are J. T. Sutphen, William Taylor and James Dodd, and the past masters; the delegates from Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, are Robert Reif, Samuel W. Fish, William G. Hutchcroft and the past masters.

There are about 500 members present at the session, there being three delegates from each of the 181 lodges, and 100 past masters entitled to attend the session. The business transacted today included the reading of Grand Master Chandler's report, the reports of the standing committees, the reports of Grand Secretary Thomas H. R. Redway, of Trenton; Treasurer Bechtel, Deputy Grand Secretary W. F. Rutan, of Newark, and the reports of the Masonic home committee.

The report of Grand Secretary Thomas H. R. Redway shows that there are more than 27,000 members of the Masonic order in the State and that number is just double what it was seventeen years ago when Mr. Redway was first made secretary of the grand lodge, after he had served seventeen years as deputy grand secretary. The number of lodges in the State is now number 180. It is expected that several new lodges will be added at this session of the grand lodge. The session that starts tomorrow is the one hundred and twentieth annual meeting of the grand lodge, Trenton Lodge, No. 5, Perth Amboy, the oldest lodge represented at the grand lodge, having received its charter 120 years ago.

Street Commissioner William F. Burk is acting grand treasurer and is also district deputy grand master of this Masonic district.

The annual meeting of the royal and select masters took place yesterday afternoon in the chapter room in the hall, and the business for the past fiscal year was wound up. These officers were: Grand Master, Samuel J. Edward Blackmore, of Newark; deputy grand master, John Neilson, of Camden; principal conductor of work, John W. Johnson, of Camden; grand recorder, John B. Bertholfs, of Jersey City, and grand treasurer, Gilbert B. Stack.

The Washington association, a social organization made up of 20 members from the various lodges throughout the State, held their thirty-second annual banquet in the Colonial dining room of the Trenton House.

Prior to the serving of the collation the annual election of officers for the ensuing year was held, and the following were elected: Venerable President M. C. Cannon, M. D., re-elected for the twenty-third time. Hamilton Wallis, of Jersey City, was re-elected venerable vice-president, as was also William D. Rutan, of Elizabeth, as venerable secretary.

COURT REFUSES ALIMONY PENDING AMENDED PETITION

Counsel for Mrs. Wesley J. Dunn Obtains Permission to Make New Allegations.

In the divorce case of Mrs. Olive B. Dunn vs. Wesley J. Dunn, which came up before Vice Chancellor Emery at Newark yesterday on an application for alimony, the medical testimony which was taken before Special Master John H. VanWinkle in this city last week brought out new facts not alleged in the petition. Counsel W. S. Angleman, therefore, on behalf of Mrs. Dunn, applied for leave to file an amended petition covering the medical features of the case and to lay over the application for alimony until the amended pleadings were filed.

The court granted Mr. Angleman's application. Codington & Swackhamer are the solicitors for Mr. Dunn and William G. DeMeza for Mrs. Dunn.

Mayor Smalley in Livery Business.

George Cathers has given up the livery business on Somerset street, the borough, and moved to Newark. Mayor N. B. Smalley and William Campbell have formed a partnership and will engage in the livery business at the same stand.

ICE CONCERN ORGANIZES

Rival Company Which Will Lower Prices Chooses H.C. Wicker President.

SMALLEY, VICE-PREST.

Men of Financial Standing Directors —J. F. MacDonald Selected As Treasurer.

Henry C. Wicker, treasurer and secretary of the Nassau Bond Company, New York, has been elected president, and Mayor Newton B. Smalley, of North Plainfield, vice president of the Watchung Ice and Cold Storage Company, which was incorporated at Trenton several weeks ago, the story concerning which was exclusively published in The Daily Press sometime ago. J. Fred MacDonald, director of the City National Bank in Plainfield, and John J. Lordan, a New York lawyer, secretary. The directors are Newton B. Smalley, J. F. MacDonald, C. M. Wicker, H. C. Wicker, secretary and treasurer of the Nassau Bond Company and E. Percy du Mauel, president of the Consolidated Engineering Company, of America.

The company has been organized for the purpose of engaging in the ice and cold storage business. It is proposed to erect a dam and accumulate waters and form a large lake in the upper basin of the Watchung Mountains, where ice will be harvested and also to erect houses where ice will be stored. The lake thus formed will be about one mile in length and a quarter of a mile at its widest point and is expected to yield a large quantity of ice.

It is the purpose of the company to reduce the cost of ice so that the residents of Plainfield and North Plainfield can purchase it at a low price, while at the same time it will sell the surplus to the outside market at a price which will net a substantial profit. The company will sell the shares of the capital stock to residents of Plainfield and North Plainfield and thus make it possible for them to get ice at a reasonable price. No bonds will be issued against the property and all shareholders will be amply secured and will have first claim on the property and the land which will be free of all incumbrance.

PAST CHIEF RANGERS RECEIVES GOLD EMBLEMS.

One candidate was initiated and four applications received at the meeting of Court Watchung, No. 3871, Independent Order of Foresters, last night. Officers from Court Plainfield were present and addressed the meeting. At the close of the business session an entertainment and smoker were provided for the members. In the absence of the High Chief Ranger, Lewis T. Titsworth made a few appropriate remarks in presenting to the past chief rangers gold emblems as tokens of the court's appreciation of their services.

Those who received emblems were W. L. Remsen, 1898-1899; John R. Naylor, 1900; Thomas H. Stafford, 1901; George M. Townley, 1902-1902; John Knight, Jr., 1904; Chas. S. Hayes, 1905; Wm. L. Remsen and T. Stafford were not present, but the other recipients voiced their appreciation of the court's action. The members were then entertained by the Four H quartette and a liberal supply of the fragrant weed. The programme was concluded with the usual games of bowling of quoits.

A Pleasant Surprise.

A boy having been recently born to them, John Brunn, 415 West Second street, were given a surprise party a few days ago. Mr. Brunn has been employed for eleven years as steam hammer operator at the Pond Machine Tool Works, and his associates took advantage of the opportunity to show their esteem for him. They called upon him in a body and presented him with a complete outfit for the baby. Mr. Crain, the foreman of the Plainfield shop, made the presentation and expressed the good wishes of the men in a few well-chosen remarks. Mr. Brunn made an appropriate reply and thanked the men in behalf of Mrs. Brunn and the baby.

Fourteen Men Laid Off.

Fourteen helpers in the foundry at Ponds quit work yesterday. The men allege that they were compelled to work overtime without compensation. An official of the company said today that they did not walk out but were discharged. He said that their work had been unsatisfactory.

—Levy Brothers will have their spring opening on Saturday, March 23, and on that day will give free to each purchaser of $1 or more a beautiful growing potted plant. ***

ANNUAL SCHOOL MEETING

C. L. Nichols, J. R. Joy and Dr. J. H. Cooley Chosen Trustees in the Borough.

THE ANNUAL REPORTS

Condition of Finances Made Known By the Annual Report of the President of the Board of Education.

North Plainfield's annual school meeting for the election of members of the Board of Education and vote for appropriation was held in the Somerset street building last night. The attendance was unusually small, probably because of the weather and the fact that no especial interest was attached to the proceedings.

The meeting was called to order by President James R. Joy and Mayor Newton B. Smalley was made chairman, with J. Herbert Case secretary. The latter read the call for the meeting and the following nominations for trustees were made: James R. Joy, Charles L. Nichols and Dr. J. H. Cooley. Mr. Joy and Dr. Cooley were nominated to succeed themselves while Mr. Nichols was named in place of John S. Johnston, who was elected *to complete H. E. Needham's unex*pired term and who did not care to serve again. The total appropriation asked for was $24,900, divided as follows: Repairs and alterations, $1,500; manual training, $1,900; current expenses, $21,500. This is an increase of about $3,000 over last year.

The polls were declared open at 8:15 and remained so for one hour. The appropriation was declared unanimous and the vote for trustees was as follows: Messrs. Joy and Nichols, 32; Dr. Cooley, 31. J. W. A. Bauersachs and Arthur Humble acted as tellers for the vote on trustees and T. Herbert Case and J. A. Fowlison acted in the same capacity for the appropriation.

According to the usual custom, the full school report of the year was read. It included statements from President Joy, Superintendent Krebs and, District Clerk Albert Steiner. After it had been read and accepted President Joy took occasion to speak upon it, principally in regard to the increase in money needed for the coming year. He informed the voters that the $1,500 for repairs was really for the installation of improvements in the Somerset street building that had been omitted originally because of the expense. It has since been found that they are absolutely necessary. The remainder, he said, was asked for in anticipation of the increase in teachers' salaries that has been under consideration. Plainfield, he concluded, had granted substantial increases and North Plainfield must do the same if it expects to maintain an efficient corps.

S. St. John McCutchen took occasion to remark that in the event of the State railroad tax law being upheld, the district would receive $7,000 in school monies. The borough council, he said, counted upon this fixing its budget and if it should be paid over, it will lower the amount needed next year.

*According to President Joy's re*port the land and buildings in the borough devoted to school purposes is valued at $128,860, while the furniture, books, apparatus and supplies are worth $18,360, making a total of $147,225.

The bonded debt of the district on January 1, 1907, was $67,000, as follows:

Loan of 1893, $4,500, interest 5 per cent. matures 1908; loan of 1898, $20,000, interest 4 per cent. matures 1914; loan of 1900, $2,500, interest 5 per cent. matures 1912; loan of 1905, $26,000, interest 4 per cent. matures 1920; loan of 1905, $4,000, interest 4 per cent. matures 1921; total loan, $67,000.

The $4,000 was authorized to borrow $3,325 by special district meeting, June 28, 1906, on notes to run not exceeding four years. This amount added to the bonds makes the total indebtedness $70,325.

With reference to the projected advance in teachers' salaries Mr. Joy had the following to say:

"The general advance in the cost of living in recent years, as represented to the teacher by the weekly board bill, has been such as to render an improvement in our salary schedules not only just but imperatively necessary. If we are to retain the services of experienced and successful teachers. Neighboring districts are placing their schedules much above ours, but this borough cannot yet meet its wealthy neighbors on a footing of financial equality. We have fixed upon a schedule which is fair and yet prudent in view of our resources. Had the action of the new tax law not been questioned by the railroads about $7,000 additional would have been apportioned to this district for next year by the

ONLY 1 SEWER BOND BID RECEIVED BY THE CITY

SO COMMON COUNCIL MEN DO NOT PUT IN APPEARANCE AT SESSION.

The adjourned meeting of the Common Council set for last night was not held, it being previously understood by the members that matters would not be in shape for action. City Clerk James T. MacMurray and Stenographer George H. Wean were the only ones present. The clerk called the meeting promptly at 8 o'clock and in the absence of a quorum declared that no session would be held.

It was understood that the meeting was to have been held for the purpose of disposing of $68,000 worth of sewer bonds, but the finance committee had received but one bid and it was decided to secure other bids before doing anything.

Another matter that was to have been considered was the tax budget, which is usually presented at the regular April meeting. The finance committee has been at work on this and will no doubt have it ready by the April meeting. As far as can be learned the general amount to be raised will not be much in excess of last year's appropriation. There are several amounts to be determined upon yet, before the complete budget can be presented before the Common Council for adoption.

PARK AVE. SOCIETIES IN ANNUAL SESSION

WOMEN'S ORGANIZATIONS IN BAPTIST CHURCH SELECT OFFICERS.

Encouraging reports and election of officers comprised the chief business at the joint meeting of the Women's Home Missionary and Foreign Missionary and Ladies' Aid Societies of the Park Avenue Baptist church, held yesterday afternoon in the church parlors. Although the attendance was small owing to the inclement weather a great interest in the progress made during the year.

The Foreign Missionary Society meeting was held first, when these officers were elected: President, Mrs. A. E. Finn; vice president, Mrs. C. W. Tennant; secretary, Mrs. S. A. Runyon; treasurer, Mrs. John H. Doane. The report of the treasurer showed that $103.10 was raised during the year for foreign missions.

The home society then convened and elected these officers: President, Mrs. Charles F. Dayton; vice president, Mrs. A. Tray; secretary, Mrs. Nora Runyon; treasurer, Mrs. A. D. Thompson; assistant treasurer, Miss Adele Runyon. The treasurer of this society reported that $146 was raised for the home mission work.

The Ladies' Aid Society elected the following officers: President, Mrs. Frank T. Ostrom; first vice president, Mrs. H. H. Moore; second vice president, Mrs. Lottie A. Udell; secretary, Mrs. Walter H. Freeman; treasurer, Mrs. J. Wesley Johnson.

This society, devoting its efforts entirely to the church, accomplished much during the year. It raised $392.75, from which amount a new carpet was purchased for the church and the edifice was cleaned. All three societies reported an increase in membership. After the meetings a social hour was enjoyed by the women of the church.

"The Oakes" on Exhibition.

Miss Caroline Minturn Hall, the artist, has placed on exhibition at the Academy of Fine Arts, New York, which opened Friday, her painting, "The Oakes," which caused such favorable comment when exhibited in the Salon of the Societe Nationale des Beaux Arts, Paris. At that time the Paris newspapers devoted considerable space to comment on the painting. The peture represents a familiar scene at the home of Miss Hall's grandmother, Mrs. Julia Ward Howe in Newport.

Will Speak of Noted Woman.

Mrs. Florence Howe Hall will give an informal talk concerning her mother, Mrs. Julia Ward Howe and her work in the interest of women's suffrage, at a meeting of the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield to be held Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. William M. Sandford, Jr., on Second place.

The Misses Manning to Build.

Th Misses Sarah and Harriet Manning, who purchased the property on West Front street, opposite Emwood place, have decided to build a handsome dwelling there at a cost of $11,000. The general contract has been awarded to James C. Manning and ground will be broken within a short time, definite plans will be made for the affair.

ACKERMAN'S TIMELY ACT

Prevents Passage of Measure Which Would Seriously Effect Plainfield.

CHANGE GOVERNMENT

Hutchinson Bill Would Place Control of City In Hands of Six Men —A Strange Measure.

Through the timely action of State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of this city, Plainfield is saved from running the risk of having its entire form of government upset, which it would be, with the voters consent, had a bill passed on second reading in the State Senate yesterday been allowed to be shoved along unobstructed. The measure in question, introduced by Senator Hutchinson, is intended for the relief of conditions said to exist in Bridgeton, but as it applies to all cities under 29,000 inhabitants it would equally affect Plainfield. Senator Ackerman, however, consulted with President Minch and Senator Hutchinson today and obtained their consent to have the bill amended.

The Hutchinson bill covers sixty pages and a careful reading of it shows that should any city adopt its provisions the place would be controlled absolutely by six men in whom the entire government is vested. It provides for the election of five taxpayers of three years residence each to act as the Council, the terms of office being graduated. It also provides for the election of a mayor. The Council by a four-fifths vote resolves itself into commissioners, there being one such berth for each man, namely, a commissioner of finance, a commissioner of streets and highways, a commissioner of parks and public buildings, a commissioner of public works and a commissioner of safety. They take office on January 1 and have power to fill all vacancies in their body. In case they fail to agree on the commissionership, the mayor has the power of appointment. The mayor, however, is the pooh-bah of the city under the bill's provisions. The council has the right to pass any measure by a four-fifths vote over the mayor's veto and it can borrow any sum or negotiate any loan it desires without ordinance or consent of the people. The salaries of the councilmen are $500 each and no official is allowed to engage in other business nor receive any passes or gratuities. The council has also power to erect and maintain a hospital, city hall and lots of other things without the consent of the people. A local option clause is also contained in the bill.

MISS GRACE A. MUNSON WEDS FRANKLIN D. MOONEY.

Ceremony Peformed by Rev. C. L. Goodrich at Home of Bride's Sister.

Miss Grace Ann Munson, of Philadelphia, and Franklin Drake Mooney, of Elizabeth, were married at 8 o'clock, last night, at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Thomas F. Hylan, 941 West 10th street. Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, performed the ceremony in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss A. Norma Munson, of Philadelphia, as bridesmaid, and the best man was H. T. Hunting, of Elizabeth. A reception followed the ceremony and the couple left later in the evening on a wedding journey. Upon their return they will live in Elizabeth, where the groom is engaged in business.

MUSICALE AT ORANGE.

Young Women of Bible Class to Give Attractive Entertainment.

An attractive entertainment programme has been prepared for a musicale to be given tomorrow night in the Miller chapel of the First Methodist Episcopal church of Orange, N. J., under the auspices of the young women of the Rev. Frank MacDaniel's Bible class.

Among those who will play or sing are Miss Alvina Wesslan, Miss Blanche L. Mattice, Miss Henrietta Allison Mather, Mrs. Dalos Holden, Miss Bessie C. Voickmann, Charles VanderHoof, Charles Weberaiski and Andrew J. Kemp. Prof. Warner W. Miller is down for readings.

D. A. R. to Entertain.

The officers of the Continental Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, of this city, are planning to hold an entertainment here this spring, the proceeds of which will be devoted to the fund for the erection of a suitable monument at Washington Rock. As soon as some of the officers, who are now away, return, definite plans will be made for the affair.

MISS STEPHANIE KROM TAKES A FATAL DOSE

WAS HIGHLY ESTEEMED

Daughter of Stephen Krom—Had Taken Chloral Hydrate and Died Alone—Family Heartbroken.

Miss Stephanie Krom, one of the best known young women in local society circles, was found dead by her father, Stephen A. Krom, in her apartments at Truell Court, Wednesday. He had stepped in to call her lunch and at first thought she had fallen in faint. Dr. Hedges was hurriedly summoned and on examination found that she had died from an overdose of chloral hydrate, a drug frequently used to allay pain and relieve headaches.

Miss Krom had not been in the habit of taking chloral and it had not been prescribed for her, consequently the impression was gained that she had an ulterior motive in view when she used it. She was a very sensible girl, one of unusually high mental accomplishments, her home life was very happy to all appearances and under the circumstances family and friends found it hard to arrive at any such conclusion.

Miss Krom was engaged to marry Augustus Vane, of Elizabeth. She broke the engagement Tuesday evening. She was not seen about the Court Wednesday morning but was speaking to her father at 12 o'clock. It was when he entered her room more than an hour later that he discovered her body.

Miss Krom was twenty-two years old and was widely known in every part of the city. She was very attractive in appearance and fond of out-door sports. During the winter she spent a great deal of time on the ice, being an expert skater, and in summer she was in the open air almost all day. Her education had been thorough and she talked entertainingly on a wide range of subjects.

Beside her father, Miss Krom is survived by four brothers. They are Arthur Krom, who is the head of the Krom Machine Works on North Avenue; Fred Krom, of Plainfield; Louis Krom, who is in business in Southbridge, Mass., and Stanley Krom, of Jersey City.

PLAINFIELD IMPRESSED HIM

Prominent Theatrical Manager Viewed the City and Wants to Return.

Daniel Considine, one of the country's best known theatrical men, came to Plainfield yesterday, in his capacity as manager of "The Old Kentucky" and was very much impressed with what he saw of the city in his walk from the North avenue station to the theatre. He expressed a desire to see more of it and Manager Cuthbert and his assistant, Michael Shannon, were only too willing to show him around.

They procured a carriage and with Mrs. Considine made a tour of the residential sections of the city and borough. Both were very much impressed, so much so that Mr. Considine expressed his intention of returning a spend the summer here and perhaps to remain permanently. His home is in Nashville, Tenn., but he has been traveling nearly all his life. He declared after the ride that he had never viewed a city that was laid out better or had more handsome homes for its size than Plainfield.

Will Be Married April 30.

Miss Ruth W. Steele, daughter of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. J. Nevitt Steele, of New York, and Joseph Castleton Borden, of South Orange, will be married in Trinity chapel, Manhattan, Wednesday, April 30. A reception will follow the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents in West Seventy-third street. Among the ushers will be Spencer Steele, a brother of the bride, and Charles H. Theriot, of South Orange, whose parents resided on Mercer avenue, this city, a number of years ago. The prospective bride is a sister of Mrs. Leon Moran, of Grove street.

Hope Chapel Boys' Club.

The Hope chapel Boys' Club held its third annual meeting last night, and beside receiving reports and closing up the business for the year, the following officers were installed: President, Allen Snyder; first vice-president, Robert Cossens; second vice-president, George Read; secretary, Harry Kenney; treasurer, Morris Hunter; librarian, Thomas Heron; chairman entertainment committee, Donald Mortimer; chairman lookout committee, George Meade; chairman membership committee, Clinton Fischbeck; chairman house committee, Alexander Doig.

MADE P.S.C. TAKE WATER

Determined Newarker Compels Trolley Lords to Unbend and Capitulate.

TAKEN BACK TO NEWARK

Wrongly Transferred in City, He Stuck to Car All the Way to Plainfield and Insisted on His Rights.

Patrolman Frank Sweeney was called from his post to the car barn, West Fourth street, at 12:45 Thursday morning, to look over a passenger who had come in on the car that had just completed its run from Newark. The trolley people said he was a suspicious character, and would like him removed.

Sweeney found the "suspicious character" sitting in the car with a determined expression on his face. He was not disturbed by the appearance of the officer. He said he was Felix Maugone, of 22 Nassau street, Newark, and he purposed remaining on the car until the P. S. C. carried him back to Newark. He had been transferred to the wrong car in Newark, through the stupidity or carelessness of P. S. C. employes, he said, and he intended to have the mistake righted, and that was all there was to it. The officer gathered that the case was pretty much as Maugone put it. Maugone and the car crew had gotten into a dispute over the passenger's transfer, Maugone got his anger up and insisted that the P. S. C. carry him back to where his proper car could be boarded, and give him passage on it.

Sweeney could not see that Maugone had been guilty of any disorder, and refused to interfere. The trolley men threw up their hands and surrendered to the determined Newarker. They whizzed him back to the trolley station at Watchung avenue, gave him the freedom of the last car for Newark, and he started homeward with all the honors of war and passage guaranteed.

SKILLMAN'S TRIAL SET FOR TUESDAY APRIL 30

WILL BE TRIED IN SOMERVILLE ON A CHARGE OF FORGERY.

In the Somerset County Court at Somerville Friday Prosecutor Reger asked Judge Scheuck to set a date for the trial of William H. Skillman, of Blawenburg, who is charged with forgery. The case was set down for Tuesday, April 30, although Alvah A. Clark, counsel for the defence, objected to it being arranged because of the serious condition of the defendant's health.

The defendant is a prominent horticulturalist, and was formerly president of the State society. It is alleged that he forged a document purporting to be the last will of William Lanehart, a well to do farmer and neighbor. By this paper he was to receive half of the estate, valued at about $20,000. A former will does not mention him.

In the County Orphans' Court a year ago the "Skillman will," as it is called, was not admitted to probate, the Court declaring it was not the last will of Lanehart. An appeal was taken to the Chancery Court, which, when decided, may have an important bearing on this case.

EPWORTHIANS SPEND "AN EVENING WITH CHINA."

Young People of First M. E. Church Arrange Pleasing Affair in Vincent Chapel.

"An Evening With China," was a novel form of entertainment enjoyed by the Epworth League of the First M. E. church in Vincent chapel Friday. It was arranged by the social committee, of which Miss Helen M. Whitney is the chairman. The rooms were appropriately decorated with Chinese draperies, and the young women assisting wore native costumes. Burning joss sticks made one think that they were in China among the old temples.

The first part of the evening was devoted to a flower guessing game, and then Dr. Harold Corbusier, of Watchung avenue, gave an informal talk on "China," and he exhibited a great many curosities collected by him in that country, while a surgeon with the U. S. Army during its invasion at the time of the Boxer troubles. Miss Helen Meeker Whitney and two songs, "Ching-a-ring-ching-chine," and a Japanese love song, accompanied on the piano by Miss Leila Druse.

A Birthday Surprise.

In honor of the eighteenth anniversary of his birthday, Frank Meyer, of East Fourth street, was tendered a surprise party by a dozen of his friends Friday night. The affair was arranged by his sisters, the Misses Josie and Emma Meyer, Georgie Marsh and James Ennis. Those who were present in addition were the Misses Ethel Gulberg, Eleanor Dolliver, Mabel Seals, Catherine Moore and Florence Cooley, George O'Neil, Eugene Caffrey, Charles Ryder, Joseph Sullivan and George Muir.

SEVENTH-DAY BAPTISTS HOLD JAPANESE SOCIAL

ENTERTAINMENT OF THE WOMEN'S SOCIETY FOR CHRISTIAN WORK.

Under the auspices of the Women's Society for Christian Work of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, a Japanese social was held in the church parlors Wednesday. The affair was largely attended and in the opinion of those present it was the best social held at the church in a long time. The room was artistically decorated with Japanese draperies, and all those taking part wore Japanese costumes. There was a tea room, candy booth and a sale of Japanese novelties and during the evening a fine entertainment was given.

The tea room was decorated with Japanese parasols and lanterns, while a bower of wisteria made the candy table attractive. The tea room was in charge of Mrs. Frank J. Hubbard, Mrs. William H. Rogers, Mrs. M. L. Clawson, assisted by a number of young women. Mrs. Asa F. Randolph and Mrs. Orra S. Rogers were at the candy table and Mrs. L. B. Crandall and Dr. Martha R. Stillman at the novelty table.

The programme was opened with a Japanese Love Song, by Mrs. Nathan E. Lewis, accompanied on the piano by Miss Mabel Harmon, follows with an interesting paper on "Japanese Life and Customs," by Miss Ernestine C. Smith.

Probably, the feature of the entertainment was called a "Japanese Menagerie," given by a number of young women in Japanese costume. Each one represented in song various animals and fowls as follows:

Mill Mildred Greene, dog; Miss Isabelle Randolph, rooster; Miss Helen Rogers, donkey; Miss Maudella Ford, cat; Miss Alice Hunting, duck; Miss Celia Cottrell, pig. The songs were of the jingo style with choruses.

Another pleasing feature was a Japanese drill, cleverly executed by Miss Ida Spicer, Miss Mary St. John, Miss Ada Green, Mrs. O. B. Whitford, Miss Mildren Greene, Miss Isabelle Randolph, Miss Marie Rogers, Miss Helen Rogers, Miss Maudella Ford and Miss Mary Hunting. They were trained by Mrs. J. E. Kimball and Mrs. Nathan E. Lewis accompanied on the piano.

There were also Japanese Mother Goose rhmyes by Miss Mary Hunting, Miss Maudella Ford, Miss Celia Cottrell, Miss Beatrice Cottrell. The last number was a Japanese lullaby song by the Misses Celia and Beatrice Cottrell.

The general committee in charge comprised Mrs. J. E. Kimball and Miss Ernestine C. Smith. The decorations were arranged by Mrs. L. B. Crandall and Mrs. Orra S. Rogers was in charge of a table where kimonos and aprons were sold.

VOCAL ARTISTS PLEASE.

The Delightful Musicale at Mrs. Marsh's Nets $250.

The musicale and tea given by the Benevolent Band of The King's Daughters Thursday afternoon taxed the generous capacity of Mrs. Craig S. Marsh's handsome home on West Eighth street, with an audience of Plainfield's musical coterie. The programme was provided by Mr. and Mrs. Everett Marshall Waterhouse, of New York, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Whitney, of Jersey City, and "Tumble every promise of artistic excellence and enjoyment. The music occupied an hour, after which tea and refreshments were served. The whole affair was a delightful one and credit is due Mrs. Frank Sprague Martin and Mrs. Craig S. Marsh, who had it in charge. The home was attractively decorated with white and pink roses and lilies.

At the tea which followed the musicale, DeWitt C. Ivins, Mrs. Charles W. King and Mrs. Austin Browne poured, and they were assisted by some of the daughters of the members of the band and a number of their young friends.

The proceeds from the affair will be used for the King's Daughters work and it is expected that at least $250 will be realized for this purpose.

THREE YALE CUPS.

At the Yale Club dinner Friday three cups offered by the organization to the schoolboys of the city were displayed. The cups, which are of similar design, massive and handsome, are offered to the pupils of Leal's, Plainfield High and North Plainfield High schools, as the prizes for the best record in both scholarship and athletics.

John Leal, head of Leal's, was at the dinner, and thanked the club, in the name of his boys, for the cup offered them. The cup was filled later in the evening, and passed among the diners.

Dr. Mitchell to Visit Here.

Rev. Dr. Charles B. Mitchell, formerly pastor of the First M. E. church, but now of the First M. E. church, Cleveland, will be in Plainfield on April 17 for a few days. He will be en route for New York, where he will sail on a pleasure trip to Spain. He will be abroad several weeks. Dr. Mitchell is now one of the most prominent preachers in the Methodist church and has accomplished great things since doing west.

BAKER PLAYS DETECTIVE

And Does It Well, Capturing His Quarry Like a Sleuth.

NABS A FLIM-FLAMMER

Through energetic detective work by George Voehl, a young man suspected of being a flim-flam grafter, who describes himself as James Davis, of Chicago, was arrested Wednesday, after he had secured $5 from Miss Townsend, a clerk in Voehl's bakery on West Front street.

Davis, well dressed and of prosperous, if flashy, appearance, went in Voehl's store shortly after 6 o'clock, with a companion. He bought ten cents worth of cream puffs and handed Miss Townsend a $10 bill. She took four $1 bills from the cash register and then discovering she did not have change enough, called Mr. Voehl and got two $5 bills from him. The change was handed over, but Davis' companion suddenly discovered he had the price of the puffs handy and he told Davis to get his $10 bill back. The note was handed back and the pair left the store. Then Miss Townsend discovered that she was $5 short. Mr. Voehl had had a good look at Davis and his friend, and he started out as a sleuth at once.

He watched two outgoing trains without seeing a sign of the pair, started back along North avenue toward Park, and saw the two coming out of Louis Skelly's stationery store. He followed them, and saw them go into Timbo's restaurant, leaving his companion outside. Voehl went into the resaurant, and heard Davis ask to have $10 in small bills exchanged for a single note. Voehl afterwards learned that the pair had had a $10 bill changed in Skelly's.

Voehl secured Mr. Timbo's assistance, and took Davis into custody. Davis wanted to square things, and offered to pay over $5 without question, but the amateur sleuth refused to compound the alleged crime. He notified police headquarters, and Patrolman McDonald took Davis to the station house. His companion disappeared.

In court Thursday, Davis acknowledged that he got $5 from each from Miss Townsend, and wanted to know why he couldn't settle the difficulty by repaying the amount. He seemed pained when Mr. Voehl insisted on pressing the charge. He was held for the grand jury in $200 bail. Three boys in front and his companion are professional swindlers of extended experience.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL MEET.

Schedule of Events Prepared by the League Committee.

The schedule of events for the second meet of the Sunday-school Athletic League, at the Y. M. C. A., April 12, was decided upon by the track and field committee Friday night. It is as follows:

Senior: Running broad jump, running high jump, potato race (quarter-mile), sack race, 12-pound shot. Intermediate: Running hot-step-and-jump, 8-pound shot, standing broad jump, 4-man relay race. Junior: Standing broad jump, 15-yard dash, pin race, three boys in a bag, three-legged race, 15-yard dash, potato race. A tug-of-war will be a special event.

Entries will close at the Y. M. C. A. on April 8. Mr. Listman is in charge of the list.

Funeral of Mrs. Carroll.

The funeral of Mrs. Elizabeth Carroll, mother of George T. Carroll, of Elizabeth, was held in St. Mary's church Thursday. A solemn requiem mass was said with Rev. Father Bogan as celebrant; Rev. Father Delehanty deacon and Rev. Father Sciola sub-deacon. A solo was rendered by Miss Anna Daley. There was a large offering of floral tributes from friends in this city and Elizabeth and from the societies with which George Carroll is connected. The b ody was sent to New York for interment at Calvary cemetery. Those who acted as pall bearers were Daniel J. Shea, Hugh Reilly, Fred Moore, William Townsend, Charles Stranzenbach and Henry Wierenga.

Plainfield Bowlers Defeated.

McCardell's bowling team went to Elizabeth Saturday afternoon with the intention of handing Neil McCarthy's team another defeat but the latter took the tables. The Plainfielders didn't have a look in and lost all three of the series of games. The visitors were afterward entertained with lunch and an informal programme, such as was given when the Elizabethans came to this city a week ago Saturday.

Gift of Library to Somerville.

Upon the condition that the same be maintained as a free library under the provisions of the State Library Act, High K. Gaston and John V. Reger, representing the Somerville Public Library Association, have offered to turn over to the town the handsome new library building and the large and valuable collection of books, now the unencumbered property of the library association.

MAYOR ASKS $2,500 FOR WATER COMMISSION

FISK GETS IN ON COUNCILMEN BY PUTTING LICENSE UP TO THEM.

The members of the Common Council did not appear to be very anxious to transact business at the adjourned meeting, Thursday, for it was nearly 9 o'clock before they got together, and then the various matters introduced were considered in a sort of half-hearted way. The actual amount of business left over from the regular meeting was small.

Mayor Fisk communicated with the body requesting that the sum of $2,500 be appropriated for the use of the engineering work of the water investigation commission to carry on its work, and the matter was referred to the finance committee, as was also another communication from the director of the Plainfield Public Library and Reading Room certifying that $7,500 would be needed to maintain the library and reading room for the coming year.

Councilman Buxton moved that the license of Frederick Meyers to conduct a lunch-wagon on East Second street, adding that the wagon had been located there for fourteen years. He explained that it was at the request of Mayor Fisk, to whom has been delegated the authority of granting licenses, that the Common Council act on this one. The license was granted without a dissenting vote.

The oath of office of the Board of School Estimate was presented and filed, according to annual custom.

Mr. Ginna, as chairman of the street committee, to whom was referred several matters, reported them back to the Common Council. One was in reference to the petition of the Board of Trade urging that permanent pavements be laid in the business part of the town. Other petitions were from H. A. Williams, of Kensington avenue; J. D. Lolzeaux, of Hillside avenue, and the Central Park Realty Company asking that Central Park avenue be widened. Mr. Ginna instructed the clerk to inform the petitioners that the improvements asked for are being incorporated into ordinances to be introduced soon.

Regarding the petition of the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club, asking that Randolph road be widened, Mr. Ginna stated that it incorporated two matters that might complicate matters and he requested the club to present the necessary signatures for each separately.

Mr. Ginna also reported on the matter wherein Peter Morgan, of Poughkeepsie, who has the new sewer contract, has delegated the power of attorney to Thomas J. Cusnack. He stated that the same had been approved and instructed the clerk to furnish a certified copy to the city treasurer.

A resolution offered by the chairman of the street committee and which was adopted gives the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company the right to make openings on East and West Front streets, the Sixth street, East Fourth street, Kensington avenue, Franklin place and East Fifth street for its underground work. Mr. Ginna and Mr. Gloak took occasion to speak of the satisfactory way in which the company repairs streets after opening them and complimented the company for it. On motion of Mr. Ginna the ordinance adopted on first and second readings which provides for the establishing of grades on certain streets, was adopted on final reading.

THE WEAKNESS OF MANKIND.

One of the strangest paradoxes in *human nature is that men and wo*men, struggling apparently with all their might to succeed, are yet constantly doing things, saying things, and thinking things which drive the very success they are after away from them.

They are all the time counteracting their efforts by some indiscretion.

Men work like Trojans to get a coveted position, and then, by getting puffed up with conceit, or by some foolish or weak act, knock the scaffolding out from under them and down they go.

Their lives are a series of successive climbs and tumbles, so that they never get anywhere, never accomplish anything worth while.

There are thousands of men who are working in very ordinary salaried positions who might have been employers themselves but for some unfortunate weakness, some little deficiency in their natures, or some peculiarity—something which might have been remedied by a little discipline and self-study in youth, says Herbert Chat.

Others are always driving success away from them by their doubts, their fears, their lack of courage, their lack of confidence—driving it away by thoughtless habits which repel success conditions.

Mrs. Wagstaff to Move.

Mrs. Wagstaff, formerly manager of the Park Avenue Hotel, and for the past three years conducting a superior boarding-house at 719 Cleveland avenue, has found this house too small for her business and on April 1 she will move to the large and commodious home of the late Henry C. Squires, 724 Watchung avenue, where she will be better able to accommodate her increasing patronage.

WM. C. STANBERY DEAD

Venerable Resident of Scotch Plains Dies After a Long Illness.

UNION COUNTY NATIVE

Aged Eighty-four Years—His Father Fought In Revolutionary War.

William C. Stanbery, of Scotch Plains, who was widely known in this city and throughout Union county, died at his home Thursday at 1 o'clock. Old age was virtually the cause of his death; he was 84 years old.

Mr. Stanbery was born in Scotch Plains, on the homestead that had been in the family for generations. His people had lived in Scotch Plains since colonial times, and the name was part of Scotch Plains' history. His father was a colonel in the Revolutionary Army.

Mr. Stanbery engaged in farming, on a place at Martine avenue, Scotch Plains. He sold all but a few acres in the midst of the first big realty boom that struck the Plains, and retired. He lived quietly after that, directing and managing a not inconsiderable estate. He made money steadily, and has always been accounted wealthy.

Mr. Stanbery lived and died in the house in which he was born on June 17, 1822. His father was an officer in the Continental Army. Mr. Stanbery attended school in Elizabeth. He cast his first vote in Plainfield. He was a cousin of Henry Stanbery, attorney general under President Johnson and by marriage was a relative of Chancellor Theodore Runyon, at one time Ambassador to Germany. Mr. Stanbery engaged in farming and the real estate business since 1870.

In the days when Westfield township was still unpartitioned Mr. Stanbery served as assessor for a number of terms. Later he was a town committeeman.

His health began to fail seriously about a year ago. The experience of his son, William R. Stanbery, in a fatal automobile accident and his death not long afterwards, seemed to mark the turning point between health and senile debility. He had not left the house since early last fall.

RIDDLES.

What was Joan of Arc made of? Maid of Orleans.

What is that which by losing an eye has nothing left but a nose? Noise.

Why is a man who makes pens a wicked man? Because he makes men steel (steal) pens and then says they do write (right).

If a young lady fell into a well, why couldn't her brother help her out? Because, how could he be a brother assist her (a sister) too?

Why is music cheaper on Sunday than during the week? Because during the week you get it by the piece, and on Sunday you get it by the chotr.

Why is it more dangerous to go out in the spring than any other time of the year? Because in the spring the grass has blades, the flowers have pistils, the leaves shoot and the bullrushes out.

The Girl With Thin Arms.

A private pointer for the long, slender armed girl:

Don't you believe it.

That frill will fall over the very curve you wish to display and fall away from the hollow you wish to hide.

For the bottom of your elbow sleeves with a close band of black or dark colored ribbon. Let it be quite snug, so that what little flesh there is there will swell out impressively.

The plain turn back elbow cuff gives the same effect, and there is bound to be some taper to your arm if the outlines are clearly defined.

Try it and see.

Will Attend Conference.

State Supervisor of Roads Robert A. Meeker, of this city, is among those who will attend the National Congress of Road Builders to be held tomorrow and Wednesday in Pittsburg, in connection with the fourth annual convention of the American Road Makers' Association. The sessions will be held in Carnegie Hall, Pittsburg. Mr. Meeker, together with several county engineers from various parts of the State, will leave today for the Smoky City. Tomorrow morning Mr. Meeker will present a paper on road building, following one by State Road Commissioner E. A. Hutchinson, on "The History of Road Building in New Jersey."

COUNCILMEN DECIDE ON PERMANENT PAVEMENTS

Vitrified Brick to Be Laid Throughout the Business Section of the City.

IT WILL COST $65,000

Councilmanic Street Committee Comes to a Decision and Chairman Ginna Will Present Ordinance at Next Meeting.

After much mature discussion, the Councilmanic committee on streets has decided to recommend to the Common Council that permanent pavements be laid in the business section of the city without further delay. The action was taken at a meeting of the committee a few nights ago and Chairman Daniel F. Ginna will bring the matter up at the next regular meeting of the city fathers in April.

The estimated cost of the improvement is $65,000, this figure having been arrived at from prices furnished by pavements contractors. For the price named, the committee will be able to lay a vitrified brick pavement. It was the consensus of opinion among the members that brick would be preferable to Belgian block or prepared wood block. Vitrified brick has been put to a test here, having been used on a short strip on that section of Watchung avenue, near North avenue, which the city authorities permit the P. S. C. to use as a trolley depot.

The section to be improved includes the thoroughfares between Watchung avenue and Central avenue and Front street and Fourth street. The centre strip on Front street between Watchung avenue and Central will be laid with brick as will the section on Second street between Watchung avenue and Madison avenue. Park avenue from Front to Fourth and Watchung avenue from Front to Fourth will also be done in like fashion. North avenue will not be touched for it is considered that that thoroughfare is in pretty fair condition.

There is one obstacle in the way of bringing about the desired improvement at once. The Common Council cannot legally, it is said, float bonds, bearing a higher rate of interest than four per cent. As money is tight at present much higher rates of interest are demanded by investors and it is said that it would be impossible to float the necessary bonds at four per cent. For this reason, Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh has been asked to solve the dilemma and it is probable that by the time of the next meeting of the city fathers, all difficulty will be removed.

25 YEARS MARRIED.

Mr. and Mrs. George Celebrate Silver Wedding.

In honor of the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding, more than fifty members of the First Presbyterian church gave a surprise party to Mr. and Mrs. Edgar D. George, of Craig place, Friday. The surprise was complete, Mr. and Mrs. George not having the slightest intimation of the intended visit. During the evening the couple were presented with a Morris chair and they received a number of other gifts.

Vocal, instrumental music and games helped to pass a pleasant evening. The couple is numbered among the most active workers at the First Presbyterian church, Mr. George holding the office of elder. They have been residents of the borough for a number of years.

LEHIGH RAILROAD PLANS ANOTHER BIG YARD.

New One to Be Built at South Plainfield at the Westbound Tracks.

Plans have been decided upon by the Lehigh Valley Railroad for the construction of a big yard on the westbound side of the tracks at South Plainfield. It will stretch from Park to Clinton avenues, and include something like fifty tracks. There is a small yard on the west side at present.

Details of the plans cannot be learned at South Plainfield, but the announcement that the yard is to be built is positive.

Mission Band Entertains.

Under the auspices of the Boys' Mission Band, of Trinity Reformed church, a fine entertainment was held in the lecture room of the church, last night. The programme included recitations by Raymond Stevens, and Percy Diehl; piano duet by Harold Storr and Millard McAfee; piano solo by Ernest Stevens; violin solo by Millard McAfee; phonograph selections on the Victor machine by Andrew Jackson. EPWORTH LEAGUE

March 24: "The Resurrection."
By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. I Cor. xv. 5, 20; I Thess. iv. 13-18; Rev. xx. 11-15; xxi. 1-5.

"He that overcometh shall inherit all things."

"Be of good cheer. I have overcome the world."

A few facts in each life are of momentous consequence. The greatest of these are, first, one's birth; second, the new birth into spiritual life; third, the death of the body, and, fourth, the resurrection.

Over the first we had no control. It was of profound consequence to us in every way. When, where, of whom, into what circumstances, with what nature and equipment and also with what disadvantages and drawbacks—all this we must forever take just as it came to us and cannot by any struggle of our own change in the slightest degree.

Over the second we are in her and decide when, where and how we will yield to the Lord's offers of mercy and be graciously born into new life of the spirit of God. This is more important in some respects than the matter of our physical birth. That introduced us to the physical world; this opens to us the whole life of God.

It is also of some importance how and when and where we die it body. And yet how little we think of this, in fact as most of us seem to think. To many the pain of passing is what gives most concern. Others are more occupied with the thought of the unfathomed mystery beyond and with dread of the vast unknown which stretches the other side of death.

The most glorious fact which is connected with human life we take to be that of the resurrection. It is the culmination of the present existence and the gateway into the unexplored and illimitable realms of all worthy and desirable being. It is the termination of all peril of the earthly and the triumph of all the divine elements which have through the past contested for mastery within us.

No other religion the world ever saw or will ever see has another such day as this. Death has stood from the beginning of human history as the dread mysterious fact from which there was no escape. No gods of any nation have been able to give any hope or any ray of light in the gloom. The glory and strength of Christianity are in the fact that she has a Redeemer from present sin who can give perfect peace of soul here and now and who is for also of life itself not only in this world, but also in all worlds. He is resurrection and life.

The glory of resurrection for us lies in the fact that Jesus was the fleshly fullness of the Godhead before death—man and possessed all power. He became perfect man, the race man, the head man, who knows us altogether and has lived the one only truly manly life which the world has ever seen. He has died as we must die. But He has been raised by the power of the Father and placed at the right hand of power in the heavens—our Saviour. In the likeness of His resurrection shall we be raised if we share His life here in the earth.

Let us hold fast our profession of faith. I believe in the resurrection of the dead. This is the glad tidings we have for all men. This is the hope which holds us fast in all the troubles of life. Because He lives we shall live also and be like Him.

Beat a Charge.

God calls you to go forward now. I have heard the story of a day of battle when the tide of defeat was rising and a general called a drummer boy to his side and said, "You may beat a retreat." The boy looked one moment at the yielding standards of his people and answered quickly, "Sire, the marshal never beats a retreat for troops, but I can beat a charge most gloriously." "Beat a charge, then," said the general, and together they rushed along the line of the fugitive troops. And the thrill of it caught the souls of the soldiers; back turned the tides, and the banners were planted on the enemy's stronghold because one boyish heart had been true and quick to beat a charge at the critical moment.—Rev. Otora S. Davis, Ph. D.

The Call of Love.

We hear much in these days about what men will do for money, but the fact of gain is, after all, not the mightiest force in the heart of human achievement. Men have done and will do more at the call of love than any other call, and that fact should make a man an optimist all his days.—Forward.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

By REV. S. H. DOUGLASS.

Topic.—Things you have learned from noble men and women outside the Bible.—I Thess. i. 2-8.

The first epistle of Paul to the church at Thessalonica is of particular interest for the reason that it was the first letter ever written by the great apostle to a church which he had organized. The Thessalonian Christians of this early church must have possessed the Christian graces to a remarkable degree. What greater tribute to their lives and characters could the apostle have paid than when he said he "remembered without ceasing their work of faith and labor of love and patience of hope in our Lord Jesus Christ in the sight of God and our Father?" In what manner could higher praise be expressed than when he said of them, "Ye became examples to all that believe in Macedonia and Achaia;" and again, "In every place your faith toward God is spread abroad?" Of few churches, indeed, could such tributes be paid, and we are deeply impressed with the possibilities for good of a genuine Christian life.

What Paul and others learned from the lives of the Christians at Thessalonica we may learn and probably are learning from the lives of noble men and women not only in the Bible, but out of it. The lives of Bible characters are simply human lives. The men and women of whom we read there had their weaknesses, and the Bible makes no attempt to ignore these. In all the Christian ages noble men and women have lived, and there are many saints of God in the world today whose lives are an example and an inspiration to others.

As we think of the lessons we have learned from such lives we may classify them under the heads used by the apostle in describing the influence of the Thessalonians. Some lives have taught us lessons on the work of faith. Who has not known or known of some men and women whose daily lives teach this lesson? All true Christian work is work of faith. God's children live by faith. They suffer sacrifices and practice self denials in advancing the kingdom of God because they believe in God and in Jesus Christ, His Son. The "labor of love" is another lesson that comes to us from the lives of others. The saints of God do His work not in hope of reward, but in loving gratitude to Him for all He has done for them. In any Christian church are examples of this character may be seen, and they have existed in all the Christian centuries. Again, the lives of others teach us patience and the "patience of hope." Many of us are impatient and especially anxious to have all our hopes in life realized. But here and there, especially among the aged saints of God, we find examples of the sincerest trust and patience. Their lives are a benediction to us as they patiently wait the will of God in all things. Blessed are all there are those whose lives reveal the Master to us. As we look upon them we can see that "they have been with Jesus and have learned of Him." The spirit and mind of the Master seem to surround them as a halo and make them like Him as they walk with Him. This topic suggests to us the importance of association with the good and the noble both in literature and in daily life. The lives of others are by example molding our lives, and we should weigh not only the best influences about us. And what we want others to be to us we should be to those whose lives are influenced by us. Let us live more closely to Christ that His life may be more and more exemplified in ours.

Endeavor's Influence in Armenia.

Christ and His Gospel, the heartthrobs of the great service that the Christian Endeavor societies have rendered to the church of Christ and to the world, especially those in the United States, Great Britain and continental Europe, to make the Armenian people a special subject for prayerful consideration in their conferences and conventions and to have it in their lists of petitions and fervent prayers for prayer until this question, one of unspeakable human suffering, is solved and the great stumbling block in the way of Christian religion and progress has been removed from Armenia. So, wishing success to your special subject, Christian Endeavor, we ask you kindly to take with you the greetings of the exiled Armenian people, especially the Christian brethren of Constantinople and the devoted ones of Zeitoun, wherever Providence may lead you among the children of God.

Signed and sealed in behalf of the
THE ARMENIAN CHURCH COUNCIL.

CHARLES T. VAIL'S FIRE EXPERIENCES

Plainfielder Arrested as Alleged Conspirator Said to Have Sustained Losses in This Vicinity.

WHO MISS GILLEN IS

She Worked As a Domestic In Local Family Before Going to West Portal—Vail Got $5,000 From Trolley Company.

The arrest of Charles T. Vail, the former well-known Plainfielder, together with Miss Ellen Gillen, of this city, and Joseph Hummell, as exclusive told in Friday's Daily Press, has given Hunterdon county its greatest sensation in years and has also caused widespread comment locally. The residents at West Portal, or Valley, where the three were taken into custody and where Vail was postmaster, are convinced that a huge conspiracy to defraud insurance companies has been unearthed and are aiding the officials in clearing it up. Hummell and Miss Gillen are now in the jail at Flemington in default of $10,000 bail, while Vail put up $2,000 and is out. He is in Plainfield at the present time awaiting the next session of the Hunterdon County Grand Jury.

It is rather inexplainable why Vail's bail was fixed at $2,000 and the others at $10,000. It is said, however, that Vail is regarded as the principal conspirator and that it was done in order to impress upon Hummell and Miss Gillen the seriousness of their position, in the hope that they might turn State's evidence and convict him. Hummell belongs in the West Portal vicinity, and Miss Gillen was formerly employed in the family of Levis M. Booth, of Watching avenue. She worked there three years but left a short time ago. She is about twenty-five years old and attractive in appearance. Hummell is fifty-four and was employed by Vail to carry the mail between the Asbury station of the New Jersey Central and the West Portal postoffice.

Vail was born and brought up in this city and when a young man was engaged in the grocery business with his father. They had a store on West Second street in a frame building torn down to make way for George Cole's livery. The son afterward engaged in the dairy business, having a place on lower Plainfield avenue near the South Plainfield pond. Ten years or so ago, the main barn and all the outbuildings caught fire in a mysterious manner one day and were completely destroyed. Soon after that Vail moved to West Portal, as it is known on the Lehigh Valley tables, or Valley on the New Jersey Central's. He bought what the people there called the Squire Smith mill property and for a time ran a small store in one room of the building.

One night in July, now nearly seven years ago, the mill burned down. Vail had it insured in one company for $1,000 and in another company for $2,000. He was not at home the night of the fire. Trouble was had in getting the insurance company to adjust the loss and the company in which he held a policy for $1,000 finally settled with him on an eighty per cent. basis. The other company refused to settle on any basis.

It appears that the same night that Vail's place was burned, he sustained injury in a trolley accident in Dunellen, or set up that claim at any rate. He got Senator Gebhardt of Clinton to bring suit against the trolley company and was awarded damages to the sum of $5,000. Following the accident, the neighbors say, Vail went about on crutches and continued their use until after the verdict had been given in his favor, when he put the crutches aside in quick order.

Vail bought the old Cornish store property at West Portal about two years ago. It is thought that he secured the money to make this purchase out of the damages that he received from the trolley company. He made the purchase of Dr. Petrie, of Phillipsburg. It included the store building, a dwelling house adjoining and a tract of mountain timber land.

Another fire in which Vail was interested occurred last November. This was a small, unused tenement house in the heart of the village owned by Vail, which, in its condition at that time, was worth little or nothing. Joe Hummell, his right hand man, went there a few days before the fire and opened up a store. Neighbors say he got only a very few dollars of goods, or boxes supposed to contain goods. The place burned down on a Sunday morning almost immediately afterward. He had $1,000 insurance and it was rumored at the time that he was obliged to take $200 *in settlement with the insurance com*panies.

Next came the fire which destroyed the old Cornish store property and which led to the arrests of the trio. This occurred on Sunday morning, Feb. 24, of this year, starting at about 7:30 o'clock. Vail was away on this occasion also, claiming that he was in Plainfield. Hummell was in charge of the store during his absence, and had gone there, he says, to fix the fires. He claims that the stove upset and thereby started the blaze. The building was totally destroyed with its contents.

Vail had stocked the store last May. It is stated by the people that he carried a very small and incomplete stock. He had taken an insurance of $2,000 on the stock and $3,700 on the building. The companies carrying the policies were the Westchester, of New York; the Standard, of New Jersey, and a Michigan company.

Adjusters of the insurance companies came to West Portal and instead of settling the claims, caused Justice of the Peace George E. Opdyke to serve summonses upon Vail, Hummell and the mysterious Miss Gillen to appear before him at an investigation to be held at the West Portal Hotel on Saturday of last week. The hearing of the case took place then and occupied practically the whole of the day. Prosecutor Aaron S. Lagrange was in attendance and was accompanied by constable Elmer E. Hann.

What came out of the hearing before Justice Opdyke seems to have been sufficient to cause the Justice to issue the warrants for the belief that the last fire, at least, came as the result o fa conspiracy between three or more persons.

It came out that Vail had, on Feb. 19, last, held a public sale of the old cornish property, including the store building, the dwelling and 110 acres of mountain land, with timber reserved. The sale was held at the West Portal Hotel in the afternoon and the auctioneer was Henry Stevens, a man well known hereabout, whom the village people had never known to have cried a sale before.

Just before the hour that the sale began, a strange man and woman got off the cars. It was understood that they were from Plainfield. The woman subsequently gave her name as Miss Ellen Gillen. She said the man with her was Harry King. They attended the sale and the woman bid on the property. Who bid against her is a mystery to West Portal people, but the property was finally struck off to her for $6,050. The terms of the sale were one-sixth down in cash, and the balance on bond and mortgage at six per cent. The deed was transferred to her following the sale. Vail thereby held a heavy mortgage on the property and it is a significant fact in the eye of the people of the village that mortgagee holds possession of insurance policies.

If a conspiracy was entered into, it is the supposition of people there that he became owner of the property in order to avert suspicion from Vail in the matter of securing the insurance money. Miss Gillen stated that following the sale she made arrangements with Vail, the former owner, that he should continue in charge of the store for her until such time as she could assume control. She agreed to pay him $20 a month for his services.

Vail married Miss Amoretta Hall, of this city, daughter of Wallace Hall. She returned to Plainfield with her three children several weeks ago and is living here now. The children are attending the local schools. Vail has two brothers in this city and other relatives.

CHASED AND SHOT AT FREIGHT CAR THIEVES

LEHIGH VALLEY DETECTIVE INTERRUPTS FOUR CROOKS IN S. PLAINFIELD

Wire and freight car thieves have been active at South Plainfield, along the Lehigh Valley Railroad last week. Besides wire-cutting along the railroad in the Bound Brook district, the thieves pulled off an easy job on a telephone lineman at South Plainfield while sitting a freight car at South Plainfield. They started to run, and the detective went after them. He fired several shots, but the men escaped. After the chase fourteen boxes of silk yarn, taken from the car, were found wrapped in two greasy coats in a hiding place near the Harris coal yards. In one of the coats a child's silk dress lay beside the yarn boxes. It is not known where the thieves got that.

Cricket Club Meeting.

The Bound Brook Cricket Club, thirteen members of which are Plainfield men, held a meeting at the home of the president, A. Newbury, in Bound Brook, Saturday night, and voted to purchase new grounds which will probably be six acres of the Bound Brook golf grounds. This season the club will be enrolled in the New Jersey League, and an effort is being made to enlarge the membership. Full particulars may be secured from Fred Wharton, of Sixth street and Grant avenue.

HOLDS BIBLE VINDICATED

Modern Criticism Declares Dr. Lewis, has made Holy Writ Stronger than Ever.

A BOOK OF HISTORY

Able Exposition By Leading Divine of Seventh-Day Baptist Faith Before Presbyterian Club.

"The Bible Vindicated by Modern Criticism" was the subject of a address made by Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, editor of The Sabbath Recorder, be*fore the Men's Club of the Crescent* Avenue Presbyterian church, last Thursday night.

"So many important and fundamental lines of thought," said Dr. Lewis, "converge in my theme that I am 'embarrassed with an abundance of riches.' First of all is that greatest of facts, that God's presence and overruling determine all permanent events and all final results in human history. The human side of history is made of the successes and failures, the experiments and struggles of men to learn and do God's will, or to remain in ignorance and disobedience. Over and beyond what men plan or do, the eternal plans of God determine all larger results. God is constantly striving to reveal Himself to His children in love, mercy and justice. This revelation of the Divine One appears everywhere and in all things, even when men are blind, indifferent and disobedient. Human knowledge, the development of human character and destiny come through experience. Each generation of men furnishes something toward the sum of the experience of the whole family. The permanent and enduring elements in history are wrought out slowly, often painfully. These remain, the permanent inheritance of the race, while the mass of minor experiences and temporal events pass out of sight.

"The Bible is the recorded history of our race through political, social, moral and religious expeience. Religion is the core of it,—its central thought,—its one and ultimate purpose. Whatever of human experience appears in it, is therefore religious ends. It speaks with the authority of eternal truth concerning spiritual things. It does not attempt to speak with authority on any other theme.

"The Old Testament enshrines the revelation of God through the experience of the Hebrew people. Paul described the Hebrews imperfectly when he called them 'The supreme inventors of religion.' The Old Testament grew slowly, through many centuries. It is made up of the sifted ages and gold of Hebrew experience with God and of God. It forms the highest mountain range of eternal truths, known to men. Christianity received the Old Testament from the Hebrews. It was the central element in the world's best religious thought when Jesus the Christ was born. He was first and keenest of critics, concerning the traditions and interpretations which men associated with the Old Testament. He was not unorthodox, and but few, very few of those to whom He spoke were prepared to comprehend His treatment of the Old Testament, and grasp the deeper truths he sought to unfold from it.

"Early Christianity accepted the Old Testament with most of the imperfect conceptions and unwarrantable additions that the Pharisees had associated with it. Instead of rising to highest grounds, after the Apostolic Age, Christianity descended, under the added influence of Pagan philosophy and Gnosticism, to mechanical idea of religion, and passed into the long stifling darkness of the Middle Ages, during which a double load of imperfect notions, superstitions, and traditions were heaped on the Bible.

"The Protestant movement disturbed the stagnation of ten cen*turies of Christian history* and forced the Bible to the front. This compelled new inquiries. It was unavoidable that men should ask whence came this book when they were asked to accept it as the ultimate standard of Christian faith and practice. Why was it written? Does it teach what the Church has taught us? Endless questions came. They had to come. God was behind them. He guided the revival of historic and literary criticism. His Book. Used in some respects destructive criticism began as early as the fifteenth century. It increased with the centuries. The scope broadened. Methods improved. Facts were unearthed indicating best lines of progress. Science began to enter the company of critics. The first general stage is from 1650-1800. The more immediate modern stage began in South Africa, with Bishop Colenso; then Robertson Smith of Aberdeen; then our own Dr. Briggs and his fellows.

Results.

"The Old Testament is seen to be made up of the gems of Hebrew ideals of eternal religious verities. Its central thought is One God, Yaveh, the Everliving, Everloving, Everredeeming One.

"The New Testament is nearer to our time and more easily grasped. It is the immediate and direct product of the one Divine Life and Character in Jesus, the Jewish Messiah, all of whose credentials are in the Old Testament. Neither he nor his disciples had any 'scriptures' except the Old Testament. They quoted it built upon it, exalted it. The New Testament grew slowly. The Epistles were written first, from 57 to 70 A. D. First Thessalonians is probably the oldest book in the New Testiment. The historic books, the Gospels and Acts, date from 70 to 100 A. D. These came slowly into equality with the Old Testament as sacred and authoritative books. The present canon of the New Testament was not fixed by official action until 397 A. D. by the Third Council of Carthage. That was a Provincial Council and its action was not ratified by a National Council until 691 A. D. by the Quinisext Council at Constantinople. Christianity was nourished for almost four hundred years on the Old Testament alone, or mainly.

"Through all criticism by foes or friends, the Bible comes to us stronger, clearer, brighter than ever before. The dross of human misconceptions and interpretations has been removed, but the gold is purified. The outer crust of the diamonds and gems has been cut away by the lapidary of historic criticism, but the stones shine in their true lustre.

"Revelation is progressive, through human and inter-relations has been revealed, the Old Testament, revealed and exalted by Jesus, the Christ, stand forth as Eternal Verities giving firm foundation for our common faith. Meanwhile the sands of Egypt and the mounds of Babylonia yield fact after fact to vindivate Biblical history as human experience vindicates the power of its spiritual truths. The Book of God is not endangered by criticism. It is endangered more by the ignorance of its friends than by anything its enemies can do or have done."

Dr. Lewis also discussed the probable effects of modern criticism upon the Bible as the center of the Protestant movement, and the future of that movement as opposed to Catholicism. He said: "The issue between Catholicism, backed by sixteen centuries of history, and Protestanism the child of yesterday, is scarcely begun. The attitude of Protestants toward modern Biblical criticism will have much to do with the future history of that issue."

MRS. ADRIAN LYON TALKS ON IMMIGRATION

PRESBYTERIAL SECRETARY OF THE C.E. URGES WORK AMONG THE FOREIGNERS.

Election of officers, reports for the year, together with an address by Mrs. Adrian Lyon, of Perth Amboy, on "Immigration," were the features of the annual meeting of the Missionary and Aid Society of Warren chapel, held at the church Friday afternoon. Mrs. Joseph O. McKelvey conducted the devotional exercises, after which the business was taken up. These officers were elected for the coming year:

President, Mrs. A. V. D. Honeyman; first vice president, Mrs. Charles Harring; second vice president, Mrs. William Bacon; secretary, Mrs. Gibson Smith; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Joseph W. Gavett; treasurer, Mrs. John Schenck; secretary of literature, Mrs. A. C. Jenkins.

The reports were most encouraging. It was stated that $153 was raised in cash last year through freewill offerings, and $20, part of the monthly salary of a missionary at Ellis Island, was raised. Hope chapel paying the other half. In addition, the society made entire outfits for twelve babies at Ellis Island. There was also the box work for the mission school in the south, twenty yards of rag carpet being included in the articles sent there.

Besides this, the society has accomplished much work toward the furnishing fund for the new chapel. Sometime ago a special gift of $100 was given with the understanding that the society was to raise a like amount. This was done and a second special gift of $100 was given under similar conditions, it being necessary to raise $100 by yesterday. This and more to was done, and it was reported that the total amount in this fund is now $1,000. The society desires to make it $1,000.

Mrs. Lyon sounded a note of alarm when she stated that one-tenth of the population of the United States resides within a radius of twenty-five miles of this city, and that there was a goodly proportion of foreigners among them who needed the Gospel brought to them. Another statement of interest was that during the past year New Jersey has received the largest proportion of immigrants than any other state in the Union.

Among those attending the meeting were delegations from the missionary societies of the Dunellen Presbyterian church, Hope chapel and the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church.

Tea and refreshments were served after the meeting. Mrs. J. H. Snyder and an able corps of assistants being in charge.

THE WIFE'S ALLOWANCE.

Should the married woman have an allowance?

Well, rather.

The husband who will make his wife run to him before he will give her $5 ought to be sent to the rock pile.

Said one man:

"When my wife wants her pet terrier to bark she gives him candy. I train her the same way."

It is the old harem idea brought down to date.

Then men growl because the girls nowadays want to get away from home to earn a living.

How would he like to be compelled to charge every ten cent cigar and the drinks for himself and the other fellow?

COMPLAINT AGAINST PRINCIPAL WITHDRAWN

SOUTH PLAINFIELD TROUBLE SETTLED —BOY RETURNS TO SCHOOL.

Following a conference Monday afternoon between the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Saverd and Principal Frank Meskill, of the New Market Police School, the complaint against the latter was withdrawn. It was also agreed that the boy should return to school. He had been accused of alleged abuse and ill-treatment of Michael Saverd, son of the complainants.

The hearing took place before Justice vonMinden at the New Market school. Michael Saverd was there with his parents, and Principal Meskill, accompanied by his counsel, Surrogate P. Francis Daly, of New Brunswick, was also on hand. Arthur Tappan, George Harris, David Perrine, Harry Pennington, William Biller, Eugene Veghte and Abram Nelson, members of the Board of Education, were present.

Justice vonMinden suggested that the parents and the principal talk the matter privately with a view of settling the differences. In less than five minutes Mr. Saverd stated that he was willing to withdraw the complaint and send the boy back to school. The complaint was dismissed.

Michael Saverd, over whom the trouble arose, was allowed to tell his story, which was substantially as published exclusively in The Daily Press the day after the disturbance at the school. He briefly recited the facts, telling how he and a couple of companions were driving along Park avenue, when they met the principal. He said that on one side of the road there was plenty of snow, while on the other side was bare. The boy said that he did not see Mr. Meskill until almost on top of him and there was no intention of driving him out of the road into the deep snow and the discomfort he meant. He then told how the following day the principal ordered him to leave the school several times and go home and how he refused. Then, he declared, the principal put him out of the school by force and struck him on the head with a bell, besides choking him. He exhibited a cut on the head and a shirt, the collar of which was covered with blood, to substantiate his statements.

Mr. Meskill said that he might have struck the boy with the bell, but was not sure. He explained that his reason for sending the boy home was that he considered him disobedient and his actions not conducive to maintaining discipline in the school.

After the hearing of the two series, Justice vonMinden said that three important facts should be noted. First, that when the principal told the boy to go home, he should have obeyed, and any differences could have been settled by the Board of Education. In the second place, Principal Meskill exceeded his authority in pushing the boy out of the school and attempting to punish him for an act committed out of school hours. His redress was with the parents of the boy and he should have reported any act of disrespect to them.

Lastly, that when the boy was instructed to leave the school and go home he should have obeyed and then if the action was unjust he should have reported the matter to his parents and they had their redress by complaining to the Board of Education.

Considerable complaint was heard about the apparent indifference on the part of the Board of Education in the matter. It was argued that the trouble was one that should have been settled by that body instead of allowing it to go to a court of law.

AMUSEMENTS.

Miss Frances Starr makes a wonderful appeal to women in her delightful impersonation of Juanita, the Spanish-American maiden in "The Rose of Rancho." No other actress in New York today is drawing so largely upon the fashionable public. The Belasco theatre every night is crowded with an audience which can only be compared with the brilliant gathering at a gala performance of grand opera at the Metropolitan and Manhattan opera houses. It is her dainty youthfulness and sprightly coquettry in the poetic scenes of the Belasco-Tully play that account for the success of the brilliant little artist, especially with the gentler sex. This is notably true at the Saturday matinees, when the overflow is large enough to fill another theatre of the same capacity. Miss Starr has demonstrated that she is not an accident, for in the manifestation of her powers she has taken up the complex character of the girlish heroine she has no rival in the United States, added to which she sings and dances with the utmost grace and delicacy. She has become a Broadway favorite in everything that the term implies, and her success is another triumph for the artistic discernment of Belasco in picking her out of a multitude of ambitious actresses.

There was a great scrambling of mermaids in the water tank of the New York Hippodrome one afternoon last week, when Nero, one of the trained seals, slipped into its cage in the wings and flopped over into the water before any one could get to it. Nero was confined with the other seals behind the proscenium arch, and after his act in the ring, his cage was not securely fastened. During the act Nero scaled the side of the tank and dived in with a splash. King Neptune was just coming to the surface in his chariot when the seal made his appearance, and there was a great splashing of mermaids, as they tried to get out of the water. Nero dived repeatedly and seemed to enjoy the excitement caused by his unexpected advent. Miss Marie Louise Gibbon hesitated as long as she could before stepping into the boat that carried it down near the seal, but finally she mustered up courage enough, took a long breath and went into the water. Some of the fishermen tried to scare the seal away from the mermaids by splashing water. As soon as the cry that there was plenty of snow, while the other side was bare. "The Spoilers" as a novel proved a most graphic description of conditions existent in Alaska attending the looting of the mines at Nome by a corrupt gang of political plunderers, who, allied with a corrupt judiciary, attempted to take forcible possession under the guise of law of the richest mines in the Nome district.

CO. K BOYS CHOOSE H.B. KITCHELL CAPTAIN

CHAS. PETERSON AND A. I. LITTELL NEW LIEUTENANTS.

Major William B. Martin, of Elizabeth, formerly captain of Co. K, conducted the election of the organization onMonday, at which time Harry B. Kitchell, of Westfield, was chosen as his successor to the position of captain, as previously predicted in this paper sometime ago. The other officers elected were as follows:

First lieutenant, Charles A. Peterson; second lieutenant Albert I. Littell; sergeants, Clarence H. Bilyeu and A. R. Phillips; corporals, B. J. Ford, Harry Manning and Ferris R. Pearsall.

Major Martin gave notice that the batallion drill will be held in the armory at Trenton on Friday night, April 5.

The newly-elected officers took charge immediately after their election. The fact that the company was able to pick a captain from among its membership, is a source of gratification to it. Captain Kitchell was a charter member of the company and has always been closely identified with the organization. He is especially interested in rifle practice and it is believed that under his direction the company will maintain its present high standard among the companies of the State.

HIBERNIANS ANNUAL BALL A BIG SUCCESS

CROWD OF NEARLY 500 ATTENDS THE THIRTY-SECOND YEARLY AFFAIR.

With few short of 500 people in attendance, Division No. 4, A. O. H., held its thirty-second annual ball in Saengerbund Hall, Monday. It is one of the most social affairs the organization has yet conducted and the participants were highly pleased with the arrangements.

The grand march was held at 10:30 with John J. Leahy and Miss Mary Moore leading. A large number of couples were in line and the various figures evolved were witnessed by a crowded balcony. Suhr's Imperial orchestra furnished the music for dancing and it kept up with intermission until nearly hour this morning. An added feature was the appearance of Joseph Hennessey, of New York, America's champion bagpipe player, who rendered selections during the evening. John J. Leahy acted as floor manager, while James J. Tobin was his assistant.

The general committee which had charge of the arrangements comprised Thomas Brown, Patrick O'Brien, James J. Tobin, John Simpson, Calvin F. Casey, Thomas Farrell, John Rohan, Patrick Breen, John Donnolly, Patrick Griffin, James Eunis and Patrick Harrington. The officers of the division are the following: President, Francis Connolly; vice, president, John Hurley; financial secretary, John J. Leahy; financial secretary, Patrick O'Brien; treasurer, Patrick Harrington; sentinel, Thomas Farrell; sergeant-at-arms, Patrick Devler.

ROOSTER HAD A FREE RIDE.

But in All Probability the Trip Cost Him His Head.

While car No. 1309 was bowling along at a high rate of speed just west of Westfield Sunday afternoon, it ran into a flock of chickens that was picking about the road. They scattered in every direction but one big rooster that failed to step lively was struck and knocked into the fender. He recovered himself in a couple of seconds but as the car was still moving along at a rapid rate, he resolved to make the best of the situation and clung to one of the steel braces.

He was evidently badly frightened as when the conveyance made several stops he held to his perch like grim death. The motorman failed to notice him until almost in this city and then let him remain until Watchung avenue was reached. At the latter point he caught hold of the dazed and frightened passenger and made him a prisoner.

Motormen are as fond of chicken as other people and it is possible the lord of the barnyard was the feature of a dinner yesterday.

Herbert Buxton Endorsed.

The Union County Republican Executive Committee at its meeting in Elizabeth, last night, recommended and endorsed Councilman Herbert Buxton, of this city, for appointment on the State Arbitration Commission, and Henry Schmidt, of Elizabeth, for appointment on the Railway Reformatory Commission.

ANNEXATION FIRST: THEN CONSOLIDATION

Such It is Stated Will Be Recommendation of the Bi-Municipal Merger Commissioners.

BOTH SCHEMES DEAD

Annexation Would Never Go Through, Hence Consolidation Never Will Come to Pass.

It Is Argued.

Annexation and consolidation are dead—just as dead as they were five years ago—the two municipalities will continue to paddle their own canoes. The bi-municipal consolidation commission has about completed its work, now being engaged in shaping its report for the governing bodies of the two places. The sum and substance of the commissioners' investigations have been that consolidation without being preceded by annexation is both undesirable and impossible.

Not swayed by sentiment, the commissioners have heeded the legal advice given them by lawyers on both sides of "the brook." Speaking for Plainfield in his official capacity, Corporation Counsel Charles E. March, and speaking as a private citizen and taxpayer, Counsellor Winfield S. Angleman, have both declared to the commissioners that many laws of the State would have to be changed if the two places were merged, without first changing the county lines. Mr. Angleman holds, moreover, that the present consolidation act is unconstitutional, but Mr. Marsh has given no opinion on that phase of the subject. He has confined himself to the legal aspects of a municipality in two different counties; and that he believes undesirable and legally impracticable, so it is said.

According to good report, the commission will advise that before the city of Plainfield and the borough of North Plainfield are merged, the borough's territory be annexed to Union county. No one can be found who believes that there is any more chance of secession of the borough from Somerset county than there ever has been in the past, and therefore the conclusion is drawn by those in a position to know whereof they speak that both consolidation and annexation are dead.

It is said that the commission is anxious to have its report completed in time for the April meetings of the two governing bodies. Even then it is hardly likely that a bill can be rushed through the Legislature before adjournment providing for an annexation referendum. The annexation bill was killed five years ago when the scheme was defeated at the polls; therefore another has to be passed. But before the commission's report is made known to the governing bodies of the two places, it may be that an annexation bill will be introduced at Trenton. Consolidation is dead; annexation is deader.

LOOKS LIKE DUNGAN FOR SECOND REGIMENT HEAD.

Election Ordered for Successor to Col. Collins—Former Lieutenant-Colonel.

Assistant Adjutant General Frederick Gilkyson, by command of Brigadier General Collins, has ordered an election for colonel of the Second regiment and to fill any vacancies for field officers that may occur by reason thereof. The election will take place in the armory at Trenton next Monday night at 8.

There is no doubt but what Lieutenant Colonel Nelson Y. Dungan, of Somerville, will succeed Colonel Collins as commander of the Second regiment. Major George L. Forman will probably be appointed lieutenant colonel and Captain John H. McCullough may advance to the rank of major.

Lieutenant Colonel Nelson Y. Dungan, of Somerville, who is slated for colonel of the Second regiment, is one of the most popular officers of the national guard of New Jersey. He enlisted in Company H, Third Regiment, July 28, 1891, and became a corporal in August of the same year. He was elected first sergeant in 1892, battalion sergeant major in 1894; captain and judge advocate in 1894. He retired in 1899 and re-entered the service in 1900 as captain of Company M, of the Second regiment. He was elected major in 1901 and became lieutenant colonel upon the death of Lieutenant Colonel Joseph Clime, of Burlington.

Will Revise By-laws.

James C. Calvert, Edward Bauer and James White, members of the Union County Republican Executive Committee, have been appointed a committee to revise and correct the bylaws of the organization and report at the next meeting.

JUMPERS SMITE PASTORS

This Queer Religious Sect Thinks It Has a Rich Field For Work Here.

"THE ONLY TRUE FAITH"

With the announced purpose of coming into Plainfield to cleanse it from all sin by new methods, a religious sect strange to local people has invaded the city and is holding forth in Reform Hall. It is represented by a small band of constituents garbed something like the Salvation Army officers and they style themselves the "Pentecostal church," or "Pillar of Fire People." The names are a little too much for the ordinary citizen, however, and they are commonly known as "Jumpers," because of the fact that they jump about the platform when religious enthusiasm strikes them.

The "Jumpers" have a colony at Bound Brook where there are a hundred or more converts and they have mapped out a campaign for the surrounding country. Plainfield was one of the first cities selected and they have been coming to the city for the past two weeks and holding street corner meetings. Passersby at first mistook them for Salvationists but they attracted big crowds by emitting something like an Indian war-whoop every few minutes and leaping in the air. Monday night the band moved from Madison avenue and Front street to Reform Hall and a crowd of 150 followed in their wake to watch proceedings.

The meeting was called to order by one of the "missionaries" and Rev. Henry C. Huffman, one of the leaders of the Bound Brook colony, was introduced. He didn't waste any words in letting the audience know what they were there for and as he is an interesting speaker he held the crowd for nearly an hour. He referred to Plainfield as a "two by four" town and expressed sympathy for the Christians who followed Christ in the wake of the ministers who preached only because they got good salaries.

"Our religion," he said, "is based on faith. We believe the Lord will look out for us and he does. When we come into a town our carfare is paid and we start our meetings without a penny, but God always provides what we need. I feel sorry for the poor, misguided seekers of religion who go to the churches for it. The Gospel is preached there just so long as the pastors are paid for it; cut off their salaries and it stops. What us it is not a matter of dollars and cents. We are sincere in our belief; when a convert is made everything is given to the Lord. We are called the 'Jumpers,' perhaps in derision, but it is because we have received the spirit and everyone who joins the Pentecostal church will do so all their lives."

The speaker related a story to demonstrate the alleged fact that church people follow their paid pastors without using any judgment. A friend of his in the south had an old gray mare and when she had become practically unfit for anything else, he put her to work grinding tan bark. Day after day she went around in a circle performing the task until he took pity upon her and decided to let her end her declining years in peace. He accordingly took her away from the task of grinding bark and put her in a fine pasture. She had become so accustomed to going around in a circle, however, that she found it impossible to do anything else and kept going around the same way as she ate the grass. Instead of getting new, fresh blades each day, she continued to move around in the same ring and nothing her owner did could make her get out of the habit.

"That's just the way with the average Christian," said the speaker; "he has gotten so used to following around after people paid to tell him things that he goes over barren ground all the time and fails to get the fresh inspiration that his soul craves. I only wish that I could get the ministers of Plainfield to come here to listen to me and I would tell them just as I am telling you now."

All through Rev. Huffman's remarks he was greeted with "glories" and "hallelujas" from the followers seated on the platform and when he asked them if what he said wasn't right there replied with affirmative shakes of the head and cries of "yes," "yes." At intervals during the meeting the band led in singing that was almost as fervent as that given by Prophet Crowdy's followers during the "shout washers" convention but without the harmony. The meetings are to continue all this week and through no converts were secured last night, the leaders are hopeful that the compaign in Plainfield will not be devoid of results.

The colony at Bound Brook was established a year ago and is located in what is known as the Peter Garretson homestead. It comprises several buildings and the eighty acres of ground, all of which was deeded the sect by the owner. The place is called "Zarephath" by the "Jumpers" and now includes a training school for missionaries and a children's home. The farm is operated for the purpose of keeping the older people actively employed outside of their religious work and the proceeds help in paying the running expenses. The property is described in detail in the year book of the "Jumpers," which has just been issued and includes the following paragraph:

"The location is a very desirable one; just thirty miles from New York and sixty from Philadelphia. Within a radius of seventy miles there are 500 cities, towns and villages, and a population of nearly ten million people. Here, in all this region, there is a great spiritual dearth, the old denominations having long ago departed from the faith and refusing to preach the word of God. Here also are to be found hungry souls, who, failing to find any spiritual sustenance in the churches, are ready to receive our missionaries with joy."

P.S. C.'S NEW CAR HOUSE AT DUNELLEN

SUPT. GEDDIS SAYS IT WILL BE MODEL OF CONVENIENCE FOR THE MEN.

Superintendent Geddis, of the Public Service Corporation, said today that the new car house erected at Dunellen will be taken possession of April 1, and that it is a model institution. The buildings cover about two acres. There every appointment for the convenience and comfort of the employes is to be found. There is a reading room, and billiard room, where the men can pass away the time while waiting. Already some of the men have moved to Dunellen, but there is a lack of houses there for all. The company will furnish transportation to the employes to and from Dunellen and their homes.

Superintendent Geddis says everything to make the change satisfactory and comfortable has been arranged, and the company fears no dissatisfaction from the employes.

Mr. Geddis denies that the furniture of the Plainfield office was taken to Dunellen and then carted back because of rumors of the discontent of the men. There was, he says, a small safe taken back to Plainfield when it was found that the new car house could not be ready until April 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Colby's Plans.

Just as soon as he can arrange his business affairs after April 1, State Senator Frank Colby intends to go abroad with his wife for the benefit of her health. Mrs. Colby, who was formerly Miss Edith Hyde, is slowly recovering her health at Atlantic City but her physicians advise that a complete change of climate would be better for her. The Senator and his wife will be abroad all summer, but he will return in time to take an active part in the Gubernatorial campaign.

MILLION ANNUAL BASEBALL OUTPUT

NATIONAL PASTIME IS NOW ONE OF COUNTRY'S LARGEST INDUSTRIES.

The season of 1906 was a notable one in baseball. Values ascended to such a height that only a well-financed concern may now pose as a baseball owner, as was shown by the sale of the Boston Nationals' franchise, George D ovey forking over $275,000.

At no time during the history of the great American sport were such princely salaries and such phenomenal prices paid for good players, the deals involving the shift of "Cy" Seymour, "Spike" Shannon, Jack Taylor, and prices offered for such players as "Young Cy" Young, Tim Jordan and other stars being more numerous and far higher than are recorded in major league baseball with the exception of isolated cases, such as Mike Kelley and a few others.

There was a surprising endeavor on the part of the big leaguers managers to corral the best players in the game. Money was no object. The skill of the player was sought to strengthen the team. All along the line, from the majors down to the minors, money was freely used for the purpose of securing skilful players.

All this enormous outlay of money surely had a meaning. Baseball today is one of the big industries of America. As much money is yearly invested in the pastime and as much revenue is derived from the sport as accrues from almost of the important business interests of America.

Just how much money is tied up in baseball at present, how much it takes in and pays out, and what the salary lists of the country amount to, it is impossible to say, but the figures run into the big five figure leagues, which are at the top of the list. Rough estimates place the average salary list of the clubs at close to $40,000 a year.

If this is true it means that the sixteen clubs in the two leagues spend something like $640,000 a year in paying salaries to players alone. This does not include the money spent for the purchase of players, which will come clost to averaging $10,000 a lone. This means $160,000.

What it costs to run a park during a game it is hard to say, but gatekeepers and park employes usually run up a good figure, outside of incidentals. In addition to this there is ground rent to be considered, and interest to be paid on stands and figures. One hundred and fifty thousand dollars is a low estimate on the amount each club is incorporated at, and, taking everything into consideration, the financial end of the game in either the American or National league cuts into the $1,000,000 mark.

Baseball never experienced a more successful regime, and it is safe to say the following years will witness the gold era of the game. Magnates and public are beginning to cry for pennant winners, and the public's desire for this great honor is goading the baseball owners the country over to greater effort in the way of securing the best talent on the market.

THE GIRLS PAID DEAR FOR THEIR LITTLE JOKE.

Horse Taken in a Prank Ran Away, and the Jokers Were Hurt.

Miss Nettie Drake, of Valley street, South Orange, and Miss Florence Ricker, of Mountain View, thought it would be a joke to steal a ride in a buggy which belongs to the latter's brother and which was left standing in front of the Drake home Sunday night. The girls were angry yesterday, they did it, for they are laid up and the carriage is a wreck, the horse having run away.

"I thought I could hold the horse," Miss Ricker said after the accident, "but now what will brother say?"

The two girls intended to return the horse and buggy in good shape after taking a short ride, but the horse shied at a passing trolley. There was a crash with a coach belonging to Noonan Brothers and the horse broke loose from the fray.

Miss Ricker hung on to the reins and was dragged a considerable distance until a trolley employee caught the frightened animal. The girl's clothing was torn, and her face, hands and arms were cut and bruised. Miss Drake received a bad gash over one eye.

MR. AND MRS. FORCE SURPRISED

Employees of the "White Store" Pay Them An Unexpected Visit.

A surprise party of a unique character was tendered Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Force at their home on West Front street, Monday. The entire force of employes at the "White Store" were the participants, each one wearing in some original way the hue of the Emerald Isle, the idea being to remember the St. Patrick's day occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Force were totally unprepared for the coming of the self-invited guests but within a short time after their arrival, the rooms were decorated with potted plants and shamrocks until they resembled a Fairyland. Afterward a delightful programme of games, songs and recitations were enjoyed and in conclusion refreshments were served.

WHAT THE PEOPLE READ

Miss Emma Adams, of the Public Library, Says Plainfielders Prefer History.

TRAVEL BOOKS NEXT

That Plainfield people appreciate their free Library is shown by the large number of books constantly out in circulation. During twenty days from January 25 to February 13, inclusive, which includes four non-circulating days, there were out in circulation the round number of 2,000 volumes. It will be interesting to learn something of the character of these 2,000 books: what kinds of books are read, and what authors are being read in the community.

"It is sometimes alleged that fiction is used mostly by readers of fiction," says Miss Adams, the librarian. "Let us see what the facts are. Taking history first. As one would expect, the history of our own country is by far the most read subject. Among them are Trevelyan's American Revolution, European background of American History, Source books of American History, a large number of the Indians, among which were 'The Indian Dispossessed,' 'Century of Dishonor,' several of our own State, as 'Early Germans of New Jersey,' histories of various counties, &c.; while of the histories of other countries we find such books as 'Salve Venetia,' 'Scenes of the Middle Ages,' 'The Crusades,' 'Royal Memoirs,' 'Saint Simon's Memoirs,' 'Ancient Greeks,' 'Story of Ireland,' histories of Japan, England, Holland, &c.

"The department of Travel, closely akin to history, and always a most popular department, is used for a variety of purposes," says Miss Adams. "Previous contemplation of a trip abroad who read up in advance, as well as those who revisit through the aid of books the countries through they have travelled; the pupil to supplement his geography lesson, and always 'the general reader.' Beside the charm of a really good book of travel, many of the modern books of this class are, with their beautiful colored illustrations or careful drawings a delight to the eye, and even the inanimate novel reader is, now and again, lured away from his favorite field by the attractiveness of these books. Among those circulated in this class are 'Letters from a Chinese Official,' 'Northward Over the Great Ice,' 'The World's Children,' 'Lily and the Arno,' 'Feudal Chateaux,' 'Tent in France,' 'Yesterdays in the Philippines,' 'Soul of the Far East,' 'English Hours,' 'Ranch Life,' 'Land of the Boxers,' 'Flash Lights in the Jungle,' all of the fascinating Little Cousin Series,' 'Boots and Saddles,' 'Bluegrass and Rhododendron,' 'From Panama to Patagonia,' Strange Corners of Our Country,' 'Voyage of the Discovery,' 'Wanderer in London,' 'German Life in Town and Country,' 'Stoddard's Lectures,' 'Mountaineering in the Sierra Nevada,' &c., &c.

"Biography is another department closely akin to history. These books also tempt the novel reader to follow the fortunes of a real, rather than an imaginative hero or heroine. Historic, literary, artistic, religious and scientific biography all have their readers. The one character most read of within the time dated was Lincoln, all the shorter lives of which have been out in circulation. Some of the other historical biographies circulated were those of Washington, General Lee, Sumner, William and Silent, Lucretia Borgia, Charles II.; of literary biographies there were Stevenson, Dickens, Walt Whitman, Emerson, George Eliot, Lewis Carroll, Lowell, &c.; among religious biographies the Oxford Reformers,' 'Reminiscences of a Missionary Bishop,' 'Missionary of the Great West,' Luther, &c., while of artists and musicians there were the lives of Gellini, Beethoven, Millet, Romney, Reynolds, Gainsborough, &c.

"Among the books in general literature, which includes essays, poetry, books of poetry and drama, decidedly lead in popularity. Among those are Homer, Shakespeare, Goethe, Schiller, Ibsen, Longfellow, Alice and Phoebe Cary, Whittier, Stephen Phillips and Bernard Shaw. Among the essayists there were Matthew Arnold, Beamon's 'Upton Letters' and 'From a College Window,' 'Fiona Macleod,' Omar Khayyam, Bliss Perry, Ruskin, 'My Doorey,' Macaulay, Mabie, &c., with a goodly sprinkling of books of recitations, 'books on how to write,' &c., &c., and in considerable number of books in French and German.

"Because of the great attractiveness of modern art books the demand for them has been very great. Here in some of the books thus circulated during that time: Japanese Architecture, Old Pewter, Bartolommeo, Rembrandt, Old China Book, Indian Basketry, History of American Art, Colonial Furniture, How to Make Pottery, Art of Illustration, Whistler, American Painting, History of Furniture, Seven Lamps of Architecture, Woman's Hardy Garden.

Music and amusements are also included in this department; of the former class among others there were circulated 'Ten Singing Lessons,' 'Guide to the Opera,' 'Chamber Music,' 'Music Study in German,' &c.

"The dividing line between Fine arts and Useful arts is not always very distinct. There is a growing demand for books along the lines of business and trades. Among books of this class there were circulated: 'Architects and Builders' Pocket Book,' 'Metalic Alloys,' 'Principles of Agriculture,' 'American Machinery,' 'Practical Paper Hanging,' 'Care of the House,' 'Clocks and Watches,' 'Building Construction,' 'Household Hygiene,' 'Mixed Metals,' 'Practical Polish and Varnish Maker,' 'Boys' Book of Inventions,' 'Machine Design,' 'Plumbing and Gas Fitting,' 'Stair-building,' 'Machine Molding,' 'Dynamoes,' 'Alternating Currents,' 'Mine Ventilation,' 'Gas Engine,' &c.

"On another side useful arts is akin to science, from which department there were circulated, among others, 'Service Chemistry,' 'New Knowledge,' 'Man's Place in the Universe,' 'Experimental Science,' 'Chemical Lectures,' 'Atlantic,' 'Familiar Trees,' 'A B C of Electricity,' 'World's Inhabitants,' 'Trees in Winter,' several books on astronomy, a large number in natural history, management of the aquarium, &c.

"Of social sciences the number was somewhat less. Among these were several books on the negro question, 'The Long Day,' Roosevelt's 'American Ideals,' several on banking and stock speculation, and a good number relating to legends and customs of various peoples.

"Of books on religious subjects, by far the greater number seem to be books of practical religion though there were some on historical christianity, such as Christian Missions, Oxford Movement, &c. Of the former class, among others, there were out in circulation 'Hidden Life of the Soul,' 'Holy Living and Holy Dying,' 'Selina's Way,' 'Pilgrim's Progress,' 'Quiet Talks,' 'Pursuit of Holiness,' 'Problems of Living,' 'God's Choice of Men,' 'Greatest Thing' in the World,' 'When the King Came,' 'Divine Immanence,' &c.

"Among philosophical books were circulated 'Subconscious Self,' 'Modern Spiritualism,' 'Quest of Happiness,' 'Psychical Research,' 'Children of Good Fortune,' Psychology, &c.

"Of the ever popular department of fiction, the problem novel whether it be sociological, psychological, religious, ethical; the novel of incident; or, of manners, all our read. Interest seems the one thing necessary, and to this qualification some kind of skill the older writers it is evident that they are holding their own, from the large number circulated of Thackeray, Trollope, Jane Austen, George Eliot, Scott, Dickens, Richardson, Marryat, Balzac, Dumas, Victor Hugo, Cooper, Wilkie Collins, &c. And among the best of the present day writers the names of Mrs. Deland, Winston Churchill, Howells, Kipling, Mrs. Wharton, Stevenson, Hewlett, Page, Crawford, James, Meredith, Hopkinson Smith, occur frequently. Among other popular storytellers were Cap. King, Miss Murtree, Irving Bachellor, Daskam, John Fox, Glasgow, Gordon, Weyman, Wiggin, Roe, Conch, Craik, Myrtle Reed, Stuart, Yonge, Aldrich, Eggleston, Austin and many others.

"As to what books the children read most is another story. But enough has surely been given to show to what good purpose our Public Library is being used, and that along with the reading done for pure recreation, certainly a most legitimate purpose, there is an unusual proportion of reading with a purpose; self education, better equipment for one's work, or inspiration. It is to be remembered too that this is the record of but 20 days. This work is going on constantly, and it cannot be otherwise than that such books constantly circulated in the homes of the people are having an incalculable influence for good."

SURVIVORS OF 11TH REGT.

PLANNING FOR A REUNION.

N. J. Veterans to Gather at Truell Hall on Saturday, May 11.

Captain William Hand, Captain W. C. Smith, Chief Mrs. O. Doane and Isaac Randolph, the committee in charge of the arrangements for the annual reunion of the 11th Regiment, N. J. Vols., to be held in this city, Saturday, May 11, met Sunday to discuss plans. The committee received from Mrs. R. Truell an offer to hold the reunion at Truell Hall, formerly Netherwood Hotel, and it was decided to accept it. The cent will be of special significance because the occasion will also mark the golden wedding anniversary of Captain and Mrs. William Hand, and they are anxious to make the celebration a fitting one. For this reason most of the plans will be arranged by them.

The 11th Regiment was formed at Trenton, and the Plainfield members, Chief Doane, William Payne, Henry Molleson, John Goodwin, Isaac Randolph, Captain Hand joined Company B of that regiment in 1862. The enlistment was for three years and Chief Doane, William Payne, Henry Molleson, Isaac Randolph and Captain Hand served the entire time. About fifty members of the regiment, including its last commanding officer, Col. Schoonover, of Trenton, are expected. Captain W. H. Meeker, of Company B, now residing in Elizabeth, will also be here.

INDIAN LAUDS HIS RACE

Dr. Eastman Says Their Virtues are Inborn; Their Vices Acquired from White Man.

THE REAL INDIAN GONE

Red Man Has Reverence for Great Spirit Says Lecturer Before the Monday Afternoon Club.

No lecture before the Monday Afternoon Club has attracted so large an audience as that which greeted Dr. Charles A. Eastman, Monday, at the Casino. Dr. Eastman is a Sioux Indian, who some years ago married a Puritan wife, Elaine Goodale, the missionary poetess. His theme, "The Real Indian," was treated with comprehensive understanding. He affirmed at the beginning that the real Indian was gone; the character loving every tree, every and river and who was the real child of nature did not exist. Writers, he said, had not portrayed him correctly.

Dr. Eastman paid high tribute to the Indian woman who was taught to be simple, dignified, true and chaste, gentle as a child and possessing strength with which warriors could not compete. Further, he said, she owns the home, made by her own hands as well as everything in it, and over it she is the absolute ruler, regarding all the toil as play. According to Dr. Eastman, she would call it a low life to ask a sister woman to do her work, or care for her baby. "She is right up to her business," the speaker put it tersely.

Dr. Eastman said the children into self-control of the tongue, the appetite and temper were dwelt upon by the lecturer who believed that half the troubles of life would be avoided by control of the tongue alone. The child, he said, was taught to be a student of nature, all the senses be*ing trained to acuteness. With the* eye he knew the footprints of men and animals, seeing far and sharply, and with the ear he knew the trees by the rustling of the leaves, as well as the call of all animals. The training of the girl in industry, modesty and dignity until her "coming out" was also fully described, the graces of generosity and hospitality also being inculcated.

Of the real Indian's religion, Dr. Eastman said, he had implicit faith in the Great Mystery and a reverence for supreme power, but he used no word when he addressed the Great Spirit, the soul bowing in adoring thought. Further, he said, the real Indian never speculated on the hereafter. The happy hunting grounds of which some author had written as the hope of the Indian after death, he said, existed only in the imagination of the writer. The only happy hunting ground the Indian ever dreamed of had been taken from him by the white man. The Indian's creed put in language was: "Honor the Great Mystery; love your brother; honor honesty."

With these simple children of nature of the dark time, Dr. Eastman contrasted the show Indian of the present day who had tasted the white man's philosophy and the white man's drink. Treachery to, he stated, had been learned from the wrong dealing of a people who claimed civilization. For a future generation he believed they would be capable of taking their part in a civilization that had been more than 1800 years in its growth.

Dr. Eastman is in the employ of the government, revising the laws of some of the reservations, and his home during the winter is in Amherst, Mass.

Preceding the lecture, a petition favoring the child labor bill now before the Senate, was presented for signatures.

SENIOR TEACHERS ORGANIZE.

Will Meet Once a Week for Study of Sunday-school Lesson.

Teachers from the main department of the various Sunday-schools in the city have organized a local union, under the direction of Miss Nettie Beeching, who is president of the Primary and Junior Sunday-school Teachers' Union. The organization was effected at a meeting held at the Y. M. C. A., Monday, eight Sunday-schools being represented by those present.

The plan proposed *is to have dif*ferent Sunday-school workers teach the lesson each week, and all interested, especially Sunday-school teachers, are urged to attend. The need of such an organization has been apparent for sometime among the workers, the proposition being presented at a recent meeting of the Primary and Junior Union.

Progressive Heart Party.

A progressive heart party was held at the home of Mrs. Georgianna Coles on West Front street, Friday evening. About forty were present. The first woman's prize was awarded to Miss Lizzie Schlicht, the second to Miss Mame Winkler and the "booby" to Miss Gertrude Premoyer. The first men's prize was won by Millard Wright, the second by Herbert Bilyen and the "booby" by Clarence Rittenhouse. Vocal solos by George Seigfried, Elmer D. Cutting and Miss Anna Boss, and piano selections by Miss Eva Whitlock and Miss Nellie Winckler were enjoyed.

WIN TWO DUAL MEETS

Plainfield Y.M.C.A. Victorious in Athletic Contests With Other Associations.

HUDSON CITY SWAMPED

Seniors Take Championship Cup By 38 Points to 7—Juniors In Nip-and-Tuck Battle With Summit Boys.

Both of the chief divisions of the Y. M. C. A. physical department won in intercity dual athletic meets Saturday. For the third successive time the seniors captured a championship cup, defeating the athletic team of the Hudson City association, of Jersey City, by 38 points to 7. The juniors won a hotly contested meet from the boys of the Summit Y. M. C. A., by 25 points to 23. The juniors had to battle hard all the way, and the result of the meet was in doubt up to the last event. Their contest was distinguished by the breaking of the local boys' record for the high jump, Averill leaping 4 feet 11 inches, an inch and a half better than the standing mark.

Both meets were held at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. The juniors competed in the afternoon and the seniors at night. In both meets silver cups and ribbons were up.

The seniors had some close events, in spite of the apparent ease with which the meet was won. Several times the Hudson City athletes made plucky and close bids for the chief places, and it was only by hard work that the Plainfielders garnered their big total.

The events were won as follows:

Standing broad jump: Lueder, Plainfield, 9 feet 5 inches; Burgess, Plainfield, 9 feet 4 inches; Banks, Plainfield, 9 feet 3¼ inches.

Three standing broad jumps: Burgess, Plainfield, 27 feet 5 inches; Banks, Plainfield, 26 feet 11¼ inches; Washman, Hudson City, 26 feet 5½ inches.

Shot put: Collier, Plainfield, 34 feet 8¾ inches; Collins, Plainfield, 33 feet 2 inches; Leiser, Hudson City, 32 feet 3 inches.

High jump: Steiner, Plainfield, 5 feet 2 inches; Lueder, Plainfield, 5 feet 1 inch; Burgess, Plainfield, 5 feet ½ inch.

Potato race: Washman, Hudson City, 1:46 4-5; Templin, Viebrock, tied, 1:47.

The points in the nip-and-tuck contest of the boys were garnered as follows:

Standing broad jump: Morris, Plainfield, 8 feet 6½ inches; Underwood, Summit, 8 feet 5¾ inches; Aylesbury, Summit, 8 feet 3½ inches.

Three standing broad jumps: Underwood, Summit, 25 feet 5½ inches; Caldwell, Plainfield, 24 feet 7 inches; Morris, Plainfield, 24 feet 5 inches.

Running high jump: Averill, Plainfield, 4 feet 11 inches; Turner, Summit, 4 feet 10 inches; Burgess, Summit, 4 feet 8 inches.

High dive: Aylesbury, Summit, 5 feet 3 inches; Freeman, Plainfield, 5 feet 2 inches; Miller, Monroy, tied, 5 feet 1 inch.

Potato relay race, won by Plainfield: Freeman, Richardson, Lindzey, Miller, Plainfield; Ithell, Underwood, Thompson, Aylesbury, Summit.

Both the visiting teams were entertained at lunch after the meets.

ficient time to dispose of the goods described, and therefore need not fear proscription by the authorities.

George H. White, of Jersey City, spoke generally in favor of the bill, but advocated the adoption of the changes suggested by Mr. Barringer as mentioned above as a protection and in justice to the druggists of the State.

Dr. Mitchell thought it would be wise to incorporate in the act a provision to the effect that whenever a sample of any drug or drug preparation that had been put upon the market should be found to be adulterated prosecution should be followed up until the crime was properly punished.

Mr. Barringer suggested an amendment providing for a pure food commission to be appointed by the Governor, and to consist of the Attorney-General, secretary of the State Board of Health, two members of the State Board of Pharmacy and two persons representing the procery, drug and confectionery trader.

Benefit Tickets on Sale.

Tickets for the first annual benefit to Assistant Treasurer Leonce Texier and the ushers at the New Plainfield theatre, have been placed on sale and are already being bought up. Block, Watson and Wrothe in "Tom, Dick and Harry," have been secured as the attraction and the production will be seen on April 15. The show was presented at the New Plainfield theatre shortly after the house was opened and scored a big hit.

Andrew Cox, of West Second street, who has been quite ill with erysipelas, is slightly improved.

PLUMBERS WANT $22 AND HALF-HOLIDAY

MASTERS ASSOCIATION TO ACT ON DEMANDS ON MONDAY.

The Master Plumbers' Association met Monday night to receive a report from the journeymen plumbers, in which the latter seek to get a raise in their wages. The report was not ready for presentation and the matter was referred back to committee with the understanding that it would be received at a meeting to be held next Monday night.

Inquiry among the master plumbers this morning failed to disclose what the journeymen want, but from other sources it was learned that they want the Saturday half-holiday with pay the year round, instead of three months, according to the present agreement. The journeymen now receive $21 a week, and if paid for the Saturday half-holiday it would give them $22.

The journeymen plumbers are the only members of the various local trades not enjoying the half-holiday through the year. Heretofore, the master plumbers have allowed this time off during three months of the year, but there has always been more or less dissatisfaction with this arrangement, while the other trades seemed to have such an advantage over the journeymen plumbers. Just what answer the master plumbers will make to their employees is not known, but it is understood that the request will be granted.

GRANTED A LICENSE WITHOUT ANY RIGHT

AFTER MAYOR WAS ADVISED THAT NO ONE HAD POWER, CITY FATHERS ISSUE

In the face of an unequivocal opinion from Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh that a Common Council has no power to issue any form of public streets, the city fathers renewed the license of Joseph Myers to conduct a restaurant on the thoroughfare in Second street near Park avenue. There was not a dissenting voice among the councilmen when Herbert W. Buxton on presenting the application argued that as Myers had occupied Second street in such manner for fourteen years he should be granted a renewal of his license. The logic of the argument appealed to be sound for every member present cast his vote in favor of allowing the lunch-wagon to obstruct the street for another year.

From an unquestionable source, a representative of The Daily Press has learned that Mayor Charles J. Fisk declined to grant the application of Myers. When the Common Council delegated to the mayor the power to act on all applications for licenses other than those for the right to sell liquor, Mr. Fisk asked Mr. Marsh for his opinion on the lunch-wagon application. The corporation counsel is reported to have filed with him an opinion that neither the mayor nor the Common Council had any legal right to grant such a privilege.

Such use of the highways had not struck the mayor favorably and when he received the Corporation Counsel's opinion, he at once notified District Court Judge William Newcorn, Myers' counsel, that the application would not be granted him. The mayor subsequently referred back the application to the Common Council.

State. This would have enabled us to fix a liberal salary schedule while materially reducing the burden of the local tax. Until the constitutionality of this act has been affirmed by the highest court we cannot count upon receiving the larger appropria*tion. However, under the new rules* of the State Board doubling the apportionment of the district for High School teachers the borough will receive next year about $1,900 more than in the current fiscal year. This amount added to the amount raised by local taxation should enable us to make a moderate salary increase."

HONORED PATRON SAINT.

Mr. and Mrs. George Homan, of Plainfield avenue, gave a St. Patrick's Day whist party at her home, Saturday night. There were five tables and the house was elaborately decorated in honor of the "Patron Saint," there being a profusion of green, combined with countless little shamrocks. The score cards also bore a picture of a shamrock and each guest received a shamrock pin as a souvenir. The refreshments were unique in that the color scheme of green was carried out.

Mrs. James P. Homan won the first prize for the women and Mrs. Marcus L. Clawson the second prize. Frank H. Smith received the first prize for the men and John B. Cottrell the second, while Dr. Marcus L. Clawson was presented with the consolation prize.

THE DARING DYNAMITE MAN.

Death May Come Any Time, but He Doesn't Fear It.

"Some day I guess 'twill get me. We never know."

J. B. Boone, professional powder man, dynamite and nitroglycerin handler, moved cautiously about a fire as he talked. At his feet lay 50 pounds of dynamite—frozen. Three feet away was a roaring fire. He was at a stone quarry at Courtney, Mo., where the night before 500 pounds of his material had exploded. And he had built the fire to thaw out more.

"This is the dangerous part of the work," he said. "The jar of a cinder popping from the fire, striking this dynamite, would make it explode. A twig snapped against it or some object dropped upon it, would bring the end. Dynamite is not exploded by heat. It requires some jar—some friction. When it is frozen—and it freezes sooner than water—it is fairly safe to handle. But in thawing the warmest it becomes the more sensitive it is. When these sticks are warm a drop dropped upon them will make them explode. It's a dangerous business."

No screen was between the dynamite and the fire where "the powder man" worked. If he feared that coal cinder popping from the dry sticks to the fire he did—not—show it. In a methodical, careful way, this grave, quiet man worked swiftly and silently by the fire.

"I began it with my father when I was 15 years old," he said. "More than 30 years now I've been a powder man, and—well, I'm here to-day, say how."

But he would venture no prediction for the morrow.

CUSTOM OF YUMA INDIANS.

Burning the Dead One of Their Interesting Ceremonies.

Burning the dead as observed among the Yumas is interesting. The body is first thoroughly wrapped and then placed in logs and brush over a hole in the ground. A bed of logs is built up at each side and at the head of the hole, which is next covered over and strewn about with dry faggots. The flames are applied and, while they burn, the clothing, blankets, etc., of the deceased are added to the fire. The ashes of the dead man, however, is not burned among the Yumas, as is the custom with some Indians. A day or two after death the wigwam of the deceased, if an adult, is burned, the rest of the family then going to live with some relative. The Yumas make a great show of sorrow over their dead. Later they are never mentioned at all. The medicine men are still largely in control among the Yumas, and the government makes no attempt to interfere. Usually their patients grow sicker, so that they proclaim them doomed to die and their prophecy will almost always come true.

When Love Is Young.

They had reached that stage of the engagement when there is usually more or less speculation as to the future on the part of the bride-to-be.

"It doesn't seem, Tom, dear, that we could ever speak a cross word to each other, does it, dearest?" she murmured from his coat lapel.

"Never, sweetheart!" declared Tom stoutly.

"But, dear," she persisted, "if—mind I say if—if some morning the steak should be burned and the coffee cold, and you were tempted to be just a bit—just a teeny wee bit cross, what would you do?"

She looked up into his face anxiously, and he felt that his reply must be one that would fully reassure her. After a moment's thought he exclaimed, triumphantly: "I'd go down town and get my breakfast!"—Puck.

Dr. John L. Morse of Boston, an authority on pure foods, said recently that the public could not expect pure food at a low price.

"Take milk, for instance," he said. "Milk absolutely pure cannot be sold to-day under 15 cents a quart.

"And so, till we are willing to pay for a genuine article, imitation articles, adulterated articles, will be sold to us.

"And the morality of the dealers will grow worse and worse, till finally I can imagine a sausage maker saying on his deathbed to his son:

"'Always bear in mind, my lad, that sausage can be made out of anything—even out of meat.'"

The Crowning Blow.

"Mothers and nurses have devised and invented many ways of producing obedience and correct behavior from their little charges," said a park policeman. "The familiar 'bogy man' is still employed, but the times change and the people with them.

"The last fine day, when the park was filled with mothers and nurses, I heard a new way of appealing to the love or fear of a child. A stylishly dressed young woman leading an irrepressible youngster, after making all sorts of threats and promises without effect, said: 'Child! Child! you give me wrinkles under my eyes.'"

WANTS NEW JERSEY IN THE MANEUVERS

WAR DEPARTMENT INVITES THE STATE MILITIA'S PARTICIPATION.

Governor Stokes received from the War Department yesterday a letter inviting the New Jersey militia to participate in the coast artillery maneuvers planned for next summer.

If the invitation is accepted New Jersey will be represented at Fort Hancock and Fort Mott. The letter to the Goernor, signed by Assistant Secretary of War Oliver, says:

"To put this plan to a practical test some days of instruction will be held in the artillery districts of Southern New York and Delaware from July 1 to 15, or at such time as may be most acceptable to you. And you are invited to co-operate with the regular forces of designating organizations of the National Guard of your State to report for duty to the commanding officers of said artillery districts for one week or ten days during that period.

"As the strength of the various companies of your National Guard is below the number of men required for each battery, as specified, it will not practicable to furnish the force, so far as strength is concerned, but the following detail is suggested:

"Fort Hancock, four companies of infantry, to act as coast artillery reserves at the batteries. Eight companies of infantry as supports.

"Fort Mott, two companies of infantry to act as coast artillery reserves at the batteries; four companies of infantry as supports.

"All field, staff and non-commissioned staff officers of regiments from which companies may be detailed are invited to take part in the course of instructions.

"This duty will be without the expense of the State, and full instruction will be given by the chief of artillery should you decide to assign your troops to these camps of instruction."

The advisability of New Jersey's acceptance of the War Department's offer will be taken up at a conference of the State Military Board, with which the Governor will communicate later.

The cities of the War Department is to create a coast artillery reserve, made up of militia. Companies of militia will be used to supplement the regular forces.

FORMER TRENTON BELLE IS SEEKING A DIVORCE.

Mrs. Agnes Mace's Grounds Are "Personal Abuse and Such Conduct as Makes Life Oppressive."

Trenton, March 18.—Mrs. Agnes Mace, formerly of this city, has instituted divorce proceedings against her husband, Dr. Lloyd K. Mace, of Philadelphia, on the ground of "personal abuse and such conduct as makes life oppressive and burdensome." The suit will be heard during the June term of the divorce courts of Pennsylvania.

The marriage, which occurred in February of last year in this city, was one of the most brilliant church nuptials Trenton has ever known. Immediately after the wedding the couple left this city for Chicago, and it is claimed that when they got there the finances of Dr. Mace were gone and the bride and bridegroom were practically stranded.

The first inkling of the troubles between Dr. and Mrs. Mace was when a notice appeared in a local paper, which read: "Notice is hereby given that I will not be responsible for any debts contracted by any one else than myself. (Signed) Lloyd R. Mace, M. D., Philadelphia."

This notice was directed toward Mrs. Mace, and when her attention was called to it she commented that her husband had bought nothing for her since they were married but a pair of shoes.

FOR BATTLESHIP NEW JERSEY.

State's $10,000 Silver Service Gift May Be Presented at Jamestown.

Trenton, March 18.—The commission having in charge the $10,000 silver service which New Jersey has bought for the battleship named after the State will probably meet next week to make final arrangements for the presentation. The Navy Department has advised the Governor that the New Jersey will be among the vessels lying off Jamestown, Va., at the opening of the exposition on April 26.

After that time it is more than probable that she will be assigned to foreign waters, so that the opportunity of present the service while she is in the vicinity of Hampton Roads will undoubtedly be taken advantage of.

It is expected that the Governor, with his staff, will be at the New Jersey building on the opening day of the exposition, and that within a few days thereafter the service will be formally presented to the officers of the battleship.

A Treat in Store.

The Nehemiah Brooks Trio, of Atlantic City, will give a musical festival in the Salvation Army hall on Wednesday evening. Mr. Brooks has been instructor in a Philharmonic society in England and has been engaged in public work for over twenty years. The entire proceeds will be for the local Salvation Army corps' current expenses.

HADLEY FAVORS FOOTBALL FOR UNDERGRADUATES

In Address to Local Yale Men He Says Roosevelt Talked of One Thing and Eliot of An other.

COLLEGE LIFE PROBLEM

President of Yale Declares Great Game Takes Students Away From Evil Forms of Amusement.

The Yale Club held its annual dinner at the Casino Friday night. Fifty members of the organization attended. President Arthur T. Hadley was the guest of honor and the chief speaker.

The diners sat at a long table that stretched down the center of the ballroom. The decorations were simple.

City Judge William N. Runyon was the toastmaster. Besides him and President Hadley at the speaker's table were: Leighton Calkins, Albert H. Atterbury, Dr. Leonard Waldo, John M. Whiton, C. F. Abbott, John Leal, S. St. John McCutchen, Samuel Huntington, Rev. Dr. John Sheridan Zelie, W. D. Mudge, all of this city, and Dickinson W. Richards, of Orange.

Joseph M. Shellabarger, who was to have responded to "Princeton," and Mayor Charles J. Fisk, who was down for a response to "The City of Plainfield," were unable to attend. The mayor telegraphed his regrets from Atlantic City.

The speechmaking was started by Thomas M. Day, the club president, with brief introductory remarks. He said in part:

"The Plainfield Yale Club is doing what it can for Yale and Plainfield. I don't think our getting together is all we should do. Cleanliness is not good; we should go out and make Yale men known and respected by the country at large. What we want to do is an echo of this and is to start off a progressive force."

City Judge William N. Runyon, the toastmaster, followed. He spoke feelingly of the spirit of Yale, and evoked warm applause by his eulogy of the university.

Dr. Hadley's Talk.

President Hadley followed Mr. Day. He said:

"A university has to deal with two classes of students: those who have chosen their profession and those who have not. There is an advantage in teaching the two side by side. The professional students give examples of thoroughness to the undergraduate students; the life of the undergraduate students exercises its broadening influence on the professional students. But the problems of the two classes and the methods for dealing with them are essentially different.

"The problem of the professional student is much the simpler of the two. He has a definite end in view. He wishes to be able to practice his calling as intelligently and efficiently as possible. All that he asks of the instructor is to organize his work toward that specific end as efficiently and economically as he can. Desirable, the library and the social activities of the place have but a secondary importance to him. They are minor diversions, not important elements of his education.

"The problems of the undergraduate who has not yet chosen his profession are more complex. He does not know what he wants. We are trying to help him to find out. This makes the problem of his instructors much harder. Moreover, the tests of the powers which he can make in the class room cover but a small part of his education. His social and literary and athletic activities are coordinate elements in his training with the lectures and books.

Roosevelt vs. Eliot.

Most of the misunderstanding about educational topics arises from confusing the needs of these two groups—from talking as though we had only one kind of men in the university instead of two. There has been some newspaper discussion as to certain utterances of President Roosevelt and President Eliot of Harvard. Some people have said that they were in agreement. Others have said that they differed. The truth is that they neither agreed nor differed. They were talking about separate things. President Eliot was thinking of a university where the students were predominantly of the graduate or professional type. President Roosevelt was thinking of one where the students were predominantly of the undergraduate or non-professional type. If you have a university of the former type in mind you do right to prohibit football. It takes time and is a substraction from professional energy. But if you have a university of the latter type you do wrong to prohibit football. The time and attention given to football are not taken away from the studies. They are taken away from forms of amusement and dissipation whose good is far less and whose evil far greater than football is or is likely to be.

The Elective College.

"Again, if you have a university composed predominantly of professional students, you do right to let them study what they please. They have reached a point where they can adapt their studies to a definite end. If you have a university composed of non-professional students, you do wrong to let them study what they please. They have no definite end to which they are able to adapt things. They look to you for guidance. It is indeed wise to give them considerable freedom of choice. It is better to give the guidance in the form of advice than in the form of a fixed curriculum. But the doctrine that a student can study anything he pleases in the high school, and make proficiency in those indiscriminate studies a basis for entrance to college, and then spend two or three or four years at college getting what is supposed to be general culture, is not, in the judgment of most of us, either a wise or a safe one. Not intellectual culture, but intellectual dissipation—and perhaps some other forms of dissipation—represents the normal result of such a process.

"I take it that the problems in whose discussion you are most interested are those that affect the undergraduate or non-professional students; partly because these students constitute two thirds of our list at Yale and partly because their solution is more difficult and uncertain than the others.

Colleges Better Today.

"When we left the old curriculum and introduced the elective system, we of course made some mistakes. From the extreme of indiscriminate compulsion, whereby a man was made to study a little of everything, we passed to the extreme of indiscriminate freedom, which allowed him to study of little of anything. We have, I think, realized that mistake. We see that the only justification of a good elective system will be that it should teach more than the system that it supplanted. I am confident, not only from my own observation but from the testimony of parents, that if we compare the class room work today with that of twenty or thirty or forty years ago, we shall find that the men are more studying and the teachers do more teaching. This increase of interest has produced increased contact between teachers and students. Many parents are afraid to send their sons to a large college, and I can't blame them, because they say that they will see less of their instructors than in a small college. My experience is that they see a great deal more. The students in Yale thirty years ago, in their intercourse with the faculty, tended to look at them in good deal in the same critical way that a man scans his opponent in a contest—between the bars of his visor, as it were. The men of today in very large measure look at their instructors as helpers toward a common end. This is due not only to the increased interest; there is increased intelligence in this co-operation. The use of the library as a means of teaching has increased greatly in recent years, and under the efficient administration of Mr. Schwab is bound to increase very much more in the near future. While we were in college we made a great deal of use of the library, but we did it by ourselves, in isolation. A strong effort is now being made to render the library a part of the teaching system.

"Another thing which we are beginning to recognize and utilize is the public purpose in college training. If a man thinks that he is sent to college to get culture, the aim is a little indefinite and tends to demoralize. Culture as an end of education is, after all, rather a selfish idea. It is not one that appeals to boys of the best class. Public spirit is a better one. If you tell a boy that he is given liberty, not to serve himself but to serve the public, he is ready to take that view and assume the responsibilities that go with it. He will arrange his course intelligently if he understands that that course is being made a test of the lines in which he can best serve his fellow men. He will do hard and even disagreeable work if he knows that that hard work is an incident of his duty to society. He is content to accept high ideals and difficult standards if he can be sure that the standards are those set intelligently and that the ideals are highly patriotic and farsighted. To a boy taking up his college course in this spirit the very difficulties of the work increase the affection with which he looks upon the college. It is one of the easiest times in our lives that we look back with affection. You know the old Harrow song:

"'The time will come
As the years go by
When your heart will thrill
At the thought of the hill,
And the pitiless bell with its piercing cry.'

Public Spirit.

"There is this same poety in American college life. Some people have thought that it was bound up with the old dormitories and the old fence. But it can center around new dormitories and new fences as long as the public spirit is there. Some have thought that it was bound up with the old debating societies; but in an age when it can centre around the Yale News, if the Yale News is made a real organ of public opinion, whose duty is to inform and to moderate rather than to pander to the craving for sensation. It is the property of no one department and of no one generation. You, as alumni, feel this poetry of Yale life more strongly today than you did when you were undergraduates. Among your many duties and among the varied services which you can render to the college, it is your highest duty and your most efficient service to keep alive this tradition of public spirit, of work to a common end, which shall inspire our whole college life, graduate and undergraduate, and make Yale a place which we love because it has taught us to forget ourselves in the pursuit of things larger and better."

Leighton Calkins, responding to "Harvard," said, in part:

"Yale and Harvard are natural rivals and competitors, but they have much in common. We face today problems of more serious import than those of other days. We face, today, a abhorrent thing called 'honest graft.' It is more truthful to call it commercial dishonesty. The colleges must do their part in correcting those conditions. Let us exalt the truth and abide by it always."

Albert H. Atterbury, speaking on "The Plainfield Yale Club," said, in part:

"When college men assemble to break bread together their bond of unity is a liberal education. We belong to the intellectual sphere, and I plead guilty to a Pharasaical feeling. We are not exactly as other men are. We have that which mere wealth cannot buy. The culture to be achieved at college is a valuable asset. It will smooth over the hard quarter of a man's life as nothing else will."

Leander N. Lovell, who has sent four sons to Yale, was called upon to speak in Mr. Fisk's place. He spoke briefly. In closing, he said:

"This town has always shown the effect of college spirit. It has never been afflicted with graft, and has enjoyed the activity of a thoughtful and voting populace. You college men can only but add to the nobility of Plainfield's civic spirit and attract others like you."

Dickinson W. Richards, of Orange, brother of Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, in the course of his response to "The Alumni of Yale" said:

"College men have more ways than one of standing together. One of the advantages of Yale education is the commonsense it gives to the student. Another is the meeting of men that there is a spirit of unrest in the air. It seems to me that if we look among the educated class we find the majority afraid to do anything and the minority trying to do too much. This is due to the failure to live with the corporation laws of the State. I believe that the present laws in New Jersey are the best on the statute books for the incorporation of honest business. But that there are evils in the business life cannot be denied. College men are of the sort that can best lead the people rightly in their effort to correct the evils. They can do much to put the country on a surer foundation."

C. W. Abbott, '99; A. H. Atterbury, '82; P. H. Bailey, '96; Dr. A. K. Brennan, '93 M.; Harold Brown, E. V. Cox, '94 S.; T. M. Day, '86; Dr. A. H. Dundon, Howard Huntington, '92; T. Charles H. Fountain, Samuel Huntington, '63; John Leal, '74; Arthur Lovell, '82; H. B. Lovell, '96; S. St. John McCutchen, '70; C. W. McGee, '93 S.; H. L. McGee, '96 S.; H. D. Moody, 82; W. D. Murray, 80; R. R. Rowland, '96; Lewis Runkle, '03 S.; A. Williams, Jr., '02; Roy Whitney, '85 S.; Rev. John S. Zelie, '90 T.; L. Dubois Bunting, of Elizabeth; J. L. Perkins, Cranford; D. H. Rowland, L. A. Williams, Jr., D. Lovell, C. F. Abbott, H. W. McGee.

The dinner was arranged by the Executive Committee, composed of Carroll T. Runyon, H. B. Lovell and William B. Tyler.

W. C. RUNYON NON-SUITED.

Loses Case Brought Against Stepmother. Mrs. Lavinia Runyon.

In the action of W. Cleveland Runyon against his stepmother alleging that she destroyed a life insurance policy, brought in the district court yesterday morning, Thursday, before Judge Raymond, the plaintiff was non-suited on the ground that it was not properly instituted. It was the contention of the defendant's counsel, Alonzo Church, that the husband, Lewis Runyon should be joined in the suit.

In the Chancery suit of Mrs. Lavinia Runyon against Walter G. Runyon, her husband, the Chancellor has given the defendant two weeks to make up his mind whether he will take his wife back or pay her alimony. A peculiar fact about these suits is that W. Cleveland Runyon, who was his own counsel in the action against his step-mother, represented her in the suit in which she seeks to secure alimony from his father.

Will Celebrate Silver Anniversary.

Arthur L. Titsworth will complete twenty-five years of continuous service as organist at Trinity Reformed church on May 1, and on Sunday night, April 28, there will be a special musical service in honor of the event, the choir assisting, the conductor of the church having granted Mr. Titsworth the privilege of arranging the service.

ARRESTED AS FIRE BUGS

Charles T. Vail and Miss Ellen Gillen Held in Heavy Bail.

BOTH PLAINFIELDERS

They With a Man Named Hummell Alleged to Have Fired Building —Gillen and Hummell in Jail.

Charles T. Vail, formerly of this city, now postmaster at West Portal, sometimes called Valley, has been held in $4,000 bail to await the action of the Hunterdon county grand jury, it being charged that he, with Miss Ellen Gillen, also of Plainfield, and Joseph Hummell, a mail carrier, with having been implicated in the burning of the old Cornish property in that place. The arrests were made several days ago and the hearing took place before Justice of the Peace Opdyke, at West Portal on March 5. Miss Gillen and Hummell are both lodged in the jail being unable to furnish $2,000 bail apiece.

The Cornish property, which Vail owned, was sold on February 19 and was bought in by Miss Gillen. Vail held a heavy mortgage on it as well as the insurance policy. On February 24 the building was burned and the insurance adjustors refused to pay after an investigation. The three arrests followed. The policies aggregated $6,700.

A lawyer from New York, representing one of the insurance companies, and accompanied by an expert stenographer, attended the hearing. Miss Gillen's story was very disconnected. She said she had been attracted to the place while driving through West Portal last summer and desired to purchase it. Asked how she came to know of the sale in February, she stated that she had seen a poster advertising the sale. She said she had seen the poster in a store in Plainfield but refused to state what store it was.

She said the name of the man who attended the sale with her was Harry King. Vail stated at the same hearing that the man was Harry Vail, a brother of his, who lived in Plainfield. There were many other conflicting statements made.

Vail was away when the fire took place. He says he was in Plainfield and had left Hummell in charge. The latter claims that he had gone to the building to fix the fire and that the stove upset.

Miss Gillen is a respectable appearing woman, fairly attractive, and about 25 years old. Hummell, who is in jail with her, is about 54.

Mr. Vail's wife still lives in this city.

NEW YORK AUTOMOBILE MAN MAKES THREAT

Senator Joseph Frelinghuysen, author of the motor-vehicle law of 1906, and of an amendment to this law introduced on February 27 last, is in receipt of a letter from General Counsel Thaddeus Terry, of the New York State Automobile Association, requesting a change in the New Jersey law, recognizing certificates and numbers issued in accordance with the New York law, threatening reciprocal legislation unless the request is granted.

The letter directs attention to the fact that New Jersey automobile owners are not required to take out a special license in New York and adds that it is not the annual license fee of $3 to $5, according to the rating of the vehicle, as much as the annoyance incident to the hold-up of New York auto owners who are ignorant of the requirements of the New Jersey law. These persons, it is pointed out, are frequently subjected to grave and serious annoyance when they enter upon a road within the precints of this State.

To this line of argument the Senator has written a reply stating that for every resident Jerseyman who runs an automobile over the roads in New York State, such as they are, many hundreds of New Yorkers use the roads of this State, which on the whole are regarded as the best constructed and maintained in the country. In fact, he added, it is his belief that more residents of New York than New Jersey use the roads of this State.

To keep these roads in proper condition, Mr. Frelinghuysen adds, costs money, and the small license fee charged, netting in the aggregate about $90,000 a year, while paying but a share of the cost, shows to what an extent New Jersey roads are used by autoists. Referring to his present bill, the Senator says it provides a nominal license costing $1 only and good for three days. This is for those who might with reason object to taking out an annual license while intending only to pass through the State.

Hugh Sweeney, of Liberty street, who has been laid up for eight weeks with an injury to his leg, has about recovered and returned to work.

LODGE PLANS CARNIVAL

Knights of Columbus Will Hold a Big Affair in June

WILL LAST FOR A WEEK

John J. Kenney Has Been Appointed Press Agent, and He Is On His Job—What Is Coming.

By J. J. K.

Definite announcement of what had been rumored for several weeks, that the Knights of Columbus were to conduct an elaborate carnival on the lines of the hospital affairs of the past two years, was made Friday morning. The enterprise will be conducted for a week on the carnival grounds, beginning on the Hippodrome Company, of New York, a big carnival concern, will furnish the equipment and attractions.

The various committees of arrangement which will be necessary to the execution of the carnival scheme have not yet been appointed. John J. Kenney has, however, been placed in charge of the publicity department, and he got on his job with the eclat of a professional press agent this morning. He gave out this restrained and quiet statement, with an air that would have driven the advance man of a three-ring circus green with envy to see it:

"The biggest and most expensive amusement event to be held in our city this coming season will be had in the coming of the great Hippodrome Amusement Company, for a period of one week under the auspices of the Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus.

"This knowledge is indeed a pleasurable surprise, bringing as it does within our reach an opportunity of beholding what is without a doubt the most elaborate amusement enterprise of its kind extant.

"The management of this attraction, through vast experience, and ample capital, have been enabled to produce a positive novelty in the way of attractiveness and worth and best of all, the company comes to us bearing the very highest credentials of morality. Every objectionable unclean and unsightly feature has been eliminated, and this carnival, as we may appropriately name it, will be conducted on a higher plane than any heretofore presented in our community.

"It has been the aim of the management from the beginning to have only such features and attractions as will appeal to the higher senses and to the better element of people.

"The Hippodrome Company comes to us with the heartiest approval of press, clergy and public. Miniature palaces of amusement whose golden entrances are adorned with rare creations of the concert hall, plentifully supplied with beautiful electrical decorations, cosy, comfortable little up-to-date opera houses will spring up as if by magic, enchanting riding devices, death defying, breath catching free acts and a score or more of miniature amusement and sale booths will go up to make up the one grand collosal attraction. There will be amusement for the old folks, entertainment for the young folks, and fun for the children.

"The K. of C. are to be congratulated upon their effort in securing an attraction of this character and our citizens should not fail to take advantage of the opportunity presented to them the week of June 5 to enjoy a little high class, clean, moral and wholesome amusement and recreation."

The proceeds of the carnival will be devoted to the building fund of the Council. The lodge has had plans for the erection of its home for some time, and it is hoped to give the project a winning impetus through the big affair.

Little or Much.

Bobby—"Mamma, will you give me five cents if I'm good all day today?"

Mamma—"But don't you think it would be nicer to be good of your own accord?"

Bobby—"I guess not. The teacher said it was better to be good even for a little than to be good for nothing."

Plainfielders Admitted to the Bar.

Among those who have been admitted to the New Jersey Bar are J. P. W. Taylor and Robert Newton Crane, of this city, as attorneys, and Clarence E. Case, of Somerville, as a counselor. Mr. Taylor studied law in the offices of Isaac P. Runyon, Esq., at Park and North avenues.

Reception and Dance.

Local young men have arranged for a reception and dance to be given in the Camera Club rooms on Thursday night, March 26. The committee in charge of the arrangements consists of Clarence Young, Albert Harris and Raymond Guina.

Onions Got Drunk.

Mike Onions, which is really his name and not a joke, was arrested last night for drunkenness. Judge Runyon suspended sentence on him in the city court Saturday. The same piece of good fortune befell John Stanley, an Elizabethport man, arrested on a similar charge.

Miss Anna Miller, of New York, who has been visiting friends here for a few days, returned home yesterday.

PISTOL IN A CAR

Drawn by Riotous Negro, It Cleared a Crowded Conveyance.

WHITES WHIP BLACKS

Two of the Latter Arrested and Sent to Jail—One With the Gun Gets a Heavy Dose.

William Blanchard and William Accroo, both colored, were sent to jail by Judge Runyon Friday morning, the former for thirty days and the latter for fifty days, with a $50 fine in addition, for fighting on an eastbound main line trolley car between Richmond and Berckman streets shortly after 7 o'clock Thursday evening. Accroo drew a revolver in the row, and that incident figured when it came time for the magistrate to pass sentence. A third colored man, unidentified, who started the racket, escaped.

The colored trio were on the car when a number of Scott Press Works employees boarded it at Richmond street. The man who escaped, who was drunk and surly, had one arm thrust out over the back of the seat. He growled when some passenger brushed against his hand, and grew ugly when J. V. Coles, of Scotch Plains, one of the Scott men, protested against the oaths he was using. He cursed Coles, and struck at him. Coles ducked the blow and felled him and in a minute a general row was threatening.

The motorman, John Bailey, came into the car and said he would do all the hitting that was necessary. He ordered the negro to quiet down, and emphasized his command with an admonishing wave of his controller.

Accroo jumped to his feet and drew a revolver. He waved it threateningly, and held the crowd in the car at bay for a second or two. Then there was a rush, and a general fight was on. Accroo is said to have pulled the trigger of his revolver, but the weapon did not explode. Coles received another rush from the unidentified negro, and knocked him down again. With the appearance of the revolver there was a general movement to evacuate the car by all the passengers not mixed in the row. Henry Guerrier, of Scotch Plains, one of the men nearest the negroes, who was attacked with Coles, slipped one of the blacks on the head, and the trio ran from the car. The unidentified negro screwed up his courage when he reached the street, and started back for the car to trim Coles. Coles met him again, and the negro got the same kind of a bump as before. Then the trio took to their heels.

At about that time, Patrolman George Dobson, who had noticed the crowd around the car from the Richmond street, came running up. When he heard the story, he ran to head the negroes off, and intercepted them in a field near Third street. He managed to hold Blanchard and Accroo, but the third negro slipped away and made good his escape.

Blanchard and Accroo tried to lay all the blame on the missing colored man when they were arraigned before Judge Runyon Friday morning. They were the only witnesses who agreed that he at first tried to act as peacemaker, and only allowed himself to be drawn into the row in the heat of the second battle.

In passing sentence, Judge Runyon said:

"You men have come to a city where fighting on trolley cars seems to be a favorite amusement with men of rowdy temperament. They seem to have an idea that if there is one place where they can fight without fear of interference it is on a trolley car. It is necessary that something be done to discourage that notion. You have also come to a city where the colored people have evinced too ready a tendency to use revolvers. It is necessary that something be done to discourage that also."

Is Now a Member of the Firm.

Coffin & Co., the well-known bond firm having offices in New York, Boston and Philadelphia, announced yesterday that Walter S. Place, formerly of Grove street, and son of former Mayor Charles Place, has been admitted to full membership in the firm, his interest dating from January 1, last. Mr. Place will continue in charge of the Boston office.

Noted Boy Soloist Will Sing.

Rev. George A. Warner, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, announced at the morning service yesterday that on Saturday afternoon at the free Lenten recital, F. Clinton Lee, organist, will be assisted by Walter McGowen, the boy soprano soloist from Grace church, Orange. He has a voice of exceptional sweetness.

Father Miller, of St. Joseph's church, has issued tickets for the silver jubilee service to be held on Sunday, April 7. The pew-holders of the church will be given first choice of tickets and the seating capacity will not be exceeded.

SEWERS IN THE EAST END

Public Hearing Set For Proposed Ordinance Enlarging Sanitary System.

Hearing Also On Another Ordinance To Build Storm Sewer in the West End.

An ordinance providing for further extension to the sanitary sewer system was introduced at the adjourned meeting of Common Council, Thursday, by Mr. Ginna, chairman of the street committee, and after it was read for general information it was announced that a public hearing would be given at the regular April meeting, it being the intention of the Common Council to pass it.

The proposed extension of the sewers include the following streets, some of which are incorporated in previous ordinances, and which it is the intention of the Common Council to build. They are as follows:

Leland avenue, from Front street to Columbia avenue; Netherwood avenue, from Front street to North avenue; Jackson avenue, from Front street to North avenue; Johnson avenue, from Front street to North avenue; McKinley place; Hill street from North avenue to George street; outlet for Netherwood Park sewer; East Seventh street, from Leland avenue to a point 940 feet east thereof; Prospect avenue, from Park to Hillside avenues; Thorton avenue, from Park to Hillside avenues; Kensington avenue, from Watchung to Prospect avenue; Madison avenue; Union street, from Randolph road to a point 500 feet south of Arlington avenue; Madison avenue, from Stelle avenue to a point 400 feet south of Randolph road; Central avenue, from Randolph road to a point 1,200 feet south of Randolph road; Randolph road, from Central avenue to a point 280 feet west thereof; Fillmore avenue, through private property from Berkeley avenue to East Second street.

After a recess taken for the purpose of discussing with City Treasurer William F. Arnold matters pertaining to the tax budget to be presented at the April meeting, Mr. Ginna presented an ordinance for general information providing for the construction of a storm sewer in Plainfield avenue to Randolph road and the city line. It was accompanied with a map and a resolution was also adopted authorizing the publication of the legal notice providing for a public hearing at the regular meeting in April, when it is the intention of the Common Council to adopt the ordinance on first and second readings. Councilmen Buston, Sloak and Frank Randolph voted against the resolution, while Councilmen C. C. Randolph, Tyler, Ginna and President Daniel voted in the affirmative.

It was decided to hold another adjourned meeting on Tuesday night, April 19, when further action will be taken regarding the proposed tax budget and the sewer bond issue.

SEVEN MACHINES A MINUTE.

Singer Company to Employ 2,500 More Workmen.

With the completion of its six-story addition, the Singer Manufacturing Company, at Elizabeth, N. J., began today turning out sewing machines at the rate of 22,000 a week, eclipsing all records. The rate maintained at present is 18,000 each week, or an average of about five and one-half machines every minute of the working day.

The addition to the plant, which is only the first step in a series of extensive improvements, will necessitate the hiring of nearly 2,500 extra men, raising the total of employees in the Singer plant to about 11,000. The new sewing machinery has been installed, and it is expected that next week seven machines will be turned out every minute of the working day.

10,000 CHARTERS REVOKED.

Governor Acts Against Corporations That Failed to Pay Tax.

Trenton March 18.—Governor Stokes has issued his annual proclamation revoking the charters of companies incorporated under the laws of this State which have failed to pay their franchise taxes. This year there are about six-teen thousand such corporations.

Many of them have had existence only on paper, having failed to actually begin business. Others have wound up their careers in bankruptcy, while some have seemingly neglected to comply with the statute. No big concerns are represented on the list.

Shook Lafayette's Hand.

After being confined to his bed since last December, when he fell and sprained his ankle, Eldridge G. Worster, ninety-five years old, died Friday at his home in Beverly, N. J. Worster cast the first vote for Andrew Jackson for President, and had never missed voting for a President since that time. He was born in Boston and, with a number of other school-boys, saw Lafayette lay the corner-stone of the Bunker Hill monument in 1824. He also shook hands with the French patriot.

EULOGIZED ST. PATRICK

Ireland's Patron Saint the Subject of Sermon in Three Churches.

WAS A MAN OF GOD

Fathers Bogan and Miller Tell of His Greatness—Rev. Mr. Herring Also Discourses On Him.

In both St. Mary's and St. Joseph's churches, Sunday, special services on St. Patrick were preached. In the First Presbyterian church, also, the patron saint of Ireland was the subject of the discourse.

Father Bogan, at St. Mary's Sunday night, said in part:

"It is my privilege tonight to review with you a cherished memory, to live again in the days gone by when God came to Ireland through the mission of St. Patrick. Full well you know the story. That man could claim the honor of his birthplace that late in the fourth century the boy of noble birth was brought a captive to Erin; that on the bleak hillside of the North Counties he spent the six years of his captivity; that in the providence of God who orders all things well, his knowledge of the language and customs of the people grew with advancing years. That he escaped and returned to his parents' home, where a yearning for the eternal welfare of the people of his captivity prompted a ready acceptance of the vocation from on high to give his life to plant and foster the seeds of Christian truth among the pagan people whom he had already learned to love—but after years of study and with the sanction of the Sovereign Pontiff. He finally landed in Erin to begin the work of its conversion.

"In Ireland's history there was a chapter of death, and to this was added a chapter of exile. Five hundred Irish emigrants have turned with tear-dimmed eyes and aching hearts from the home of their fathers, and then God gave to the poor outcast exiles, whom tyranny first smote and then despised, a mission like the mission of the Apostles of Christ. They went, turning their backs forever on the land that held their fathers' graves, they sailed toward the sunset, away from the grasp of tyranny and the impotency of oppression, but they bore with them the Cross of Christ and, spreading in their thousand, through the solitudes of an unpeopled land, they built another hemisphere the altar of their God. And today beyond the western wave is rising, may, has risen—in a new land, and on a free soil a new, free Ireland. And it has been given to these Irish exiles to bear in their generous hands and in their joyful hearts the destiny of the American Church.

"Ireland may have had to stand aside and let the prizes of the world go by, but Ireland has still one jewel shining in her crown, that makes it crown of thorns though it be, the noblest crown that God and history have ever bound about a nation's brow—the jewel of unshaken fidelity to the one true Church of God. We are accused of making too much of our ancestors, they say we think too much of our past. Let them who have no past be satisfied with the present, as for myself I believe that I help to form the littlest thrush by no means the last link in that golden chain that binds the past and future in the distance until in flames of living fire it coils itself around the crozier of St. Patrick.

"Today from every altar in the land ascends a prophet's tribute to the throne of God. Today no omitted where their lot hath been cast, no matter what soil may be beneath their feet, or what sky may be above their heads, the Sons of St. Patrick assemble around one altar of the one true faith—assemble to pay the worship of faith which never grew cold, of souls which never forget the glories and the holy memories of the past—assemble to sing the song of praise and exultation, which rising at the first in fitful and uncertain strains from lips that tremble with very excess of love gathers strength and volume as it rolls along—till, in one great yearning act as loud and joy, it is wafted up to God—the sweet smelling incense of a faithful people's prayer.

"And now have you, my people, proved your faithfulness to the trust imposed upon you, how closely have you gathered about your mother, to show in these days of grace your loyal love for the old, old faith. Who your honor be said, you have given in numbers nearly over fourteen hundred during this week of preparation for this festal day by the worthy reception of the Sacrament, your candles approach of the faith transmitted through the centuries. God keep you true to your convictions. May the sense of its responsibility keep you ever true to the moral code that shall inevitably win for you the confidence you deserve. May you never be the credit to your faith, loyal to the memories of the past, a synonym of honor among your fellow-men, a God-fearing, God-serving people to the end."

At the First Presbyterian church, Rev. Charles F. Herring said in part:

"We are interested in the life of St. Patrick not simply because he is the patron saint of Ireland, but because he was one of the first missionaries of Christianity.

"Legends innumerable have gathered about his name, but there is enough real history, that we know, to make the study of his life worth while. He did towards the end of his life write his autobiography which he called his 'Confession.'

"His birthplace, some say, was Dumbarton, Scotland. Bury in his recent work on St. Patrick says he was born in the year 389 A. D., in Bonnaventa in southwest Britain. Let other continue to fight this battle. To Patrick these facts were of little moment.

"His Confession or autobiography was the description of his spiritual experiences. He had been captured and taken to Ireland as a slave when but sixteen years old; and it was during the six years of his slavery, which he spent in feeding pigs, that he says, 'the Lord opened the eyes of my belief.' He describes his rising from his bed 'before dawn, to pray in hail, rain or snow.'

"This experience of bondage affected his whole after life and he looked upon his conversion as the most important period of his life.

"God seemed to speak to him—and one voice said: 'Behold, thy ship is ready.' Patrick considered these words the voice of God, and he made his escape from North Ireland and travelled nearly two hundred miles to the mouth of the Vartry, near Wicklow. The ship was there and ready to sail. Repulsed at first, Patrick prayed—and then he heard a voice from the ship, 'Come quickly, for they are calling you.'

"Patrick then journeyed to France, Bourdeaux, Tours and finally back to his home. He did not long remain there, for, in a dream, he heard a cry of the Irish people, 'We pray thee, holy youth, to come and again walk with us as before.'

"'I was pierced to the heart,' he says, 'and could read no more' and thereupon awoke.' The result of the dream was that he went to Ireland and labored there the rest of his life.

"The snakes that he drove out of Ireland were probably the Druidical worshippers who worshipped the sun and whose symbol was a snake. The contest of Patrick with the Druids was very spectacular, according to the legends.

"When he landed in Ireland, he lighted the Paschal fire on the Hill of Slane. That same night King Lolgaire held a solemn festival in the palace of Tara. The custom was that no other fire should be kindled that night until the king's fire had been kindled. The Druids then made this remark, 'Unless this fire which you see be quenched this same night, it will never be quenched,' and so it was, for Druidism and its magic passed away and Christianity was established. To Patrick belongs the credit, not for first bringing Christianity to Ireland, but for extending Christianity and establishing it.

"This is what his Confession emphasizes—not his sins, nor the articles of faith, but the wonderful ways of God in dealing with his whole life.

"The true follower of St. Patrick is not the man who wears the green sprig in his coat in memory of the patron saint of Ireland, but the man who carries Patrick's spirit in his heart, for Patrick was a man of prayer.

"It is true that Patrick's Mountain, in the west of Ireland, was the mountain where God revealed Himself to Patrick.

"He was a man who was so energetic that Dr. Bury says of him: 'He was the greatest efficient of those who took part in spreading Christianity in the regions beyond.'

"St. Patrick was a man of whom it might be said:

"'His contemplation was above the earth.'

And fixed on spiritual object.'"

In St. Joseph's church, Sunday morning, Father Miller delivered a sermon appropriate to St. Patrick's day, dwelling on his life and achievements. In the evening, views of Ireland's best known historical parts were shown by moving pictures. The story of each place being told by a lecturer.

BIG REINDEER SKIPS
ABOUT THE COUNTRY.

Thought to Have Gotten Away From Washburn's Circus Winter Headquarters.

Freeholder George S. Bunting, of Piscataway town, while on his way to New Brunswick yesterday morning to get his mail came across a reindeer on the Stelton and New Market road. The deer looked excited and was traveling along the road at a fast gait.

The deer leaped fences and creeks without any trouble and several women who saw the animal were somewhat scared by the capers of the frisky animal.

No one seems to know who owns the deer, but Freeholder Bunting thinks it belong to Washburn's circus, which has winter quarters along the river road. No one attempted to stop the animal as it was going so fast that it was impossible for anyone to get within reach of it.

When Mr. Bunting arrived in town he wrote a postal to Mr. Washburn telling him that he thought one of his reindeers had broken loose.

First M. E.'s Annual.

The annual meeting for the election of trustees will be held at the First M. E. church Monday night, March 25. Those whose terms expire are John Cory, J. C. Peck and G. M. Rittenhouse and another trustee will be elected to fill the unexpired term of George Burgess, resigned.

INDIVIDUALISM CRIMINAL GRANDSON GETS $80,000

Selfishness of People Cause For More Murders Than in Other Countries.

A SERMON ON HATRED

Rev. L. R. Howard Gives Some Startling Figures—Social Rich As Criminal As Outcast Class.

At the communion service at Hope chapel, Sunday, Rev. L. R. Howard delivered the fifth of his series of sermons on "Things to Oppose." The special subject of this address was "Hatred and Murder," the text being John 3:15, "Whosoever hateth his brother is a murderer."

"If there is one thing more than another," Mr. Howard said, "which we ought to desire in connection with the communion service it is that it should touch and influence our every day life. It ought to make us strong to fight the good battles, and to oppose the evils that exist in society. Among the worst of these evils are hatred, and murder, and these it is peculiarly fitting to consider in this connection because they were in a sense the direct cause that our Lord's body was broken and his blood shed in the course of his loving service of mankind.

"The fact that murder is far from our intention," said Mr. Howard, does not show that we may not be in great danger from the spirit of murder, or from some share of responsibility for it. There were persons in Jerusalem who share to our minds the responsibility for the crucifixion of Jesus although they lifted not a finger against him. There are persons in Plainfield who are responsible for murder, although they have never shed a drop of human blood. They have failed to stand for anything but self and such failure it is which leads to the spirit of murder and its fruits."

Quoting some recent studies on the subject, Mr. Howard at this point declared that there are more men killed by other men in the United States than in any other of the great nations of the world. A man is twenty-five times more in danger of being murdered in this country than in Germany. Even Japan, to which we send missionaries, has a record of only little over one-tenth as many homicides per million people a year as our own country. What is worse, the homicides in America are on the increase and not especially among the foreign or the negro populations, but among the American born whites. Much attention has been assigned for this state of things is the excessive individualism of Americans, their lack of a social conscience, which, Mr. Howard said, were other ways of saying their extreme selfishness.

"Individualism is altogether too much," said Mr. Howard, "on the plan of 'every man for himself,' and no man for the community. There is no one section of the land which is especially at fault and no one limited social class. The mountains of Kentucky vie with the slums of Chicago, and New York's 'tenderloin' with the Nevada plateaus in this disreputable record. The rich and socially respectable furnish as large a proportion of the murder news as those who are social outcasts. Many a murderer has been brought up in a so-called Christian home and almost all of them have lived for years within the proper range of influence of the church.

"The conclusion is plain then," said Mr. Howard, "that it is a serious and solemn duty for Christians to condemn in every possible way all that sort of selfish action whose ultimate fruitage is hatred, all sorts of deeds in which full grown hate is forth death.'" "Why do we Christians count so little in this beautiful land?" asked Mr. Howard. "Because," he answered, "we have not stood true to the Christ who died to teach the lesson of love. Because we have nto yet resisted unto blood." In conclusion he urged those present to take the covenant anew tonight in the blood of Christ, the covenant to give self without reserve to unselfish service and to unhesitating opposition to all that makes for hatred between men."

Ceremony Performed at the Home of the Bride's Parents by Rev. C. L. Goodrich.

Miss Josie Green, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Green and Henry Jackson, of this city, were married Sunday at the home of the bride's parents, 216 Pond place. Rev. Chas. L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, performed the ceremony. The affair was a quiet one, being witnessed only by the relatives and a few intimate friends.

Miss Sadie Hoffman, of Clinton avenue, was the bridesmaid, and Lyman Gillson, of Lynn, Mass., the best man. The bride's gown was of white brocaded satin trimmed with chiffon and carried white roses. The bridesmaid wore a gown of old rose chiffon taffeta, with Persian trimming and carried pink roses.

An informal reception followed. The bride received a number of valuable gifts. After a honeymoon the couple will reside on Clinton avenue.

W. C. Stanbery Bequeathed His Estate to 12-Year-Old William R. Stanbery.

COPINGTON, TRUSTEE

Boy Will Not Come Into His Inheritance Until He is 25 Years of Age—Estate Will Then Be Worth $135,000.

Though it has not been admitted to probate, the will of William C. Stanbery, Scotch Plains' well known citizen who died at his home there last week, specifies that the entire estate shall eventually become the property of his grandson, William R. Stanbery. It is valued at about $80,000 and everything is to remain intact until the boy, who is now but twelve years old, reaches twenty-one. Lawyer W. R. Codington, of this city, has been made sole executor, and at that time, if he deems it best, the property can be sold and the estate settled. The boy is not to receive everything, however, until he is twenty-five years old. It is estimated that when he comes into the possession of the estate the property will be worth about $125,000.

A clause in the will specifies that all the servants who have been in Mr. Stanbery's household shall remain and that when the estate is settled up that some provision be made for them in a money way, the amount to depend upon the time they had been in his employ. Several had been with him for nearly twenty-five years. The grandson will continue to live at the house.

William R. Stanbery is the sole surviving member of the family that has been identified with Scotch Plains for nearly a hundred years, and provision has been made for the disposal of the estate in the event of his death but in what way has not been made public. W. C. Stanbery owned the greater part of the land at one time where Scotch Plains is located and the bulk of the fortune was made by sales of property. He was also engaged in farming and was very successful in this respect. His son, W. R. Stanbery, father of the legatee, died a year ago.

The funeral of the senior Stanbery was held at the late home on Mountain avenue, yesterday afternoon, and was in keeping with the quiet life of eighty-five years. The house in which he had been born and in which he had died was filled with friends and neighbors, many of them coming from distant points. The Asbestos Club, of Plainfield, of which he was a member, attended in a body.

The simple Episcopal service was used and it was conducted jointly by Rev. T. Moore-Smith, pastor of the Seventh Day Baptist church, and Rev. William True, rector of All Saints' Episcopal church, both of whom had been his warm, personal friends. Miss Etta Raybert, of this city, sang two of Mr. Stanbery's favorite hymns, "There is a Land of Pure Delight" and "There is a Blessed Land." The floral display was large and included several set pieces from friends.

Interment was made in the family plot in the Baptist cemetery, porters acting as pall bearers.

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE.

In honor of his birthday anniversary, about twenty-five friends from Rahway gave James Duncan, of West Third street, a pleasant surprise, Saturday night. He formerly resided in Rahway, and the friends together with Mrs. Duncan planned the event. Mr. Duncan was sent from the house on an errand and when he returned he found the house filled with guests including many Plainfielders.

Among those present were Former Councilman Lints and family, Former Fire Chief P. H. Ghring and family, Mrs. Varigault and daughters, of Rahway, and W. E. Smith, of New York. During the evening Mr. Lints presented Mr. Duncan with a fine rocking chair, on behalf of the guests. Mrs. Duncan was assisted in entertaining the company by Mrs. Ushler, of Rahway. Supper was served late and it was early yesterday morning when the guests departed for home.

In Mrs. Bottome's Memory.

A memorial service for Mrs. Margaret E. Bottome, who founded the International Order of the King's Daughters, will be held in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue church, on Saturday afternoon, March 23, at 3:30 o'clock. An address will be made by Mrs. Isabelle Davis, secretary of the National Council in New York, and by Mrs. John C. Bliss, wife of one of the former pastors of the Crescent Avenue church, who will speak of the beginning of the King's Daughters in Plainfield. Mrs. F. G. Mead and Mrs. A. Reed will speak of the growth and present work of the City Union of the King's Daughters in this city. A large attendance is expected.

100 Acres for $10,000.

Robert L. Pierce, Ducellen's real estate broker, has sold a one-hundred acre farm for Peter Benward to William G. Smith, of Long Island. The consideration was $10,000. . . . . .

MRS. BOSTWICK HERE; HER HUSBAND AT FEZ

WHILE DENTIST FIXES TEETH OF SULTAN'S WIVES, SHE VISITS PARENTS.

Mrs. Frank M. Bostwick, her son and a Spanish maid arrived in New York on the Carpathia, Saturday, from Mediterranean ports. She came at once to Plainfield to spend two months with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Eoff, of Crescent avenue. Mrs. Bostwick's husband, Dr. Bostwick, is an American dentist residing at Gibraltar and he recently was summoned by the Sultan of Morocco, Muley Abdul Aziz, to the royal residence at Fez, the capital of Morocco. Members of the royal household, it seemed, had need of Dr. Bostwick's professional services, and forthwith the dentist departed by steamship for Tangier.

Mrs. Bostwick wished to accompany her husband, naturally enough perhaps, as there are many beauteous damsels in the seraglios of Muley Aziz, but then the voracious bandit, Raisuli, is at large in the Moroccan foothills or thereabouts and the Government of Muley Aziz, it is said, would not guarantee personal safety to Europeans. Therefore, it was decided mutually that Mrs. Bostwick should undertake the journey without his wife. Raisuli is a dangerous bandit—he roams about with a retinue of wild followers who, it is understood, stop at nothing. The journey is regarded as practically safe when a party is formed which includes a woman in the caravan migh, of course, have complicated matters.

Dr. Bostwick travelled from Gibraltar to Tangier by steamship and then joined a caravan going across the desert to Fez, the capital, where are the royal palaces and the many comely members of the household whose dainty teeth need tinkering. In the caravan accompanying Dr. Bostwick will be seven men and seven mules, and for six days the caravan was to wind across the hot sands before it comes within sight of the white spires and gleaming minarets of Fez, the sturdy mules laden, perhaps, in part with souvenirs that the enterprising American dentist may be taking as gifts for the experient ladies of his royal majesty, the most fat famed sovereign, Muley Aziz. His stay will be made agreeable, dark-eyed maidens will wait upon him, bringing Oriental viands, rare tobaccos and many costly gifts. The wife of the Yankee dentist to royalty will be memorable; but let him beware, lest through some royal jealousy he be handed over to that wicked bandit, Raisuli.

In the meantime his wife will visit on this side, receiving letters, doubtless, from the dentist of the Emperior of Morocco, describing, perhaps, the manifld delights of Fez, royal city and residence of Muley Abdul Aziz.

THE ONLY COLORED LIEUTENANT-COLONEL.

He Is George A. Sears, and Lives in Elizabeth.

In Elizabeth lives the only negro who ever held a field officer's commission in a State National Guard. This man is Lieutenant Colonel Geo. A. Sears, who, on November 23, 1872, appointed to that position in the Eighth Regiment, N. G. N. J, (colored), by Governor Joel B. Parker. This regiment had been organized about two years previously by the pick up of companies from Elizabeth, Jersey City, Newark, Camden, New Brunswick, Trenton and Rahway. Colonel Sears was promoted from the captaincy of Co. A, of Elizabeth. He remained lieutenant-colonel of the regiment until it was disbanded by the order of Governor Beadle some years later.

Col. Sears is a veteran of the Civil War, having served as a private in Company D, Eleventh U. S. Colored Heavy Artillery, from '63 to '65. He saw service with that regiment both in Louisiana and Texas.

Upon his return to Elizabeth he was employed as mason's helper under Joseph Davis, a mason and builder who did the masonry work on the present City Hall. He afterward went into the express business in Newark and later teh hack business. He returned to Elizabeth and in the late sixties opened a saloon at Martin and Division streets. He later was employed by the Elizabethport Cordage Company.

Sears was thrifty. He saved some money and this, with his pension from the government, enabled him to give up work recently. He now lives party to himself in Public lane—he and his wife having separated by mutual consent several years ago. Colonel Sears is a native of Elizabeth. He is 69 years old. Besides a wife the Colonel has three children living—a son and a daughter in New York, and a daughter, Mrs. Milton Kane, of Elizabeth.

Medals For Jerseyites.

The first shipments of medals awarded by the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission since the formation of the commission two years ago were made yesterday. In all sixty-three medals were shipped. There are eleven for New Jersey.

SUES FOR 20 MILLIONS

WANTS SURPLUS FUNDS

Complainants Lost Suit In England and Jersey Chancery Court Will Decide Matter Of Jurisdiction.

Paul Charles William Sohege, of Paris, the third husband of the late Isabella Eugenie Sohege, whose first husband was Isaac Merritt Singer, the founder of the Singer Sewing Machine Company, is complainant in a suit, the jurisdiction of which was argued in Newark yesterday before Vice Chancellor Pitney.

Joseph Ignatius Ryan, of Jersey City, is the co-complainant. Among the defendants named in the papers is Princess de Polignac, a daughter of Duc de Composelite, of Belgium, who was the second husband of Singer's widow. The others named as defendants are the children and grandchildren of Mrs. Singer, the Singer Manufacturing Company, Adam M. Singer, Washington M. Singer and Louis Rendell. The last three named are the trustees of the estate.

The suit is brought to recover from the trustees the major portion of $20,000,000 which Sohege alleges to be entitled to under the will of his wife. He alleges in his suit that the amount named is a surplus that had accrued from the income of the estate, whereas the trustees have been handling it as part of the principal of the estate.

The case has been tried in England and a decision by the highest court there was against Sohege. Ryan figures as a co-complainant because he alleges that Sohege has assigned a one-fifth interest in his claim to him.

Counsel for the defendants assert that none of the interest parties are residents of this country and that the courts of New Jersey have no jurisdiction.

PURDY—HOPPER.

Former Pastor of Marconaker to Wed.

Announcement is made of the approaching marriage of Rev. Marinus Seymour Purdy, pastor of the Reformed church at Athens, near Passaic, and Miss Laura Kathryn Hopper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Ferris Hopper, of Hackensack. The event will be celebrated Wednesday evening, April 10, at 8:30 o'clock in the First Reformed church, Hackensack.

Mr. Purdy, who was graduated from the Theological Seminary, New Brunswick, is well known here, where he has many friends. He was pastor of Marconaker chapel for two years, while preparing for the ministry and on several occasions he occupied the pulpit at Trinity Reformed church, where his preaching was greatly enjoyed.

Clifton Building Sold.

Charles B. Clifton has sold his property at Park avenue and West Fourth street, to L. W. Weiss, of Dunkirk, N. Y., the latter making the purchase for speculative purposes. The deal was made by John P. Emmons, acting for Mr. Clifton. Mr. Weiss is a brother-in-law of Mrs. M. Weinberger, of Sandford avenue. The building, a brick structure, contains a number of flats and several stores. The consideration is not known, but Mr. Clifton said it at $30,000 and it is understood that the property sold for almost that figure. Mr. Clifton has gradually been disposing of his Plainfield property, it being his intention to live in the South the greater part of the year.

Lenten Recital.

The following program will be given at the First Baptist church, tomorrow evening at 7:45 o'clock. No cards of admission will be required and the public is invited. Adante in A Flat, Beethoven, string quartette; Messe Solennelle, Credo, Sanctus, Agnus Dei, Gounod; Meditation, Bach-Gounod, violin, harp and organ; contralto solo, Inflammatus, Dvorak; a—Aria, Bach; b—Adagio, Bohemian Melody, string quartette: The Seven Last Words, Dubois.

Conway Settled Claim.

The claim of Mrs. Caroline Ohl against Edward Conway, owner of the trained mule troupe, for damages alleged to have been done to the Ohl barn, and to cover which Mrs. Ohl secured an attachment against the mules, has been amicably settled out of court.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pomeroy, of Park place, who have been spending some time at Rochester, N. Y., have returned to Plainfield. They are planning to reside at Rochester during April and May and will probably spend the rest of the summer here.

MEMORIAL DAY PLANS OF LOCAL G.A.R. POST

EXERCISES IN REFORM HALL AND DECORATIONS OF GRAVES AS USUAL.

Past Commander I. L. McVoy, of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., who is chairman of the Memorial Detail, will call a meeting for Saturday night, when matters pertaining to the observance of Memorial Day will be taken up. The public exercises will be held at Reform Hall, as usual, and there will be the customary visitation to the cemeteries to decorate the graves of soldiers.

Because the veterans are getting well along in years many of them believe that the parading should be limited to a shorter line of march and that younger persons should take up the task of decorating the graves.

Co. K will be invited this year, as usual, to assist in the observance of the day and will no doubt accept. The committee will arrange an attractive programme for the public exercises and some well-known speaker will be engaged. The officers of the post will hold their exercises, which includes the reading of Lincoln's address at Gettysburg and the general order issued by the National Commander of the G. A. R., and the decoration of the graves in memory of the unknown soldiers who died in the Civil War. There will also be a programme of instrumental and vocal music, a feature being a chorus of school children.

NEWARK LAWYER IS MADE VICE-CHANCELLOR.

James E. Howell Named by Chancellor to Succeed the Venerable Mr. Pitney.

Chancellor Magie, of New Jersey, appointed yesterday James E. Howell, of Newark, Vice-Chancellor, to succeed the venerable Vice-Chancellor Henry C. Pitney, who has resigned and will retire to private life next April 9.

Mr. Howell has been practising law in Newark since 1876, and since 1876 has been a member of the firm of Cault & Howell, one of the best-known legal co-partnerships of the State.

Mr. Howell was born in Wantage township, Sussex county, June 25, 1848. He graduated from the University of Michigan and in the office of Joseph Cault, with whom he later became associated. He was admitted to the bar in 1872. Mr. Howell has practised extensively in the Court of Equity and his appointment was received with satisfaction by the lawyers of the State.

Mr. Howell is a trustee of the Newark Public Library and president of the commission that built the new $2,500,000 City Hall for Newark.

A Dangerous Grass Fire.

A still alarm was received at fire headquarters at noon today for a grass blaze on property at Waynewood place and West Front street. No 3 hose was sent out from the West End house but neighbors had extinguished the flames before their arrival. It was in a very dangerous place and would undoubtedly have set fire to a barn but for the intervention. A still alarm was telephoned in by Counsellor W. S. Angleman, who owns the property threatened.

Dr. Schenck's Plans.

Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, who is slowly convalescing from an attack of paralysis, plans to spend a few weeks at a sanitarium, believing that the change will be beneficial. He will either go to Galen Hall, Atlantic City, or Clifton Springs, N. Y., and will likely leave here some time next week.

Discussed Library Appropriation.

Members of the Board of Governors of the Public Library and the finance committee of the Common Council held a conference in Mayor Fisk's office, yesterday, relative to the appropriation for the library the coming year. It has not been stated as to whether the amount would be increased or remain the same as last year.

Strong Reappointment.

Governor Stokes sent to the State Senate yesterday afternoon the nomination of Theodore Strong, of Middlesex county, to succeed himself as a member of the State Board of Assessors. Under Senatorial courtesy, the appointee being a former Senator, the nomination was immediately confirmed by a unanimous vote.

Arwitt Sammark at the Hospital.

Arwitt Sammark, of 316 Lee place, employed as a moulder at the Pond Machine Tool Works, was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital, last night, suffering from severe burns about the foot. He was assisting in the making of a casting, when some of the melted iron run over the foot.

—Strictly fresh vegetables and fancy fruits are always to be had at Neuman Brothers'. Their assortment is the largest to be found in the city.

ABANDONED WHEEL HE STOLE FROM CHILDREN

QUEER PRANK OF AN UNIDENTIFIED MAN WITH ADELBERG'S WHEEL.

As the two young children of Hymen Adelberg were riding his bicycle up and down the street before the Credit Clothing Company's place, on East Front street, where Mr. Adelberg is manager, early last night, a strange man asked them for a ride. They allowed him to mount the wheel and he rode off. He did not come back.

Mr. Adelberg waited for a time after the children told him of the occurrence, and then he reported the matter to the police. The latter sent out a general alarm for the supposed thief. About two hours later Patrolman Florence McCarthy found a bicycle lying at the curb at Central avenue and Second street, and brought it to the station house. Mr. Adelberg identified it as his. How the man came to abandon the bicycle where he did the police are trying to figure out. It is assumed he was tipsy and took the wheel in repsonse to a drunken notion.

JERSEY SOLONS DINE IN HONOR OF STOKES.

Complimentary Dinner to Governor Last Night by Senator Bloomfield Minch.

Political differences of all kinds were forgotten last evening when the members of the New Jersey State Senate gathered at the Bellevue-Stratford in Philadelphia with United States Senator John Kean and Frank O. Briggs and Speaker Edgar B. Lethbridge, of the House, as the guests of President Bloomfield H. Minch, of the Senate, at a dinner complimentary to Governor Edward C. Stokes.

It was a veritable love feast without a discordant note of any kind. Mr. Lethbridge was toastmaster, and toasts were responded to by Governor Stokes, United States Senators Kean and Briggs, State Senators Everett Colby, William J. Bradley and Edward S. Lee.

The others present were Ernest R. Ackerman, J. Boyd Avis, Oliver Brown, Johnson Cornish, Joseph Frelinghuysen, William C. Gebhardt, Robert E. Hand, Thomas J. Hillery, John Hinchcliffe, Barton B. Hutchinson, James Minturn, William Plummer, Jr., Jacob Price, B. Frank Rock, Samuel K. Robbins, George L. Shinn, George Silzer, Edmund L. Wakelee, Abram Klenert, Alfred N. Barber, James W. Trenchard, William H. Murphy, Howard L. Tyler and Secretary to the Governor Edward Gray.

Immediately after the dinner and the responses to the toasts the party left for Trenton on the midnight train, and the Senate of the Capitol early this morning all ready for the consideration of affairs of State.

NEVIN—McDUFFEE.

Naval Lieut. Takes Descendant of Charlesmagne for His Bride.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Florence Mead McDuffee, of Boston, to John Denison Nevin, lieutenant, U. S. Marine Corps, which took place quietly in New York on Wednesday, March 20. Only the parents of the bride, Miss Alice McDuffe, and Effingham Pinto, the latter of this city, were present. The ceremony took place sooner than expected because of Mr. Nevin being ordered to the Far East.

The couple is well known here, having visited Mrs. William A. Pinto frequently. Mrs. Nevin comes of a famous line of ancestors, including Alfred the Great, Charlesmagne and the Thanes of Stae. Her father is of the well known firm of Jones, McStratton & Stratton. Mr. Nevin's father is the oldest living Admiral of the U. S. Navy and is a cousin of Ethelbert Nevin, the composer. He is a graduate of Yale, Class '04, Sheffield.

Will Start Whist Tournament.

Plainfield Council, No. 77, Royal Arcanum, will hold a whist tournament at the meeting to be held tomorrow night, after the initiation. About twenty members have signified their intention to enter a duplicate whist tournament which will be commenced at that time. A euchro tournament will also be started at the same time and in addition there will be a pool match, checkers and dominoes.

Engagement Announced.

Captain and Mrs. B. A. Cole, of New Market, announce the engagement of the former's sister, Miss Kate May Cole, formerly of Bayonne, and Frank Broshart, of Dunellen. The wedding will take place shortly. Mr. Broshart is a musician well known in this section.

Frank E. Drake, of Watertown, Conn., is spending a week at the home of his uncle, Charles Prentiss, of Clinton avenue.

P. P. A. FOR FAIRNESS

Executive Committee Decides P. S. C. Is Not to Be Harassed.

LOOKS INTO COMPLAINTS

Electrician Will See Whether Unsatisfactory Bills Do Not Come From Defective Wiring In Houses.

The executive committee of the Plainfield Protective Association held an enthusiastic meeting at the Casino last night, eight members attending. The session was quite long, and plans for future activities were discussed. Preliminary reports of statements to be made at the annual meeting were received, and the activities of the association were reviewed with satisfaction.

A number of communications were received from people who are dissatisfied with the bills they have been receiving for electric lighting. Mayor Charles J. Fisk, who is a member of the committee, suggested that defective wiring might be at the bottom of the trouble. A. H. Atterbury moved that an electrician be hired to examine the wiring in the houses from where the complaints came. The committee agreed that the association was not in existence to harass the Public Service Corporation, but merely to see that it gave the consumer a square deal. It was recognized that defective wiring, with its consequent leakage, was probably at the bottom of many complaints, so it was decided to have the electrician make his examination before the complaints are acted upon.

The annual meeting of the association will be held on April 15, at the Casino. At that time full reports of the year will be made and officers will be elected. The following nominating committee was named last night: H. W. Beebe, S. E. John-Mc-Cutchen, F. C. Kinney, F. E. Kinsman and George T. Rogers.

TOURNEY LEADERS GET THREE MORE GAMES

MAKE CLEAN SWEEP OF SERIES WITH VAN EMBURGH AND BLATZ.

Gaddis and Dilks, the leaders in the bowling tourney at McLaughlin's, added three more games to their list last night, by taking that many from VanEmburgh and Blatz. The winners put up a bunch of good scores and had plenty of pins to spare in two of the games. Dilks came to the front with an average of 201.1, his figures being 200, 213 and 191. Van Emburgh failed to find the grove in his first game and finished with 120, but surprised himself in the next by getting 234, the highest for the night.

In other tourney games, Leland and Thompson took two from Nash and Skelly and Radin and Ackor turned the same kind of a trick on Mullen and Conklin. In their first try, Mullen and Conklin lost out through the latter missing a one pin spare in the last frame, the first break he made. Leland and Thompson got high team score for the night, a 412, one getting 222 and the other 190.

Gaddis and Dilks are now six games ahead of their nearest opponents, Kiely and Runyon. The latter will roll Meyer and Mack on Friday night and next Tuesday night they meet Woolston and Cunningham, the last games they are scheduled for outside of a few that have been postponed.

Last night's scores:

VanEmburgh	120	234	147
Blatz	180	147	149
	300	381	296
vs.
Gaddis	170	174	191

APPROPRIATE MONEY FOR THE NEW SCHOOL

BOARD OF SCHOOL ESTIMATE SET $90,000 ASIDE YESTERDAY.

The Board of School Estimate met yesterday afternoon in the mayor's office and appropriated $90,000 for the erection of the proposed new school at Essex street and Darrow avenue. The school is to be built of brick, and on lines of complete fireproofing. It will have twelve rooms and an assembly room.

Certificates of the appropriation will be sent to the school board and the Common Council, the budget will not be available until May, and so nothing will be done in respect of the new school until then. Work on the structure will begin early in the summer.

There is great need for the new school. The Irving School is so overcrowded that several classes are on half time and the Bryant School, also, is pinched for room. It is estimated that the new school will relieve the pressure all over the city.

WOMEN EARN MONEY FOR CHRISTIAN WORK.

Much Amusement When Contributors Tell How They Made a Dollar.

The Ladies' Christian Work Society, of Trinity Reformed church, held an informal social in the lecture room, yesterday afternoon, the object being for the members to contribute a dollar each to the society's treasury and tell how they earned it. In this way $27 was received. There were $22 given by those present and $5 sent in by members who could not attend. The various ways explained as to how the dollars were earned afforded much amusement. Some of the women pressed their husband's trousers, while other lined their coats, and still others said that they had the dollar for the society because they had not spent it for other things.

Mrs. Edward T. VanWinkle presided in the absence af the president, Mrs. Elizabeth A. Parse, and it was she who proposed a novel way to raise money for the society. The scheme she announced was called "A Mile of Pennies," each member pledging to contribute as many pennies toward the mile as possible, and to give at least sixteen pennies a month. If the members can get others to help them so much the better. The scheme was received with much enthusiasm and will be put in effect April 1. The society hopes in this way to raise at least $200. After the meeting yesterday a social hour was enjoyed and refreshments were served, Mrs. Edward T. VanWinkle, Mrs. Virginia Chickering and Mrs. Edward Cooley being in charge.

HOPE C. E. ELECTION.

Reports for the Year Read at Annual Meeting Last Night.

The Hope chapel Christian Endeavor Society held its annual meeting at the home of Rev. L. R. Howard, last night, and elected the following officers: President, Frank Rimmer; vice-president, Hugh Sweney; financial secretary, Miss Bertha Jones; corresponding secretary, Miss Elsie Rimmer; treasurer, Morris Hunter; chairman of prayer meeting committee, Walter Firsbrook; chairman social committee, Miss Edna Eckert; chairman missionary committee, Donald Mortimer; chairman flower committee, Miss Eunice Eckert.

Reports were read that showed the society had enjoyed a good year and that the prospects for the ensuing twelve months are exceptionally bright. The usual donations were made for church work and the society has a balance on hand. Following the business session the members enjoyed games and an informal programme of music.

Membership Committee Dinner.

The members of the committee in charge of the A. M. E. church membership campaign for membership increase will hold a dinner in the small hall of the association next Monday night. The affair is planned to draw all the members together, and the rest of the evening following the dinner will be devoted to a discussion of plans for the prosecution of the campaign. The dinner will be served by the Women's Auxiliary.

Invited to Dinner.

S. S. Swackhamer hac been invited to attend a Jefferson dinner to be held by the Young Men's Democratic Club of New Brunswick on April 2, as the guest of the club. Mr. Swackhamer expects to attend. James E. Martine will be one of the speakers.

Lecture On Life Saving.

An illustrated lecture on marine wrecking and the work of the lifesavers will be given for the members of the Boys' Department of the Y. M. C. A. and their parents on April 2.

STANBERY WILL FILED DISPOSES OF $80,000

IF GRANDSON DIES BEFORE 21 DEAD SON'S PARENTS-IN LAW INHERIT.

William R. Codington, executor for the estate of William C. Stanbery, offered the will of the latter for probate in the office of Surrogate Parrott, Elizabeth, late yesterday afternoon. The value of the estate is not given, but it is estimated to be about $80,000.

The will first provides that all debts be paid and then the sum of $2,000 be bequeathed to Jane Ryan, who was a servant in the Stanbery household for many years, and $250 is given to Elias Darby, who was also employed by Mr. Stanbery.

The most important provision of the will is that William F. Stanbery, grandson of the deceased, is to have the use and income of the estate until he becomes twenty-one years of age and at that time the entire estate is to come into his possession. In case he should die without issue prior to or after attaining his majority, the estate goes to William R Codington, as trustee, for the use and benefit of Samuel B. Field, his wife and children.

Mr. and Mrs. Field were the parents of Mrs. William R. Stanbery, whose husband was the only son of William C. Stanbery. Since the death of the parents and the grandparent, William F. Stanbery has made his home with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Field. The use and income from the estate will be used for the boy's education. He is now twelve years of age.

ANDREW COX'S FUNERAL.

Service Conducted in Faith Chapel Attended by Large Gathering.

In the presence of a gathering of relatives and friends that filled Faith chapel, the funeral of Andrew Cox, who died at his home on East Third street, Sunday morning, was held last night. The members of the Bricklayers' Union and Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., to which he belonged, attended in a body.

Rev. A. C. McCrea, pastor of the First M. E. church, was in charge of the service and the customary G. A. R. exercises were also conducted, led by Commander Berg and Chaplain Nathan Pennington. Two selections, "Abide With Me" and "Some Day We'll Understand," were sung by E. E. Runyon.

The floral tributes were numerous and the handsome set pieces from the Bricklayers' Union, Winfield Scott Post, the Women's Relief Corps and the W. C. T. U.

Interment was made this morning at Millstone, the pall bearers being I. L. McVoy, E. E. Townley, H. C. Smith, S. B. Struthers, Edward Vanderweg and Captain William Hand, all members of Winfield Scott Post.

Dwight—Brush.

Invitations have been issued by the Rev. Alfred H. Brush, of New Utrecht, L. I., for the marriage of his daughter, Miss Margaret Dexter Brush, to Ellsworth E. Dwight, of New York city, in the South Presbyterian church, Morristown, at half-past twelve o'clock on Thursday, April 4. Miss Brush has made her home with her aunt, Mrs. Morris Sutphen, of Morristown, since the death of her mother. She has relatives in this city. Mr. Dwight is a son of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Dwight, of No. 1 Park, New York, who resided in this city for a number of years, having their home on Rockview avenue.

Missionary Society Elects.

The Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the First M. E. church, held its annual meeting in Vincent chapel, yesterday afternoon, and elected these officers: President, Mrs. Mary Winter; first vice-president, Mrs. D. E. Davis; second vice-president, Mrs. Nelson T. Hull; third vice-president, Mrs. A. C. McCrea; secretary, Miss M. B. Sharp; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Maurice McGrath; treasurer, Miss Susie E. Jackson. The reports showed a membership of thirty-two and that during the year $99 was raised for foreign missions, which includes the support of a Bible reader.

All-Day Sewing Meeting.

The Women's Home Missionary Society, of the First Baptist church, held an all-day sewing meeting in the lecture room of the church, yesterday, when several rugs and a quilt were completed. It will not be decided until August just where these things will be sent. At noon luncheon was served under the direction of Mrs. George H. Batchelor and Mrs. S. W. Dunning. Mrs. Harold Serrell and Mrs. J. B. Probasco comprised the committee in charge of the work.

Sesame Club Meeting.

The next meeting of the Sesame Club will be held tomorrow morning at the residence of Mrs. J. H. Dosne, 425 East Seventh street.

FOR STREETS $36,000

Fire Department Wants $29,000; An Increase of $4,000—Police Department Seeks the Same Increase.

While the finance committee of the Common Council has not yet completed its labors of making of the annual tax budget which is to be presented at the April meeting on Monday night, enough is known concerning it to show that there will be a substantial increase in the amount of money to be raised this year. Taking three of the most important items—police, fire and streets, it is estimated that the total amounts desired for these departments alone will mean an increase of 15 2-3 per cent. over last year.

Last year the police department was given $22,000 and this year it wants $26,000, an increase of $4,000. This is due to the fact that a 10 per cent. increase was given to the men in the department and four new men have been added to the force. The balance is needed for improvements.

The fire department wants an increase of $4,000 over last year, when it received $25,000. This department also gave the 10 per cent. increase in wages to the firemen and improvements are planned. The poor department received $4,500 last year and it is thought that the same appropriation will be made this year. The street department received $31,000 last year and this year it wants $36,000, an increase of $5,000. It is hoped to extend the macadam this year and the street committee has also other improvements in mind. If the permanent brick pavement for the business section of the city is undertaken that cost will be provided for through the issuance of street improvement bonds. These figures quoted do not include appropriations for the library, Board of Health, Muhlenberg Hospital and to meet the notes issued by the city, as well as the expenses for street lighting, which is sure to be considerable as many additional lights are needed.

The committee will probably have another meeting or two before Monday night before completing the budget. It is the desire of the committee as well as the entire Common Council to keep the expenses down and the tax rate as near the present figures as possible. It is not expected that the increased valuations in the city will come anywhere near off-setting the increased amounts asked for. Of course, under the new assessment law there has been an increase in valuations of certain properties, but as Mayor C. J. Fisk explained in his annual message the system is not what it should be and is far from being satisfactory.

CHAMPION BAD BOY.

14-year-old Clubs Mother, Holds Up and Robs Brother.

The champion bad boy of Westfield is George Boffer, 14 years old, son of Charles Boffer, of Clark street. Yesterday morning he cut his mother over the eye with a club, and shortly afterward held up 7-year-old Kenneth Keegan, grandson of Deputy Sheriff John M. Marsh, and robbed him of 25 cents.

He was taken to the police station and his father was notified. Mr. Boffer said that the lad was incorrigible and that he would put him in the care of a relative in New York who would endeavor to discipline the wickedness out of him.

Col. John Dietrich Stricken.

Col. John Dietrich, of Arlington avenue, one of the best known Friends in the country, being identified with one of the oldest families, suffered a paralytic stroke on Monday, his entire left side being affected. He is confined to his bed and is under the care of Dr. Carman. Today he is reported as being slightly improved. Col. Dietrich is eighty-six years old and owing to his advance age his chances for recovery are not so favorable.

Dan S. Roberts Condition.

The condition of former Councilman Dan S. Roberts, who has been seriously ill for the past two weeks, continues to remain the same. Previous to the time the present trouble became manifest, he was possessed of a strong constitution despite his years and it has enabled him to withstand the inroads of the malady.

The Home Mission Study Class of the *Christian church will meet to*night. Tomorrow night the young men of the church will meet for the formation of a club.

PRINCETON DEBATERS WIN FROM OTHER COLLEGES.

Downs Harvard in Affirmative and Yale in Negative of Same Question.

Princeton, March 25.—"Resolved, That the present distribution of power between the Federal and State governments is not adapted to modern conditions and calls for readjustment in the direction of further centralization," was the question for debate Friday night between Princeton and Harvard.

Princeton, in the affirmative, won a decisive victory. Her debaters proved the need of centralization by showing that the present distribution does not admit of proper control in three vital issues, child labor, divorce and productive monopolies. Harvard, in the negative, devoted her time to breaking down the three contentions and endeavoring to show that the Federal Government, at present, has all the power it needs.

R. J. Sterrit, 1907, of Philadelphia, opened for Princeton, showing how State laws are inadequate to prevent child labor as long as the laws of an adjacent State are more lax than her own. In the past, the present restriction has coped with new conditions, and that its principle is sound.

M. H. Fry, 1909, then continued Princeton's argument, showing how, under the present distribution, a man can have a wife in several States at the same time, provided he has divorced each in a separate State, as one State does not always recognize the divorce laws of another. S. M. Nussbaum, 1908, insisted, for Harvard, that social conditions are different in different States, and, therefore, the divorce laws should be different. R. S. Sidebotham, 1907, Princeton, showed that States have only inadequate power over productive monopolies, which must make use of interstate commerce, which is under Federal control. The rebuttal speeches were strong and well delivered. The judges were Professor J. B. Clark, of Columbia University; Rollo Ogden, of New York, and Professor Fred M. Troxell, of the University of Michigan, and the decision was unanimous.

News has just reached the college that Princeton won last night in the debate with Yale on the same subject, which was held on Yale field, and the street is full of cheering students.

Causes of Consumption.

Jersey City, March 25.—R. Gordon K. Dickinson, former president of the Jersey City Health Board, in an address, yesterday, before the Young Men's Club of the fashionable St. Mark's P. E. church, declared that consumption comes from two cases, germs and whiskey bills and booze. He said: "The Polish people and the Jewish people, despite their methods of living, are seldom troubled with consumption, because they are not a drinking race. On the other hand, consumption is prevalent among the Irish."

Mrs. Whitney France, of South avenue, who has been seriously ill, is greatly improved and her recovery is assured.

Father Time Tests All Things

Hallet & Davis Pianos Are Time Tried.

It isn't worth while for you to experiment with unknown makes of pianos and unknown piano quality. Many persons have found it not only vexatious, but costly as well. There is no need or excuse for so doing—not even from a price stand-point. Hallet & Davis Pianos passed the experimental stage many years ago and they have been time tried and tested. This assurance of good quality is fully supplemented in the preference given the Hallet & Davis by many of the greatest living musicians for public and private use.

QUALITY AND PRICE.

Please remember that the "quality" of your piano will be remembered long after the price is forgotten.

The one price at which Hallet & Davis Pianos are sold is lower, quality considered, than can be secured elsewhere. The popular demand making this possible.

Great bargains now in used pianos.

Many old time makes included.

CHARACTER IN THE TONGUE.

Germany's Way of Sizing People Up Available Chiefly to Doctors.

Germany has taken up the pastime of reading character and telling fortunes by the tongue. Somebody has been making a study of the organ of speech and has discovered that it is full of indications.

A long tongue is said to denote openness of character, it suggests generosity and free handedness. Its possessor makes friends and enemies easily, but doesn't save money.

When the tongue is long and thick the openness degenerates into a tendency to gossip and scandal. The future of the owner is beset with troubles of his own making. It also indicates flightiness and inconstancy.

Short tongues indicate secretiveness and dissimulation. Their owners make good detectives and attorneys.

The owner may acquire some money by economy and guile, but has not largeness of spirit to make a great fortune. Thin pointed tongues are found in diffident people who do not succeed in life.

Short and broad ones accompany craft and falsehood; the person who has such a tongue is compelled by it to deceive and betray, whatever effort he may make to keep straight.

The vibrant, quavering tongue denotes the artistic temperament. Brilliant carmine hue is a sign of long life, pale pink tongue denotes weakness of character and delicacy of constitution.

"If it's all true," says a German newspaper, "it is lucky that it is only at the doctor and not at our friends that we stick out our tongues."

TWO TYPES OF LAWYERS.

But the Late Judge Thayer Was of a Different Kind.

A Philadelphian was praising for his learning and uprightness the late Judge M. Russell Thayer

He quoted the moving passage from Judge Thayer's will:

"Owing to the fact that almost my entire life has been passed in the public service of the United States and of the state of Pennsylvania, I have but a small estate to leave to my dear children and wife.'

"Those are different words," he said, "from the kind we have been hearing lately. It seems odd to us to think of a public servant regarding his post as anything but a plum tree. We have here another proof that a man really honorable can never become rich.

"Judge Thayer was an honorable man. First as a lawyer, afterwards as a judge, he treated all with whom he had dealings with the greatest fairness. Once, years ago, after he had served me well in a difficult case, I remonstrated with him about the smallness of his fee.

"'Well,' he said, smiling, and smelling the flower in his buttonhole, 'I, you know, am not that type of lawyer whose client once said:

"'I never was entirely ruined but twice. Once when I lost a lawsuit and once when I gained one.'"

Ade's Autobiography.

Met Henry W. Savage the other day, and accumulated the following quite characteristic story of George Ade. As of course you know, Mr. Savage produced "The Sultan of Sulu," "Peggy from Paris" and other comic operas of which Mr. Ade's prolific pen was the proud progenitor, and he was urging the Hoosier librettist to write another musical comedy for the Savage office.

"Can't do it, governor," cried Mr. Ade, shaking his head, gloomily; "can't do it; I can't write lyrics to save my immortal soul."

"You can't write lyrics?" echoed the tall manager. "Well I'd like to know what's the matter with 'R-em-o-r-s-e-'"

"Great Sulu's Sultan!" wailed Ade, grimly; "R-e-m-o-r-s-e wasn't a lyric; it was autobiography."

Repose.

The most beautiful thing about the New York clubman is his repose. If you want to be a successful clubman cultivate repose. Eat, drink, think and dream repose. Never hurry. Never get excited. Talk deliberately and mysteriously. Let your eyes droop. Never appear interested in anything. Make believe you have seen whatever of life's fit or unfit to print and are looking only for rest. Let nothing surprise you. Appear bored. Avoid introductions. Be "at home" to nobody. Keep your hat on. Never shake hands.—New York Press.

Weaving Done by Nature.

As a weaver nature produces fine work. Certain tree barks and leaves furnish excellent cloth, as, for instance, the famous tapa cloth used in the South Sea Islands. Nature is a glassmaker, too, according to the Indian Review. By discharging her lightning into beds of quartz sand she forms exquisite little pipes of glass. She makes valuable ropes of various kinds in the shape of tropical vines and creepers.

Busy Meanwhile.

"Lost your temper, eh?" said the father, sternly. "Didn't I tell you if any of the other boys ever said anything to make you angry, you should count 50 before you replied?"

"Yes, pa," replied the husky boy. "But I didn't get time to count 50. Before I counted 20 the other feller yelled 'Enough.'"—Philadelphia Press.

Practical.

"What did she say when she heard he was dead in love with her?"

"She wanted to know if he carried any life insurance."

EPWORTH LEAGUE

March 31 (Easter Sunday—Missions); "Are We Like For the World"

By REV. WALTER J. TATE, D. D.
Rom. vi. 4-14; Jer. xvi. 19-21; Matt. ii. 22; xi. 11 Tim. i. 3, 12-14.

This is the gladdest, brightest day this world has ever seen because more men are clearly seeing that there is new light for all the world and are setting themselves more resolutely than ever before to carry that light to all who sit in darkness and are also finding out more practical means of doing that work of enlightening the darkness.

Then, again, we are a little nearer the consummation of all things. The end is actually a little nearer. The judgment hastens, and this world age is closer to its termination, when the Master shall return according to His promise to receive us unto Himself.

The Christian church has been slow in recognizing her mission to carry the gospel to all the world. She is not yet fully aroused to the task, has not fully put forth her strength and adopted the wisest means to accomplish her Christ appointed mission, but she is farther advanced than ever before.

We have not yet seen the last. Christ died for the race, for all men. He came to seek and save the lost. The most degraded are as much within the reach of His mercy as the more cultivated. He saved us. He saved our fathers. When we look at our ancestors a few generations back but half-clothed, painted savages? The only thing which lifted us out of our savagery was the gospel of Jesus Christ preached by faithful Christian missionaries. Self God could in the course of a few generations, without the gospel, lift us from the mire of that pit and put us on the high places of power in the earth, can He not lift up the other people who are now sitting in degradation?

One lesson we are beginning to learn from the story of the past—the people to whom God has committed much either rise and follow or forever perish from the earth. This has been the fate of all peoples in the times gone by. It is today going on in the world with the inexorableness of fate.

The fresh spirit of brotherliness is kindling as never before in the hearts of men and finding new ways of expression not only through their lips, but in their deeds. We can no longer sit down in contentment while we know the truth, when we are pressed with the command to constrainful to go out and find our brother who has been stripped by thieves and is half dead, and bring him in and care for him. Our heart is in this. The Master has been here.

It means that even a king cannot with impunity treat with cruelty a degraded savage people in the wilds of Africa for his own gain and the left alone. Does some one ask what business is it? Well, quite a lot and you may see that it is the business of the church of God, and that it means it is the business of the whole civilized world, and they will attend to it also.

Whoever is in the dark must have the light. The Christ has come. He walks this earth today in power. The old mountains are being brought low, the valleys are beginning to fill, the rough places are getting a little less rough, some stones have been dug out and on the whole the highway is coming along in good shape.

Light for all the world! Are you helping to spread it as wide as you can?

May this present year see the morning mount all up the sky as never before. God hasten the perfect day, the day of earth's full redemption.

Carrying Our Sorrows to God.

As thou learnest this lesson to carry all thy sorrows to God, and lie at thy Saviour's feet, and spread thy grief before Him, thou will find a calm come over thee, thou knowest not whence. Thou will see through the clouds a bright opening, small perhaps and quickly closed, but telling of eternal rest and everlasting day and of the depth of love which will heal thy heart, will still rise and sink, but it will rise and sink not restlessly nor waywardly, but in violent gusts of passion, but resting in stillness on the bosom of the ocean of the love of God. Then shalt thou learn not to endure only patiently, but, in everything against thy will, humbly and quickly to see and to love the loving will of God. Thy faith and thy love and thy hope will grow the more thou seest the work of God with which He is busy in thy sorrow, and thy sorrow will be turned into joy.—Edward B. Pusey.

A Simple Measure.

God measures our work for Him by one simple measure—and by how large it is or how long it takes to do it or how much it is noticed, but by the love for Him that makes us do it. A great love for God is the secret of every great Christian life from Augustine to Livingstone.—Forward.

Right Thoughts For the Mind.

Fill your mind with the thoughts of health thoughts, beauty thoughts, achievement thoughts, and you will become physically strong, mentally vigorous, worldly successful and spiritually happy.—John Rumley Askin.

I Will Not Worry.

I will not worry; I will hope.
God knows I am a child of dust;
He knows I long to do His will.
Though darkness closes round me still

I will not worry; I will hope.
Perhaps upon some sunlit slope
The flowers are waiting for me there.
While here the hills are black and bare

I will not worry; I will hope.
I know God cares for me today
And trusting ever in His love,
I'll tread the path that He shows.
—Nettie Duenberry in Christian Endeavor.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning March 31.

By REV. E. H. DOYLE.

Topic—Home missions; the progress of the Afro-American.—Ps. cxvi, 16-19.

According to the census of 1900, there are in round numbers 10,000,000 Afro-Americans in our country, 9,000,000 in the south, mostly the descendants of former slaves, and 1,000,000 in the north. The number of this race in our land emphasizes the great problem that presents itself in their presence here. This is especially true of the race problem in the south, which is becoming more serious as time passes by. The negro question once endangered the life of the nation, and it is still so serious a problem as to enlist the interest and assistance of all who have the welfare of the nation at heart as well as the interests of humanity and the progress of the kingdom of God. The soul of a negro in America is as well worth saving as one in Africa, and while we should send missionaries to Africa we are not to neglect the Afro-Americans. The American nation is in debt to the negroes of our land. They came here not of their own accord, but were forcibly brought and for over two centuries lived as bondmen and slaves, but God gave them their bonds." He has set them free. But freedom was not their only need. It was the first step in real progress, but it is not the last, and in this work Christian missions must bear an important part.

That there is need of progress among the freedmen is not to be wondered at. The descendants of Africans, held for over 200 years in slavery, could not be expected to have attained to high standards along any lines. We are not, therefore, surprised that at the close of the war they were in a most pitiable condition and needed a helping hand if they were to be a blessing rather than a curse to our land. The negro character is a strange mixture. It is simple often from extreme innocent and again most vicious; strong in natural religious tendencies, yet largely devoid of the great essential of true religion, stability of moral character. In addition, the average negro is shiftless, lazy and improvident. The negro is very literal in "not caring for the morgow." These are the things that placed a great problem before church and state when 3,000,000 such people by the stroke of a pen passed from slavery to freedom. They were more like children than full grown men and women and needed careful training, and this is still more so today, since the 3,000,000 in the southland have increased to 9,000,000.

But the God who loosed the bonds of the freedmen has blessed them. They have made and are making progress. And in this work of development the church of Christ has taken and still must take a prominent part. They are the greatest in numbers of our exceptional populations, next to the foreigners in our land, and they must be led to higher ground along all important lines.

The needs of the negro indicate the lines along which he has progressed and should continue to do so. The three most important of these are industrial, intellectual and religious. And in all three they have made progress. (1) The negro is progressing industrially. This is the special feature of the work of Booker T. Washington at Tuskegee, but years before our mission schools were doing the same kind of work. Negro boys were being taught all kinds of trades and negro girls the domestic arts. The results are most satisfactory, and still greater results will be reaped in the future. (2) The negro is progressing intellectually. The work of education is being rapidly pushed. The purpose of an education is also being better understood. It used to be supposed that all educated negroes should be ministers or politicians, but it is now realized no one is not above manual labor, is entering all the professions, and, above all, many are giving their service for small remuneration for the education and betterment of their own race. Girls graduating from our mission schools go back to their homes and teach the children of their own race, many of them at great personal sacrifice. (3) The negro is progressing religiously. Character is the essential need of this people. The development of head and hand is not enough. The heart also must be reached. The negro's religion consisted formerly largely in emotion. Morality had practically no place in it. But under the influence of a better class of missionaries and ministers the negro is coming to understand that character is an important part of religion.

But, while progress has been made, there is still a great work to be done, and as Christian and American citizens we should be intensely interested in this work. Any sectional prejudice should interfere with interest in this problem. It is a gigantic one, but "with God all things are possible." Let us therefore do all in our power to make this people free indeed and worthy of their freedom.

SUGGESTIVE READINGS.

Isa. ii, 7; Neh. i, 15; Matt. v, 11, 12; xxviii, 18-20; Acts i, 6-14; Rom. ix, 1-5; x, 14, 15; I Cor. iii, 5-10; II Cor. xi, 23-33; Rev. xxii, 17.

CHILD'S NOON LUNCHEON.

Luncheon for the school children should be of good quality and generous quantity. Growing children require nutritious food and plenty of it to supply brain, nerve and muscle.

The luncheon should be varied in its menu. Have the same menu three times a week at least. If the child can come home to luncheon so much the better for both child and parent. Mother can then see to the wants and determine if the child is eating enough of the best food.

Beef, roasted or boiled, with dumplings one day and gravy another, with fruit or cake for dessert and an apple to eat on the way back to school, is an ideal luncheon.

Baked beans or tomatoes, soup of corn or peas would make still another good luncheon. Cornmeals cakes or muffins or fried mush is palatable without being expensive.

Rice served with milk or sauce or cooked raisins is much enjoyed by children. Chops or lamb stew with noodles is also nourishing food.

Fish once a week and oysters are also valuable. All chool children love pickles, and they are not injurious if plenty of wholesome food is taken with them.

A luncheon that has to be carried to school should be prepared to look inviting and be nourishing.

Make sandwiches of meat. Cut the bread thin, trim the slices of crust. If crust is distasteful to the child. Chop the meat finely, ham or cold beef, lamb or veal.

Butter the bread lightly, lay a layer of meat, which should be sprinkled with salt, celery salt or mustard, and on this lay another slice of buttered bread. Wrap in white paper and then in a napkin.

Send with this fruit. Apples are always good, so are also bananas and oranges, crackers or cake—the small cakes are the best—vanilla wafers, cookies and ginger cakes.

SOME NEW YORK FIRSTS.

The first Governor was Peter Minuit. He was appointed in 1626.

The first male child born of European parents was Jean Vigue (1614).

The first female child born of European parents was Sarah Rapalja (1615).

The first physician was Dr. Johannes La Montagne, who began practicing in 1636 and who for many years was the only doctor.

The first engineer was Kryn Frederick, who was authorized by the Governor in 1626 to superintend the construction of a permanent fort on Manhattan island.

The first warehouse was erected in 1626. It was a rude, in artistic structure, one corner of which was set apart as a village store. Here the Indians came for a drink of the white man's fire water.

The first meeting room for religious services was (1626) in the loft of the horsepower mill located on what is now South William street, near Pearl.—New York Herald.

HOMESEEKERS RUSH TO NEW JERSEY.

They Seem to Prefer This State to New York — Long Island Real Estate Men Confer On Matter.

An informal meeting of several Long Island real estate men was held in New York a few days ago. Its object was not disclosed at the time, but it has developed since that the purpose of the gathering was to consider means of attracting the attention of homeseekers in New York and elsewhere to Long Island.

"From present indications," said one of the men who took part in the recent conference, "and basing our estimate on the transactions that have taken place and the inquiries that have come to us, it seems probable that fully 50 per cent. of the increase that we had expected to come to us this season will be diverted to New Jersey. There are a number of reasons for this. One is that the tunnel connections between Manhatatn and New Jersey are being pushed to completion with great rapidity, while the connections under and over the East River are advancing more slowly. People k now that in moving to New Jersey they will soon be assured of real rapid transit to the city, while they think that on Long Island the extension of such improvements will be a slower and more doubtful matter.

"Another factor is the undoubted advantage that New Jersey has over Long Island in the mater of transportation. The trouble that have followed the service of the Long Island Railroad are well known, and there seems to be little prospect that these will end until the electrification of its lines is completed. New Jersey has occasional troubles with her railroad service, but the trouble city residents have become acquainted with the fact that New Jersey does not have to rely on a single line, as there are six great steam lines crossing the State, with numerous branches, and comparatively few places are compelled to rely on the services of one road."

Members of the Sunday-school of St. Stephen's church will present a play, "Little Pilgrims and the Book Beloved," in the parish house on Tuesday night, April 2. A free-will offering will be received.

The last meeting of the Mission Study Class of the Congregational church will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. C. A. Rice, on West Seventh street.

THREE LITTLE DOLLS.

I have three little dolls in my play room,
Annie and Fanny and May,
And one is witty, and one is pretty,
And one is naughty all day.

And some people wouldn't believe it,
And others would think it queer,
But the third is my pet and my darling,
Naughty, but dearest dear.

And over and over I kiss her,
And over and over I say,
I never could spare the dolly,
Who is often naughty all day.

EARLY AN DLATE.

Go to bed early—wake up with joy;
Go to bed late—cross girl or boy.

Go to bed early—ready for play;
Go to bed late—moping all day.

Go to bed early—no pains or ills;
Go to bed late—doctors and pills.

Go to bed ealy—grow very tall;
Go to bed late—stay very small.
—W. S. Reed, in St. Nicholas.

IF YOU ARE IN LOVE.

Don't make the mistake of thinking your marriage is all going to be paradise. You are going to marry a man who will come home tired, cross, and fagged, and he won't find relief for all his trials in a moment and a few tender words, as he did before marriage, when they were more of a novelty. He would rather have his dinner, though he may not confess it. When he has been fed and comforted, however, he will be ready for this tenderness, and the fact that he did not feel demonstrative when his stomach was empty will be no sign that he is not still in love.

Believe in the man you take as your life's partner; be gentle with him; don't constrict him when he is tired; let him think he is having his own way in his own house; feed him with what he likes and laugh at his jokes. Herein lies the secret of a happy home.—Woman's Life.

DO NOT DRESS IN A HURRY.

Never let it be your boast that you can dress in five minutes. No woman who has any respect for her appearance or her clothes will attempt to dress in double that time. It is as true in dressing as in anything else that where there is the more haste there is the less speed. It is particularly trying for a woman to dress in a hurry. She gets flurried, and in the attempt to fasten her brooch the pin sticks into her finger, says Woman's Life. She gets cross over this, and then everything goes wrong. Buttons come off shoes or laces break, gloves and veil are not to be found until boxes and drawers have been turned upside down, and then the missing articles have been found on the dressing table. When she does at last get ready she is conscious of appearing at her worst, being hot and angry with herself and everybody else.

ARE YOU AWARE THAT

The fresher eggs are the rougher you will find the shells, and it takes a longer time to shell them?

An egg boiled twenty minutes is more easily digested than one cooked ten?

Eggs fried in grease will not stick to the pan if a few drops of water is placed in the pan, and the lid put on for a few seconds. This covers the top of the yolk with a white coating, and it does not break when removed from the pan.

Stale eggs float in a pan of water, while good ones sink first to the bottom.

The Nicest Way He Knew.

An uptown physician has two young hopefuls, Master Tommy and Miss Jennie, the latter the elder by a year or two. A few days ago Master Tom came in, whimpering, with his complaint: "Papa, Jennie's got my roller skates on, and I want 'em, and she won't give 'em to me."

"Did you ask her for them kindly, my son?"

"Yes, papa."

"Well, suppose you go back and try again. Ask her just the nicest way you know, and see if you can't get them."

The youngster trotted out and the father from the doorway heard him in wheedling tones: "Jennie, for God's sake, let me take them skates?"

From Examination Papers.

The following extracts are from examination papers handed in at a public school in Connecticut:

1. From what animals do we get milk?

Ands. From the camel and the milkmqn.

2. The hen is covered with feathers. With what is the cat covered?

Ans. The cat is covered with deas.

3. Name an animal that has four legs and a long tail.

Ans. A mosquito.

4. Name two kinds of nuts.

Ans. Peanuts and forget-me-nuts.

Photographs that have become soiled or that are mounted on cards the edges of which are broken may be soaked off by placing them in water. This cleans them, but does not injure them in the least, and after varnishing thoroughly between blotters they may be mounted again on new cards.

SMITH TO PITCH HERE SAYS "DAVE" DRISCOLL

TWO TEAMS TO USE CRESCENT OVAL THIS SUMMER.

Arrangements have practically been completed whereby the Y. M. C. A. and Clinton Avenue baseball teams, of the Inter-City Amateur League, will use Crescent Oval the coming season. They will alternate in playing on the grounds and these teams will meet each other there. This will give the local fans a game every Saturday at the oval. The management of the two teams have been in consultation with officers of the Plainfield Baseball Association and also with Philip Daab, who managed last year's team, and it is understood that those interested are perfectly willing that the two amateur teams should use the grounds.

This will interfere with the proposition made by Dave Driscoll, who secured a franchise in Plainfield in the Lackawanna League, as he was hoping to secure the oval. That team, however, did not plan to play in Plainfield every Saturday, a series of about fifteen games being scheduled for Plainfield and an equal number here. If arrangements could be made whereby the Lackawanna League team could play here on the off dates of the other two teams it might work satisfactory. Driscoll will be at the Iroquois Hotel tomorrow night at 8 o'clock when he hopes to meet the fans and talk over his plans for Plainfield.

According to his idea the expense of a team here this season would be one-half of that of last year and the nine would receive a guarantee of $75 when it played away from home, which would be sufficient to cover its expenses. He estimates that by drawing a crowd of between 400 and 500 people this would more than pay expenses here and give a profit. Driscoll says that he has the agreement that "Phil" Smith will pitch for him and he has practically determined on the other members of the team, which he says will be the equal in strength of any other team in the Lackawanna League, and he feels sure that the rivalry between the several aggregations will result in a revival of interest in the national game.

OLD DEED'S FIRST TRANSFER IN CENTURY

MORSS FARM WAS HELD FROM THE DAYS OF THE INDIANS.

A noteworthy transfer of property took place last week, when a deed was given by the owners of what is known as the Morss farm on Long Island, to the Tremley Improvement Company, of New York.

This property has been continuously held by the Morss family since Robert Morss purchased it of the Indians in 1657. Its history dates back almost to the time of the landing of the Pilgrim Fathers on Plymouth Rock in 1620. Robert Morss, the founder of the family in America, emigrated from England prior to 1644, residing in Boston, Newbury, Rowley and Long Island, finally settling in 1657 on the farm just sold, in what was then part of Elizabethtown, now Elizabeth, N. J. He was Rahway's first settler, and his history is written in the archives of New Jersey, particularly in the old Dutch church at the city of Elizabethtown, Woodbridge and vicinity, where he is found to have acted a conspicuous and honorable part in founding and conducting the settlement.

The old homestead, still standing, has changed little in appearance, except from natural decay, since the days when British soldiers, during the time of the Revolutionary war in 1776, made it a stopping place in their numerous raids through this section. A little incident of how Mr. Morss outwitted the British is still related by some of the family:

One night whilst the British were in possession of the house, Mr. Morss overheard some of the soldiers discussing means for driving off the cattle early in the morning, so late at night, he arose and made his way downstairs to the kitchen. He was obliged, owing to the interior arrangement of the house, to pass through the dining room where the soldiers were sleeping, stretched out on the floor. The moon was shining in at the window, so that he could see where he was going. He answered, that his wife was not feeling well and he was going to make her some tea. He passed on into the kitchen, made the tea, return through the room without being noticed, for, as in reality, slipped out the back door of the hall, went to the stables and drove the cattle some and in hiding. In the morning the soldiers discovered the cattle gone and inquired of Mr. Morss as to where they could be found, and he told them they had been driven to Elizabethtown during the night and sold to the butcher.

The Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the First M. E. church will meet in Vincent chapel, tomorrow, in annual session. Officers will be elected.

The choir of Grace church will render "The Crucifixion," by John Stainer, at the church, tonight.

FOREIGN ANNOUNCEMENTS.

"A famous firm of furnishers advertisers, I see," observes a correspondent, "that the hair in our bedding is teased by hand, not cut short by machinery and rendered lifeless." Can you tell me if lively bedding is becoming the right thing now? Perhaps I am too thin skinned, but I don't like the idea."

There is so little style about most advertising of "situations" that it is quite pleasing to find the "mot juste" so successfully sought as it is in the following. From a Hertfordshire paper: A Comfortable Cook Wanted in clergyman's family in North London. Personal reference necessary. —Apply, etc.

This, from a Brighton paper, is a development of advertising of which we have noted more than one example lately: To Electrical Contractors in Brighton.—Young fellow, untrustworthy, indolent, no capabilities, knows nothing about electrical work, seeks situation, preferably as assistant to manager of advertising department; must have good salary and soft job. Those willing to take risk and fellow, write, etc.

"I don't think you have had an announcement of this kind yet," writes a lady in Vienna. "I saw lately the following notice in a shop (the announcement is a little confusing, and makes one feel uncertain as to whether one ought to date one's letters 1907 or 907): 'The medal of Saint —— can be obtained here. It protects the wearer from all manner of accidents, and is particularly suited against motor cars.' The medal is quite small, and only costs 6d."

DOCTOR SAYS LANG HAS NO "BRAIN STORM."

As a Result Industry May Leave New Brunswick.

Dr. Evans Declares Murderer Is Not Insane.

Dr. Britton D. Evans, of the Morris Plains Asylum, who brought "brain storms" into the vocabulary of alienists, failed to find that or any other mental ailment in the cranium of Fred Lang, a Hungarian boy, under sentence of death at New Brunswick for the murder of his niece, Katie Gordon.

Lang shot Katie because she refused to marry him, ran away and when recaptured the question of his sanity was raised. Dr. Evans went to New Brunswick and examined the boy in company with Dr. J. L. Suydam, of Jamesburg, on July 12 last. Dr. Evans declared that Lang was sane. The allenist was paid $125 for his services, the county records show.

Lang was convicted without the question of his sanity being raised. Since then he has been showing signs of something very much like "brain storms." He set fire to the county jail, another time he made a rope from his tickling, and said he wanted to go outside and hang himself with it. Nearly every night he sits up and makes sleep impossible by shouting at the top of his voice. He has a Hungarian book of sermons and spends the day reading discourses to his fellow prisoners.

WERE INCENDIARIES AS WELL AS BURGLARS.

Morristown, March 25.—Two burglars raided Alpha, near Phillipsburg Thursday night, entered the only jewelry store in the place, exchanged shots with its proprietor, William Joseph, visited Branch's Hotel and carried out a typewriter and then set fire to the building. The blaze was discovered just in time to prevent its destruction.

The burglars operating on the door of the jewelry store awoke Joseph, who lives up stairs, and seeing two men trying to enter his store he opened fire on them from a window with his revolver. The men made off, but fired back at Joseph as they ran.

The men raided the corridor of the hotel and after taking the typewriter, a coat was taken from the rack and set on fire in a corner of the hallway. A pair of rubber boots was under the clothing and the smell of burning rubber aroused the proprietor, who ran downstairs and extinguished the blaze.

The burglars escaped leaving the writing machine in the hotel yard.

Their Deer Was Only a Goat.

Meriden, Conn., March 25.—Running through the principal streets of the city followed by a pack of yelping dogs, an animal, which was thought to be a fawn, sought refuge in a barber shop in the west end yesterday. Men and boys drove the dogs away and the game warden was summoned. The supposed deer's lack of shyness had begun to arouse the suspicions of its captors, when William F. Hammond, a broker, arrived and said the animal was his valuable Toggenburg goat, which he imported from Switzerland for the medicinal properties of its milk.

To Erect 400 Houses.

The erection of almost 400 houses in the vicinity of the Milliken Works, on Staten Island, opposite Elizabeth, for workers in that plant and the Procter & Gamble soap factory, will be begun in the near future by New York capitalists, who contemplate building up of a community there. With the erection of the Procter & Gamble plant, there will be a great demand for houses.

Rev. A. S. Peck, rector, will preach at St. Stephen's church Friday night.

A men's club will be organized at the Christian church on Grove street, Thursday night.

LEGISLATION BY CAUCUS.

Democrats Adopt That Plan While Republicans Have Only Mutual Understanding.

Trenton, March 25.—Another joint caucus of the Democratic Senators and Assemblymen has been called by Senator Minturn, to be held in the Speaker's room of the House of Assembly this afternoon at 5:30 o'clock.

It is expected at this conference to finally agree on all pending bills which members agree to support as a whole, including the modification of the "bishops' law" as outlined in the bill introduced by Assemblyman Kienert. Before the latter reaches final passage the $500 minimum license fee clause will be restored.

Civil service, direct primary, popular election of United States Senators and other election bills, railroad and public utility commissions, insurance and corporation law reform and proposed investigation of State departments will be among the subjects discussed.

The Republicans have not held a joint caucus on pending legislation, or arranged for one, but there appears to be as thorough an understanding as to party policy between the leaders and members of each house as if joint caucuses were of daily occurrence. By following this course and leaving the members apparently free to act it is argued the party will not be subject to censure for any action of the present session which may be open to criticism.

CAN'T GET A SIDING.

As a Result Industry May Leave New Brunswick.

New Brunswick, March 25.—Something of a surprise and considerable consternation has been caused by the announcement of Janeway & Carpender that failure to secure a railroad siding within a reasonable distance of this place may compel the firm's new factory to go away from this city. Since the Pennsylvania Railroad Company elevated its tracks through New Brunswick a policy has been adopted, it is said, of limiting the number and restricting the location of switches or sidings. So rigid has been the rule in the vicinity of New Brunswick that it is necessary for an engine or train to go from here to Metuchen to be shifted from one track to another, there being no "jump-over" nearer to this city.

The wallpaper firm, whose factory was destroyed last week, has an offer of a desirable site in Highland Park, East New Brunswick, and had practically schemed upon it, but negotiations have been suspended, pending decision of the railroad company as to whether or not a siding will be built.

BRIDGE SINKS, HALTS TRAFFIC ON CENTRAL.

Structure Between Matawan and Keyport Will Probably Not Be Used for Two Weeks.

Matawan, March 25.—Traffic between this place and Keyport, on the Atlantic Highlands division of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, has been halted temporarily by the breaking down of a bridge between the places. The bridge, which is about a quarter of a mile long, sank about a foot Saturday, and the company ordered that no trains be run over it.

The company is transporting passengers between the places in stages. The ground in the vicinity of the bridge has been what the residents term a mud-hole for years, and to this fact is due the sinking of the bridge. At the present time the railroad company is trying to fill in the "mud-hole." It is expected that trains will be able to cross the bridge in about two weeks.

THREE STAGE-STRUCK GIRLS DESERT HOMES.

Attracted by the glare of the footlights, Loretta Smith, of No. 108 Cross street; Annie Tureckio, of No. 48 North Sixth street, and Irene Jones, all of Paterson, their ages ranging from fifteen to seventeen years, disappeared last week from their homes. The police and the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children have been asked to search for them. All of the girls had comfortable homes. They were employed in silk mills.

The mother of Loretta Smith told President Shelby, of the S. P. C. C., that her daughter and the other girls who were missing had attended a performance of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" in Paterson three weeks ago, and that one of the men connected with the company told them they could get a position on the stage if they followed his directions. The three girls drew the pay coming to them and started together for New York.

$100,000 for Drew Fund.

Philadelphia, March 25.—The annual Methodist conference opened here Wednesday, with Bishop Goodsell, of Massachusetts, presiding, and was inaugurated by a campaign in favor of the local option bill that is now before the Pennsylvania Legislature. During the course of the session the clergymen agreed to assume the task of raising $100,000, part of the proposed $500,000 fund for the endowment of Drew Theological Seminary at Madison, N. J.

PRAISES MOTHER'S WORK

Mrs. Florence Howe Hall tells of Life and Achievements of Mrs. Julia Ward Howe.

A WOMAN SUFFRAGIST

Author of Battle Hymn of the Republic Has Done Much to Advance Interests of the Sex.

Called Weaker Sex.

Mrs. Florence Howe Hall gave an interesting talk about that celebrated and charming woman, Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, who is Mrs. Hall's mother, at the meeting of the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield, at the home of Mrs. William M. Sandford, Jr., on Second place, Monday afternoon. There was a large and enthusiastic gathering of members and friends.

In speaking of her mother's interest in women's suffrage, Mrs. Hall said that it was not until she was forty years of age that she was aroused to the importance of the movement. Prior to that time she accepted man's views of woman and her sphere. As soon as she began to study the question she became convinced that woman was the equal of man spiritually and mentally and that as such was entitled to just as much consideration as a man.

Mrs. Hall said that while her mother was not one of the pioneer women in the suffrage movement, it was not long afterward that she became closely associated with William Lloyd Garrison, Lucy Stone and Thomas Wentworth Higginson in advocating woman's suffrage. She was one of the early members of Sorosis and for twenty years was the president of the Association for the Advancement of Women, the reports of which are to be found at the Astor Library, New York. She was also president of other women's associations. Mrs. Howe still retains her interest in the progress of woman's suffrage and whenever possible attends meetings for its advancement. She has planned to attend the Peace Conference to be held at Carnegie Hall, New York, April 16 and 17. Mrs. Hall read several extracts from her mother's books and gave interesting reminiscences concerning her work.

Action was taken at the meeting approving and urging the passage of several Legislative bills regarding child labor; also a bill favoring the State Reformatory for Women and a bill urging the inspection of slaughter houses. There was an informal discussion about these measures and it was the unanimous opinion that they should become laws.

MASTER PLUMBERS MEET.

No Action Is Taken On Demand for More Pay.

Contrary to expectations the question of granting an increase of wages to the journeymen plumbers was not discussed Monday at the meeting of the Master Plumbers' Association. It was believed that a report would be received from the committee regarding the request of the journeymen and that action would be taken. The demand of the journeymen for $3 a week with a Saturday half holiday the year round, however, would not got into effect until May 1, even if granted. Vice President Aldrich and Treasurer Moody, of the State Master Plumbers' Association, were present. Plans were made for the local association to join the State and National bodies.

After the meeting the association enjoyed a "spread" at Simbo's restaurant.

Annual Meeting Presbyterial Society.

The twenty-third annual meeting of the Women's Presbyterial Society for Home Missions will be held in the First Presbyterian church, Rahway, on Friday. There will be morning and afternoon sessions. The morning session will be held at 10 o'clock with devotional service, followed by reports of the year's work, and an address upon the work for the Freedmen. Lunch will be served from 12 to 1 o'clock. The afternoon session will convene at 2:30 o'clock, when the speakers will be of special interest. Miss Lydia Hayes, from the Sitka Training School, Alaska, and Miss Bertha Slavich, the missionary at Ellis Island, representing the Women's Board of Home Missions, will address the meeting.

Will Build Additional Coal Sheds.

Arthur Smith, civil engineer, of this city, has received the contract from the New Jersey Central to erect new coal chutes and sheds at Dunellen. The contract was signed today and the work will be commenced within a couple of weeks. The sheds will be 200 feet long and are intended to provide greater capacity for the storage of coal at Dunellen. The construction work will be chiefly of concrete.

To Commemorate Agassiz.

The one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Louis Agassiz, which occurs on May 28, will be observed in the Plainfield High School when Franklin S. Smith, a graduate of the class of 1880, will give an illustrated lecture. Mr. Smith was at one time an instructor of science in the high school and was a member of the Agassiz Science Association. He has recently presented to the school a collection of shells, star fish and minerals.

DUNGAN IS COLONEL OF 2ND REGIMENT

HE SUCCEEDS COLLINS; FORMAN TO SUCCEED HIM.

At the election of officers, held at the Trenton Armory, Monday, Lieutenant Colonel Nelson Y. Dungan, of Somerville, was elected colonel of the Second Regiment. Major George L. Forman, of Trenton, was elected lieutenant colonel. Captain John H. McColough, of Trenton, was elected major.

After the election General Collins announced his staff appointments as follows:

Lieutenant Colonel Frederick Gilkyson, of Trenton, as assistant adjutant general.

Lieutenant Colonel Robert L. Patterson, of Elizabeth, as assistant inspector general.

Lieutenant Colonel Paul A. McCrea, of Camden, surgeon.

Major Edwin B. Broadaway, of Camden, engineer and second officer.

Major H. B. Salter, of Trenton, quartermaster.

Major E. R. Walker, of Trenton, judge advocate.

Captain Mahlon R. Marburgeus, of Trenton, aide-de-camp.

Captain Alexander W. Mack, of Somerville, aide-de-camp.

SUFFERED FROM HURTS THAT WERE IMAGINARY

JOSEPH M'GUIRK FOUND IT HARD TO BELIEVE HE WASN'T HURT.

Under the impression that he was severely hurt, Joseph McGuirk raised a fuss after he had been knocked down by a carriage at Front and Somerset streets Saturday night, and it was not until a doctor had examined him and pronounced him sound as a bell that the incident would he believe he had not been injured. Even then he was doubtful, and worried over injuries he believed might have been inflicted.

The carriage was driven by Chas. E. Drake, of 916 West Fourth street. McGuirk, whom the police say was under the influence of liquor, stepped against a wheel of the carriage and was knocked down. He said he was hurt and was taken to police headquarters. The policemen could find nothing the matter with him, but he insisted he was hurt and he was taken to Dr. Endicott's office by Drake. The physician said there was nothing the matter with him, and McGuirk reluctantly admitted that he might have escaped injury. He accepted $2 from Drake to pay for his hat, which had been smashed. Drake paid the doctor's bill also.

ALL OVER $50 PIANO.

Jury Decides Dispute in Favor of Mrs. Mirick.

The ownership of a $50 piano claimed by Mrs. Alice H. Sanford and Mrs. Bertha E. Mirick, of North Market, and over which there have been several suits since last summer, was decided by a jury in the Middlesex Court at New Brunswick, Monday, after a ten minutes' deliberation. According to the verdict the piano is given to Mrs. Mirick, against whom Miss Sanford originally brought the action. Clarence L. Murphy, of this city, and Robert Adrain represented the plaintiff and R. F. P. vonMinden and Judge Cowenhoven the defendant.

The case has been a perplexing one from the first. Mrs. Mirick was the original owner of the piano, when she lived with Mrs. Sanford, but when she moved away she left the instrument there. At time and then Mrs. Sanford claimed that Mrs. Mirick had done so because of a debt her husband owed Mrs. Sanford. This was afterward disputed and Mrs. Mirick had the piano replevinded. It was afterward replevined and it has been going back and forth almost continuously ever since. Now Mrs. Mirick is in possession of the piano, but Mrs. Sanford says she is not satisfied and will take the case up higher.

OF COURSE IT PAID.

Judge tells a story of a boy who wrote on the blackboard at school "John Jones can hug the girls better than any fellow in the class." A stern inquisition conducted by the teacher fastened the authorship of this declaration upon John Jones himself, and the culprit was commanded to remain after school was dismissed. His sympathetic classmates lingered in the vicinity to learn his fate. "Well, did she lick you?" they inquired, when he finally appeared. "Nope," said John. "What did she keep you in for, then?" they asked. "I ain't a-goin' to tell," he answered; "but it pays to advertise."

Mr. Merchant, don't you possess some advantage over the general run.

—some particular point of superiority—which it would pay to advertise?

NOMINAL DAMAGES FOR RUSHMORE SERVANT

MARY CONNORS GETS SIX-CENT VERDICT IN A TORT CASE.

Claiming recompense for alleged assault and false imprisonment, Mary Connors, the servant whose trouble with S. W. Rushmore, of Putnam avenue, her former employer, has been aired in the city court and the district court on two occasions, appeared again as plaintiff in a case against Mr. Rushmore in the district court Tuesday morning. She sued for $300 damages on the grounds of assault and false imprisonment. A verdict of six cents in the latter count was awarded. The court ruled the assault allegation was not sustained.

The testimony was largely the same as at the trial of the servant's suit for wages. A new feature was the testimony of Dr. George W. Endicott, who testified that the plaintiff was an epileptic, the evidence being adduced to show that the girl was suffering from severe excitement and a form of delirium at the time Mr. Rushmore felt called upon to put her out of the house. Mr. and Mrs. Rushmore both testified that the girl had frightened Mrs. Rushmore by threatening motions, that she refused to leave when discharged by Mr. Rushmore, and that he merely seized her by the arms and forced toward the door, overcoming Mary's testimony that she was seized brutally without cause, choked and thrown down the cellar stairs.

The evidence as to the arrest showed that the officer, Sergeant Overbaugh, had not seen the alleged disorder, and that Mr. Rushmore had ordered the arrest before swearing out a complaint, as it was held he should have done. While the false imprisonment was held to be sustained, the court had no proof of damages resulting from the arrest, so the nominal sum was awarded. The verdict carries the costs with it.

W. S. Anglepan was counsel for the plaintiff. G. W. V. Moy defended Mr. Rushmore.

BOARD OF TRADE'S PUBLICITY MOVEMENT BRINGS RESULTS.

Company Wants to Know If Plainfield Would Help It Locate Here.

Attracted by a newspaper article regarding the plans of the Board of Trade for the enlargement and advancement of Plainfield, L. J. Wing Manufacturing Company, of New York, makers of blowers, power fans, turbine engines, exhausters and similar appliances, have turned to Plainfield as a possible site for its new plant. L. J. Wing, the president of the company, has written the following letter to the board:

"I was reading in this morning's Herald about the proposed movement in your city for increasing its population and getting of industrial plants. Would you or your committee or the city itself take any actual interest in an industrial plant, if it was shown that it would be a profitable investment, as well as adding to the working population? If so, I would be pleased to have a personal interview with you or your committee, as we are contemplating opening a factory somewhere near New York city."

An interview with Mr. Wing will be arranged.

Entertainment for Deacons' Fund.

Mrs. Ida Randolph Smalley, pianist; Miss Justine Roberts, reciter, and Miss Nora Schenck, soprano, will present a fine programme at Trinity Reformed church Tuesday night, April 2, for the benefit of the deacons' fund. Mrs. Smalley and Miss Roberts have appeared before at Trinity Reformed church, where they delighted large audiences with their delightful piano selections and impersonations.

Couple Quietly Wedded.

William W. Walker, of Craig place, and Miss Laura Meyers, of Watchung, were quietly married Monday by Rev. J. O. McKelvery, pastor of Warren chapel. The ceremony was performed at the clergyman's home at 7:30 with only the necessary witnesses present. Mr. and Mrs. Walker will make their home in this city. The groom is a plumber and is well known.

Nelson—Hughson.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Kathryn O. Hughson, of Orchard place, to Frank Taylor Nelson, of Roselle. The ceremony was performed in New York at the Church of the Transfiguration on October 24, 1906, by Rev. William W. Davis. Mr. and Mrs. Nelson will take up their residence in Roselle Park on April 1.

—The Easter dance at the Park Club will be held on Thursday night, April 4.

—Co. K will hold an Easter dance in the armory on West Front street, Monday night, April 1.

Mrs. F. W. Wallace, of this city, is registered at the Chalfonte, Atlantic City.

C. W. Merrill, who has been appointed assistant superintendent of the Lehigh and Susquehanna Division of the New Jersey Central, is a son of F. W. Merrill, of Carlton avenue.

WHALEBONE AT $8,750 A TON.

It Might Pay Now to Look Up Those Old Whalebone Ribbed Umbrellas.

"I see by the papers," said Mr. Griffinby, "that the last quotation for whalebone in England was £1,750, or, say, about $750 a ton, making whalebone worth now somewhere in the neighborhood of $4.50 a pound—a pretty costly commodity.

"I can remember the time when whalebone was cheap, very cheap; when we used to burn whale oil in lamps and use whalebone for umbrella ribs. Those old-time whalebone ribbed umbrellas were not much like the present steel ribbed close rollers.

"No. They were of the bulgy out sort of gingham umbrellas that you see now sometimes reproduced after a fashion on the comic stage, but which are now never actually used by anybody, though once they were used by everybody, umbrellas with whalebone ribs. And what I was going to say was this:

"People are out all the time looking through the country for old furniture, quaint old colonial, and that sort of stuff. Why couldn't we hunt up those umbrellas—there must be millions of them lying around in country garrets—why couldn't we look up those old whalebone ribbed gingham umbrellas, for the whalebone there is in them? Don't you think there may be an idea here for making money."

IN A MODERN HAREM.

Circassian Slaves Now Wear Copies of Paris Fashions.

Less picturesque than the description in Pierre Loti's "Disenchanted" was my reception in the harem of Bosna Hanum, the wife of a close relative of the throne, says a writer in the Boston Globe.

I was assisted out of my carriage by a gaunt eunuch in a black frock coat and red fez, who gave me the shivers as he clutched my arm with his sable paw.

Inside the hall I was met by a crowd of female slaves, who helped me to remove my wraps. They varied in age from 15 to 40; some of them were negresses, but the majority were Circassians.

The latter are supposed to be the most beautiful of all Turkish women, on which account the slaves of the sultan are always selected from among them; but in this instance I looked in vain for any trace of good looks, and, indeed, could hardly help smiling at the comic effect they produced, dressed up to the nines in the latest Paris fashions, executed by local dressmakers.

Misleads Horse Buyer.

"Deacon" Snow, who recently died in Provincetown at a good old age, was one of the shrewdest horse traders on the cape. He once had a horse which showed a rooted aversion to covering more than three miles an hour.

A customer who liked the appearance of the animal had about concluded to purchase, and asked if he was a good traveler. The "deacon," assuming a confidential tone, said: "Mr. Jones, you'll certainly be pleased to see that horse go."

The bargain was made and the new owner drove away. The next morning bright and early he appeared on the scene in a great rage. "See her," he cried, addressing the "deacon." "I thought you told me this horse was a great traveler?"

"Never said authin' of the kind," was the quiet reply.

"What in thunderation did you say, then?"

"I said you'd certainly be pleased to see that horse go, and so would any one else, I guess, that owned him."

Sent Out by Express.

A few years ago a banquet was given the delegates to the convention which had that day nominated Hon. Otis M. Gove, of Waltham, Mass., for the state senate.

Several of the delegation had spoken in very flattering terms of the nominee, of his native city and his famous watch industries, whose products were so well known everywhere.

The last speaker, ex-Mayor Baxter, of Medford, began by saying: "Gentlemen, we have listened to the glowing accounts of the industries of Waltham, whose products are so well known everywhere. But don't forget that Medford also has industries of her own, the products of which I venture to say are as well known to the good people of Waltham as those of her own beloved city."

The Number of Our Hairs.

According to a well known medical authority fair-haired people possess commonly between 140,000 and 150,000 hairs on the scalp, the number being about the same for man and woman. Dark haired people have, on an average, about 105,000, while red haired people are said to have only 30,000. But the last apparently possesses one great advantage in the fact that they retain their hair better, seldom becoming bald. Their hair is much coarser than that of dark or fair haired persons.

Easy Matter.

Why do women always manage to have the last word?" asked the man of petty considerations.

"Possibly," answered his satirical spouse, "because men insist on yelling at baseball games and elections, until their voices are useless."

K. D. MEMORIAL SERVICE

Benevolent Band Holds Service in Memory of Mrs. Margaret Bottome.

SEVERAL ADDRESSES

Mrs. Mead and Mrs. Myers Sketch History of Local Branches—Mrs. Reed Tells of the Work.

Impressive services in memory of Mrs. Margaret Bottome, for many years the president of the International Order of The King's Daughters, were held in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church Saturday afternoon, under the auspices of Benevolent Band of The King's Daughters. There was a large attendance of members and friends of the various circles in this city and borough. The service was also in the nature of a review of the work of the order in Plainfield since its organization in 1886.

Mrs. William Myers presided and the Scripture lesson was read by Rev. Dr. John C. Bliss, at the time pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church. Mrs. John C. Bliss spoke of the early days of the order here and of the part taken in the organization by Miss Lucy Myers. Then Mrs. Frederick G. Mead, who has been prominently identified with the work, spoke more especially of the organization in 1886 with the formation of Charity Circle, of which she was the president. Then followed the organization of the other circles until it was decided to form a City Union of King's Daughters. This was accomplished at the Y. M. C. A. and it was the first city union organized. At that time Mrs. Isabelle Charles Davis, who was one of the speakers Saturday, was present and assisted in the details. Mrs. Mead briefly referred to the work for the Children's Home, the hospital bed, the employment of a city nurse, that position now being held by Miss Olive DeLany for seven years, the establishment of a dispensary, the baby camp on the mountain and that of The Day Camp, the latest charity work undertaken by the King's Daughters.

Mrs. Charles A. Reed, president of the City Union, gave a resume of the work accomplished during the past few years. She told of the great result from the baby camp on the mountain, where many sick babies were cured and of the benefit to the mothers who were permitted to remain at the camp with their babies. It was found necessary to restrict the camp to Plainfield children only, although applications were received from Scotch Plains, Cranford, Elizabeth and other places in the State.

Many interesting cases were cited in the care of the children and then the speaker referred to the establishment of The Day Nursery, suggested by Mrs. A. E. Fisher. This is located at 444 West Third street, and was opened January 1, 1906. Mrs. Reed stated that 4,000 children were cared for during the past year, there being as many as thirty children there on one day. Mrs. Reed said that there are now eleven circles in the City Union, with a total membership of about 400.

After a solo, Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar," by Everett Marshall Waterhouse, of New York, Mrs. Isabelle Charles Davis was introduced and she gave a charming talk on the life and work of Mrs. Margaret Bottome. Mrs. Davis was closely associated with the late leader of the King's Daughters for a quarter of a century and was particularly well fitted to speak concerning her. She related many personal reminiscences and experiences she had while working with Mrs. Bottome, remarking that the latter in all her Christian experience never came to a place where she needed courage to do a certain task. She never knew what physical suffering was until even at the time of her death, when she was past seventy years of age, always appeared as a person of sixteen years.

Mrs. Davis cited an instance showing how Mrs. Bottome was always ready with an answer to defend her Master and the Word of God. She was attending a dinner at which was a scientist. During the course of the dinner, the scientist said to Mrs. Bottome, "Why you don't believe in the Bible, do you?" Whereupon Mrs. Bottome replied: "Why, of course, I do, I know the author." The reply was effective and ended the conversation on that point.

Among the strong points of Mrs. Bottome referred to by Mrs. Davis was that while she might not always have been a leader she was an inspiration. She stood for hope, courage, joy and immortality. She described her last hours on earth most feelingly, and said that not even today do the King's Daughters realize that she is dead, so great is her influence.

In conclusion Mrs. Davis spoke regretfully of the fact that there is no State organization of the order in New Jersey, no State secretary, and that while the members in Plainfield are doing a grand work the State is far in the rear among the other States. As a result of this statement some of the members were greatly stirred and a determined effort will be made to form a State organization, the plan being to hold the first convention in Plainfield. Mrs. Davis asked for the privilege of being in charge of the organization. After the preliminary work a date will be set for the convention, which will probably last two days.

REV. AUDLEY J. BLISS WILL RECEIVE A CALL

RAHWAY PASTOR WANTED TO SUCCEED REV. E. E. ROBERSON

Rev. Dr. Halleron, presiding elder of the Elizabeth District, of the Newark Conference, was in Plainfield Sunday, and in addition to occupying the pulpit in the First M. E. church, took advantage of the opportunity to meet with the official board of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, with a view to helping that church in the selection of a pastor to succeed Rev. E. E. Roberson, who has been called to the M. E. church at Orange.

The late call from Orange to Mr. Roberson left the Monroe Avenue church in a rather peculiar condition, as there was only a couple of weeks intervening before the meeting of the conference at Morristown and the time was limited in deciding upon a successor.

After the conference between the official board and Dr. Halleron it was decided by a public vote of the congregation last night to extend a call to Rev. Audley J. Bliss, now pastor of the M. E. church at Rahway. A committee from the church will call on Mr. Bliss tonight and formally present the call, leaving the rest to the Bishop. However, there seems to be little doubt but that the arrangement will be satisfactory. Mr. Bliss was formerly at Bloomsbury and is now completing his third year at Rahway. He is about thirty-five years old and in the opinion of those who know him and the conditions at the Monroe Avenue church he will be a worthy successor to Mr. Roberson.

TOLD TO KEEP HIS WIFE'S MOTHER FROM HOUSE.

Advice by Judge Runyon for Unhappy Married Man—Health Board to Investigate.

Frank Conger, arrested Sunday on complaint of his wife, who charged him with disorderly conduct, told Judge Runyon in the City Court Monday that his home was upset by his wife's mother. She interfered, and helped his wife get and stay drunk, he said.

Chief Kiely corroborated Conger's statement. The chief said he would have arrested the wife when she came to headquarters Sunday to make complaint, but for the fact that she had a young child with her. The chief said the Conger home was wretchedly kept, and in such condition as to have drawn complaint from the Organized Aid Association agent. He said he intended to bring it to the attention of the Board of Health. The house is at 417 Cottage place. Patrick Kane, the owner, was in court when the chief made his announcement. He said the mother-in-law kept the wife from conducting the rooms as she should.

Judge Runyon told Conger to bar his mother-in-law from the place, and to keep all money from his wife's hands. Conger works steadily. Sentence was suspended.

Tony Creoli Miscalculates.

Tony Creoli, an Italian living on Race street, attempted to catch on the borough electric cars Monday as it swung around from Somerset street into Lincoln place, Saturday night. Tony evidently miscalculated by about six seconds as instead of catching the step the end of one of the ladder's struck him a terrific crack on the side of the head. He was knocked twenty feet away and when picked up by Frank Neidig and a couple of other bystanders was unconscious. He was taken to his home and finally came to under administrations of a physician. Today Tony has a badly lacerated face to show where it came in contact with the ladder.

Miss Jessamine Burd Engaged.

Miss Jessamine Burd, of Somerville, contralto, has been engaged by the First Presbyterian church for the coming year, beginning May 1. She has been a pupil of Miss Kate Opdyke, of Somerville, and Mme. Renaud, of New York, and has a contralto voice of exceptional strength and sweetness. Miss Anna Case, of Neshanic, who has been engaged as soprano soloist, is now ill with the grip, but will assume her new position on Sunday, April 7. Miss Edna Nicholl, the present contralto at the church, will remain until May 1, at which time her year is up. Clifford A. Braider, organist, is arranging for a special musical service on April 7, and during the coming year there will be special musical programmes on the first Sunday of each month.

The Simple Life.

In my wanderings on foot when I walk through the provinces of Europe and talk to the people and fish and learn I find that what people lack most in life is simplicity, the poor man is well as the rich." It consists not in plain dress, but in plain living, in simplicity of heart, of personal beliefs and respect for the beliefs of others.—Rev. Charles Wagner.

PALM SUNDAY SERVICES

Congregations Pack St. Mary's and St. Joseph's Churches at High Mass.

BISHOP AT ST. STEPHEN'S

Episcopal Prelate Confirms a Class of Seven—Candidates From Grace Church Among Those Who Are Confirmed.

Palm Sunday was observed in the churches Sunday, with especial solemnity in the Catholic and Episcopal churches, to which the day was of marked significance as the beginning of what is Holy Week in their calendars. The services in the ritualistic churches were as prescribed by their laws; the Episcopal ministers preached sermons appropriate to the day and the priests of the Catholic churches read the Passion as set forth by St. Matthew, which is required on Palm Sunday. The churches and the altars were decorated with palms, and at the Catholic churches palms were blessed and strips were distributed to the worshippers. Many of the young men among the latter made small crosses of the palm and wore them in their hats or lapels.

In spite of the raw weather the worshippers attended in large numbers. St. Mary's and St. Joseph's churches were crowded at the high mass.

The morning worshippers at St. Mary's numbered not less than 1,500. Masses were celebrated hourly from 6:30 o'clock until 10:30 o'clock; the solemn high celebration was held at the latter hour. Rev. Father Vincent Sciolla was the celebrant. Edmund Walsh, a bass singer of unusual talent, sang "The Palms" in Latin at that service.

At St. Joseph's church two masses were celebrated, at 8:30 o'clock and 10:30 o'clock. The church was packed at the latter service. Rev. Father William Miller, the rector, was the celebrant. A feature of the service was a procession of 100 children bearing palms.

The usual services were held at Grace and Holy Cross P. E. churches. At the former Rev. R. W. Stevenson, the rector, and at the latter Rev. George A. Warner, the rector, preached Palm Sunday sermons. The morning services were largely attended. The choirs sang special anthems with marked success.

The day was especially noteworthy at St. Stephen's P. E. church by reason of a visit from Bishop Scarborough, head of the diocese, at the high service. It was his regular Episcopal visitation and he found a class of seven adults awaiting confirmation. The church was filled by the congregation.

One of the candidates was from Grace church; the bishop will not visit Grace until fall. The Grace candidate was presented by Rev. Erskine M. Rodgers, rector emeritus of Grace.

Bishop Scarborough preached. He spoke on Palm Sunday lines, dwelling on the necessity for the people to hold themselves in readiness to receive and welcome Christ. The musical feature of the service was the singing an anthem by E. A. Sprowl.

JAILED ON WIFE'S COMPLAINT.

Former Plainfielder Gets In Trouble at New Brunswick.

William Ford, a newspaper man who formerly resided in this city, is in the Middlesex county jail on complaint of his wife, Amy G. Ford, of New Brunswick, who charged that he threatened to do her bodily harm. The threats are alleged to have been made several weeks ago.

It is understood that Ford found his wife with a young man of Highland Park and attacked him. Mrs. Ford, who claims that nothing happened to which her husband could have taken exception, says that her husband threatened her and has persistently annoyed her since then, though she has tried to keep out of his way.

Special Officer Conrad Haberman arrested Ford and Justice Housell sent him to jail in default of bail.

Fitzsimmons Home for a Week.

Former Champion "Bob" Fitzsimmons and his company played an engagement in a "Fight for Love" at the New Brunswick Opera House, Saturday night, after which they closed for Holy Week. After the show "Bob" streaked it for Dunellen, where he will remain until the tour begins again next Monday. He was in town today and to a Press reporter declared it made a new man of him to see Plainfield once again. The company was to have played a matinee at New Brunswick, but was prevented by the scenery getting lost on its way down from Columbia, Pa.

Orange the Champion.

Orange won the championship in the Y. M. C. A. basketball league Saturday night, by defeating Montclair in the play-off on a tie at the Newark Y. M. C. A. The score was 31 to 13. Physical Director G. L. Listman, of the Plainfield association, umpired. Plainfield finished with a tie for last place with Rahway. The disputed game with the Rahway team will not be played over.

IMPROVING HOLLY TRACT

New York Man Plans Automobile Bus Service to 100 Acre Building Site.

MR. WENDEL PROMOTER

Building a Large Lake—To Divide Property Into Lots—A Club Stable.

Another improvement in the general plan to make Plainfield "the greatest suburban city in the United States," is now underway on the John I. Holly farm on Park avenue, which has been named Holly Park. Milton Mendel, a New York lawyer, purchased this tract of one hundred acres, together with the house and farm buildings, several months ago. Since then the property has been undergoing great repairs. Mr. Mendel is attracting others to the place and already several New Yorkers have arranged to purchase portions of the tract upon which to build homes for themselves. Among those who will locate there are G. W. Adams, cashier of the Oriental Bank, of New York; Mr. Aaron, president of the New York Belting and Packing Company, and Henry W. Sherman, a retired New York business man.

It is Mr. Mendel's intention to build a lake on the property, 1,200 feet long and later 2,000 feet. From the present body of water over 500 tons of ice was harvested last winter. Mr. Mendel not only wants to make the lake a source of profit in winter, but plans to have it used in the summer for boating and fishing. A well has been driven on the place fifty-five feet in depth and there is now forty feet of water in it. There is also a well 130 feet deep near the house, where a fine quality of water is found.

As soon as the proposed new houses are erected fine club stables will be built there where those desiring to keep horses may do so without putting up separate barns. There will be a community of interest in maintaing the stables. Another improvement planned is the operation of two automobiles between Plainfield and Metuchen by the way of South Plainfield. Two men have offered to contribute $5,000 each toward putting these autos into commission. They will be operated on a schedule that will give residents along the line almost as good service as the trolley.

In laying out the grounds and building new houses the park idea will be maintained, it being the object to retain all the natural beauties of the country with modern conveniences. Gas and electric lights are available in that section and Mr. Mendel proposes to have water mains at least a mile and a half in length through which he will pump water by electricity to adjoining residences.

In speaking of his improvements, Mr. Menday today said, "The trouble is that these people of Plainfield have no idea of the natural beauty and advantages to be found in such a place as Plainfield and vicinity. They will locate in the upper part of New York or Long Island, where they are obliged to put up with all sorts of inconveniences as to train service, etc., while within twenty-five or thirty miles of New York are to be found ideal places for residences. Plainfield is good enough for me and I intend to remain here.

FOR HOME MISSIONS.

Liberal Offering By Congregationalists In Response to Appeal.

Annual offerings for home mission work were received at the Congregational church Sunday. Rev. W. G. Puddefoot, of South Framingham, Mass., one of the field secretaries, was at the church and presented the needs of the workers.

He spoke at the morning service, before the Sunday-school in the afternoon, and at the Young People's meeting in the evening. He told of the field and the labors of the mission workers with graphic force, dwelling especially on the western field. He was so successful in his presentation of the demands of the work as to draw one of the largest collections the congregation has turned in. The collection will be held open for several days.

Women Reading Nasty News.

In an address at the morning service Sunday, Rev. George A. Warner, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, said some sharp things of women who appear to relish reading the disgusting accounts of a famous murder trial case now on trial in New York. He declared that he had reliable information that women buy up copies of the New York afternoon papers containing the worst features of the case and take such papers to their homes. The example of Christ purifying the Temple furnished him an opportunity to point a moral in this connection.

Mayor Sells Former Residence.

Through George F. Brown's agency, C. H. Rugg, of the borough, on Saturday purchased Mayor Newton B. Smalley's former residence on Myrtle avenue and also M. H. Cleaves' property at 325 Codington avenue. The Smalley place sold for a figure around $12,000.

GOSSIPERS AS A MENACE

Christianity Impossible while Idle Story Bearers Continue Their Practice.

REV. MR. HOWARD'S TALK

Hope Chapel's Pastor Preached Strong Sermon On "Gossip and Lying" Last Night.

Rev. L. R. Howard, pastor of Hope chapel, concluded his series of special Lenten sermons on "What to Oppose" in Sunday evening's service, his topic being, "Gossip and Lying." Like its predecessors, it was filled with pointed truths and brought to his congregation a realization of these despicable habits.

Mr. Howard took his text from Proverbs xx:18-20: "As a madman who casteth firebrands, arrows and death, so is the man that deceiveth his neighbor, and saith, am not I in sport? Where no wood is, there the fire goeth out; so where there is no talebearer, the strife ceaseth." The clergyman declared that lying gossip is worse than a madman as the former is more harmful and more dangerous to control. Madmen may be restrained by law and put away for the good of the community and people would be better off in many ways if the same thing could be done with bearers of malicious tales, concocted for no other purpose than to cause someone an injury.

Mr. Howard compared the gossipers with other trouble-makers that he had mentioned in his preceding sermons and declared that the former are filled with meanness and untruth. Christianity is impossible while the practice continues and the only way to break people of it is by changing their hearts. Gossip he described as any idle story that causes harm and while the kind that is passed from mouth to mouth is the more common, illustrations of the same thing are frequently to be found in the newspapers. Articles built up on the flimsiest kind of a foundation frequently cause international complications and as an instance he quoted the recent Japanese affair in California. Men are sometimes worse than women in being fonder of tales and declared anyone can recall an instance where incalculable harm has been done by it.

The pastor asserted that those who hear gossip can do a great deal to stop it as the miserable stories would be short lived if no one passed them on. When one is manufactured and told with malicious intent, he said, it is the duty of the person receiving it to rebuke the author and show by every action how contemptible a thing it is. In concluding, he referred to those who were living gossip but asserted that nothing unpure can hurt a man's character and that sooner or later a groundless story would redound upon the head of the author.

The Sphinx's Riddle.

The riddle which the sphinx propounded to the Thebans and the solution of which she made a condition of her withdrawal from the state was as follows: "What animal has one voice, at first four, then two and at last three feet?" Oedipus discovered the answer to be "man," who in infancy, from using his hands and well as feet in walking, may be said to have four feet (fours), in after life employs but two, and in old age to those he adds a staff, which may be deckoned a third. Upon this solution being given the sphinx is said to have thrown herself headlong from the citadel.

BOYS' COMPETITION.

Final Standing of the First Ten; Conroy the Winner.

The final standing of the first ten in the boys' athletic championship competition at the Y. M. C. A. is as follows:

Conroy, 436; R. Miller, 366; Vail, 331; Richardson, 292; Lindsey, 281; Cowperthwaite, 192; Carson, 175; Hamilton, 110; Love, 95; Vanderbeek, 81.

The first five get ribbons. Thirty-six boys competed.

Augustus Dangler to Marry.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Brown, of Long Branch, have issued invitations for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Blanche H. Brown, and Augustus Dangler, on Tuesday afternoon, April 2, at 4 o'clock, at the home of the bride's parents, Overton place, Long Branch. Mr. Dangler formerly resided here, where he was engaged as a clerk at B. J. Schreiner's pharmacy.

Yale Musical Clubs Coming.

Arrangements have been made for the appearance at the Casino on Friday night, April 26, of the Yale Glee and Musical Clubs. This event is being looked forward to with much interest and pleasure. The concert will be given under the auspices of the Plainfield Yale Club and will be followed by a dance.

DEMENTED NEWARKER IS SENT TO JAIL

TEN DAYS' QUIET, IT IS THOUGHT, WILL RESTORE MENTAL POISE.

The demented young man who was taken to the police station Saturday afternoon after he had tried to undress on Watchung avenue, has been identified as Albert Levy, of Newark. He became rational, Saturday, while under examination by Dr. C. B. Lufburrow and told how he lost his mental balance. He was struck by a train in Perth Amboy several years ago, and injured about the head. He has been in Morris Plains asylum and in a number of hospitals in and about New York. He loses his wits only at times. He is harmless.

He is known to the police of Newark, who have had him on their hands several times.

Levy refused to give the address of his wife or stepfather, beyond saying they lived in Orange Valley. He said he was afraid they might have him put away." He was arraigned before Judge Runyon Monday morning on a technical charge of disorder, and sentenced to ten days in jail. It is believed ten days of the quiet routine of the jail will restore his balance. He had $6 in his pockets when arrested, and will be able to care for himself financially when released.

SANG "THE CRUCIFIXION" AT GRACE P. E. CHURCH.

Sacred Cantata Well Rendered Under Direction of William E. MacClymont.

The sacred cantata, "The Crucifixion," by Sir John Stainer, was sung by the choir of Grace Protestant Episcopal church Monday night. The work was splendidly rendered, and its impressiveness was felt by a large congregation. William F. MacClymont, the choirmaster and organist, directed the singing.

The work of the soloists was unusually effective. Mrs. Theodore Mantz, soprano; William J. Tallamy, tenor; Arthur Chamberlain, baritone; W. R. Hill, baritone, and J. C. Martin, bass, sang in excellent voice, and each of them did much to make the rendition so effective.

A Quaint Story.

The Irish solicitor general, speaking of the value of dog upon delusions, told a story of a north of Ireland Protestant who was perfectly sane save on one point. This staunch Protestant harbored the delusion that one of his legs belonged to a Roman Catholic, and therefore when he went to bed every night he used to leave the Catholic leg outside the blanket by way of punishment.

Sidewalk Rider Fined.

Frank Utzinger, a special delivery messenger attached to the local postoffice, was arrested in the borough Saturday for riding his wheel on the sidewalk. Numerous complaints had been made about him and he had been warned to quit the practice but without result. Recorder Dolliver fined him $1.

$350,000 FOR HOUSES

To be Built in Westfield and Garwood During Coming Summer.

PLANNING A BIG BOOM

Central Railroad of New Jersey May Be Behind the Undertaking.

—P. W. Morse Is Interested.

Plans are out and bids are being made for the building of 100 houses in Westfield and Garwood that are to be constructed soon by J. S. Maxwell, who is connected with the Central Railroad of New Jersey. They are all to be residences, and all one family houses. Some are to be of two stories and some will be of the bungalow type. P. W. Morse, former Mayor of Garwood, who represent Mr. Maxwell, and will have charge of the building. The houses will be of cement construction and cement coating. The suggestion has been made that the Central Railroad is behind the plan to build the houses with a view to developing the commuter traffic. Nothing has been learned to credit this belief or discredit it.

The cost of the houses will range from $2,500 each to $4,500, making an average cost of $3,500, and a total expenditure of $350,000. Just as soon as the contractors are selected work will be started and pushed as rapidly as possible, so that the 100 houses will likely be completed before the summer is over. The plans have been drawn by Oakley & Son, of this city.

Mr. Oakley has been right busy with plans for other houses in this city and out of town. Santiago Portella, of Crescent, has undertaken four costly additions to his residence. Oscar Frommel, a New York merchant, has purchased 10 acres at High Bridge near the place of ex-Governor Voorhees, and he has had plans drawn for an extensive summer home that is to cost about $75,000. The building will be on top of a hill, and will have a view of all the surrounding country.

CONSTITUTION DRAFTED.

CHARITIES CONSOLIDATION.

Relief and Organized Aid Associations Are To Be Merged Next Month.

The committees from the Plainfield Relief Association and the Charity Organized Aid Association, appointed to draft a constitution to be considered and adopted by the members of the two organizations in accordance with the plans of the merger, have completed their work, and it is expected that the constitution will be presented at a meeting to be held next month.

At that time all the details of the merger will be decided upon, as well as the name to be chosen for the combined organization. It is believed that the work of the two societies were practically identical and that in some cases charity work was being duplicated. It was then suggested that a merger be made. The idea was favorably considered by each organization and by vote it was decided that there should be consolidation. Then followed the appointment of committees to draft a new constitution. It is the opinion of all the members that under the new plan the organizations will do far more work and will be able to eliminate much unnecessary effort heretofore made by the charity workers.

GRANTED ABSOLUTE DIVORCE.

Application of Augustus Blume Acted On By Vice Chancellor Today.

In the Chancery Court at Newark, Thursday, Vice Chancellor Stevens granted an absolute decree of divorce to August C. Blume, of this city, against his wife, Mary L. Blume. Statutory grounds were named in the petition with Edward Fogarty, a former Westfield policeman, as co-respondent.

The petition had been heard previously and at that time the wife made application for alimony, and counsel fees. The court refused the alimony but granted fees to the lawyer. The petitioner renewed his application for absolute divorce without this payment and when the matter was called today neither the defendant or her counsel appeared. The Chancellor called the case before him, and after hearing the testimony gave the decree favorable to the petitioner.

Mr. Blume was represented by Paul G. Oliver, of Westfield, assisted by Craig A. Marsh, of Hudson county, while an Elizabeth lawyer had been retained by the defendant.

MAYOR MAKING DIGEST OF 2D CLASS CITY LAWS

ARTHUR MURPHY ENGAGED IN THE WORK UNDER MR. FISK'S DIRECTION.

For the purpose of thoroughly acquainting himself with all the laws and ordinances affecting the many city departments in second class cities, Mayor Charles J. Fisk has engaged Lawyer Arthur Murphy to compile in convenient form such sections of the laws and ordinances under which the city government is conducted. Mr. Murphy has been busily employed on this work for several weeks.

The research includes laws relating to the police and fire department, streets and sewers, finance, lights and trees, alms, licenses, and in fact every one of the city departments. There has been a more or less vague idea as to the application to these laws in second class cities, but it is Mr. Fisk's idea to have them put in such shape that ready reference will be possible.

He is also having the laws referring to the granting of franchises to public utility corporations and their rights and privileges, the whole to be carefully compiled so that he will know exactly the relationship between the city and corporations operating here. This was no doubt brought about as a result of the investigation now being made concerning the water supply of the city, and the possible acquisition of an independent supply for the city.

The extracts of the laws affecting second class cities are now being put in typewritten form, but it is quite likely that they will be printed and put in a book or pamphlet form of a more endurable character.

DELIGHTFUL RECEPTION FOR PASTOR AND WIFE

CONGREGATION ATTENDS FUNCTIONS IN HONOR DR. AND MRS. CHAMBLISS.

The annual reception of the members of the First Baptist church and congregation to Rev. Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Chambliss, held Thursday in the Sunday-school room, proved a delightful social affair. There were no formalities and the large number of people present spent a pleasant evening. The room was attractively decorated, chiefly with beautiful flowers from the conservatories of Charles W. McCutchen. These included American Beauty and other kinds of roses, while a number of palms were furnished by Mrs. L. J. Denton.

Dr. and Mrs. Chambliss received the guests, assisted by these wives of the officers of the church: Mrs. E. L. Bonny, Mrs. George H. Batchelor, Mrs. George Sherwood, Mrs. Charles Shreve, Mrs. Samuel P. Case, Mrs. T. B. Aldrich, Mrs. Reuben Knox, Mrs. Frank Jones, Mrs. S. St. John McCutchen, Mrs. L. V. F. Randolph, Mrs. J. Herbert Case, Mrs. L. W. Randolph, Mrs. T. S. Armstrong, Mrs. David J. Yerkes, wife of the former pastor, was also among those who received the best wishes of the church people with whom she has been associated many years. The greetings sent to the new pastor and his wife and people was hearty, showing the cordial relations existing between them. Mrs. Chambliss was the recipient of beautiful flowers from the women of the church. The forepart of the evening was devoted to receiving the guests, and an added feature was a fine programme by the Sagamore Musical Club. Later in the evening refreshments were served under the direction of several committees.

Mrs. A. J. Shreve was the general chairman of the affair; Mrs. George H. Robins secretary, and Mrs. J. Herbert Case treasurer. The refreshment committee comprised Mrs. Samuel St. John McCutchen, chairman; Mrs. Harold Serrell, Mrs. George H. Robins, Mrs. George H. Batchelor, Mrs. W. R. Codington, Mrs. S. W. Dunning and Mrs. Walter C. Dobbins. They were assisted by these waitresses, the Misses Ada Fountain, Pauline Denton, Helen Robins, Annis Kinsman, Helen Armstrong, Margaret Chambliss, Bessie Flanders, Marion Hall, Marguerite Serrell, Josephine Serrell, Elizabeth McGee, Marion Rocap, Amy Moore, Ethel Leland, Jean Adams, Marguerite Lee, Mabel Cubberly, Ethel King, Arline Carver, Edna Crocee, Bertha Miles, Hazel Grant, and Adelaide Harrison.

The decorating committee comprised Mrs. Walter M. McGee, chairman; Mrs. Edward W. Wilson, Miss May Shreve, Miss Ella Serrell, Miss Ida Yerkes and Miss Pauline Denton. Mrs. George A. Chapman and Mrs. Robert Lowry arranged for the music and Mrs. Harold Serrell planned for the flowers. Others who assisted were Mrs. Frank W. Jones, Mrs. J. A. Powlison, Mrs. George White, Mrs. Charles H. Smith, Mrs. George F. Brown and Mrs. Reuben Knox.

Counsel for Newark Firm.

With Francis J. Blatz, of this city, as counsel, the Champion Paste Company, of Newark, has sued Susskind & Son, also of Newark, in the Newark District Court. The case will be heard next Friday.

SEAMON SON CO. FAILS

Contracting Firm Building Telephone Structures Makes an Assignment.

AND THE WORK STOPS

Will Pay Local Creditors Dollar for Dollar—Workingmen Paid In Full.

Notice was given to creditors and employes in this city, Thursday, that the L. W. Seaman Son Company, of Brooklyn, which has been erecting the new telephone building on East Fourth street, had made an assignment. A representative of the firm came to Plainfield and paid off in full all the workmen on the telephone structure. He also visited the creditors, most of whom have supplied materials, and stated that the company's embarassment is only temporary and that within a short time the affairs will be righted. He declared that every claim would eventually be paid in full.

The suspension of the firm's business will delay the completion of the telephone building but very little as it would have been finished inside of two months. At the present time the upper floors are in the hands of the telephone men who are installing the wires and switchboards and the Seaman employees were only engaged in completing the ground floor. An official of the telephone company said today that in the event of the contractors finding it impossible to go ahead they would take hold of the work themselves.

The Seaman Son Company is a Brooklyn concern and has put up a large number of telephone buildings for the New York and New Jersey Company. At the present time, in addition to the Plainfield structure, it is erecting a much larger one for the same people in Flushing, L. I. The contract price for the local building was about $52,000. The Seamans took it entire and sub-let the heating, plumbing, etc., to local firms, though a member of the concern has exercised entire supervision. The Seamans are one of the biggest building companies in Greater New York and frequently take contracts at $1,000,000 and over.

REV. MR. BRIDWELL SAYS WE ARE TOO PROUD

AND THAT OUR PASTORS SQUIRT COLOGNE AT US.

Rev. C. W. Bridwell, the Denver exhorter brought here by the Pillar of Fire folk to lead their campaign in Plainfield, spoke again Thursday at a meeting in Reform Hall. He scolded the churches and society. His audience was large enough to fill the lower floor; many colored people were in it.

Mr. Bridwell said Christ couldn't be sure of a welcome anywhere in Plainfield, if He came. The great majority of the homes would not receive Him and not one of the churches.

Mr. Bridwell launched forth against the town and became rather breathless before he finished. He said Plainfield was full of nasty, low, mean and contemptible pride, cursed with so-called aristocracy. What, in the name of High Heaven, Mr. Bridwell wanted to know, had Plainfielders of which to be proud? The fact that they had blue blood and belonged to the bon ton tea-drinking set would not save them from hell.

Mr. Bridwell said the pastors of Plainfield were too easy on the people. They squirted cologne. He, Bridwell of Denver, who had traveled 2,000 miles without money and without price, didn't purpose to squirt cologne. Then he went on to substantiate his declaration of independence.

One of the brethren who seemed to be in charge told a reporter that the meetings might be continued after Sunday. They would be held until Sunday, at least, and there was a chance that the crusade would be carried on for another week.

WANTS PLAINFIELD SCENES.

Jamestown Fair Man Asks Postmaster For Local Pictures.

With ninety-nine other men in similar positions, Postmaster E. M. Bird has been asked to send pictures of local scenes to Francis B. Lee, New Jersey's representative at the Jamestown exposition. Mr. Lee asks for postcards, or pictures of any kind, showing buildings of historic interest or local scenes of more than passing attractiveness.

Mr. Lee made the request after efforts to secure such a collection from dealers in postcards or photographs in Trenton, had failed. The replies to the letters sent out are expected to form a most interesting and instructive pictorial array of matter relating to the State.

Blue Ribbon Club Dance.

The Blue Ribbon Social Club will hold a dance in T. A. B. Hall on April 5. John Caulfield is chairman of the committee of arrangements.

TELLS THE PASTOR TO GIVE UP HIS PULPIT

PILLAR OF EBENEZER CHURCH SERVES NOTICE ON REV. MR. MORRIS.

Rev. P. T. Morris, pastor of the Ebenezer Baptist church, has been served with the following notice:

"Dear Bro.—Your services are not any longer needed as pastor of the Ebenezer Baptist church.

"Respectfully,

"PRINE YETTMAN,

"Trustee."

Mr. Yettman says Rev. Mr. Morris has not been serving the congregation in a way satisfactory to the eight "pillars" of the church. Mr. Yettman is a pillar. Mr. Morris is said to have given more attention to the former members of Calvary Baptist church who followed him to the Ebenezer church after his trouble over the Calvary pastorate than to the founders, the pillars, of the church. So the pillars met, Mr. Yettman says, and delegated him the task of apprising Mr. Morris with the fact that he was to go.

Ebenezer church is a small organization, and meets in a store on East Third street. It was founded by survivors of the defunct Filmore Baptist church, which was evicted by Aleck Kane.

JUNIORS' MINSTRELS GIVE INITIAL SHOW

FRANKLIN COUNCIL'S TROUPE APPLAUDED BY LARGE AUDIENCE.

Talented members of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., provided a minstrel entertainment for friends of the organization Thursday night, and made a reputation for themselves that will last a long time. The audience was one of the largest that has ever been in Junior Hall and proof that it was pleased was found in hearty applause and spontaneous laughter.

The curtain was thrown back on the customary semi-circle, and all the members being in blackface and appropriate costume. William C. Smith, Jr., presided at the piano and under his direction the musical numbers were rendered faultlessly. Harry Knight was in the center as interlocutor and the end men were George D. Wilson and Harry Hoffman, bones; William J. Firstbrook and Joseph M. Sweeney, tambos. In this part the following numbers were rendered: "The Songs of the Rag Time Boys," "Darkies and men;" "Goodbye, Mr. Greenback," Harry H. Hoffman; "When the Sonwbirds Cross the Valley," Clarence Rittenhouse: "Niggah Lubs His Possum," Joseph M. Sweeny; "In the Old Familiar Book Down by the Window," Harry Knight; "I've Got a Vacant Room in My Heart For You," William J. Firstbrook; "I Kinder Likes to Have You Fussin' Round," George D. Wilson: "He's a Cousin of Mine," George Townley; "I'm a Man in the Moon Were a Coon," Firstbrook and Wilson; finale, "Good-bye Dicy," entire company.

Following the first part, olio numbers were furnished by Ira C. Bowers, Plainfield's popular song and dance artist; Clarence Stewarts and George D. Wilson, who gave a monologue, "Is Everybody Happy?" The entertainment closed with an afterpiece entitled "No Pay—No Cure," in which William J. Firstbrook, Harry H. Hoffman and Harry Knight took the principal parts and William Hartpence, George Townley, LeRoy DeCamp and Bordman Mosher acted as patients.

The show was arranged by the good and welfare committee of the council, composed of LeRoy DeCamp, chairman; William J. Firstbrook, George D. Wilson, Ephraim Compton and Clarence Bilyeu. The troupe was instructed and rehearsed by William C. Smith, Jr., to whom credit is due for the greater part of the entertainment's success. Russel Hazzard acted as stage manager and in addition to the interlocutor and end men the chorus was composed of the following: LeRoy DeCamp, Stephen Millwater, Borman Mosher, Budd Strader, Clarence Rittenhouse, William Hartpence, Clarence Bilyeu, George Rittenhouse and Joseph Penbrook.

Transfers of Real Estate.

The following transfers of real estate in the borough and township of North Plainfield were duly recorded in the County Clerk's office since January 1: Margaret S. Cadmas and husband to Marcus L. Clawson, $1; Laura Boorman to Eloise L. Hodgkin, $1; Ida M. E. Musgrave to Elizabeth M. Leonard, $1; John J. Heidelloff et ux. to Amanda I. King, $6,600; Annette Beeching et al. to Margaret E. Johnson, $1.

WOMEN HUNT FOR NEGRO

Wallace Had Terrorized One of Them, After Behaving Indecently.

SIXTY DAYS IN JAIL

After Gross Behavior the Man Tried to Force His Way Into House Where Unprotected Woman Was.

For acting in an indecent manner and terrorizing a woman, Grant Wallace, colored, who describes himself as a hod-carrier, 25 years old, living at Cranford, was sent to the county jail by City Judge Runyon Friday morning for sixty days.

Mrs. Patrick Connolly, whose home is near that of George H. Burgess, of 1057 Central avenue, where her husband is employed, telephoned for the police from the Burgess house Thursday morning at 11 o'clock. She said the negro had been acting in a disorderly way about her house for fully a half an hour. Roundsman Higgins and Driver O'Gorman went out in answer to the call in the patrol wogan, and ran Wallace down near Mrs. Connolly's house.

When the policemen reached the scene several of the domesties in the Burgess house and women of the neighborhood had armed themselves with brooms, pokers and mops, and were just starting out after the negro with Mrs. Connolly. She had seized a poker when she first realized that the negro was on his mischief. Wallace had been cornered, and Higgins said he stood a good chance of rough usage as the patrol wagon came up. Wallace ran from the officers, but was caught without much trouble.

Mrs. Connolly told the court that Wallace, after acting in a filthy manner, had sought to force an entrance to the house. Seizing a poker with which to protect herself, she fled to the Burgess residence, and telephoned to the police.

Wallace told a whining story of sudden illness to Judge Runyon, but Chief Kiely discredited it with a statement from Dunellen residents, who had reported that a negro answering Wallace's description had behaved in a most indecent manner in Dunellen on Wednesday night.

SCHOOL AUTHORITIES ARE IN A DELEMMIA

NOT UNTIL CONSOLIDATION AGITATION IS SETTLED CAN ACTION BE TAKEN.

According to the statement of James R. Joy, president of the North Plainfield Board of Education, published in the annual report, the residents of the borough are confronted with two important things. One is that at the present normal rate of growth the taxpayers will within two years at the furthest be c onfronted by the necessity of half-time classes or of erecting additions, or new buildings—unless indeed within that time consolidation with Plainfield in some form shall be brought about.

"The other alternative," says Mr. Joy, "is that in the failure of such a union I believe we should soon take into consideration plans for erecting a worthy High School building of our own, designed for this special purpose, and provided with the necessary laboratories, gymnasium and assembly room. Such a building would relieve our High School of some of its existing disadvantages, and would vacate sufficient space in the Somerset building to accommodate the probable annual increase of primary and grammar grade pupils for a dozen years to come.

"This problem is fortunately not one to be decided this year, but it is offered for the consideration of those citizens who are interested in the welfare of our schools. We cannot much longer postpone the question of providing the best accommodation for the boys and girls of today, upon whose proper training rests the future of the commonwealth."

High Collars.

With her usual perversity, Fashion has decreed that collars increase in height and in comfort, too, strange as that may seem. It is, however, easily explained. Since those little "vallenes," or featherbones that give the necessary support, have for some time reached fairly up to the ears, they could become no higher; but the change is in the transparent covering, which is made of soft lace, entirely or in combination with some filmy material. Instead of being rounded out, as it formerly was, the collar is now made straight, hence it must be a little looser.

Labor Saving Embroidery.

Odd new initials have just been invented, an ingenious way of getting an effect without having to do the work usually associated with that effect. These are letters—big or little—already embroidered, ready to apply to towel or sheet or napkin. A few careful stitches set them firmly in place, and the tip ends are embroidered in a soft cotton, the same sort as the initials themselves are done with.

END MAN FIRSTBROOK ENTERTAINS GOLD MEDALS

THE MINSTREL TROUPE AFTERWARD SPRINGS SURPRISE ON THE HOST.

Instead of entertaining as has been their custom during the past winter, the members of Muir's Gold Medal minstrel troupe were entertained Thursday, the host being Bertram C. Firstbrook, an end man in the company. The occasion was in the nature of a housewarming in honor of Mr. Firstbrook's marriage and took place at his home on Madison avenue. Twenty of the artists were in attendance and they enjoyed themselves for several hours in various ways.

Every contribution to the programme was done in whiteface but the minstrel men showed their versatility by giving numbers not generally included in the show programmes. Features were imitations of "Kidder" and "Madame Stitch" from "The Mayor of Tokio;" by Archie Davie; a recitation, "Some Citizens We Could Spare," by Jack Todd; another recitation by Thomas DeMezo entitled, "Three Out, All Out," and a monologue, "Slow Horses and Fast Companions," by Cecil Pittis. In addition all the members rendered solos and the "Essence of Old Virginny" was enhanced by Host Firstbrook, T. M. Muir and Harry Blimm. Judge Runyon acted as accompanist during the evening and the piano was also operated by Thomas DeMeza and Horace J. Martin, Jr.

Supper was served at midnight and during the intermission just previous, the troupe sprang a surprise on the host. He was addressed in a congratulatory manner by Judge Runyon and in conclusion was presented with a handsome Morris chair, the gift of the company. It had been smuggled into the house and was kept out of sight until the opportune moment. Though he is used to facing audiences of all sizes, the recipient was completely at a loss for words at first but afterward responded fittingly.

CONGREGATION'S RECEPTION FOR REV. AND MRS. FINN.

Park Avenue Baptist Sunday-school Greets Pastor and His Wife.

The informal reception and entertainment tendered by the officers of the Park Avenue Baptist church Sunday-school to the two adult Bible classes taught by Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Finn, was a pleasant affair at the church, Thursday, and was largely attended. The platform was decorated tastefully with potted plants and flowers.

The programme was made interesting by the appearance of the Nehemiah Brooks Trio, of Atlantic City. These entertainers play twelve different instruments with much skill, and little girls sang several selections. The programme included two vocal selections by Mrs. Thomas MacDonald, accompanied by Mrs. Charles Lewis.

An auction sale afforded much amusement. Harry C. Runyon acted as auctioneer. The names of all the members of the two classes in whose honor the social was given had been previously written in fancy letering upon the blackboard by Charles VanWinkle.

During the evening Superintendent George E. Hall presented Mr. and Mrs. Finn with a bunch of jonquils and a handsome vase. A feature was the distribution of candy through the audience at various times by Miss Arline Brown. Refreshments consisting of ice cream, cake and coffee were served. The whole affair was planned by Superintendent George E. Hall. The committee consisted of Mrs. Nelson Runyon, Mrs. John DeLany, Mrs. Charles VanWinkle, Mrs. Wheaton S. Lowry and Miss Florence G. Hawkins. The waitresses were the Misses Emily Runyon, Bessie Giles, Mary E. Clark, Florence Cuming, Nellie Giles, Lulu Stryker, Viola Hillyer, Cora Brokaw, Elizabeth Van Winkle, Madeline Fisher and Arline Brown.

MRS. ELVIRA DAYTON BECOMES THE WIFE OF L. D. WALKER.

Ceremony Performed By Rev. Frank Fletcher at Home of the Bride's Father.

Mrs. Elvira Dayton and Lewis D. Walker, both residents of Piscataway township, near Stelton, were married Thursday at the home of the bride's father, Peter Benward, by the Rev. Frank Fletcher, former pastor of the Baptist church at New Market. The affair was attended only by the immediate relatives and a few friends of the couple. An informal reception followed the ceremony.

Both the bride and groom have been residents of Piscataway township for a number of years and they have several relatives in this city. The groom recently purchased Stephen Bush's residential property at New Market and they will reside there.

The Small Boy's Pleasure.

A small boy will find infinite delight in hammering tacks into a block of soft wood. When one end is full he can turn it over and drive in more at the other, and so on, further employment being found in taking them out again, says Woman's Life. Small tacks, soft wood and a very light hammer, of course, are necessary.

FREEHOLDERS AWARD JOB

Union and Somerset Boards Give Bridge Wall Contract to Joseph E. Kelly.

THE LOWEST BID $2,460.

Borough Engineer Hubbard's Estimate On Lowest Cost of Work Higher Than Successful Bid.

Joseph E. Kelly, of New Market, who had charge of the work of building the new West End avenue bridge, last year, was awarded the contract Thursday afternoon by the freeholders of Union and Somerset counties to build the wing walls, his bid of $2,460 being the lowest for plans No. 2, which call for four solid concrete walls, two on each side of the bridge.

Two plans were considered, No. 1 calling for reinforced concrete, the same material of which the bridge is built, and No. 2 calling for a solid concrete wall. The difference in the cost was approximately $300, the reinforced work costing about that much more than the other style.

The bids were opened in the parlors of the Hotel Iroquois, the bridge committee from Union county, of which Freeholder S. P. T. Wilbur is the chairman, meeting the members of the Somerset county board, of which Director Baird is the head. There were eight bids in all, according to the specifications each bidder submitted a bid on each plan, and then a price per cubic yard for any changes that might be made after the adoption of either plan. The bids submitted were as follows:

Richards & Gaston, New York, plan No. 1, $2,300; $15 per cubic yard for changes; plan No. 2, $2,250; $12 per cubic yard for changes; Arthur E. Smith, Plainfield, plan No. 1, 02,800; $10 per cubic yard; plan No. 2, $2,545, $8 per cubic yard; Joseph E. Kelly, New Market, plan No. 1, $3,475; $16 per cubic yard; plan No. 2, $2,460; $7.85 per cubic yard; Serrell Contracting Company, New York, plan No. 1, $2,785; $12 per cubic yard; plan No. 2, $2,669; $8.25 per cubic yard; J. M. Smith, North Plainfield, plan No. 1, $4,338.67; $11.82 per cubic yard; plan No. 2, $3,953.67; $10.77 per cubic yard; T. J. McGovern, Trenton, plan No. 1, $3,800; $12 per cubic yard; plan No. 2, $3,400; $10 per cubic yard.

The Union County Board appropriated $1,300 last December as its share for building the walls, it being understood that the cost would be at least $2,600, but the Somerset county freeholders were looking for the cheapest contract. There was a discussion between the freeholders, W. J. Buttfield and Mayor N. B. Smalley as to some method of compelling the contractor to complete the work within the specified time under a penalty, but it was agreed that this could not be done, unless a bonus was offered.

Mr. Buttfield and Mr. Smalley said that they were particularly anxious to have the walls completed as soon as possible so that the extensive improvements planned on the borough side could be undertaken. They suggested that the contractor be asked to build the walls on the borough side first if there was no serious objection, and Freeholder Wilbur assured them that he would do all in his power to have this done and to have the walls completed on time, July 1 next is the time limit for completion of the work.

Mr. Buttfield said that he would be willing to take the contract for $2,200, and when asked why he did not submit a bid, he replied, "That is not my business." Mr. Kelly is said to make the contract price $2,200, with a $200 bonus, the latter sum to be deducted if the work was not completed by July 1. This, it was decided, could not be done unless all bids were rejected and others advertised for.

The walls are to be fifty feet long On the borough side the two walls will be curved to correspond with the 100 foot street and on the city side they will be straight.

Engineer Hubbard's estimate of the total cost of the work is $2,502, and it is significant that W. B. Travell's figures for actual cost were $2,476, while Mr. Kelly's bid for the contract, including profit, was $2,460. Of course, Mr. Kelly had charge of building the bridge, is well acquainted with the conditions and in this respect he has an advantage over other bidders.

Charles Sebring to Build.

Charles P. Sebring has resumed operations on his new building, adjoining the Babcock building on West Front street. He has plans for making the structure three stories in height and it will be in keeping with the adjoining property, with an attractive front.

MONEY BURIED MARTINE

Famer-Orator Warns Up on Purchased Elections Which Defeated His Ambitions.

SPEAKS AT EAST ORANGE

"I've Been Buried Out of Sight By Money"—Willing to Run For Governor.

Farmer Orator" James E. Martine, the Gubernatorial possibility, was the principal speaker at a well attended meeting of the East Orange Democratic Club, Thursday, and incidentally explained that while he had not expected to run for office again, he would be a good American citizen and for the nomination for Governor if tendered him by the Democratic convention should that body-to-be decide it was wisest and for the best to name him. Mr. Martine, incidentally, promised, if named, to make the most aggressive contest for the office that was within his nature to do.

The declaration was not down on the programme, but former School Commissioner Julian F. Gregory, who was the Democratic nominee against Senator Severell Colby, put the question "up to" Mr. Martine in a positive manner after the latter's speech.

In his address to the club Mr. Martine waxed eloquent and had some hot shot for subjects of his criticism. He was frank in the speaking of "the uses of money in political caucuses and at elections, and said: "I've been buried out of sight by the pernicious money." He told of an incident when an old railroad man came to him and said: 'Money you've got to have, and we've got it." The result was that Mr. Martine, then a candidate for office, replied that the money of the corporation the man represented would take out manhood and "to-hell with it."

He said it was not always that vote purchasing was directly made, but when it was suggested that if a certain opposition occurred on the part of the voter, his mortgage would be foreclosed or other results would be accomplished; it was bribery "damnable and cruel, unholy and unjust." He added:

"Much as a man needs money for himself or for the wife he loves dearer than his own life, or for the babe at her breast, when you tempt me comes says: 'Get out of the goodness of my life.' Say to the plaudest, 'You are but my peer,' and to the highest, 'You are no more high. My place is the peoples' hal.'"

Mr. Martine had a word to say in criticism of the voting machines and a hard hit it was, too. He criticised the United States Senate as no more representative of the people than he was of the Protestant Episcopal church. He declared all the members were seekers for special privileges. And quoting from Lincoln, declared that, while the saying that the voice of the people is the voice of God might be literally right, it was not always true. He remarked of the railroads that when they first sought charters the people supposed them, but the corporations had finally become dictators and controllers of the State legislatures.

It was largely attributable, he said, to the voice of William J. Bryan, referring to railroads and the rights of the public, that President Roosevelt had impelled, forced compelled, the teeth of the railroad men to chatter and their bones to rattle. Wall street, he said, was clamoring about collapses. The cause of the people and humanity was being sidetracked, he said, and the corporations must not think the people, without a whimper, would stand for these "pirates" enriching themselves at their expense.

Speeches at P. H. S. Debating Society

The weekly session of the Plainfield High School Debating Society was held Thursday. Several members delivered five-minute speeches. Louis de Bigard talked on the advantages of a law passing mark in examinations; a broad, comprehensive view of capital punishment was given by George H. Fisher, Jr.; an interesting account of the custom houses of Europe, the United States and England was delivered by Stanley Fisher. "Wealth" was the subject of an article by Isidore Kunzman; that "It Pays to Advertise," was set forth in an able manner by William Lambert. Miss Beck, the faculty member, acted as critic. Arrangements were made for a mock trial which will be held in two weeks.

Building Bridges.

The bridge gang which has been employed by the New Jersey Central repairing bridges in this city, has about completed its work in the east and and is now working on the Watchung avenue bridge, then the Park avenue bridge and so on through the city. The idea is to make the bridges sufficiently strong for the increased heavy traffic. The tracks are to be raised eight inches in front of the North Avenue Station. This will make the third time the bridges in this city have been rebuilt since Joseph A. Haynes has been connected with the company as station master.

Mrs. W. G. Resler, of Rockview avenue, is greatly improved from a recent illness.

CARRIE NATION HIS TRAVELLING COMPANION

MOLDENKE HAS AN INTERESTING EXPERIENCE WITH HATCHET WIELDER.

Travelling from Morristown to Philadelphia not long ago Dr. Richard Moldenke found himself in the same seat with an elderly woman. He engaged in conversation with her, and became much interested in her views. He thought she was a very interesting woman indeed.

There came a lapse in the conversation, and while Dr. Moldenke was ruminating on the interesting temperament of his travelling companion she stood up suddenly and waved a small book in the air.

"I am Carrie Nation," she proclaimed. "Who will give me five cents for my little book."

Dr. Moldenke found that he was sharing in the attention the reformer of the rum evil was attracting, and his idea of the exceeding interest attendant on his travelling acquaintance changed swiftly. He was game enough, however, to buy one of the little books.

GRASS FIRES KEEP CITY DEPARTMENT ON THE RUN.

Three Alarms for the Same Kind of Blaze Received at Headquarters Within Two Hours.

Grass fires that threatened serious consequences kept the city fire department on the jump Saturday. Within two hours three alarms were received at headquarters and but for the prompt arrival of the apparatus one of them would have resulted in a big blaze.

The first alarm came in at 11:15 and was for a fire alongside of John Keeley's coal yard on South avenue. The flames had crept up to his barn and were just starting in on the structure when No. 2 hose wagon arrived. The men soon put an end to the trouble and had just returned to headquarters when they were sent out on the second alarm, received by 'phone for the same kind of a fire at 826 East Front street. A servant girl had gone into the yard to burn some papers and the grass became ignited by pieces flying about.

The firemen and other servants were doing their best to beat out the flames with wet brooms, the best method of fighting a grass fire, but it was getting beyond them when the hose wagon reached the scene.

The last alarm came in at 12:10 and was for another grass fire in John Kenney's yard at 56 East Second street. No. 2's horses were played out by the previous runs and the wagon from No. 1 house was sent to the place in their stead. They found a pretty hot blaze and a lot of scared people but had the last spark out in a few minutes.

Two more alarms for grass fires were received within ten minutes Saturday. At 2:05 a call came for a blaze on Field avenue and at 2:16 another was received for one on Carlton avenue. No. 2 hose wagon took care of the first and No. 1 the second.

Jacob Riis and the Pretty Girl.

Jacob Riis, whose heart covers all suffering humanity, recently engaged a pretty, soft-haired girl to work his typewriter. While her face was pretty, he also saw that it was pale, and his heart at once went out to her as a suffering being. After watching the girl for half an hour one day he asked her in a tone full of sympathy:

"Don't you get awfully tired, sometimes, from that incessant click, click of the machine?"

"Yes, sir," replied the girl, "I do. It wears on the nerves dreadfully."

"I thought so," said Mr. Riis, warming up, now that he had found a suffering soul. "Don't typewriters ever graduate from their work?"

"They do," replied the girl, as a happy light broker over her face.

"And then what do they turn their hands to?" asked the warm-hearted reformer.

"Well," said the girl, as the prettiest pink blushes suffused her cheeks, "they generally marry their employers."

Then Mr. Riis turned hurriedly to his work.—The Caledonian.

ELECTRIC LIGHT DON'TS.

Don't let the office boy or any one else who does not understand make changes in electric wiring or lights. They may do the very thing they ought not.

Don't pull a lamp hung by a flexible cord to one side with a wire and then fasten to a gas pipe. A wire may become red hot in this manner. If the lamp hung by a cord must be pulled to one side, strong.

Don't wrap paper around a lamp for a shade. You might go home and forget it and a fire might be started from the heat. Use a glass or metal shade.

Don't try to save a little by running flexible wires over boxes, partitions and into closets. Have permanent wires installed. These flexible wires used this way are dangerous.—Chicago Daily News.

—Auctioneer P. H. Latourette will hold an auction sale of household furniture at 321 East Fifth street, tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock, the owners leaving the city and having no further use for them. The sale will offer many bargains.

WOMAN WHO DIDN'T KNOW ALL ABOUT WIRING MONEY

SHE THOUGHT IT WOULD BE EASIER TO TELEGRAPH ONE BILL.

A woman who had evidently had no experience with the telegraph caused considerable amusement in the city collector's office Saturday morning. She tendered Collector John W. Murray, Jr., twenty one-dollar bills and asked him to give her a $20 note for them. She said she wanted the bill to send to her daughter in New York.

"What need have you for changing the bills?" asked Mr. Murray.

"You are going to send the money by post, aren't you? Your twenty bills are just as handy for that as one."

"But I am not going to send the money by mail," the woman said with a superior smile, "I am going to telegraph it, and one bill will be easier to telegraph than twenty, wouldn't it?"

Mr Murray had some trouble making her understand where she had not been so bright.

KING'S DAUGHTERS MUSICALE AND SALE

HELD AT THE HOME OF MRS. DAVID H. ROWLAND.

The Cheerful Workers' Circle of The King's Daughters, of which Miss Margaret Leal is the president, held a successful musicale and sale Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. David H. Rowland, on West Seventh street, from 3 to 5 o'clock, the proceeds being for the work of the King's Daughters, which includes The Day Nursery and the Baby Camp on the mountain.

During the afternoon there was a sale of cake, candy and fancy articles. Miss Margaret Mead had charge of the fancy table, Miss Eva Browne the cake table and Miss Grace Kaufman the candy table, assisted by the other members of the circle. Tea was also served, Miss Dorothy Fleming, Miss Bakewell and Miss Elsie Goddard being in charge.

The musicale proved to be most enjoyable. The programme included a piano duett by Miss Margaret Mead and Miss Margaret Leal; piano solo by Miss Leal; vocal selections by Miss Matie Hyde, Miss Elsie Goddard and Miss Ursula Rowland. There was also a vocal selection by a quartette comprising Miss Elsie Goddard, Miss Matie Hyde, Miss VanDeventer and Miss Ursula Rowland and another vocal selections by the Misses Hyde, VanDeventer and Rowland.

The circle will net about $100, which will go toward the pledge made for the support of the charity work carried on by the King's Daughters.

Plainfielders Go Abroad.

Mrs. Samuel Merwin, accompanied by her mother and the latter's daughter, Mrs. Stevenson, Miss Stevenson, of this city; Mrs. Rosa de Balsinde and family and tutor, Lieutenant Guy Rowlett, formerly of the British Navy, who have been residing on Willow avenue, were passengers today on the Cedric, of the White Star Line, which sailed from New York. Mrs. Merwin, mother and daughter will meet Mr. Merwin on the other side, he having preceded them for an extended stay in the interest of the Success magazine. Mrs. de Balsinde and family will remain abroad six months before returning to their native home in Cuba.

Will Start Work April 1.

Joseph E. Kelly, of New Market, who received the contract for building the wing walls on the West End avenue bridge, will probably start the work about April. Up to yesterday he had not signed the contract at the office of Engineer F. J. Hubbard. He is given until July 1 to complete the job.

Approaching Marriage.

Announcement is made of the approaching marriage of Miss Rachel Daudt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Daudt, of Grove street, and F. Mortimer Slater, son of Mrs. Frederick M. Slater, of Jackson avenue. The event will be celebrated on Monday, April 29, at the home of the bride.

"BOBBY" BURNS AT HOPE

DESCRIBED HIS LIFE

Groton Man Gives Readings from Scottish Idol's Works—Some Music By P. H. S. Boys.

Readings from Robert Burns and a sketch of the tragic life of Scotland's "sweet bard," were given Friday night in Hope chapel, by Rev. William A. Smith, of Groton, N. Y. Mr. Smith is himself a Scotchman, a big minded, big hearted man, and a speaker of charming personality. Appreciating every mood and fancy of the "Ayrshire Bard," he portrayed the characters with all the musical charm of the Scottish dialect.

Mr. Smith spoke of Scotland as a land of craggy mountains, lowly vales, rushing torrants, crumbling ruins of Abbey, and castle towers, around which cluster countless legends and traditions. In this poetic atmosphere Burns was born, bred, and there he died, having given voice to all the experiences of life.

Dr. Smith spoke of the humbleness of the poet's birth, and his ceaseless struggle in life; not for fame and wealth however; for, said he, Burns was a born poet, with the strong passions and vivid imagination which were prodigious in creating sensibility; sufficient, he said, for twenty common men. "Such loving nature," the speaker continued, "was no doubt more susceptible to women, but," he added, "this has happened before." He showed that although Burns was not fully appreciated when alive, that in him as a man and genius has been increasing ever since his death. The Scotch, he declared, are true to their dead. His work is to them like a second Bible. Before Burns' time, said the Rev. Mr. Smith, the Scotch dialect was rapidly dying, but he revived it, and preserved it forever. He discerned beauty and meaning in everything; he wept, worshipped, and rejoiced with the people.

Dr. Smith quoted some eminent critics in saying that no poet except Shakespeare possessed the power of portraying so many varied emotions in so rapid transitions. The poet's genius, declared the speaker, is the gift of seeing and telling things as they really are. This Burns had, for he never looked for subjects, they were about him, everywhere.

Of all the national poets, said he, the most love is bestowed upon Burns, but the speaker seemed doubtful about the American's appreciation. As a conclusive evidence he had noticed was in the advertisements which greet him on every hand, "Roberts Burns' 10 cent cigar." The last leter written by the poet was directed to a friend, asking for the loan of a five pound note. He died in poverty, and concluded Dr. Smith; his life was a failure until he died in poverty, at thirty-seven, and since then it has been a marvelous success. The sentiment and love of his work will live forever; he leaves a charm for every fancy, and music for every mood.

During the evening selections were given by the Glee Club of the Plainfield High School, the solo parts of which were taken by Miss Queene Tillotson and Gus Fountain, accompanied on the piano by Miss Marguerite Leggett. The singing was under the direction of Samuel B. Howe, Jr., who also introduced the speaker.

ONE-DAY CAMPAIGN FOR MEMBERSHIP GROWTH

Y.M.C.A. PLANS A SHORT BUE ENERGETIC INCREASE EFFORT.

The membership committee of the Y. M. C. A. laid plans Friday for a short, spirited campaign for increase in association enrollment. Following energetic preliminary work, all the work will be concentrated in one day, with the object of gaining 200 members.

One-day campaigns have been conducted in other cities with great success, and the Plainfield association hopes to bring its name to records. April 15 has been chosen as the day. Up to that time prospectuses, circulars and full information as to the details of the Y. M. C. A. will be sent out to eligible men, and on the fifteenth a corps of picked workers will go out to bring as many as will come into the association.

At the present stage the work is in the hands of the regular membership committee, of which S. A. Bingaman is the head. The committee will meet again Monday night. The Y. M. C. A. membership is now 500.

County Chairman's New Home.

County Chairman F. H. Smith, of West Seventh street, has purchased I. N. VanSyckel's fine residential property at Madison avenue and West Sixth street, and will move there within a few weeks. In a short time, Mr. and Mrs. Smith will leave for California, where they will spend several weeks.

"D. S. C.," MONTCLAIR'S VERY LATEST WRINKLE

WOMEN PLAN ONE KITCHEN FOR THE WHOLE TOWN.

The women of Montclair are about to organize a Domestic Service Corporation, "to do away with the drugery of the kitchen and substitute for it a perfectly equipped, skillfully managed central plant, which shall prepare all the family's food, bring it to the house three times a day, and take away the soiled dishes, leaving to the housewife only the pleasant task of adorning the table as may suit her fancy."

Among the advantages claimed for the plan are the solution of the servant girl problem, the combination of a first-class hotel service with the comforts and privacy of one's own home, absolute freedom for the housewife from the care and worry of providing for the table, and a cost to members for the highest grade of food, prepared in the very best manner, which probably would not exceed the usual cost for the average family table.

The corporation may extend its service so as to include, laundry work, house cleaning, lawn mowing, and gardening.

P. H. S. FIVE KEEPS LEAGUE RECORD CLEAR

WINS THE LAST GAME OF THE SCHEDULE FROM LEAL'S.

The Plainfield High School basketball team kept its record in the interscholastic league clean, yesterday afternoon, by defeating the Leal's five. The score was 42 to 26.

The victory was the sixth straight league won for the champions. They had enough to keep them busy, but were never near enough to defeat for worriment.

Between halves, President J. W. Gavett, of the Y. M. C. A., presented the championship cup to the winners. Bert Leggett, the team manager, was to have received the cup, but his modesty overpowered him, and Clyde Doane did the formal receiving.

The teams finished up as follows:

	W.	L.	Perc.
P. H. S.	6	0	1.000
Leal's	2	4	.333
N. P. H. S.	1	5	.166

A short story of far more than ordinary significance serves to open The Red Book Magazine for April Its title, "The Empty Box," piques one's curiosity but only after the story has been read does the excellence of the title make itself felt. The author, Joseph Altsheler, is well and favorably known through his American novels. Another story, one that is strikingly varied from the foregoing, is "How Jake Went Home" by the famous author of "The Incomplete Amorist," E. Nesbit. It recounts the adventure of a little London street waif on the floor of the ocean, and must strike a responsive cord in the heart of every lover of children. A tensely dramatic tale of army life in the Philippines is Roscile M. Dawville's "Gift Cap Cord," and a bit of original, if primitive, humor is Campbell MacCulloch's "A Napoleon of the Utes."

A distinct contribution to contemporaneous literature is the epic poem, "At Pilate's Judgment Seat," by Thomas Nelson Page, in the April Woman's Home Companion. In this poem, which occupies two full pages of the magazine, Mr. Page departs from the usual procedure and describes the judgment from Pilate's point of view. The result is a masterly and novel treatment of the most marvelous trial scene in the world's history. The poem is strikingly decorated by Herbert Paus. Another notable article, entitled "The Arab Horse in Legend and Story," for which is given a wealth of first-hand information on a very interesting subject. The ever helpful subject of home building is treated by Henry Harrison Lewis is an article, "Selecting the Site," which explains in detail this important preliminary in home construction. An unusually strong array of fiction headed by a timely short story, "Mrs. Sackett's Easter Bonnet," by Mary E. Wilkins Freeman and including Josephine Daskam Bacon's serial, "The Domestic Adventurers," and short stories by Jennette Lee, Temple Bailey, Lulu Judson Moody and Gelston Spring give added interest to the April number.

Mrs. Charles Dixon, of Newark, has been spending several days in town with friends.

Mrs. Charles Staats, of Brooklyn, has returned home after a visit with relatives in Plainfield.

HEBREWS PREPARING FOR THE PASSOVER

JEWISH BAKERS ARE NOW KEPT BUSY BAKING MATZOTH.

The feast of the Passover will be celebrated by Jews all over the world this month, and the people who are busy making preparations for its observance are working night and day. There is much ceremony, which will be celebrated this year on the evening of March 29, and there is ceremony also in connection with cleansing the homes, storing away the ordinary table and kitchen utensils, so that the ones dedicated to the feast of the Passover time may not be contaminated. There are hundreds of quaint observances in connection with the festival commemorative of "the deliverance of Israel's first born from the judgment wrought on those of the Egyptians and the wonders liberation of the Hebrews from Egyptian bondage," but the best-known feature of the festival of a week is the unleavened bread — matzoth — the baking of which has kept hundreds of people employed for months in many bakeries.

There is one large establishment among these, which occupies a five-story building 100 feet long and ninety-two feet wide, where nothing is done all the year except to manufacture the crackers which are used in lieu of bread in the Passover season. This concern turns out about 2,500,000 pounds of matzoth and matzoth meal, which is made by pulverizing the matzoth, and is used instead of flour all through the Passover time. This concern sells its product not only to consumers and dealers in New York, but sends matzoth to all parts of the United States, and large quantities to Cuba, Porto Rico and South America.

The prices range from four and one-half to eight cents a pound, and deliveries are made to dealers and consumers in all forms, varying from loose to the finest packing in round packing cases to pound packages in fancy boxes. In many of the Jewish homes the unleavened bread is placed on the table only as a symbol, but not for use, and in the homes of all the orthodox Jews it is not entirely dispensed with in Passover time. But among the orthodox Jews the custom to use nothing but unleavened bread is strictly adhered to, and the matzoth consumed by the orthodox Jews of all parts of the city, on the East Side, in New York, because the larger establishments do not conform strictly enough to the rabbinical laws governing their making.

TRINITY CHURCH SOCIAL AFFORDED AMUSEMENT.

Endeavorers Have Lots of Fun in all Sorts of Games.

Under the auspices of the social and reception committee of the Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church, an entertainment was held in the lecture room Thursday. There was a large attendance of members and their friends. The first part of the evening was devoted to what was called a "spiral shake-down," which was intended to give all an opportunity to get acquainted.

An amusing game consisted of distributing ten clothes pins to each person, the object being to get rid of them as quickly as possible, which they did by answering "yes" or "no" to any question propounded. The advertisement game afforded lots of fun. Numerous advertisements were displayed about the room, the young people being required to guess the names. Another unique feature was a boat race. Curious shaped card board was placed on strings stretched across the room, which they were made to move by blowing at them. The objects were made to represent various countries and there was considerable merriment on the part of the young people in testing their lung power. Ireland was the winner. A potato race closed the evening's entertainment, after which refreshments were served. During the social hour following the society engaged in singing popular songs.

The committee in charge consisted of Miss May Randolph, chairman; Miss Eva Dunavan, Miss Eliza Dufford, Mrs. William Lindsay, F. M. Smith and Charles M. Dolliver.

To Wash China Silk.

To wash black and fast colored china and taffeta silks pour a quart of household ammonia into a twelve quart pail of warm, not hot, water. In which suds have been dissolved castile soap. Wash the fadeless silks in this and rinse thoroughly in clear soft water. Before the material is quite dry smooth it on the wrong side with a moderately hot iron. A silk that is not fast colored cannot be wet without injury to the dye, but sometimes another color or a neutral tone that will be more artistic and satisfactory than the original tint may be produced by washing as above.

Understudy's Hard Lot.

The lot of the understudy, like that of the policeman, is not a happy one. Understudies put in a great amount of hard work for which they gain very little credit. Day after day, in the gloomy shrouded theatre, understudies gather to rehearse their roles, dialogue, "business," and songs. All this in addition to their own work in the evening.—London Bystander.

SEEK FOR MISSING BAIL

Given to the Late Justice Mosher Just Before He Died.

CASE WAS THROWN OUT

Attorney J. Henry Crane Can Find No Trace of Missing Security —Belongs to Poor Woman.

Attorney J. Henry Crane is trying to find out what became of $50 given to the late Justice Joseph P. Mosher, a few months before he died, as bail for Cephus Floyd, colored, charged by William Jones, also colored, with the theft of a bicycle. Mrs. Susan Rogers, Floyd's aunt, put up the bail.

Floyd's case was not considered by the Grand Jury until October, when it was thrown out. In the meanwhile all trace of the $50 had been lost. Mr. Crane has seen the county prosecutor and all others connected with the case without gaining any clue as to where the money was placed. Mrs. Rogers is poor and cannot afford to lose the money.

It is known that when Justice Mosher accepted the bail, he consulted with the prosecutor as to what disposition should be made of it, and the latter told him to keep it in his possession. The justice asked for the privilege of placing the money in several different places in the city, but so far as can be learned no one wanted to hold the money for him.

P. H. S. CAPTURE CUP.

Defeats Leals in Final Game of Season 44 to 26.

The Plainfield High School basketball five played its last game of the season Friday in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium when the Leal's team was defeated by the score 44 to 26. After the first half which ended with a score of 29 to 13 in favor of P. H. S., Dr. W. W. Gavett, president of the Y. M. C. A., presented the cup to the Plainfield High School five, winners of the interscholastic league. It was accepted in the name of the school by Captain Clyde Doane.

Caldwell, of P. H. S., made the first score, shooting a long distance goal, and Gavett played a star game throughout. Howard played exceptionally well for Leals. In the second half a clever backhand pass was made by Morris and Snyder, which resulted in a goal.

REPROVED JUSTICE.

County Judge Saves Man Committed by New Market Court.

Because he sentenced James Gaitwood, of Philadelphia, to ninety days in the county jail for loitering, Justice R. F. Von Minden, of New Market, was asked to explain by Judge Theodore Booraem yesterday. Gaitwood was on his way from New York to Philadelphia, and stopped at New Market for a couple of days. He was arrested for loitering. In commenting on the sentence Judge Booraem said:

"This man seems to be a pretty respectable sort of a person in hard luck, and you have given him the extreme penalty. The court will not interfere, because it believes the justices should have full power. It can, however, review the action, and it will do so."

C. H. Rogers, the jail warden, called the attention of the judge to the matter. After some persuasion the justice allowed the man to go, by remitting the sentence.

Do You Know—

That food and drink taken too hot damage the teeth.

That a good substitute for a linseed poultice, if no one is at hand to make the latter properly, is to heat a square of cotton wool very hot by holding it before the fire, place it on the skin, cover with oiled silk and bandage on with flannel.

That skim milk is very nutritious, but nevertheless it is not fit to take the place of "whole milk" altogether in the feeding of children, for fat (cream is the "fat" of milk) is absolutely necessary for the proper development of the growing body.

The Original Fruit Canners.

We are indebted to Pompeii for the great industry of canned fruit. Years ago, when the excavations were just beginning, a party of Cincinnatians found in what had been the pantry of a house many jars of preserved figs. One was opened, and they were found to be fresh and good. Investigation showed that the figs had been put into jars in a heated state, an aperture left for the steam to escape and then sealed with wax. The last was taken, and the next year fruit canning was introduced into the United States, the process being identical with that in vogue at Pompeii twenty centuries ago.

FOX PLEADS FOR MINORS

Plainfielder Shows Passage of Bill Limiting Child Labor Would be Beneficial.

HEARING YESTERDAY

Secretary of Children's Aid Society Produces Facts and Figures For Senate Committee.

Armed with statistics on the question of child labor in glass industry, representatives of various charitable organizations, as well as the State Federation of Labor, appeared before the Senate Committee on the Revision of Laws at Trenton Monday afternoon, to urge the favorable reporting of Assembly Bill No. 190, which prohibits the employment of children under 16 years in factories at night.

Owen Lovejoy, assistant secretary of the National Child Labor Committee, and Hugh F. Fox, of this city, secretary of the Children's Aid Society, were the principal speakers. After stating that the only objection to the enactment of the bill under consideration came from two sections of the State where glass is manufactured, Mr. Fox declared that it was but a fair question to ask how the enactment of such a measure would affect the glass manufacturers.

"Fortunately," said Mr. Fox, "we can get some measure of information from the report of the State Bureau of Statistics of Labor and Industry for the year ending October 31, 1906.

"It seems that in 1905 there were thirty establishments manufacturing window and bottle glass which employed during the year a total of 7469 persons. Of these, 5960 were over 16 years old, besides 174 women. There were 734 children under 16. The average number of persons employed during the year was 6263, showing an increase of 1.39 per cent. as compared with 1904. The total amount paid in wages in 1905 was $381,845, and the average yearly earnings for employes is given as $539.97.

Mr. Fox showed that the wages of children under 16 years varied from $3 to $7 a week, and said that the average wage was but $5.80 a week, and they are employed about forty weeks a year.

The proposed law, he said, does not change the hour of the boys who work in the daytime, but so measure the possible degree of injury to the manufacturer, he would assume for the sake of argument that the average wage is $4 and that the change in the age limit will add 50 per cent to the wages of all the boys employed without increasing their efficiency.

On the basis of this calculation, which he said was extravagantly liberal, the actural cost to the glass manufacturers of New Jersey would amount to $1,720 a year, and he thought that for the great good that would be accomplished the monetary consideration should be put aside when it was shown to be so small.

PLAINFIELD WITHDRAWN FROM LACKAWANNA LEAGUE.

When Driscoll Gets His Eyes Open He Abandons Plan for This City.

The Y. M. C. A. and Clinton Avenue teams have leased Crescent Oval for the coming year and will use the grounds alternately when games are scheduled with other teams in the Inter-City Amateur League and together when they are scheduled to meet each other. Permission was obtained from the Plainfield Baseball Association and Philip Saab to use the grounds and then a lease was obtained from the owner.

Dave Driscoll, who secured a franchise for Plainfield in the Lackawanna League, was in town Saturday night, and after talking with some of the members of the Plainfield Baseball Association, decided to abandon his project to put a team in this city. He appeared to have vastly different ideas as to the baseball situation here, and when it was explained to him he at once announced his purpose of giving up his plans for Plainfield. It is possible that he may arrange with the Westfield teams for representation in the Lackawanna League.

Y. M. C. A. Ball Meeting.

The candidates for positions on the Y. M. C. A. nine will meet at the association Friday night. They number thirty-three, and include some fine material. The meeting will result in the fixing of a date for first open-air practice. Information as to the probable make-up of the team will be given out Saturday.

AMUSEMENTS.

"Ben-Hur" still remains the most stupendous dramatic production of the decade. The new and greater production is at the Academy of Music, New York city, and a pronounced success has been scored. At the Academy it is seen as on no other stage in the United States. Its spaciousness behind the footlights makes possible pictures, groupings and effects that are not to be obtained elsewhere. As a result the present revival is on a scale of colossal grandeur eclipsing all former efforts of the producers, Messrs. Klaw & Erlanger. Wallace had few peers and no superiors in the art of presenting to the eye the imagery of scriptural scenes. In "Ben-Hur," his masterpiece, he gave the life, the color, the feeling, of the time of Christ. With these he presents an intense heart story, a heroic drama, filled with the tenderest emotions, tinged with the romance of love and war, exalted by the evidence of divine miracles performed by the Nazarene. Although the sacred presence is not shown, it is felt throughout the play and runs the strong current of religious feeling which distinguishes "Ben-Hur" from other dramatic offerings based on Biblical themes. The symbolism of Rome and Jerusalem, of Jew and Gentile, of peace and war, are shown, surrounding the great mystery of the presence of Christ. Each scene unfolds as a perfect pictures, the whole blending into a living pageant.

"The Mills of the Gods" is a new sensation for Broadway. It is George Broadhurst's latest play, and is being presented now at the Astor theatre, New York. The thousands who have already seen it are of the one opinion that it is a far better play than any of the author's earlier efforts, not excepting his recent success, "The Man of the Hour." It came to the Astor theatre to stay and it has settled down for a run. Thus far it has drawn enormous audiences and the manner of its reception by the throngs who have witnessed it, demonstrate that it is very much to their liking. It is not only well presented, as to acting, but the Will J. Block Amusement Company has given something unusual in the matter of stage environment. It has been called "stirring melodrama," but it is a melodrama that is real, interesting, life-like and absorbing. After the "big situation" at the end of the third act, the incessant, hearty applause is continued nightly, until the curtain is run up and down a dozen times. There is no mistaking this sort of applause. It is spontaneous and it rings true.

Elaborate preparations are now being made at the New York Hippodrome by Messrs. Shubert & Anderson to celebrate the second anniversary of the opening of the big playhouse on Friday evening, April 12. The high jinks will commence immediately after the evening performance and will continue presumably throughout the night. A sweeping invitation that will include practically every member of the theatrical profession now playing in New York will be issued, and it is expected that the immense auditorium will be entirely filled with professional people and the friends of the Hippodrome company. A number of prominent artists appearing at the different Shubert theatres have volunteered to take part in the entertainment, which will be designed primarily for the benefit of the hard-working chorus of the Hippodrome, who give daily matinees and who, therefore, never have a chance to see each other perform. This entertainment will be given first on the big Hippodrome stage, and will last for perhaps forty minutes. Louis Mann and Eddie Foy are two of the headliners for this feature of the programme. The Hippodrome tank will then be filled and a series of swimming races will take place. Prizes will be offered, and girls from other companies who wish to compete with the mermaids of "Neptune's Daughter" will be permitted to enter the tank. This celebration will be the red letter night of the entire season at the Hippodrome. Messrs. Shubert & Anderson will give away to each member of the audience that night a miniature reproduction of the Hippodrome building, done in bronze, as a souvenir.

Princess, Broadway and 29th street. Telephone, 2848 Madison. Evenings, 8:15; matinees, Saturday, 2:15. Margaret Anglin and Henry Miller in William Vaughn Moody's play "The Great Divide." The greatest dramatic hit of the year. Of this play the New York Sun said: "A play of vital passions, consummately acted." The Eve Telegram: "A remarkable play." Mail: "The great American play."

Casino theatre, Broadway and 39th street. Evenings at 8:15; matinees Thursday and Saturday, 2:15. Louis Mann in Roderick C. Penfield and Gustav Kerker's musical comedy, "The White Hen." In this play Mr. Mann impersonates Hensie Blindner. The big supporting company includes Louise Gunning and Lotta Faust.

Majestic theatre, Broadway and 59th street. Telephone, 3500 Columbus. Evenings at 8:15; matinees, Wednesday and Saturday, 2:15 p. m. Henry Miller will present a military drama by Louis E. Shipman, "On Parole." This play when presented in the West was highly successful.

Lew Fields' Herald Square theatre, Broadway and 35th street. Telephone, 2185 38th. Evenings, 8:15; matinees, Tuesday and Saturday, 2:00. Evelyn Greenleaf Sutherland and Beulah M. Dix's play, "The Road to Yesterday," with Minnie Dupree, opened at Lew Fields' Herald Square theatre on New Year's Eve. This play is one of the chief dramatic novelties of the year. "The Road to Yesterday" has achieved a very great success.

Klaw & Erlanger's production of Frank Pixley and Gustav Luders' new musical comedy, "The Grand Mogul," will receive its New York premiere at the New Amsterdam theatre Monday evening. This piece excells in brilliancy of music and cleverness of book these authors' previous greatest success, "The Prince of Pilsen," which made the phenomenal record of twelve engagements in New York. "The Grand Mogul" received its first presentation in Rochester only last November, and, after brief engagements in smaller cities, was presented for a long run at the Colonial theatre in Chicago, where it scored a great hit. St. Louis, Cincinnati and Boston have since endorsed this verdict. Frank Moulan plays the leading comedy role. Other noted principals of the company are John Dunsmure, George Moore, W. H. Macart, Sager Midgeley, J. R. Williams, A. Seymour Brown, W. C. Schrode, Eugene Moulan, Maude Lillian Berri, Edith St. Clair, Laura Clement and Pauline Thorne. The chorus is notable for a large number of very pretty girls.

Daniel Frohman's production of "The Spoilers," a four-act play by Rex Beach and James MacArthur, founded on the former's famous novel of the gold fields at Nome, Alaska, was given its premiere at the New York theatre last Monday evening, and scored a marked success. The story is presented in four acts, the scenes showing the deck of a steamer bound for Alaska, the law office of the United States District Attorney at Nome, the gambling hall of the "Pinochle Kid" at Nome, a room in an isolated tavern outside of Nome and "The Midas" gold mine. "The Spoilers" as a novel proved a most graphic description of conditions existent in Alaska attending the looting of the Nome gold fields by a corrupt gang of political highbinders, who, allied with a corrupt judiciary, attempted to take forcible possession, under the guise of law, of the richest mines in the Nome district. The removal of the police force of this city was the breaking up of the conspirators in Alaska and the complete overthrow politically of the leaders of the conspiracy in the State in which they had long reigned politically supreme.

Commencing Monday, "The Belle of Mayfair" enters upon the last week of its marvelous run at Daly's theatre, New York, the engagement terminating positively Saturday night, March 30th, when the entire organization of nearly one hundred and twelve people will immediately prepare for a thousand mile run to Chicago where the company opens at the Colonial theatre for an indefinite stay. On Monday night, April 15th, at Wallack's theatre will be produced for the first time in America the new English lyrical musical comedy, "The White Chrysanthemum," direct from the London theatre royal, where it was quite the vogue for nearly two years. The play is in three acts and three scenes and tells a pretty love story of English naval officers and English girls in the Mikado of Every Kingdom. The music is by Howard Talbot who composed a "Chinese Honeymoon" while the book and lyrics are by England's foremost authors. A great cast has been engaged which includes Lina Abarbanell, the grand opera prima donna, Edna Wallace Hopper, Augusta Glose, Charlotte Leslay, Henry V. Donnelly, Van Rensselaer Wheeler, Edward Garvie, Lawrence Grossmith, Dave Lewis, together with the famous Eight Vassar Girls, a chorus of fifty and orchestra of thirty. Seats are now on sale for the opening and the first month.

Small Boy Suggestions.

Give the small boys a room of their own, where they may be allowed to work, play, read or whatever the boyish fancy may dictate. If they be fond of reading, give them plenty of good books and magazines and an easy chair to sit in while they read.

A boy loves comfort just as much as a girl does, and money spent in making him comfortable at home goes a long way toward keeping him off the street.

Some boys are not content to spend a whole evening reading. They should be provided for in some other way. Let them have games and invite their boy friends into their room and feel that they have a share in the home.

If the boy wants to make money and can do it without interfering with his school work, let him do so. It will teach him to be industrious and will cultivate business habits.

Boys like to be trusted, and it makes them manly. If a boy deserves praise, give it to him freely.

There are boys and boys, but there was never yet one who was not susceptible to kindness and who could not be managed if the right course was pursued.

Chinese ladies and "singing girls" are taking an active part, like their western sisters, in raising funds for famine relief by the aid of concerts.

NEW COP'S BUSY NIGHT

Sweeney Foils Two Kinds of Thieves Within a Short Time.

SAVE HORSE AND METAL

Long Chase After Horse Thief, With Pistol Popping, Ends Fruitlessly — A Horse In North Plainfield Gone.

Policeman Frank Sweeney, one of the recent appointees on the force, put in a busy round of thief- chasing early Sunday morning. Within an hour and a half he balked a horse thief and two metal thieves. The thieves got away, but the policeman got their plunder.

Shortly after midnight Sweeney, patrolling down Clinton avenue, saw two suspicious-looking men walking up from the direction of South Plainfield. One of them carried a bag over his shoulder. Sweeney started toward them. The man with the bag dropped it, and took to his heels; his companion followed. Sweeney gave chase, but the pair made good their escape.

The bag contained about 100 pounds of metal, he said. It was afterwards found to be zinc, probably from signal batteries along the Lehigh Valley Railroad.

Less than seventy minutes later, while he was still congratulating himself on that way he had foiled the metal thieves, Sweeney saw a man leading a horse. That was at Second street and Grant avenue.

"Where are you going with that horse?" he called.

"He's got a colic," replied the man, "and I am walking him around."

Sweeney couldn't see signs of colic about the horse, and he started across the street. The man dropped the halter and fled. Sweeney chased him to Spooner avenue, through Spooner avenue and on to West Third street, from there across lots, shooting occasionally by way of emphasizing his demands that the man stop. The man kept on, however, and escaped in the Grasse-lous district.

Sweeney returned to the horse, and started back over the way the man had come to see if he could find trace of the owner. The barn of W. W. Wilson, a grocer, at Grant avenue and Third street, was found unfastened, and investigation disclosed the fact that the horse belonged there. The barn had been forced and the best horse in it taken.

Michael Michaelson, of 23 Warren street, on the police blotter Sunday morning that a horse had been taken from his barn, and it is believed that a gang of two or three were at work. No other thefts or attempts were reported.

PRESIDENT RANDOLPH ADDRESSES THE S. P. C. A.

Tells Members Motto of Local Society Will Be "Tact and Efficiency."

Forty-eight annual members, an increase of thirteen, and nine life members, an increase of one, were reported at the meeting of the S. P. C. A. at the office of Reed & Coddington, Monday morning. Mrs. Knox Taylor, who is about to remove from Plainfield, resigned her position as secretary, and her place will be filled before the next meeting, April 15. L. V. F. Randolph, president of the society, was in the chair. He made a few remarks citing briefly some of the good things accomplished since organization. He said that the motto of the society should be "Tact and efficiency."

Because of the inability of the society to publish its booklet setting forth the objects, constitution and list of officers, at present, it was decided to keep the charter membership list open until May 15. Several violations of the law were reported corrected in a quiet way, prosecution not being necessary. Mrs. William A. Woodruff acted as secretary at this morning's meeting and before the next meeting is held it is expected that all of the special agents for the society will have been appointed.

$,000 POUND SAFE FRACTURED HIS LEG.

Laborer Has Narrow Escape from Death at Manganese Works.

Michael White, employed as a laborer at the Manganese Steel Safe Works, received a fracture of the leg and contusions of the knee Monday morning, while assisting in moving an 8,000 pound safe from a freight car to the works. Contrary to the custom, White did not use a rope to perform the task, and the safe tipped over against another one catching White's leg between them.

White called for assistance and it required the combined strength of fifteen men to raise the safe and release him. The ambulance was summoned and the injured man removed to the hospital, where an examination showed a fracture and contusions. The injuries are not serious, although White will be laid up for several weeks. He is thirty-seven years old, married and has three children. He resides at 1328 West Third street.

BOROUGH SCHOOL BOARD RE-ORGANIZES FOR THE YEAR

JAMES R. JOY AGAIN MADE PRESIDENT OF THE BODY.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Borough Board of Education, Monday night, reorganization for the coming year was effected by the election of the following officers: President, James R. Joy; vice president, Rev. Joseph O. McKelvey; district clerk, Albert Steiner. The new member of he board, Charles L. Nichols, assumed his seat for the first time and with Dr. J. H. Cooley and Mr. Joy, who were re-elected, was given the oath of office by Superintendent Krebs.

After the election, President Joy announced his committees as follows: Supplies—Messrs. Woodruff, McKelvey and Lowe; buildings and grounds—Messrs. Laing, Cooley and Townsend; teachers and text books—Messrs. Joy, McKelvey and Miller; finance—Messrs. Miller, Townsend and Nichols; grievances and truancy—Messrs. Townsend, Cooley and Nichols; auditing, Messrs. Lowe and Laing.

President Joy informed the board that he had received a communication from the State department, asking that the borough schools contribute an exhibit for the Jamestown exposition, which opens in May. He explained that it had not been the custom of the school to participate in this way at any of the big fairs and he expressed the belief that it would be a good thing to have the manual training department represented. Superintendent Krebs spoke in the same vein and added that as there are but a few places in the State where manual training is made a feature as in North Plainfield, he thought an exhibit would give the borough an individuality at the fair. The matter was finally left to the president for decision.

The custodian of school moneys reported a balance of $12,873 on hand and the buildings and grounds committee was instructed to make some needed improvements about the Somerset school property.

REV. E. E. ROBERSON GIVES TALK ON AMERICANISM.

Addresses Open Meeting of Martha Washington Council, Daughters of America.

Martha Washington Council, Daughters of America, held an open meeting Saturday night in the rooms in the Abcock building, to which the friends of the council were invited. Rev. E. E. Roberson, pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, and a member of the Jr. O. U. A. M., was invited to make an address.

He spoke particularly of the principles of the order, which include the aiding of Americans everywhere, relief from depression of foreign immigration, the maintenance of the public schools and no sectarian influence therewith. The principles are chiefly the same as those of the Jr. O. U. A. M., and Mr. Roberson gave an impressive talk concerning them. As a result several new members will be received by the council. A social hour followed the address.

The Courtesy of War.

In the battle of Penghuangcheng the Japanese took among their captures two enormous Chinese vases of thirteenth century workmanship. On learning that they were a present to General Kuropatkin, General Kuroki promptly dispatched them to the Russian outposts with a polite note ending, "May the flowers of friendship blossom high in these vases." In Kuropatkin's reply he referred to the Japanese as "a people of generous friends whom I visited in peace, of magnanimous foes in war, at whose hands even defeat is no disgrace."

Sunday-school Ball League.

The Sunday-school Athletic League members will have a baseball league to keep them interested during the warm weather. A committee is forming plans for the league now.

MACHINISTS' CELEBRATION

Plainfield Lodge, I. A. of M. Hears Enthusiastic Addresses of Labor Leaders.

400 IN ATTENDANCE

Joseph H. Buchanan and Joseph Sonnabend Makes Speeches—Refreshments Are Served.

Plainfield Lodge, No. 167, International Association of Machinists, celebrated the sixth anniversary of its organization, Monday, by conducting a meeting and social time in Trades' Council Hall. It was attended by 400 members and was one of the most helpful and encouraging affairs the lodge has ever held.

The principal speakers for the evening were Joseph Sonnabend, of Newark, business agent for the association, and Joseph R. Buchanan, labor editor of the New York Journal and a pioneer in the movement. Mr. Sonnabend was first called upon and made a brief address in which he complimented the members of No. 167 on the growth of the lodge and the manner in which its affairs have been conducted. He pointed out the fact that a great deal of power rests in the organization but he advised them not to overestimate it and so become involved in difficulties that could establish no good.

Mr. Buchanan was given an enthusiastic reception when he was introduced and talked to the men in a line of thought that gave them renewed encouragement for continued work in the proper channels. He cited his thirty-five years' experience as an upholder of organized labor principles and emphasized the fact that unions are a necessity; that they have not been built up on sentiment but on the contrary were forced upon the workers by the concentration of capital in the large plants that have replaced the individual employer.

He urged upon the members the necessity of strengthening their organization, not by unreasonable demands but by watching the interests of the employers and preserving harmony with their own ranks; meeting the shop owners on an equal footing and demanding only what justly belongs to them. He stated that prior to the recognition of the trades unions, every man had a right to state the price of his product with the exception of the latter, since the unions have compelled recognition the wage worker has been granted the right to fix the price for which he sells his labor. In the past few years, he said, conditions have changed in organized towns by from twenty-five to forty per cent., both for the business man and the mechanic. He stated further that the trades unions have done more to build up this country than any other institution. He urged upon the members the necessity of attending meetings of their lodges, performing all duties devolving upon them and not to allow small matters to turn them from the ultimate purpose that the organized movement is aiming at. He concluded by advising the men to work in such a way that they could at least "leave the world a little better than they found it."

After the remarks refreshments were served and an informal discussion of machinists' affairs and conditions took place. At the present time they are better than they have ever been but the craft is still behind other trades in several ways. The International Association is making great strides in membership and by proper concentration of effort has been steadily securing concessions for the great body of machinists.

CITY FIRE DEPARTMENT HAS A STRENUOUS TIME

ANSWERED SIX STILL AND TWO BOX ALARMS IN TWELVE HOURS SATURDAY.

The city fire department had one of the busiest days in its history, Saturday, answering inside of twelve hours six still and two box alarms. Three of the former were received in the morning, two in the afternoon and one in the early evening. After that the hoses were pulled and though all were for threatening blazes none of them resulted seriously.

The first five stills were for grass fires and the last was for a burning tree opposite the residence of Mr. Moore on West Seventh street near Lee place. High tension electric wires put it in flames and it made a dangerous job for the firemen. Chief Doane went to the scene himself with No 6's chemical engine and the men had the work cautiously in order not to get a shock from the existing current. It required a full tank of the chemical engine to kill the flames.

At 7:45 an alarm was turned in from box 41 for a slight blaze at the home of Mrs. Frank on West Second street near Madison avenue. A neighbor across the hall heard a crackling noise and investigating found a couch in Mrs. Frank's kitchen on fire. Edward Townley and James Conklin had lifted it outdoors before the department arrived. The damage will reach $15.

The last box alarm came from No. 23 and was turned in at 10:35 for a curtain blaze at E. E. Ripley's, 307 East Front street. The call was before the apparatus reached the scene. The curtains were blown against a gas jet by a sudden gust of wind. The alarm was sounded just as the New Plainfield theatre was discharging its audience and it required a lot of hustling on the part of the police to get Second street cleared for the apparatus from No. 1 house.

BOROUGH JOINS IN.

Not to be outdone by the activity in the city department, the borough firemen managed to get in on Saturday night's bustle to the extent of two alarms. The first was turned in at 7 o'clok for a blaze in a brush heap on Grove street near Greenbrook avenue. The second, rather dangerous to surrounding property and the firemen were called to do away with it.

The second alarm came in shortly after 11 o'clock and was for a blaze in a storehouse located in the rear of Chas. Rose & Son's meat market on Myrtle avenue. It was only a small affair and there wasn't much left of it when the department arrived. No explanation has been offered as to how it caught fire as no one was near at all evening so far as known. The flames were first seen by an attendant at the Park Club, who pulled box 151.

Ash Pit For Every House.

Among the objects that invariably attract the attention of tourists in Denver are the ash pits at every house. These are made necessary by the character of the coal commonly used for domestic purposes and by the high winds that prevail.

The ashes of the lignited coal so extensively burned hold the heat for an extraordinary length of time, remaining red-hot for many hours, or, if kept from the air, for days after passing through the grate bars.

It is evident that if these red-hot ashes were thrown out in back yards or vacant lots the high winds that sweep across the plains would scatter them broadcast, making them a constant menace to the eyes, and clothing of passers-by, as well as to inflammable property of every kind. Every ash pit is therefore required by city ordinance to be provided with an ash pit, shiped like an old-fashioned bake oven, with small openings at the top, through which the ashes are thrown. Another opening in one side at the bottom permits their removal when the pit is full.—Kansas City Times.

Rossetti's Awful Breakfast.

It was at one time arranged that Dante Gabriel Rossetti, his brother William and Swinburne and George Meredith should live together in a certain house. Meredith happened to see Dante Gabriel Rossetti at breakfast and changed his plans. Meredith himself tells the story. "I was just noon," says he, "when Rossetti had not yet risen, though it was an exquisite day. On the breakfast table on a huge dish rested five thick slabs of bacon, upon which five rigid eggs had slowly bled to death. Presently Rossetti appeared in his dressing gown, with slippers down at heel, and devoured the dainty repast like an orge." That meal was too much for Meredith, and he sacrificed three months' rent rather than see it repeated.

"Mad as a Hatter."

What is the derivation of the phrase "Mad as a hatter?" One explanation is that it was originally "Madder as an oyster" (Buitre), that bivalve being supposed to be extremely unintellectual. Another theory is that the phrase had reference to Collins, the English poet, author of the "Ode to the Passions." He was a hatter at Chichester, and it has been said that the lunatics with whom he was confined at one time called him "the hatter" and that the phrase originated thus.

CHIEF KIELY A "WIZARD"

Came Within Two of Getting Perfect Bowling Score in Tourney Series.

BROKE CITY RECORDS

In Three Games Made an Average of 201.1, a Feat Never Equalled by a Local Pin-hitter.

In the presence of a big crowd at McLaughlin's alleys, last night, Chief P. S. Kiely came within two of making the coveted perfect bowling score, thereby breaking the local record and establishing himself as the city's champion pin-hitter. He made eleven straight strikes and sent the ball down the boards for the twelfth, hitting nicely in the pocket. Two of the pins wavered, however, and then settled back to stay, making his score 298 instead of the possible 300. The previous high score for the city was 296 made last fall by Harry Radin.

The chief's exhibition of "wizard" shooting took place in the course of a series of twenty games between himself and his partner, Judge Runyon, and Charles F. Meyer, Jr., and Dan Mack. The big score was only one example of what he can do as is the three games of the match he made an average of 201.1, thus establishing another record. In addition, the Kiely-Runyon combination also beat the tourney's high team score twice, the previous figures being 446, made by themselves last winter. In the first game they got a total of 463 and in the third 451. Mack and Meyer were also on the job and though they lost the first and third, they captured the second by a lead of twenty-one, their figures standing 401 to 380.

Before the series with Mack and Meyer, the "municipal" teams rolled three games with Woolston and Cunningham and took them all. The winning of the five games and the loss of but one gives them a chance to tie Gaddis and Dilkes for first place in the tourney. Kiely and Runyon have won twenty-seven games and lost twelve while Gaddis and Dilkes have won twenty-eight and lost eleven. Each team has three more games to roll, the opponents in each instance being the Schalk brothers of Raritan, and it is possible that they will take place tomorrow night. As it stands now, the chiefs and the judge will get second prize or place, high team score prize, high team average prize, and it is possible the chief will get high individual average.

The high rolling seemed to have been contagious, last night, as in another tourney series, John Conklin went "crazy" and made three scores over 200. There were 224, 204 and 206, and not to be outdone Harry VanEmburgh loomed up with a 237 and a 193. The only unfortunates during the evening were Sam Cunningham and "Willie" Mullen, who fell into the 120 class. Mullen and Conklin took two out of their three games.

The scores:

Kiely	279	207	298
Runyon	184	272	182
	463	480	481
VS.
Meyer	178	225	178
Mack	173	176	174
	351	401	352
Kiely	159	279	221
Runyon	204	173	179
	363	452	410
VS.
Woolston	140	179	175
Cunningham	143	171	160
	283	310	335
Mullen	151	134	146
Conklin	224	204	206
	375	338	352
VS.
VanEmburgh	193	237	169
Blatz	172	169	162
	365	406	331

P. C. C. Will Open Soon.

The officers and trustees of the Plainfield Country Club met at the Casino last night and discussed informally matters pertaining to the opening of the season, which will probably be the last of this month. The course is now open for play and is pronounced to be in good condition. The season's schedule, which is in the hands of the golf committee, will be ready for distribution in about ten days. There will be the usual number of club competitions for cups offered by individuals and the club. The prospects are bright for a successful year.

For fancy fruits and fresh vegetables the best place in the city is Neuman Brothers' store. Their assortment is always large and prices low.

WHITEHOUSE STATION EXPERIENCES BAD FIRE

BUSINESS SECTION WIPED OUT AND WHOLE TOWN THREATENED.

A fire, which started early yesterday morning, completely wiped out a business section of Whitehouse Station and threatened at one time to destroy the whole town. The loss is estimated at about $10,000, which is almost covered by insurance.

Charles Vanderbeek's baker shop, William Reilly's barber shop, Frank G. Sharp's butcher shop, a large storage room and the Union Hotel office and sheds were burned to the ground with their contents.

An alarm was sent in to the Whitehouse firemen, and it was largely due to their efforts that the flames did not spread. At one time the Union Hotel, the postoffice and the residences of Coroner Eugene Hoffman and Mrs. Harriet G. Pidcock were threatened.

A telegram for help was sent to Somerville, but the local firemen got the flames under control and the request was countermanded. The blaze is said to have originated in the bakery.

Over the baker shop lived Mr. and Mrs. Richard Davis and Thomas Durling and his daughter, Carrie. They were awakened by the flames breaking through the floor into their rooms.

The burned structures were owned by Augustus C. Durling, Charles W. Pidcock, Mrs. H. Eugene Park and William C. Quick, the last named being proprietor of the Union Hotel. Scarcely any of the contents of the building were rescued. Miss Durling lost a gold watch and $100 in cash.

CONGREGATIONAL MEN'S CLUB STEADILY GROWS

BIGGER BY FOURTEEN MEMBERS SINCE JAN. 1.—EXCELLENT ENTERTAINMENT.

One of the pleasantest entertainments of their series of monthly affairs was enjoyed by the members of the Congregational Church Men's Club last night. A good-sized gathering enjoyed a varied programme of music, story and impersonations to the full.

The chief entertainer was Frank *G. Reynolds, of Boston, Mass., a pro*fessional. He sang, gave imitations and rendered an admirable monologue. Master James Vail played piano selections, and Bertram Tallamy sang. Refreshments were served.

Four new members were added to the club list. The membership has been growing steadily for several months. Fourteen names have been added to the list since the first of the year.

The last of the social sessions will be held on May 7. The affair will be a "ladies' night." The entertainers will be announced later.

QUIETLY WEDDED.

Miss Rachel Daudt Becomes Wife of Fred Mortimer Slater.

Miss Rachel Daudt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas S. Daudt, of Grove street, and Fred Mortimer Slater, son of Mrs. F. M. Slater, of Jackson avenue, were married at 4:30 yesterday afternoon at the home *of the bride's parents. The cere*mony was witnessed only by immediate relatives because of the serious illness of the groom's grandmother, Mrs. Agnes Pangborn, whose death occurred this morning.

Rev. Dr. Chamblin, of the First Baptist church, was the officiating clergyman and there were no attendants. Miss Daudt wore a costume of pale gray cloth and carried bride roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Slater will make their home in Newark where the groom has furnished an apartment. He is employed in the Newark offices of the Public Service Corporation.

Lecture On Wrecking.

Capt. H. B. Saunders entertained a large crowd at the Y. M. C. A. last night, with his lecture on marine wrecking before the boys' department. He showed a number of graphic views illustrative of the work of saving wrecked vessels. Capt. Saunders is conected with a wrecking firm and knows the work thoroughly.

Photographer Released.

Hugh J. Todd, a photographer arrested yesterday for drunkenness, was released this morning by Judge Runyon, because his woman partner, or whose complaint he was arrested, refused to appear against him.

C. W. M'CUTCHEN CHOSEN PARK GOLF CLUB PRES.

TRUSTEES HOLD AN ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING AT PARK CLUB.

Officers were elected and plans made for the opening of the golf season at a meeting of the trustees of the Park Golf Club held last night at the Park Club. This meeting was deferred until this time, owing to the absence of C. W. McCutchen, who was re-elected president, with Reuben Knox vice-president and Charles B. Morse, secretary and treasurer.

These committees were appointed: Green, Reuben Knox, chairman; Alexander Gilbert, Rev. Dr. H. K. Carroll; house, Miss Lydie Loizeaux, chairman; Miss May Shreve, Rev. and Mrs. C. L. Goodrich, A. W. Kenworthy; golf, Charles B. Morse, chairman; John L. Watson, J. B. Betts; membership, Chas. B. Morse, chairman; John E. Steiner, Walter M. McNaughton.

William Kiernan was appointed green keeper and he will start at once putting the course in condition. For this time of the year the coarse is excellent and the prospects for a successful season are better than ever before.

The golf committee discussed plans for the year and it was decided to re-engage George Anderson as steward. Lunches and suppers, which were so popular last year, will again be a feature of club life. The popularity of the play for the Hyde cup, which lasted through October last year, induced the trustees to decide in favor of a series of monthly competitions for cups to be offered by individuals and the club. These in addition to play for the President's cup and the regular holiday trophies, will serve to bring out a large and enthusiastic field. It was left to the golf committee to arrange the details for these competitions. A challenge was received from the New Brunswick Golf Club for a series of matches and it was left to the golf committee to *arrange the same if a sufficient in*terest is shown.

No definite date was fixed for opening the course, but this will depend altogether on the weather and the progress made in putting the course in shape. By a vote of the trustees, Millard Fillmore Elderton and Walter C. Dobbins were elected honorary members of the club.

WESLYAN MUSICAL CLUBS DELIGHT LARGE AUDIENCE.

College Boys Present a Fine Programme at Monroe Avenue M. E. Church.

Under the auspices of the Men's Association of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, the Wesleyan Glee and Musical Clubs gave their annual concert to crowd the church last night before an audience that more than filled the auditorium. The concert was without doubt the best ever given by the club here and each number on the programme was encored. The glee clubs as well as the musical clubs are exceptionally well balanced and in the rendition of the several numbers showed care in training. In the vocal selections the club wisely refrained from the old worn-out college songs and gave instead many new and popular songs were substituted.

An added pleasure were the recitations by Mr. Price, whose clever work won for him great applause. An effective selection was James Whitcomb Riley's "That Old Sweetheart of Mine," with glee club accompaniment. The programme was as follows:

"Medley, "air by Northrop, '07, Mandolin Club; "In Absence," Buck, Glee Club; reading, Mr. Price; "Lament in the Garden of Love," Glee Club; reading, Mr. Price, with Glee Club; "Spin, Spin," Jungst, Glee Club; reading, Mr. Price; "His Honor the Mayor," Mandolin Club; "Victory," Waite, '06, Glee Club.

Hunt Club to Open Season.

The opening of the season for the Watchung Hunt Club will be held on Saturday, the first hunt will be held. The start will be made at the Plainfield Country Club and end at the Watchung Hunt Club's home at Colonia. Afterward tea will be served under the direction of Mrs. Charles Marshall, of New York; Mrs. Charles D. Freeman, of Colonia and Mrs. Lewis E. Waring, of this city. It is expected that if the weather is favorable there will be a large turn-out of the members.

Approaching Wedding.

Invitations have been issued by Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Stewart, of West Seventh street, for the wedding of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Stewart, and William Fleet Tallaferro, formerly of Gloucester County, Virginia, but now of Plainfield. The event will be celebrated Wednesday afternoon, April 17, at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents. The couple will reside at West Seventh and Liberty streets. Mr. Tallaferro having purchased that property.

PRESS SAVES COUNTRY

James E. Martine Eulogizes the Newspapers at Jefferson Dinner.

REPLIES TO McSHERRY

Lawyer Said Unbridled Press Was Worse Than Corporations—Martine's Appreciation On the Father of Democracy.

James E. Martine was the principal speaker at the first annual banquet of the Young Men's Democratic Club of New Brunswick, last night. The dinner was a Jefferson day affair.

It was held at the Mansion House. There were 200 dinners, Democrats from various parts of the county being among them.

Mr. Martine, speaking on "Our Country," replied to the speech made by Howard McSherry on St. Patrick's Day, in which the lawyer said it was not the corporations that were ruining the country, but the unbridled press. Mr. Martine said that the liberty of the press conserved the interests of the people. The papers exposed the rottenness of the corporations and curbed them. They did more for the people than any other agency.

Continuing, Mr. Martine spoke of Thomas Jefferson. It was he, the speaker said, who brought about the nullification of church and state in *Virginia; he worked always for po*litical liberty and free religion. He was a wealthy man, but he always bore a good reputation. Had a law framed by him been passed in 1800, the slaves would have gradually been freed and the Civil War would not have been fought. Jefferson drew that immortal sentence in which he himself a slaveholder. It was defeated by one vote, and would have passed had a representative from New Jersey been in his seat.

The speakers besides Mr. Martine were Representative William Hughes, of Paterson, and James Baker, of Hudson county.

REPLIES TO PROTEST AGAINST THE SHAW PLAY

MANAGER COUPIHAN EXPLAINS FACTS IN CONNECTION WITH BOOKING.

When interviewed by a Daily Press reporter this morning with reference to the Monday Afternoon Club's protest against the appearance of Mrs. Warren's Profession," Manager W. J. Counihan of the New Plainfield theatre expressed deep regret that its coming should have engendered any opposition.

"That play has been running in New York for the past four weeks," said Mr. Counihan, "and it was booked into my house through a responsible agency that realizes what it means to antagonize local sentiment. When Mrs. Warren's Profession' was first produced in New York it was stopped by a foolish and hysterical sentiment, but when the publicity had passed upon it with calm deliberation, it was declared to be a play with a mission and its presentation was quite within the jurisdiction and under the protection of the law. Since then it has been in other cities in this section and another company is appearing in the West but I have yet to hear of a second protest outside of Plainfield.

"You will recall," continued Mr. Counihan, "that when 'Zaza' was first put on there were protests from every side but after the general public had seen the play it soon died away. In another direction, some people have insisted that 'McFadden's Flats' should not be allowed to be presented here; and so it goes. If I attempted to act as censor for all the plays that are booked into the New Plainfield on the strength of what people think they know about them, my house would be dark the greater part of the time. I have refused dates to burlesque shows and like productions a score of times and I refused to book 'Zaza' when I knew that 'Mrs. Warren's Profession' would prove objectionable I would have refused to take it. My acceptance was based largely on the fact that the play was given a special matinee in New York for the benefit of clergymen and they admitted that it was different than what they had expected."

Congregational Easter.

An admirable programme marked the Easter music in the Congregational church Sunday. In addition to the regular choir, the double quartette of the Sunday-school sang, and Arthur Berg, of New York, played a violin solo. Rev. C. L. Goodrich preached on "Radiant Images." The church was nicely decorated.

THRONG OF FRIENDS HONOR DEAD HERO

CROWDS AT FUNERAL OF CONDUCTOR WHO RISKED LIFE TO SAVE OTHERS

No funeral at St. Mary's church, Elizabeth, in several years has been as largely attended as the services there yesterday morning, when several hundred of his many friends were present to pay their last respects to the memory of Thomas J. McCabe, the Central Railroad conductor, who was fatally injured in the Communipaw terminal last week while trying to save the lives of two little tots who stepped in front of a moving train. There were delegations present from the Y. M. C. L. A. of St. Mary's parish, the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, Elizabeth Council K. of C., and the Brotherhood of Railroad Conductors and Trainmen, in addition to a large number of city and county officials.

A high mass of requiem was celebrated by the Rev. L. J. Bohl, of St. Mary's church. He was assisted by the Rev. Eugene F. Cowhill, of St. Bridget's church, Newark, who delivered the eulogy; the Rev. John H. Hagan, temporary assistant at St. Mary's church; the Rev. B. M. Bogan, of St. Mary's church, Plainfield; and the Rev. Father McCarthy, of Jersey City. There were upwards of two score of floral tributes. The pallbearers were Paterick J. Connell and William J. McCloud, representing the Y. M. C. L. A.; Richard T. Potts, representing the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick; William J. Whelan, representing the Knights of Columbus, and Lester Brightman and Thomas Flanagan, for the Brotherhood of Railroad Conductors and Trainmen. Interment was made in Mt. Olivet cemetery.

TRINITY ENTERTAINMENT PROVED A BIG SUCCESS.

Competent Artists Render a Splendid Programme for Deacons' Fund Benefit.

The entertainment given in the lecture room of Trinity Reformed church, last evening, for the benefit of the deacons' fund of the church, attracted a large and thoroughly appreciative audience. The artists presenting the programme were Miss Justine Roberts, elocutionist; Mrs. Ida Randolph-Smalley, pianist, and Miss Nora B. Schenck, soprano soloist, and each one shared the honors of the evening.

Possibly, Miss Roberts received the greatest ovation for her clever work. In addition to the several numbers on the programme, Miss Roberts favor the audience with two impersonations of a child and besides gave a dialogue describing in several different languages the opinions of foreigners about the Statue of Liberty. In all her work she captivated the audience and was repeatedly encored.

Mrs. Smalley also received a flattering reception in her fine rendition of piano solos, and she shared with Miss Roberts in the generous applause following the closing number, which opened and closed the programme. Mrs. Smalley was probably heard at her best in playing "Dinorah," by Hoffman, and "Rondo Capriccioso," by Mendelssohn. Of special interest and pleasure were the piano duets on two pianos by Mrs. Smalley and Miss Roberts. The rendition was perfect, the effect being as though one instrument was played. With one or two exceptions *the piano solos were all from memo*ry.

The solo work by Miss Schenck was all to be desired. She has a soprano voice that is both rich and full and her selections were those best suited for it. She was also encored each time. The programme follows:

Duet, "Beautiful Blue Danube," Strauss; Miss Roberts and Mrs. Smalley; vocal solo, "A Winter Lullaby," DeKoven, Miss Nora B. Schenck; reading, "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," Wiggin, Miss Roberts; piano solo, "Dinorah," Hoffman, Mrs. Smalley; vocal solo, "Good Night, Little Girl, Good Night," Macy, Miss Schenck; character sketch, "A Family Tale," Pauline Phelps, Miss Roberts; piano solo, (a) selected, (b) "Butterfly," Chaminade, Mrs. Smalley; monologue, "Up the Aisle at the Wedding," Miss Roberts; piano solo, "Rondo Capriccioso," Mendelssohn, Mrs. Smalley; piano duet, "British Patrol," Asch, Miss Roberts and Mrs. Smalley.

Adele Watt Named.

Adele F. Watt, former wife of Ex-Commodore Archibald Watt, of the New York Yacht Club, at one time a resident here, has been named as corespondent by Mrs. William H. Truman in a suit for absolute divorce from her husband. Truman was named as co-respondent when Watt sued for divorce.

Mrs. Mary J. VanNest and grandson, Ernest Conover, of Elmwood place, are spending the week in Washington.

MRS. AGNES PANGBORN DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

HAD LIVED IN THE BOROUGH CONTINUOUSLY FOR SEVENTY-THREE YEARS.

Following an illness of six weeks from a complication of troubles, Mrs. Agnes Pangborn, for seventy-three years a resident of North Plainfield, died early this morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Fred M. Slater, of Jackson avenue. Mrs. Pangborn had been a great sufferer for several months past and the end had been expected for some time. Previous to the fatal illness she had enjoyed good health and was remarkably bright for one of her years.

Mrs. Pangborn was born in England 1820 and came to this country when but eight years old. The family embarked on a sailing vessel and it required six weeks for the passage across the Atlantic. She resided with her parents at Jersey City for five years and then came to what is now North Plainfield, retaining her residence there until her death.

Mrs. Pangborn was married twice, her first husband being Ira Pangborn, a member of a well known Plainfield family in its early days. At his death she became the wife of his brother, Stephen Pangborn, who died a few years ago. She is survived by one son and four daughters. They are William H. Pangborn, of the borough; Mrs. Slater and Mrs. Mary Morse, of the borough; Mrs. Albert Hedden, of West Fifth street, and Mrs. William McDonald, of Newark. Mrs. Pangborn was a member of the First Baptist church and was a regular attendant until illness prevented. She was baptized in a former edifice of the present congregation by Rev. Mr. Hill over sixty years ago.

The funeral will be held at Mrs. Slater's home Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock and will be in charge of Dr. Chamblss. Interment will be in the family plot in the North Plainfield cemetery.

P. B. A. EXTENDS AID TO ITS SUCCESSORS

GIVES BUILDINGS, GRANDSTANDS AND PARAPHERNALIA TO OTHER NINES.

After a conference with many of the subscribers to the fund raised last year, the officers of the Plainfield Baseball Association met at the Hotel Iroquois, last night, there being an attendance of members as well as officers, and after a full discussion, decided to present to the Y. M. C. A. and the Clinton Avenue Baseball Clubs, the buildings on Crescent Oval used for the past few years as grandstand and bleachers, together with the fences and all other paraphernalia owned by the association, for the purpose of encouraging the sport in the future in this city.

It was with the understanding that Philip Dash waived all claims in the franchise that those at the meeting reached the above conclusion. This statement was signed by William N. Runyon, president; N. B. Smalley, vice president; Charles W. Runyon, treasurer.

This matter has been pending for several weeks, the management of the Y. M. C. A. and Clinton Avenue teams being desirous to secure Crescent Oval as well as the equipment on the grounds. The clubs have obtained a lease of the land for the coming season from the owners, and will use the same jointly. In the opinion of those at last night's meeting the decision reached was the best and will tend to increase the interest in the National game in Plainfield. The clubs now controlling the grounds will begin at once the work of putting them in condition for the opening of the season on May 1.

TWO WERE HURT.

Horse Ran Away Throwing Occupants of Wagon Out.

Frightened by a trolley car, a horse owned and driven by Charles Drake, of the West End, ran away on West Fourth street, last night, throwing him and his companion, Norman K. Barnes, out and severely injuring them. The animal turned completely around at the approach of the car, upsetting the wagon and wrecking it completely.

Both Mr. Drake and Mr. Barnes were considerably cut and bruised about the face and body and were obliged to seek the services of a physician. The horse was badly cut about the legs and otherwise injured and will be but of commission for some time.

Miss Lulu Piker, of West Front street, is spending the week in Washington.

Mrs. Charles Matthews, of Grove street, who has been detained at home by illness for a long time, shows but little improvement.

HOW UNION STANDS ON THE GOVERNORSHIP

"Silent" Smith's Opinion Is that County will be Guided by Sentiment Throughout the State.

HAS SOME FAVORITES

Fort, Collins, Fisk, Frelinghuysen, Pitney and Riker Among the Possibilities.

Supreme Court Clerk William Riker was busy yesterday buttonholing political leaders, his object being to impress them with the fitness of his brother Chandler W. Riker as a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination. Among those with whom he talked was Register of Deeds Frank H. Smith, the Union county chairman.

Regarding the situation in Union county, Mr. Smith told the Essex county man that his county would be guided largely by the sentiment of the party throughout the State and would be for the man deemed to be the strongest and best fitted by the State leaders and the people. He also stated that Supreme Court Judge J. Franklin Fort and Supreme Court Judge Pitney had many admirers in Union who would work hard for them. Particularly was this the case, he said, among members of the bar. State Senator Joseph Frelinghuysen, of Somerset, he declared, was unusually strong in Plainfield, where his personal friends would do their utmost in his behalf.

"It may be," said Mr. Smith, "that Mayor Charles J. Fisk will be brought out by his friends for the nomination. If such should be the case he will undoubtedly get the solid delegation from Plainfield and moreover would be supported in other parts of the county. Mr. Fisk he would desire the nomination. The leaders in our county will see to it that the will of the people of the county is obeyed so far as we are concerned.

he would desire the nomination.

It was said in Trenton yesterday that Secretary of State Dickinson was talking in favor of Judge Gilbert Collins. To what extent he will go in behalf of Collins is problematical according to the wise ones but he is said to be very partial to the man from his own county. State Senator Frelinghuysen's boom is the most active one just at present and it is reported that the Raritan man churishes the fond hope that he will be the nominee.

URGE BUSINESS MEN TO ATTEND MEETING

FULL ATTENDANCE WANTED AT BOARD OF TRADE MEETING.

President Harry W. Marshall has called a meeting of the Board of Trade for tomorrow night and he expresses the hope that there will be a large and representative of business men present as business of importance will be transacted. An effort is being made to make the body a more active one; one that will be a material help to the community.

In referring to the plan to make the meetings more interesting and more productive of good results, Secretary Edward F. Feickert said today that there were many things to be done in the near future which would be of great benefit to the business interests of the community. Nothing could be accomplished, he added, unless the merchants take an active part in the deliberations.

Library Directors Meet.

Routine business was transacted at the monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of the Public Library, last night. The president reported that he had filed with the city clerk the certificate to the Common Council for appropriation for tax money for the ensuing year. The treasurer's and librarian's reports were presented and filed, after which the meeting adjourned.

Harry DeMess, of West Second street, is entertaining his cousin, Herbert Robinson, of Paterson.

Mrs. C. H. Loomis, of Manlius, N. Y., is a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Morse, of Franklin place.

ON AN ALLIGATOR HUNT

Former Mayor Saunders Had Thrilling Experiences while at Panama.

A DANGEROUS SPORT

One Member of Party Got Frightened and Threatened to Kill Guide If He Got Near the Gators.

Former Mayor W. L. Saunders, of the borough, who returned home Wednesday from a trip to Panama, gained a wide knowledge of conditions in the isthmus country during his stay but experiences which he encountered on the side were the sort that make the ordinary man feel like remaining in prosaic New Jersey.

There was something new every day to vary the monotony of business matters but the former chief executive of the borough had one experience which stands out above all the rest and makes his eye flash when he tells about it. It was an alligator hunt, a pastime common to the Panamanians and one which they always try to get visitors interested in but as a rule without success. Looking for grizzlies in the Rock Mountains and chasing catamounts in the North woods are efforts to play compared with it as there is nothing more dangerous on land and water than a wounded saurian. The gigantic tail swinging about would crush a boat like an egg shell and woe betide the luckless adventurer who is hurled within a hundred feet of it.

Mr. Saunders reached the Isthmus at the same time the Congressional party did and it was while going through the canal zone that some of the more venturesome spirits suggested the alligator hunt. He agreed to go with several other northerners and they sallied out under the guidance of Captain Stanton, U. S. A., a Spanish War veteran of Rough Rider fame. The boat was sent up one of the deep streams that abound in that section and it hadn't gone a great distance before the excitement was encountered in big chunks.

A sudden turn in the stream brought into view within sight of all the gators they cared to look after in one day. The ugly mouths with their rows of gleaming teeth stood at them and the eyes flashed angrily as they approached within firing distance. A native guide propelled the boat about so that four of them could be shot, three departing for the 'gater hereafter without any special fuss but the fourth admitted defeat only after a furious struggle during which everyone of the amateur hunters would have given his last dollar to be a thousand miles away.

He was an unusually big fellow his actual measurement being twelve feet six inches. A bullet struck him in the eye and almost at the same instant he gave a leap out of the water and made a complete turn in the air. It brought him within striking distance of the frail boat and the danger made more than one face blanch for the time being. The saurian thrashed the water until it boiled in white foam and threatened every instant to capsize the craft. It was impossible to land another shot in a vulnerable spot as the convulsive leaps were too fast and away all the hunters cared about was getting as far away as possible.

The native guide was complacent all through the excitement and wanted to go nearer but was hazed in a manner he hadn't counted on. One of the Congressmen who was more badly frightened, jumped toward him in a white heat of anger and shouted:

"If you go a step nearer I'll shoot you dead."

The guide wasn't taking any chances and got away from the huge tail beating about like a windmill in a Kansas gale. The gator's struggles ceased a moment or so later and he was towed ashore. The carcass was photographed with the members of the party behind it to show that when the size was mentioned the truthful camera would corroborate the story.

"The Panama canal is a great undertaking," said Mr. Saunders in speaking of the trip last night, "but there are others and alligator hunting is one of them."

"THE JUMPERS" JUMP.

Peculiar Sect Leap From Reform Hall to March Building.

"The Jumpers," or "Friars of Fire" people, who have been holding services in Reform Hall during the past two weeks, have moved to the large hall on the second floor of the March building on Park avenue and Second street, where the meetings will continue as before.

Since coming to Plainfield the peculiar sect has not made much progress and few, if any, converts have been reported. Their strange and unusual form of worship has attracted a few people, who have been more interested in the "jumping" than the preaching. It is said that the reason a change of meeting place was made was due to the heavy expense incurred at Reform Hall.

P. H. S. Seniors' Play.

The senior class of the Plainfield High School has selected "Twelfth Night" for the play to be given by them this year. The cast is being coached by Miss Goddard.

CONTRACTOR KELLY THROWS UP THE JOB

FINDS HE CAN'T BUILD BRIDGE WALLS FOR AMOUNT HE BID.

Joseph E. Kelly, the lowest bidder for the work of constructing four wing walls on the new West End avenue bridge, his bid being $2,460, a has written County Attorney W. R. Codington that he will be unable to execute the contract and withdraws his bid. Mr. Codington has informed the freeholders of Mr. Kelly's action and arrangements will be made to award the contract to the next lowest bidder.

At the time the contract was awarded to Mr. Kelly for $2,460 it was generally believed that his figures were too low for the work and that he would lose on some contractors that he could make no profit. Other estimates were used as a basis. The next lowest bidder to Mr. Kelly is Arthur E. Smith, of this city, whose figures for the work according to plans No. 1 were $2,545 and he will probably get the contract.

ANNUAL MEETING OF PARK AVENUE CHURCH

DEED TO THE PARISH HOUSE ACCEPTED —ENCOURAGING REPORTS RECEIVED.

The annual meeting of the Park Avenue Baptist church was held last night. Pastors and officers were elected, and reports were received from the various funds and organizations.

Following the reading of the minutes, the following reports were handed in: Treasurer's report, by L. R. Schofield; Sunday-school, by Treasurer J. M. Hawkins; Deacons, by J. H. Cuming; Fellowship Fund, by D. M. Runyon; Benevolent Fund, by E. F. Vail; Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, by Mrs. S. A. Krom; Ladies' Aid Society, by Mrs. W. A. Freeman, the president, and Mrs. J. W. Johnson, the treasurer; Women's Home Missionary Society, by Mrs. Nelson Runyon; Young People's Christian Endeavor Society, by Miss Florence G. Hawkins, the president, and Miss Bessie Giles, treasurer; The King's Daughters, by Miss Olive Delaney. All the reports were of an encouraging nature. The funds all showed a good balance.

The elections resulted as follows: Deacons, William M. Tallman, I. R. Giles, Charles F. Dayton; treasurer of Benevolent Funds, E. Frank Vail; church clerk, H. C. Runyon. J. H. Cuming was named as deacon, but he asked to be excused. The election was laid over for a month.

The deed for the parish house, which has been given to the church on very nominal terms by Mrs. Frances Saunders, of Elmira, N. Y., who is a generous friend of the church, was accepted. Notice to that effect will be sent to Mrs. Saunders. The house is at 11 East Ninth street. It has been occupied by the patsor and his family for two years. It was the home of Mrs. Saunders for a number of years.

The annual meeting of the congregation will be held next month.

MR. McCUTCHEN CHAIRMAN OF FAITH CHAPEL BOARD.

Annual Meeting of East End Baptist Congregation Held Last Week.

Charles W. McCutchen was re-elected trustee for three years and chairman of the board at the annual meeting of Faith chapel, last week, and reports were presented for the year. These show a marked growth in every department with bright prospects for the coming year.

The membership of the chapel was reported to be seventy-four and that of the Sunday-school about 108. The membership of the Baraca Class is forty-five and that of the Women's Bible Class twenty-nine. During the year there was raised approximately between $1,200 and $1,400. Among the improvements made during the year was the installation of the baptistry, the expense of which has been paid. Aside from the financial sidt special mention was made of the spiritual growth as the result under the leadership of the pastor, Rev. J. W. Musson, and the superintendent of the Sunday-school, L. W. Randolph.

Season of French and Italian Operas.

Oscar Hammerstein announces a season of Italian and French grand opera at the Manhattan Grand Opera House, New York, commencing with Monday night, April 1, which will mark the third appearance of Mme. Calve. "Carmen" will be given the opening night, to be followed on Wednesday night with "Martha," and "Carmen" again on Friday night. Saturday afternoon "Aida" will be presented and in the evening "Rigoletto. On Sunday night, April 7, the fifth Cleofonte Campanini Grand Sunday night concert will be given at popular prices. The subscription sale of seats for these operas is now open at the box office and an early selection is desirable.

CITY CLERKS' RICH HARVEST IS CUT OFF

BILL PASSED BY LEGISLATURE REGULATES THEIR ELECTION FEES.

For the purpose of fixing a uniform price for the services of clerks through the county on election day, a bill introduced by State Senator E. R. Ackerman in the Senate of the New Jersey Legislature, and passed without opposition, allows clerks the sum of $10 in each election district, which is according to the provision made in Essex county. The charges made by clerks, heretofore, have varied from $5 to $30.

The question of a change was brought about as a result of the bill presented to the Board of Freeholders of Union county by the clerk of Elizabeth, following the last election. His bill was for $900 and at once there was opposition to paying it. It was then planned to have a bill introduced making fixed charges of $10 for the services of a clerk in each election district.

The Board of Freeholders is behind the bill and it is believed that it will pass the House and become a law. If the change is made it will mean quite a saving to the taxpayers throughout the county, besides it will provide that all clerks receive the same fee, thus eliminating any possibility for complaint on the part of the clerks.

DR. LUFBURROW MADE DEPARTMENT SURGEON

BUSY SESSION OF POLICE BOARD— M'DONALD GIVEN ANOTHER CHANCE.

The Police Board last week appointed City Physician Charles Lufborrow as fire and police surgeon and added about $250 on to his salary for the extra work he will be required to do. The Board held a meeting at the office of Mayor Fisk and in addition to creating the new office considered and disposed of a charge against one of the policemen. Incidently a half dozen or more citizens appeared before the body in the capacity of witnesses, but what the nature of their testimony was could not be learned.

Dr Lufburrow, who received the appointment of police and fire surgeon will be required to examine all the men in the two departments from time to time. Should any one of them be injured while on duty it will be necessary for him to give his service promptly whether he be called upon in day or night. In his capacity as city physician he has been doing this work free of charge for some time and the Board felt that it was only fair that he should receive compensation.

At the police hearing, Patrolman Daniel McDonald faced a charge of not ringing up boxes. The Mayor gave him one of his heart-to-heart talks and on the policeman's promise not to offend again the latter was ordered on duty again.

ANNUAL REPORT ON STATE'S GOOD ROADS.

The annual report of Elijah C. Hutchinson, State commissioner of public roads, has just been issued from the printer. It is neatly bound in ornamented black cloth and contains 175 pages.

Besides the thirteenth annual report of Commissioner Hutchinson to Governor Stokes and the Legislature the book contains much other valuable information. Samples for all necessary forms and blanks for state road construction are shown, and a digest of the road laws of the State is presented. Another section gives a table showing the number of tons of stone per mile required to build roads of certain specified widths and depths.

There is a detailed description of every road improved under State aid during 1906. Commission Hutchinson has a special article on road repairs, and this is followed by another by State Supervisor Robert A. Meeker on "The County Supervisor." Other articles are "Road Maintenance," by John J. Albertson, county engineer of Camden county; "The Future of Our Road Improvement System," by Peter Forman, engineer of Monmouth county; "Construction and Maintenance of Oyster Shell Roads," by Josiah Miller, engineer of Salem county, and "Meadow Roads in Cape May County," by Frank Pendall Smith, engineer of that county. Detailed statements from each county engineer are included.

One feature that will make the volume a valuable one is the good roads map. This measures 37 by 27 inches and is accurate chart made from the original surveys of the New Jersey geological survey, which are based on the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey. By means of red lines every improved road in the State is prominently shown.

The pictures are in pairs, showing various highways before improvement and after transformation into fine stone roads.

Widows Dying Out.

The Registrar-General's report shows that there is a decreasing demand for widows in the marriage market, and it is prophesied that they will gradually die out.—Punch.

HENNERY FIRE LEADS TO TWO CASUALTIES

DUNELLEN FIREMAN AND A WOMAN HURT, BUT CHICKENS ARE UNSCATHED

The hennery on the place of Charles A. Corliell, Jr., of Washington avenue, Dunellen, caught fire from burning grass shortly before noon Friday, and as a result Terence J. Ronayne, a fireman, will not be able to use his left foot for some time, and Mrs. Jacob Fisher will have to get along without her right arm for a while.

While riding to the fire on the truck, Ronayne fell off, and the wheels passed over his foot. No bones were broken, but the foot was badly bruised and wrenched. Mrs. Fisher tripped over the hose stretched from the cart at the fire, and broke her arm. Ronayne, Joe Maier, who keeps a hotel in Dunellen, and Harry Dodwell, were the only firemen in town when the alarm rang. The hennery burned down. None of the chickens were home.

WAY STATION FOLK MARVEL.

Elizabeth Folk Impressed by Speed of Plainfield's Fast Train.

A writer for the Elizabeth Journal was impelled to pen the following after watching the 8:30 special from Plainfield skid through his city:

"The Plainfield special, from that city to New York, runs at an average speed of sixty miles an hour, and goes roaring through this city much faster than that in order to climb the stiff grade of the Central Railroad freight house—from that point to Keighry Head—which causes the speed to drop to about fifty miles an hour at the top of the grade. Recently an old railroad man undertook to cross the track at the freight house, but, looking up, saw the train coming down the line about a thousand feet away. The man paused a short time, considering his chances, and turned to look again, when he saw the train right on top of him, so to speak, and had barely got out of danger when she thundered by. At the speed of sixty miles an hour a train goes eighty-eight feet a second, nearly a city block's length, so in ten ticks of a watch a man has no time to lose if he wants to keep out from under it. No one can guess at the speed of a flyer; half a block away from it on the sidewalk is the safest place to wait for it to pass."

THE WRITERS.

A. W. Pinero, the playwright, does his best work while traveling.

Irving Bachelier finds his most pleasurable exercise to consist in the chopping of wood.

W. J. Locke, the new secretary of the Institute of British Architects, is a writer of plays and novels.

Mrs. Alexander Hodgson Burnett wrote her first story at the age of fifteen. It was accepted, and she received for it a check for $17.

Apart from his extensive library, John Morley has no amusements whatever, but to be surrounded by his books is to him perfect happiness. He is a capital walker, but from his youth upward games have never had any attraction for him.

Why She Turned Vegetarian.

An English countess who has many American friends recently became a vegetarian. The other day in a letter to New York she accounted for her abandonment of flesh food:

"Not long ago," she wrote, "I visited a slaughter house.

"I can't tell you how everything was stained deep with blood; how there arose from the drenched, dark floors the sweet, sickly fumes of fresh blood.

"As I was hurrying away three beautiful lambs were led in by a man with a long, shining knife. Filled with pity and indignation, I said:

"'How can you be so cruel as to put those innocent little lambs to death?'

"'Why, madam,' said the man, 'you wouldn't eat them alive, would you?'"

"suffragettes," was married recently to a Glasgow Scot named Frederick Greig, who is manager of a billiard saloon. In the marriage certificate the bride is described as a "woman suffrage organizer."

Heiress apparent to $200,000,000 Senora Creel, wife of the new Mexican ambassador, is the richest woman of the diplomatic set in Washington, where many are rich. Enrique Creel, the ambassador, is far from poor, but his $24,000,000 dwindles to paltry insignificance when ranged beside his wife's huge fortune.

Saving the Coffee.

One day, when the Philadelphia lurched "the limit," and threw Miss Ellen Terry down, as she was ascending the companion-way, she regained her feet without spilling the cup of coffee that she carried in her hand. Declining help, with the remark that she was old enough to take care of herself, she climbed to the promenade deck, and said: "Thank heaven, the coffee is saved."—London Lady.

High School Reception.

A reception for members and former members of the Plainfield High School will be held in the auditorium on Saturday night, April 6, from 8 to 10 o'clock. An admission fee will be charged and the proceeds will go to the Athletic Association fund.

COMPLETE PLANS FOR JERSEY RIFLE SHOOT

COMMITTEE FIXES TOURNAMENT FOR SEPGIRT ON LABOR DAY, SEPT. 2.

The committee having charge of the programme for the seventeenth annual rifle tournament at Sea Girt this year, has decided that the tournament of 1907 shall begin Labor Day, September 2, and continue one week. The committee consists of Major-General J. P. Farmer Wanner, Brigadier-General G. E. P. Howard, Lieutenant-Colonel Nelson Y. Dungan, Major Arthur Rowland, Major W. S. Price, Captain W. A. Tewes and Captain John Nolan.

Matches will consist of the famous Dryden trophy match, which is now held by New Jersey; this company team match (Tyro); the match for the Columbia trophy; the carbine team match; the veteran organization team match; the individual rapid-fire match; the all-comers match; the Hayes match; the Meany match; the Spencer match; the New Jersey trophy match; the members match; the consolation match; the off-hand match; the Hale match; the press match, and the usual practice matches.

In addition there will be a new match called the Governor's match, open to everybody. There will also be a new match for a prize to be given by United States Senator Frank O. Briggs, for regimental teams, consisting wholly of rapid-fire and skirmishes, a new match for a prize to be given by Colonel Anthony R. Kuser, and a slow fire match for regimental teams for a trophy to be given by former Governor John W. Griggs.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH HOLDS ANNUAL SESSION

THREE DEACONS ADDED INCREASING NUMBER TO TWELVE.

By a unanimous vote the members of the First Baptist church, at the annual meeting held last week voted to change the communion service from twice a month to once a month, and it was decided to hold this service on the first Sunday in each month. The matter of a change was given to the present meeting and the pastor, Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, as well as many of the officers and members favored it for the reason that it is the rule in Baptist churches throughout the country, with few exceptions, as well as in most other denominations, and that a more frequent observance would better promote the chief ends of the institution.

Remarks favoring the change were made by Charles W. McCutchen and Thomas Hodgson. Deacons Aldrich, Henry Osgood, while a letter was received from L. V. Randolph in which he expressed a sentiment for the custom that has been followed since 1818, however, he said that if the majority wanted the change he would not oppose it. When the vote was taken the motion offered by Deacon Aldrich providing for the change was adopted without a dissenting voice. The next regular communion service will be held Sunday, April 7, and after that will be held on the first Sunday in each month.

Three additional deacons were elected, making twelve in all, it being the wish of the pastor that the number be increased owing to the large membership. The nominating committee composed of Dr. J. B. Probasco, Deacon Aldrich and Clerk O. B. Leonard presented the names of M. C. Dobbins, Robert W. Barnes and Frederick Thompson and they were elected unanimously.

Clerk O. B. Leonard presented the annual report of the beneficience committee, showing the receipts for the year to be $3,421.85 and the expenditures almost the same. There is a balance of $9.51. This does not include the amounts raised during the year by the women's societies, and special gifts not passing through the church treasury, which will total about as much again. Dr. J. B. Probasco presented the report for the deacons' fund. The receipts were $748.38 and the expenditures $704, leaving a balance of $44.38.

Miss Mary J. Thickstun was re-elected a representative from the church on the board for the Baptist Home for the Aged at Newark.

Easter Music at P. H. S.

Easter was observed at the Plainfield High School Friday by a musical programme. Three numbers were sung by the school, the solo parts being taken by the instructor, Charles Lewis, and Miss Queena Tillotson. There was also music by a quartette consisting of the Misses Queena Tillotson, Louise Andrews, Henrietta Winn and Elizabeth Pound. The numbers were "See Now the Altar," "They Have Taken Away My Lord," and a Lenten cantata, "Story of Calvary."

Will Demonstrate Invention.

William M. Miner, of this city, the inventor of a device which records a conversation over a telephone, will give an illustrated talk concerning the invention before the Men's Club of the First Baptist church on Monday night, April 8.

PLAYING WITH PET DOG CAUSES AN $800 BLAZE

IN CHASING CANINE, WOMAN SHOVE LIGHTED TAPER INTO A CURTAIN.

Mrs. William Dunn, of Norwood avenue, playfully attempted to scare a pet dog that frisked about her as she was lighting the gas in the parlor at her home, Wednesday, and as a result started a fire that caused at least $800 damage. The city department was worked at the blaze for over an hour and by using the chemical engine only kept the loss from reaching a much higher figure.

The dog came running up to Mrs. Dunn as she stood in the parlor with a lighted taper in her hand and in a playful mood she poked it at him. The animal jumped away from her and Mrs. Dunn followed. Before she realized where she was she had brushed against a lace curtain and the flimsy material caught from the burning taper.

In an instant the flames had ascended to the ceiling and before Mrs. Dunn could give the alarm, they spread to the dining room and were hungrily reaching all about. The fire department was called from box 16 but before the apparatus arrived the blaze had crept between the floors and was making its way about two bedrooms. Captain Daley directed the men pending the arrival of Chief Doane and by attacking it from above and below they stopped the progress of the flames. They were in a bad place under the flooring, however, and it required considerable tearing up to get at them. There was no damage outside of the parlor, dining room and bedrooms.

The loss is fully covered by insurance.

BURGESS, CHAMPION Y. M. C. A. ATHLETE

WON THE FINAL EVENT IN COMPETITION-BANKS SECOND, DOUGLASS THIRD

Burgess won the running high jump from the springboard, and with it the championship, in the Y. M. C. A. all-around athletic competition, last night. He leaped six feet six inches. Douglass was second, six feet four inches.

Burgess had a big lead, and didn't need the first to win out. He has shown himself to be the best all-around athlete in the association, his work in the water and on land being decisive. He is one of the men on whom Physical Director Listman places great reliance f or telling work in the State meet at Paterson Saturday night.

The two men next in rank to Burgess in the competition, Banks and Douglass, had their standing in that order. Burgess will receive a gold medal, Banks a silver medal, and Douglass one of bronze.

The meet has been very successful in developing athletic material. It brought out the men who have won three dual meets.

HOPE MISSION SOCIETY ELECTS.

Organization Raised $110 For Home Missionary Work During Year.

The Ladies' Home Missionary Society of Hope chapel held its annual meeting Wednesday and re-elected the incumbent officers as follows: President, Mrs. A. Herbert Condict; vice president, Mrs. L. R. Heward; secretary, Mrs. M. W. Clark; treasurer, Mrs. Joseph Brown. The treasurer reported that $119 had been raised during the year and that the society has voted to send boxes to missions in various parts of the country.

Following the business session, the members were addressed on "Japan" by Miss Emily Tracy. She told of mission work in the Land of Sunshine and Flowers and showed pictures sent her by her sister, Miss May Tracy, who is a missionary at Yokohoma. In conclusion refreshments were served by a committee in charge of Mrs. James Bushby.

Lost Damage Suit.

Charles Tilton failed in his suit for damages against Mrs. Barbara Scan, landlady, Friday, before Justice A. W. Warden and a jury in Dunellen yesterday afternoon. He sued for $100, on the ground that a leaky roof had damaged his furniture and caused illness in his family. The defense showed that the roof was all right when he moved in and that he had damaged the house himself. The jury decided he had no grounds on which to collect damages. E. P. F. vonMinden appeared for the defense.

The Utilitarian Age.

The more picturesque the country the more inevitable it appears to be that its beauty must be menaced and in most instances eventually much impaired by the erection of a hideous line of telephone posts, with their relentless reminder that we live in an age in which the beautiful has constantly to be sacrificed to the useful.—Country Life.

Dunellen Realty Sale.

Through the agency of Robert L. Pierce a building on North avenue, Dunellen, owned by Bernard Suiski, of that place, has been sold to Fred Weland, of Brooklyn. The building consists of a store and flat.

SUICIDE FOLLOWS MOTHER'S INJUNCTION

Forbidden to Attend Social Affair, Pretty Ellen Burns Drinks Carbolic Acid.

LINGERED EIGHT HOURS

Physicians Sought In Vain to Save Her Life—Was Only Nineteen Years Old and Had Many Acquaintances.

After being unconscious for nearly eight hours from the effects of carbolic acid she had swallowed with suicidal intent, Miss Ellen V. Burns, the nineteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Burns, of Pemberton avenue, died at the parents' home at 2:30 Thursday. The girl was discovered soon after she had taken the deadly stuff and Drs. Buchanan and Pittis were quickly at her side but their efforts were of no avail. The dose she took was a large one and her mouth, throat and stomach were fearfully burned by it.

Miss Burns was an exceptionally pretty and popular young woman and why she should have killed herself has not been made clear. It is stated with some positiveness, however, that she had become morose and moody because her mother forbade her to attend a social function that she had been looking forward to with no small degree of pleasure. She had set her heart on going but the mother believes in a strict observance of Holy Week and so informed her. Wednesday afternoon Ellen dressed herself in a becoming gown and without saying anything as to where she was going, left the house. She evidently came direct to town and purchased the acid, after which she returned home.

Mrs. Burns noticed nothing peculiar about her actions but on going to her room to call her at 5:30, the mother found the girl lying on the bed and writhing about in great pain. Almost the same instant, the mother discovered the bad-tempted acid bottle and the truth flashed upon her. Realizing that quick action was necessary she telephoned for the physicians and then adopted what relief measures she could think of before they arrived. Dr. Buchanan was the first to reach the house and he did everything possible despite the fact that the case looked hopeless from the start. When he was joined by Dr. Pittis, the two physicians doubled the effort to ease the pain while seeking to prevent the life from slipping away and did not give up until assured by death that she died.

Miss Burns was a member of St. Mary's parish and the various societies connected with the church. She had a wide acquaintance in the city and borough and was known as a girl with a sunny disposition and *fond of social gatherings. She is sur*vived by two brothers, Thomas Burns, who was formerly a letter carrier at the local postoffice, and Joseph Burns, a mason, and one sister, Mrs. Edward McCarthy, of West Sixth street.

Real Estate Transfers.

The following local real estate transfers have been recorded at Eliz*abeth: Fred Endress et ux. to Her*man Thein, southeasterly side Muhlenberg place, corner Miller's land, Plainfield, $3,500; B. Frank Coriell et ux. to Charles C. Graves, southeasterly side South Second street, 468 feet northeasterly of Clinton avenue, Plainfield, $1; Oscar N. Ulrick et ux. to Annie E. Murphy, northerly side Fifth street, 256 feet northeasterly of Washington street, Plainfield, $1; Thomas J. Hughes et ux. to Annie E. Murphy, Second street, corner lot No. 1, Plainfield, $1; Annie T. Neumann et al. to Belle K. Ellis, northerly side Grove avenue, 45 feet of Division avenue, Plainfield, $1; Belle K. Ellis to Anna C. Weber, same as last, $3,650. The following contract has also been filed: Ralph Shiff with Martin Galbraith, carpenter and mason, work new barn, 712 West Third street, Plainfield, $228.

New Lamps For Old.

Almost every lamp needs boiling occasionally when the light burns dimly, and no attention to oil or wick will make any difference.

Take the lamp apart, remove the wick and then boil both burner and wick in hot water in which has been thrown some washing soda.

When every part has been thoroughly cleaned and as thoroughly dried put in the wick, trim it, fill the lamp with oil and the light will be brilliant.

Dribbling Scavengers.

One day this week it was noted that 120 pieces of paper, wood, etc., were to be seen on four blocks of street in the vicinity of Greenbrook road and Harrison avenue. Somebody will pay the penalty if it is continued.

EPWORTH LEAGUE

April 7: "Triumphant Grace."

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.
II Cor. 8, 9; Rom. v. 15, 16, 20; 2 Cor. x. 3; II Cor. iv. 15-18; xii. 9, 10.

In nothing is the power of Christ more manifest than in the grace He gives to His followers to cheerfully endure trials and persecutions.

This is much more than patience. It is not a grim holding on to the truth with dogged determination not to let go. It is not so much the feeling of rugged strength and the strong desire to battle down all opposition. Such courage may come to the natural man who has never felt the influence of the spirit of Christ.

The grace which triumphs is more of an inward exhilaration that he have found one whom we can love supremely and for whom we can do this little service to show that we do in real earnest love him truly. When it is not the doing anything, but just holding still, when everything hurts and murmurs and there is only the deeper sense of gladness that it is for Him.

Did mother never tell you a secret when you were a bit of a child? Did she never call you a pet name and tell you not to tell it to any one else? Did you never in older years have some work together which the others children knew nothing of? Do you recall the secret heart swelling with which you went about feeling so glad inside because you and mother understood something together? Ah, so it seems to me our Lord has a secret which He whispers to each one singly, a sweet name by which he calls no other one, a white stone in which is written the mystic symbol which only he and you can read. The grace he gives is sufficient for every hour of need—every twice alike, because never at any two times are the needs just identical, but always sufficient. What a blessed sense of comfort and confidence one comes to have when he has been through the hard places and the grace has been poured out!

Have you on the Lord believed?
Still there's more to follow.
Of His grace have you received?
Still there's more to follow.
More and more, more and more.
Always more to follow.
Oh, His matchless, boundless love!
Still there's more to follow.

But this is more than personal. Have you ever been on the high hills of observation to see how things are going with God's world? Down in the streets and through the swamps there is no much apparent progress. It looks as if everything was going to ruin at such speed as that of the mountains once in awhile; it is good for the heart and eyes. See how the world's night is wearing. In the great movements of society and the nations there is gain for right.

Is it not of God's grace that there has been such an upheavalin civic matters in the past few years? Is it not matter for devout thanksgiving that there is an aroused public conscience that is demanding justice for all men regardless of position and wealth? Is it not the turning point when greed of gain shall no more control as it has and manhood shall have its true weight and proper recognition? Is there not the hope that the manifestation of God's grace in bringing in a sounder estimate of the worth of things than has prevailed? The gospel is finding its way among men and the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ shall yet rule in the affairs of men.

The Man of Cheer.

We love the man with a smile, the man with the roses on his cheeks, the man who sees your boy's dirty face, but mentions his bright eyes; who notices your shabby coat, but praises your studious habits; the man who sees all the faults, but whose tongue is quick to praise and slow to blame. We like to meet a man whose smile will linger with us after he is gone, who is full of the music of the birds, whose handshake is an inspiration, and his "God bless you," a benediction. He makes us forget our troubles as the raven's dismal croak is forgotten when the thrush or the brown thrasher sings. God bless the men of cheer! There is plenty of trouble here, but we need not increase it. There is a lot of dying done ahead of time. There are living mourners have already passed through their three times, and, unfortunately, they are not of the type who "cross the river of Jordan happy in the Lord," but whining. If they sing at all, it is sad, drawling, deathless music. The very tone is fatal to inspiration. If you have faith, preach it; if you have doubts, bury them. If you have joy, share it; if you have sorrow, bear it. Find the bright side of things—God's side—and help others to get sight of it also.—Zion's Herald.

Praying.

A habit of sincere prayer is a habit of personal communication with God. No human being can form a habit of personal communication with God without having his or her character acted upon and lifted. "Saying" one's prayers may leave one exactly the same as before. Praying does not. The more to pray the better we become.

The noblest prayer is when one exclaims: Grows inly liker that he kneels before.

Forward.

Like Stars.

Ideals are like stars—you will not succeed in touching them with your hands; but, like the seafaring man on the desert of waters, you choose them as your guides, and following them you reach your destiny.—Carl Schurz.

Glory of Life.

To be a strong hand in the dark to another in the time of need, to be a cup of strength to a hungry soul in a crisis of weakness, is to know the glory of life.—Hugh Black.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning April 7.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic—The consecration of one day in seven.—Ex. xvii. 13-21. (Consecration meeting.)

Nehemiah's injunction concerning the Sabbath day was called forth by the increasing tendency on the part of the people of Jerusalem and Judaea to disregard the Sabbath. He received his instructions from the Lord, and they were most emphatic. He was to stand in all the gates of the city and to decline to the kings of Judaea and to all the people that the Lord said unto them, "Take heed to yourselves and bear no burden on the Sabbath day. * * * but hallow ye the Sabbath day, as I commanded your fathers." But they refused to obey God's command concerning the Sabbath, and God pronounced His judgment against them. God will honor those who honor Him and hold to strict account those who lightly set aside His laws and trample under feet His day.

The same reason exists today for emphasizing Sabbath observance as existed in the time of Jeremiah. The tendency to desecrate the Sabbath is most marked. This is true in many walks of life, political, business, social and individual. What can justify political conferences on the Sabbath or a council of government officials in time of peace? What can justify the distribution of mail on the Sabbath? In the days of the telegraph and telephone who depends upon the mail to dispatch urgent and necessary business on any day?

The Sunday newspaper is absolutely without excuse. It is no necessity, for it is published on Saturday. Nothing that people who do not read it can get along without it why cannot the others? It is no answer to say that the work of preparation is largely done on Saturday. It is sold and read on the Sabbath day. It is the interest that thousands have become indifferent to the church and have had their religious lives impaired. Granted even that in large cities there must be some public means of transportation and that even on most of our railroads some train service must be furnished, yet who will dare say that most of the Sunday traveling is not unnecessary? Social functions and social visiting are mostly unnecessary on the Sabbath and far from a day of mercy, they are ever on the increase. "Friends came in to see us" is an ever increasing excuse for nonchurch attendance. There is also an ever increasing encroachment upon the Sabbath world upon the sanctity of the Sabbath. The American people may well ask, "Whither are we drifting?" for no nation can exist that with increasing regularity disregards God's laws and lightly esteems His holy institutions. The Sabbath is God's day. On that day He rested from His creative work and therefore sanctified it. It is necessary also for man. "The Sabbath was made for man," but not for his pleasure and recreation, but for his spiritual welfare. He who disregards the Sabbath not only dishonors God, but stands in his own light.

But what can counteract this tendency? There is one thing at least that can greatly help, and that is for the Christian people of our land to be more strict in "remembering the Sabbath day to keep it holy." What has been our practice? Are we desecrating the Sabbath? Then let us heed the injunction of the Lord through the prophet and "hallow the Sabbath day, as God commanded our fathers."

BIBLE READINGS.

Gen. ii. 1, 2; Ex. xx. 8-11; xxiii. 12; xxxi. 12-18; xxxiv. 21; Num. xv. 32-36; Deut. v. 12-15; Neh. x. 31; Matt. ii. 27, 28; Luke iv. 16.

A Famous Bedspread.

Dr. Francis E. Clark describes as follows in the Christian Endeavor World an experience he had in Liverpool during one of his trips in England:

"I have attended but one 'floating meeting' in Liverpool, and that was an enthusiastic gathering that filled a large church in the heart of summer time. May I venture to relate a personal incident? On this occasion a most elaborate and beautiful bedspread was presented to Mrs. Clark and myself, wrought with various symbols of the sea, anchor, compass, capstan and wheel and containing the names of scores of societies and hundreds of individual Liverpool Endeavorers who are interested in floating work. It was designed by W. D. Williams and W. D. Mitchell and was largely wrought by Mrs. Hannah Dawber. I shall prize it as long as I live. Treasured possessions and hope to pass it on to my children's children as a precious family heirloom. It only remains to say that floating Endeavor work has taken a strong hold of the hearts of many other Christians besides the Liverpool Endeavorers and in Great Britain, as well as in our own land, are multitudes whose hearts beat warm for those who do business on the great deep. The London Floating society is particularly active, and many other seaport towns are equally interested."

Training School of the Church.

Go on in your campaign for new members, for the measure of Christian Endeavor blessing is the number of young people that come under its influence. Go on in your work of training these young people for definite service. The church of the future is in the youth of today. Without the primary and the grammar schools there can be no high school, college or university; without the apprentice there can be no master workman; without the training school in the church there can be no workman "that needeth not to be ashamed."—William Shaw in Ohio Endeavorer.

THE DANGER OF INCOGNITO.

One May Hear Opinions the Reverse of Flattering.

Ever since the "30s" the pretty little Orleanians have danced into the small hours of the morning without a clue to their partner's identity, for with wig and mask completely covering the head, the masker's incognito may well defy detection. Indeed, even if the lady were able to recognize a shoe buckle through some peculiarity of his speech, he would be careful to keep her discovery to herself. Frequently, I am told, extremely droll incidents have resulted from a crafty expedient resorted to by married men to keep their wives in doubt regarding their whereabouts on the night of the ball. This usually consists of an agreement between two masters to call out their respective wives.

Not long ago two gentlemen who had formed a similar pact danced through the night without either of the ladies suspecting their identity, when one masker—a doctor—pleased with the way the scheme was progressing, and seeing his wife glide past on the arm of his partner's husband, thought he would play a practical joke on the deception by exclaiming, "Why, there goes the doctor's wife!"

"Yes," replied his pretty partner, examining his wife with a hypercritical eye, "isn't she an awful mess?"—Harper's Magazine.

HIS ACTION WAS OPPORTUNE.

Brutal Husband Starts in the Millinery Business With Great Success.

"What are you doing?" harshly demanded the brutal husband, abruptly entering the room.

"I'm just going to trim this 49-cent hat I bought yesterday," replied the trembling wife.

"Extravagant woman, you will ruin me with your everlasting bargain hunting!" he snarled, snatched, and, seizing the hat, he crumpled it in his hands, trampled it under foot, and, finally flinging it into the corner of the room, strode away.

Weeping, the wife stooped to pick up her insulted property, but her tearstained face was irradiated by an ecstatic rapture as her eyes fell upon it.

"O!" she exclaimed in delight, "now it is the exact shape of that $40 French hat I saw yesterday, and I never could have stolen it that way myself. All it needs is a couple of blue roses and a bunch of lavender buttercu_s."—Lippincott's Magazine.

Russian Night Train.

A third-class carriage in Russia is not at all uncomfortable, if you have a good rug, blanket, because every passenger has a right to the whole length of a seat.

Three people can sit on the seat, but only one can lie on it. The other two lie in berths above you or below you, as the case may be. The seats are made of wood and if you have a thick blanket and a pillow they are quite as comfortable as any other bed.

When you first step into the carriage it is like entering pandemonium. It is dimly lighted by a single candle that sputters peevishly over the door and all the inmates are yelling and throwing their boxes and baskets and bundles about. This is only the process of installation; it all quiets down presently, and everybody is seated with his bed unfolded, if he has one, his baggage stowed away, his provisions spread out, as if he had been living there for years and meant to remain there for many years to come.

Poultry in Germany.

During the last eight years the interest in raising pure breeds of poultry in Germany has increased and poultry shows are frequent. At an exhibit in Achen during February all kinds of poultry and game birds were shown, but not an Incubator brooder, and even catalogues were absent. If American agents with exhibits of incubators, brooders, etc., were to visit these poultry shows they should be able to make many foreign sales. An international poultry show will be held in Berlin week in April in Loerrach, Baden; in May there will be an exhibit it in Baden-Baden and plans are being made for a large exhibit in Karlsruhe, Baden, next September.

German statistics issued a few months ago show that in 1902 the total value of fowl and egg imports into Germany was $98,556,000. There is a great field here for the introduction of American poultry breeding supplies.

Electrical Divining Rod.

An electrical divining rod, claimed to operate more certainly and scientifically than the ancient and dishonored twig, has been devised by Adolph Schmid, a Swiss engineer. It seems to consist essentially of a glass covered box inclosing a coil of insulated wire, in which a delicately magnetized needle is free to rotate over a graduated dial.

When the apparatus is placed over subterranean water, with the axis of the coil in the magnetized meridian, the needle, it is asserted, oscillates more or less rapidly from two to ten, and even up to 50 degrees.

All Hers.

"I certainly was shocked," said the stern visaged woman, "to hear that you were married. I wouldn't marry the best man on earth."

"He never gave you a chance!" retorted Mrs. Bridey, "because he assures me I was the only girl he ever proposed to."—Catholic Standard and Times.

MAROONED ON DESERT WITH NAVAJO INDIAN

Colorado Girl Keeps Lonely Vigil Beside Sagebrush Fire, Even Welcoming Howls of Coyotes.

Denver, Colo.—Camped all night on the desert with a Navajo Indian. That is what Miss Grace Gertrude Dalton, a young nurse, of Durango, Col., did, and she smiles as she tells the story.

"Oh, it was nothing," said Miss Dalton. "You see, I was just going from my uncle's trading store for a visit with relatives, and our team gave out, and we had to camp out over night on the range. The Navajo was taking me on the trip. The Indian took me in a buckboard. It was 60 miles across the desert of sagebrush and sand. At noon the team gave out, and sundown caught us a long way from Cow Alma.

"We had reached a small stream when the Indian made signs that we would have to spend the night there. We got out of the buckboard, and the Indian hobbled the ponies. He gathered a lot of sagebrush and started a fire. After awhile we went to the Indian for some broth of the fire and I on the other, rolled up in blankets. I never slept a wink. It was the longest night I ever spent. When the coyotes began to howl close to us I was afraid to hear them, for it somewhat broke the monotony of waiting out there on a lonely desert, miles and miles from any person, with only an Indian for company.

"I wasn't afraid, and if I had been it would have helped matters. There was no danger. I would sooner trust the average Navajo Indian than lots of the white men. They are fine fellows, and can be trusted in any case."

Miss Dalton is a buxom blonde, pretty, and about 22 years of age. With an aunt she visited the St. Louis World's Fair, accompanied by a tall, handsome young Navajo, whom they took along as a servant. Miss Dalton and the young Indian stopped mutters. The Indian on the streets of St. Louis.

CRACKED HER MAMMA'S RIB.

Buxom Girl Hugs Parent, Who Sustains Injury as a Result.

Atlantic City, N. J.—Overjoyed at seeing her mother, whom she visited in anticipation of Christmas, Miss Daisy English, 17 years old and pretty, crushed that mother to her breast in a fervid embrace and broke one of the mater's ribs.

The mother, Mrs. Emma English, who is a rather frail little woman, swung free of her daughter's embrace and complained of a pain in her side, which a physician diagnosed quickly as a fracture of the lower rib.

Miss Daisy lives in this city with a sister and had not seen her mother, who lives at Northfield, for several weeks prior to the visit. Mrs. English saw her daughter coming up the front footway of the little cottage yard and ran to the door to meet her.

The hug was given with fond force on each side, but Miss Daisy failed to take account of her fresh young strength until she heard the verdict of the surgeon.

Hacked Off His Own Arm.

Lynchburg, Va.—With his left hand and forearm crushed and held firmly in the mouth of the shredder, Dr. Charles McCullough, a farmer and physician who lives in Buckingham county, forty miles from Lynchburg cut his arm off below the elbow with his pocketknife.

After freeing himself he directed the farm hand at work with him in taking up the broken arteries in the arm, thus saving his life. Afterward he walked some distance to the house. Later he was brought here and the arm amputated again above the elbow.

The fact that Dr. McCullough was left handed makes the performance all the more wonderful. The farm superintendent caught his arm in the same machine, tearing it off, two weeks ago. The loosed blood poisoning, from which he died.

Girls Make Pins.

The making of common, everyday pins is an interesting process. The wire is fed into a machine that cuts the pin the right length and puts a head on it. Then they are thrown into a fluid that brightens them, and fed into a hopper by girls, who regulate a machine that puts the pins into the paper, ten rows at a time quicker than you can say "Jack Robinson."

GOLD NUGGET A BEAUTY.

Alaskan Mine Has Probably the Largest Ever Found.

It is not an uncommon thing to see men who have enough greenbacks to choke an elephant, but it's not often that one meets a man with a gold nugget large enough to make even a horse sick if he had to try to eat it without having it run through a quartz mill. There is a man in Los Angeles, Cal., however, who has the nugget, and he is the Klondike king, Clarence Berry, who has come from Alaska on a visit to his brother. The nugget might be likened to a man's hand with the palm turned upward, for it is over six inches long, almost four inches wide, is an inch thick at the thickest part, and "weighs" $1,510.

There are few men who can dig such chunks of gold out of their own mines, but Clarence Berry is one of these lucky miners. He is one of the pioneers of the gold mines of Alaska, and having been one of the first men to rush to the Klondike rich diggings, his energy and perseverance have been rewarded with a large amount of gold. How much no one knows but he, and he won't tell.

WHAT SHE WOULD SAY.

Young Teacher Evidently Had Her Opinion of the Principal.

A certain young teacher in one of the schools in Springfield, Mass., was recently more or less annoyed by the attentions of one of the masculine sex who holds a position of principal in the same school. There was in this young woman's room a pupil who was very dull and stupid.

One day the gallant principal was asked by the admired one to give his permission to have the child removed to some other room, thinking possibly he might be benefited by the change. The suggestion did not meet with the principal's immediate favor, and he remonstrated.

"Suppose," said he, "you and I were married and we had a child that nature was not overkind to, and we sent him to school. Suppose the teacher refused to have him in her room, saying he was too stupid and dull to learn, what would you say?"

"I should say he took after his father," was the quick retort.

Overtaken by Retribution.

William H. Berry, state treasurer of Pennsylvania, was talking in Harrisburg about graft.

"Grafters seem to thrive at first," he said, "but retribution overtakes them in the end. It is like the two newsboys and the bad half-dollar.

"Two newsboys had a bad half-dollar and after discussing for some time the best way to get rid of it they decided to try to pass it off on a theater.

"So they took their places on a cold night in the long line before the gallery door of a popular theater and the first one held the bad coin in his hand. It was their idea to, in the hurry and confusion the ticket seller wouldn't take time to examine the money handed to him.

"And they were right. When the first boy reached the box office the man accepted the half-dollar without question and in return he handed out a ticket and a quarter change.

"The second boy, grinning with joy, then handed forth a dollar for his own ticket. He got the bad half-dollar and a good quarter in change."

Art of Nature.

She had just turned from the blackboard where for five minutes she had been demonstrating a "sum" which to her very youthful pupils seemed difficult.

"Now, children, are you perfectly sure that you understand?"

There was a murmur of assent.

"Do any of you wish to ask a question?"

In the back of the room a small hand was raised aloft. The teacher, looked for the usually eager face, felt that glow of satisfaction which we all experience in assisting a budding intellect.

"What is it, Annie? What do you wish to know?"

"Miss Moore, are your teeth false?" demanded the earnest little seeker in a shrill treble.

Twain and the Office Boy.

In his early days Mark Twain used to take his "copy" round personally to various editors, which gave rise to a rather good story of him told recently. His dislike of office-boys is very great; indeed, if there is a being on earth he cannot tolerate it is the average office-boy. A short time ago he strolled into a big publishing house in New York, and asked to see the editor.

"What name shall I give?" asked the office-boy.

"Mark Twain."

"What's your business?"

The pertinent question irritated Mark, but he only smiled sweetly and said:

"Tell the editor I wish to ask his hand in holy matrimony."—Black and White.

The Teacher Declined.

A first-year pupil was absent from school one day last week. The next day she appeared at school and handed the teacher a note explaining her absence, written by her mother. The following is the explanation:

"My Dear Miss C—Please excuse Helen for absence, as she fell on the sidewalk and hurt the side of her hip, and by doing the same you will greatly oblige.

Proceedings of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union.

[OFFICIAL.]

Regular meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union, N. J., held on Thursday, January 3, 1907, at 2:30 p. m.

Roll call showed all members present—20.

The minutes of the previous meeting were, on motion, approved as read.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From A. W. Hicks, of Summit, N. J., and addressed to Freeholder Cady, calling attention to the fact that his mare had, in the early fall, "fallen through the plank flooring of the Mt. Vernon Avenue bridge over the Passaic, near the old New Providence station, and had cut and strained herself quite badly;" that "after a drive over rough roads she invariably goes lame, but recovered in a few days." The mare had cost him $175, was sound and in good condition when she went through the bridge. He thought that $50 would be a reasonable charge for damages.

On motion of Freeholder Woodruff, the matter was referred to the Legal Question Committee and County Attorney, with power.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

By the Committee on Collector's Bond, as follows:

To the Board of Freeholders:

Gentlemen—Your Committee on Collector's Bond beg leave to report that we have examined the bond of N. R. Leavitt, County Collector, and approve the same as to form and sufficiency of surety.

Peter B. McLean, J. Hervey Doane, Robert C. Maurer, Committee.

The sureties in the above bond were John Kean, Louis F. Hersh and John Wilbur.

No objections being offered, the bond was accepted and ordered on file.

NEW BUSINESS.

By Freeholder Krouse:

Resolved, That the Director appoint a committee of three on legislation at Trenton, in the interests of Union County at the coming session of the Legislature.

On motion of Freeholder Gruener, the resolution was adopted without dissent.

The Director appointed on the said committee, Freeholders Krouse, Smith and Pierson.

The Director also announced the following committee, appointments to fill existing vacancies, viz.: On bridges—Krouse, Smith, Brock. Springfield, Freeholder Donahue in place of former Freeholder Murphy. On South Ave. Bridge, Westfield, Freeholder Jones in place of former Freeholder Westphal.

By Freeholder Jones:

Resolved, That labor for removing snow on the county roads, in case they become impassable to the traveling public from heavy storms, be fixed at 20c. an hour.

Freeholder Pierson moved the adoption of the resolution, and after considerable discussion the motion to adopt was lost by the following vote:

Yeas—Freeholders Adams, Cady, Darby, Doane, Gruener, Krouse, Meisel, Robison, Smith and Wilbur—10.

Nays—Director King and Freeholders Clark, Donahue, Fay, Jones, Maurer, Perry, Pierson, Swain and Woodruff—10.

Freeholder Pierson moved that the bill re referred to a special committee of three, together with County Engineer Bauer, for investigation, report to be made at next meeting, which was so ordered.

The Director appointed as the said committee, Freeholders Pierson, Krouse, Smith, Fay and Meisel.

Freeholder Krouse moved to adjourn, which was carried.

The Directors declared the Board adjourned until Thursday, February 7, 1907, art 2:30 p. m.

LAUNDRY SUGGESTIONS.

Things to remember in washing:

That flannels are washed first.

That white things come next.

That colored things are done while white things are boiling.

That dirty kitchen aprons and cloths come last of all.

That soaking is done in tepid water.

That extremes of heat and cold cause shrinking.

That soap jelly is necessary for woolen things.

That soap must be thoroughly rinsed out before bluing.

That blue must be well mixed through the water.

That wringing well after bluing is most important.

Things to remember in drying:

To have the lines, pegs and clotheshorse scrupulously clean.

To hang things up wrong side out.

To hang colored things in a shady place.

Never to hang woolen things in too great heat.

How to Properly Boil Water.

When water is put into a kettle over the fire, bubbles *rise to the sur*face. These are expanded air, and this is the way the bubbles over: If filled to the brim when the water is cold. As the water grows hotter it changes to steam at the bottom of the kettle, where the heat is most intense, and bubbles of steam take the place of air bubbles. At 165 degrees the steam bubbles rise and drop back and the water is said to simmer. If the water rises yet higher in temperature, the bubbles escape, and at 212 degrees the water boils and steam escapes. Now, a thermometer will show that no matter how much the heat is increased under the kettle the water will become no hotter than 212 degrees, but it will be turned into steam faster, and in that way it is said to "boil away." Therefore unless food is to be cooked in steam it is a waste of fuel to let water so fast that it disappears rapidly in steam. The violent agitation will also break into pieces whatever is being cooked.

A bill of Frederick Ayers in amount $211.60 for repairs to Milton Avenue Drawbridge, Rahway, was read. The warrant attached to said bill was signed by Freeholders Gruener and Chandler, two members at the time of committee on said drawbridge, and the bill was approved by County Engineer Bauer.

Freeholder Cladek, after the interests of member of said committee, objected to the payment of the bill, claiming that the charge for labor ($94.50) was excessive, he had examined the work done, and was of the opinion that the said charge for labor was excessive.

Freeholder Gruener said that when repairs were ordered he had not expected the cost to be as much as charged in Mr. Ayers' bill, but after work was begun, it was found necessary to make considerable repairs to both wood and iron work under the bridge, and the expense was thus increased.

County Engineer Bauer said that he had also examined the bridge, and as compared with work of a similar character done in the county he thought the bill was a fair and proper one.

The Costitutionalist.

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.

Published a.

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms: $2.00 per year.

A. L. FORCE, Editor and Proprietor.

THURSDAY, APRIL 4, 1907.

Bayonne is grieving because it is not on the State's official map. North Plainfield is in the same plight, but then it is not losing any sleep over the fact.

They're seeing snakes over in Morristown. One man reports having killed ten at one time. That Bishops' law didn't come any too soon.

John Wanamaker's partner, Robert C. Ogden, has retired with a hard earned fortune. He began life as an errand boy at $1.50 a week. Notwithstanding his great wealth, Mr. Ogden has a far richer possession for he has never sold a reputation he early established for square dealing and the highest type of integrity.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox says that men with billy goat whiskers are unendurable, but as a matter of fact, Ella is too old to be a good judge of men anyhow.—Trenton State Gazette.

Not only ungallant but a quite erroneous deduction. As her age increases her good judgment of "horrid man" should correspondingly become more correct.

The manner of ash collection as seen on North avenue Friday is a disgrace to the city. A rickety affair on without any covering was the receptable into which a negro collector dumped barrel after barrel of ashes. As a high wind was blowing at the time, pedestrians enjoyed a very pleasant experience of getting covered with dust. When, oh when, will the Board of Health put a stop to this nuisance?

SUNDAY-SCHOOL REPORT.

The First Baptist Church Reports Gains.

In connection with the Easter services under the auspices of the First Baptist church Sunday-school, Sunday afternoon, teh anniversary of the school was marked by annual reports. Mr. Wyon Drake, superintendent of the school, presented a report for the past year, showing that fifteen members of the school have graduated with the church and been baptized. There was an increase of fifteen pupils in the primary department, there are 128 pupils and teachers, including twenty-nine beginners and forty on the cradle roll. There are fifty-three teachers and pupils in the Junior department, 241 in the main school and 173 in the Home Department.

The largest attendance, 275, was on October 7 and the smallest, 118, on May 27. Three deaths were recorded during the year. The report of the treasurer showed the finances to be satisfactory, with a balance.

During the service there was an exercise by the Misses Hall, Dunn, Douglass, Neil, Johnson, Ethel Runyon and Elsie Moore. A feature was the primary lesson conducted by Mrs. J. A. Powlison, superintendent of the department, and which was concluded with a song, "We Are Little Sunbeams," in which Mary Ellen Douglass, the youngest member of the cradle roll, was welcomed to the school.

THE FIRST MARLBOROUGH.

His Was a Curious Combination of Contradictory Traits.

Herbert Paul in his book on Queen Anne of England paints a queer picture of the great Duke of Marlborough.

He was not truthful. He was not straightforward. He was not honest. In his love of money and his capacity for hoarding it he rivaled those wretched misers who have done no more than contemplate their gains. And yet, such are the strange freaks in which nature indulges, this mean and selfish intriguer was endowed with perfect courage. With an irresistible charm of manner, with a temper which even his wife failed to disturb, with a brain that no sophistry could obscure and with a military genius before which criticism is humbly silent.

He was treacherous even in a treacherous age. Wholly deficit of cruelty and by nature humane, he is said never to have sacrificed an unnecessary life. He used his fellow creatures for his own purposes, and when he had no further use for them he forgot their existence. He made his plans and carried them out with the absolute efficiency of sheer intelligence and the serene irrelevancy of impersonal fate.

DIED AT HOSPITAL.

It is reported today that John Melanco, the Hungarian, who was injured at the South Plainfield sawmill a couple of weeks ago, died at Muhlenberg Hospital on Saturday, and his body was removed to Oak Tree Station.

Melanco was employed at the mill and one morning he stumbled over a log and fell backward across a circular saw. His clothing was torn into shreds and the flesh frightfully lacerated. For a few days the man seemed to improve and it was thought he might recover. Each last week there was a turn for the worse and Melanco died on Saturday.

AMUSEMENTS.

Of unusual importance is the announcement made by Managers Wagenhals & Kemper that a new play of Washington life, called "The Ambitious Mrs. Alcott," is to be produced for the first time on any stage, at the Astor theatre, on Monday. It is a play by Leo Ditrichstein and Percival Pollard, and is particularly notable because its story involves that element of society which is more directly associated with the diplomatic world. The attention that this play will receive is foreshadowed in the remarks of an ambassador, who said: "Many efforts have been put forth from time to time to introduce Washington life on the stage, but to my mind in 'The Ambitious Mrs. Alcott' the atmosphere of the capital is more exclusive and has been preserved in a manner which is really itself. I cannot understand how anyone who is not a member of the diplomatic corps could have written such a play. There are certain conventional forms of which are known to everyone, but there are also certain informals things that are only known to a limited few. How in the world these authors got such exclusive information in the play, I certainly cannot figure out."

Messrs. Klaw & Erlanger will present Mr. Kyrle Bellew at Wallack's theatre for two weeks only, beginning next Monday evening, April 1, in "The Marriage of Reason," a new drama by J. Hartley Manners, never before seen in New York. This play is frankly a drama of fashion. It deals with noblemen and noblewomen. The action is rapid and intense. It is interesting, loaded with incident and replete with original situations. Throughout it moves on the very highest plane of life; yet withal, the characters are human, moved by human motives. Miss Lily Langtry Ward comes from London triumphs to play the role of the glorious American girl. Having made a great match herself, and having achieved fame upon the British and American stages, Miss Ward is eminently suited for the exacting role, which acquires, in addition to histrionic talent, stunning beauty and wonderful gowns. The cast is the classiest imaginable. A patrician play requires players who have moved in that atmosphere and to whom the club, the boudoir, the opera box and the country house are part of their everyday life. Such have been found in Frederic de Belleville, Conway Tearle, J. K. Adams, C. Russell Sage, R. L. Dane, Master Richard Storrs, Miss Julia Dean, Miss Margaret Fuller and Miss Maum Beam Stover.

SIRES AND SONS.

Signor Bianchert, the venerable president of the Italian chamber, finds a hobby in horticulture.

Benjamin F. Hamilton, of Saco, Me., claims to be the first storekeeper in New England to employ women clerks. He recently celebrated his eighty-eighth birthday.

Justice Shiras of the United States Supreme Court has made photographing of wild animals a hobby and study, and he is said to have been the first person to take a picture of a wild animal by flashlight.

Heinrich Conried announces that he will retire from operatic management in 1911. The difficulties of his work as an impresario and his present ill health weigh heavily upon him. He will devote himself to operatic art only four years more.

Long but not by any pull in twenty years, S. H. Roseberry, of Arch Springs, Pa., who carries the mail between his home and Union Furnace, a distance of six miles, which he makes daily on foot, has one of the longest routes of any postman in the United States.

John F. Fitzgerald, mayor of Boston, is editor of the Republic, a weekly religious newspaper. He is a Harvard graduate, popular alike with church people and business men, as his successive terms in the Massachusetts Senate and in Congress have given evidence.

Frank O. Briggs, who succeeds John F. Dryden as junior United States Senator from New Jersey, is an enthusiastic athlete and, although fifty-six years old, still indulges in his favorite pastimes of boxing and wrestling. Mr. Briggs is a graduate of West Point and served five years in the regular army.

Nathaniel W. Voorhees, father of ex-Governor Foster M. Voorhees of New Jersey, was a delegate to the national convention of 1860 which nominated Lincoln for the Presidency. Mr. Voorhees, who is now nearly eighty years old, believes that he and United States Senator Shelby M. Cullum, of Illinois, are the only surviving members of that historic gathering.

His Deep, Deep Grief.

The Fulton (Kan.) Gazette reports that a minister of that town was moved by the grief of a husband whose wife was to be buried and sought to commiserate him in the following manner: "My brother, I know that this is a great grief that has overtaken you, and though you are compelled to mourn the loss of this one who was your companion and partner in life I would console you with the assurance that there is another who sympathizes with you and seeks to embrace you in the arms of unfailing love." To this the bereaved man replied by asking, as he gazed through tears into the minister's face, "What's her name?"

NEW HOSPITAL BUILDING

Gift Makes the Erection of Much Needed Pavilion Possible.

OTHERS WILL BE BUILT

Group of Four Will Afford Ample Accommodations For the Treatment of Special Cases.

Announcement was made Monday morning of a gift to Muhlenberg Hospital that will make possible the erection of a detached pavilion, for which much need has been felt. The money was given by Mr. and Mrs. James DeGraff and Mrs. Samuel Milliken.

The building will be erected to the south of the hospital. It will afford room for twelve cots, and will be completely equipped. Work on it is to begin this week. Contracts will be let in a few days.

This gift enables the hospital to make good a promise made recently to the Common Council. The Councilmen, inquiring into the lack of such a detached pavilion, agreed that one ought to be erected, and the hospital promised to erect one as soon as it could.

It is hoped, later, to raise money enough for the erection of two more pavilions, all of them grouped about a central administration building, to which access will be possible from each pavilion. The buildings will be of brick, and harmonize with the main hospital structure. The pavilions will be used for the treatment of special cases.

C. S. ROGERS SUPT. OF 7TH-DAY BAPTIST S. S.

Re-elected at Annual Meeting of the Sunday-school Yesterday.

The annual meeting of the Sabbath-school of the Seventh-Day Baptist church was held in the church Sunday, when officers were elected and reports presented for the year. The past twelve months has been one of prosperity for the school, spiritually and otherwise. David E. Titsworth is chairman of the meeting and William C. Hubbard the secretary.

The reports of the secretary, treasurer and superintendent were most encouraging. The school numbers about 113. In addition to a large Home Department and a great deal of money has been raised and distributed to foreign and home missions, as well as several charitable objects, including The Day Nursery, the Primary and Junior Sabbath-school Teachers' Union and the Loyal Temperance Legion.

It was noted that the death of Edward Kellogg, a member of the cradle roll, which occurred a couple of weeks ago, marks the first lost since the department was organized over five years ago.

These officers were re-elected: Superintendent, Orra S. Rogers; first assistant, Dr. Henry M. Maxson; second assistant, Asa F. Randolph; secretary, Nathan Wardner; treasurer, Miss Emma Curtis Smith; pianist, Miss Eva Rogers; chorister, David E. Titsworth; librarian, Rollin Williams; auditors, Mrs. Orra S. Rogers and Mrs. Asa F. Randolph.

It was unanimously decided after considerable discussion to continue holding the Sabbath-school session immediately after the Sabbath morning preach service, as has been the custom since last July.

G. A. R. MEMORIAL DETAIL AND COMMITTEES NAMED.

Chosen to Arrange for Annual Observance in Plainfield on May 30.

The Memorial Detail from Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., held its first meeting Saturday night, when the various committees were appointed to look after the arrangements for the observance of Memorial Day. The detail organized by electing I. McVoy chairman and H. C. Smith secretary and treasurer.

Mr. McVoy appointed the following committees: Speakers, Mason W. Tyte and H. S. Smith; hall, William C. Smith; music, Dr. J. F. Berg, H. C. Smith, Messrs. H. C. Smith; decorating the hall, Nathan Pennington, John Finley and P. B. Goodfellow.

An adjournment was taken to Saturday night, a delegation from the Women's Relief Corps will be present to arrange about its part of the work.

Methods Had to Go.

One of the old governors of the Carolinas was a man who had lived a farmer's life most of the time until he was elected, and his wife, having never seen a steamboat or a railroad and having no wish to test either one, refused to accompany her husband to the capital. When the governor reached his destination, he found that almost all the other officials were accompanied by their wives, and he sent an imperative message to his brother to "fetch Melinda along." The brother telegraphed, "She's afraid even to look at the engine." The governor read the message and pondered over it for a few moments. At the end of that time he sent off the following command: "Bill, you blindfold Melinda and back her on the train."

THIRD PLACE IN THE MEET

Plainfield Made Showing In State Y. M. C. A. Competition.

PATERSON THE WINNER

Took Championship With Eighteen Points—Plainfield Contestants All Equalled Or Bettered Their Former Performances.

Plainfield tied with Orange for third place in the Y. M. C. A. State athletic meet at Paterson Saturday night, with seven points. Paterson won, leading Newark, her nearest rival, by five points. The fight for supremacy was one of the closest in the history of New Jersey competition in this branch of sport. Not until the last man had finished in the last event was the outcome of the meet decided.

Wonderful form was displayed by Adams, of Newark, in the standing broad jump. He not only won this event, but established a new record for the Eastern section of the A. L. A. His best figure was 10 feet 1¼ inches. The previous record stood at 9 feet 4½ inches. A technicality practically prevented Swick, of Newark, from winning the gold in the fence vault. The supports of the bar were placed beneath the low gallery so that Swick, although capable of clearing a greater height than Grubb, of Passaic, in jumping hit the gallery, and was placed second, giving way to his Passaic opponent.

The greatest excitement of the evening came with the 220-yard dash. Owing to the narrowness of the track only two men were run at once, the winners being determined by the respective times, Mara, of the Paterson association, won hands down in 27 3-5 seconds.

The Summaries:

220-Yard Run—Won by Mara, Paterson; Courter, Orange, and Krantz, tied for second place. Time, 27 3-5s.

Running High Jump—Won by Wildnauer, Orange; second, Mills, Montclair; third, Moy, Newark; height, 5 ft. 6 in.

Twelve-Pound Shot Put—Won by Rogers, Paterson; second, Lawrence, Plainfield; third, Schal, Elizabeth; distance, 42 ft. 2 in.

Fence Vault—Won by Grubb, Passaic; second, Swick, Newark; third, Lieder, Elizabeth.

Standing Broad Jump—Won by Adams, Newark; second, Lawrence, Plainfield; third, Swick, Newark; distance, 10 ft. 1¼ in., breaking Eastern section Y. M. C. A. record by 8¾ inches.

15-Yard Dash—First heat won by Mara, Paterson; second, Pickering, Newark. Second heat won by Terhune, Newark; second, Spear, Plainfield. Third heat won by Krantz, Paterson; second, Henderson, Orange. Fourth heat won by Manning, Plainfield; second, Calder, Montclair.

Semi-Finals—First heat won by Terhune; second, Mara; third, Pickering. Second heat won by Krantz; second, Henderson.

Final Heat—Won by Krantz; second, Terhune; third, Mara.

Plainfield contestants did well. They all, with one exception in a single event, bettered or equalled their previous marks. They were up against a combination of strength that was unexpected; they did well to land third honors.

In the 15-yard dash Templin, Spear, Douglass, Banks and Manning entered for Plainfield. Manning and Spear were in the finals, but were nosed out of third place. Burgess, Steiner, Odell and Lueder were in the running high jump. Burgess was the best of the Plainfielders, going 5 feet 2 inches. Collier, Lawrence and Payne were in the shoot put. Viebrock, Lueder and Lawrence were in the fence vault. Lawrence, Lueder and Burgess were in the standing broad jump. In the 220-yard run Templin, Spear, Viebrock, Douglass, Odell, Banks, Burgess and Manning competed.

Paterson, the winner, scored 18 points. Nine associations took part. There were 116 entries.

Andrew Stiglitz, Jr., Injured.

Andrew Stiglitz, Jr., of Allen place, North Plainfield, in running across East Front street Saturday night, collided with one of Roth & Co.'s delivery wagons and was knocked down and severely injured. His face and lower part of the jaw were cut and bruised. He was taken home and the family physician was obliged to take several stitches to close the wound.

Dog Attacks a Boy.

The young son of Patrolman Andrew Safron, of North avenue, was severely bitten in the nose Saturday night by a dog which had made his home about the Plainfield Cab Company stables. The lad was playing with the dog, when he suddenly turned and imbedded his teeth in the boy's nose. The wound was cauterized.

Funeral of Miss Burns.

A private funeral over the body of Miss Ella Burns, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Burns, of Pemberton avenue, was held at the parents' home, Saturday afternoon. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery.

MRS. TIFFANY PLEADS

IN BEHALF OF LIBRARY

LARGER APPROPRIATION NOT MERELY REASONABLE BUT IMPERATIVE.

In the following communication, Mrs. Elizabeth Tiffany lucidly explains why the Public Library is deserving of an increased appropriation:

In your issue of March 28 ult., I regretted to learn that the finance committee of the Common Council, in arranging the tax budget for the coming year did not regard with favor the request made by the directors of the Public Library for an increased appropriation from $5,100 of last year to $7,500 this year. In view of the very careful management required to make the present amount meet the needed expenditure, and the increased demands on the library by the growing population of the city, the request would seem to be not merely reasonable but imperative.

The benefits derived from a public library of well selected literature such as Plainfield possesses are not as evident as the more material interests which surround us. Good roads, pure water, a well equipped fire service, and an adequate police system appeal very directly to the public sense. One must go behind the scenes, into the homes of the less favored classes, to know the mental and moral influences which are set in motion by the distribution of good literature, both of a popular and technical character, of which the current numbers are kept constantly on file. A drain is made on the library by the five hundred or more books which are sent to various public school buildings as distributing stations, the object being to reach children and their parents who would never go directly to the library to draw out books.

Surely, the development of an institution so educational in its influence, should keep pace with the other numerous municipal provisions for the comfort and welfare of the community. Nothing is stationary and the public demands grow yearly. There are constantly arising opportunities for the library to work on broader lines and to develop in new directions, were the means provided, so increasing its influence and efficiency in the community.

ELIZABETH TIFFANY.

The Spleen.

The spleen? Up to 1900 no physician dared to stand up in a clinic and tell what it was made for. For ages it was supposed to be the organ of irascibility. "Oh, his spleen is up!" meant that the old man was hot in the collar. Curious thing, that spleen. There is an herb called "spleenwort," which was supposed to remove such stomachic disorders as ill humor, melancholy and irritability. I saw a spleen the other day for the first time and was astonished. It was a soft, highly vascular, plum colored thing with a smooth surface. It was nearly six inches in length and weighed seven ounces. Now here is the funny feature of the spleen: After a hearty meal it is very much smaller than at other times, which may help to explain why a man is good natured the spleen may reach a weight of eighteen or twenty pounds. —New York Press.

TO TRY FOR BLISS AGAIN

JUDGE RUNYON INDUCES THE BECKERS TO MAKE UP.

Seventy - year - old Christopher Becker and his thirty-year-old wife, against whom he had made a charge of disorderly conduct, were induced to make another try at conjugal bliss by Judge Runyon, Monday, in the city court. The magistrate, after hearing the testimony, decided that the old man had done considerable to try his wife's temper.

Mrs. Becker, who was defended by Francis J. Blatz, denied throwing dishes at the old man. She said she had lived in a cellar at 312 East Fourth street with him for two years, putting up with much that was discouraging, working out by the day to keep the household going, and that when he began to quarrel with her Friday night she lost her temper and threw a dish down on the table. A piece of it, she said, flew up and blackened his eye. She said her husband was jealous of her, but, at the same time he did not want her around if she did not help in supporting the household.

Judge Runyon said the quarrel was one that should not have been brought into court. While Mrs. Becker had done wrong to give away to her temper, the court felt she had excuse, and knew, further, that Becker had been much better cared-for since his marriage than before. Mrs. Becker promised to be more self-contained and the complaint was dismissed.

CAMP BOWSER DEFEATS P. H. S.

High School Plays First Game and Loses by 9 to 3.

The Plainfield High School played its first baseball game of the season, Saturday, on Crescent Oval, with Camp Bowser, and were defeated by the score of 9 to 3. The game was not particularly swift or marked by any star plays. Murphy pitched a swift game for P. H. S., striking out nine men. Abbott pitched for Camp Bowser and struck out fourteen.

The line-up:

P. H. S.	Camp Bowser.
Murphy, pitcher	Abbott
Lorzeaux, catcher	R. Schoonmaker
Douglass, 1st base	Pond
VanDeventer, 2d base	Schoonmaker
Rubenstein, short stop	McGee
Donne, 3d base	Daniels
Butcher, left field	Mitchell
Dodwell, centrefield	Dolner
Burgardus, rightfield	Lovell
Wilcox

Umpire, James Montrose; scorer, Henry Pound.

Runs were made by Douglas, 2; Dodwell, 1; R. Schoonmaker, 2; Pond, 3; W. Schoonmaker, 3; Lovell, 1.

Patrolman Martin Resigns.

Patrolman Theodore Martin, who has been attached to the local police force for the past two years, has tendered his resignation to Chief Kiely to take effect April 15. While his plans are not fully complete, he has several propositions to consider in the meantime. Since becoming a member of the department, Patrolman Martin has developed into one of the best officers Chief Kiely has ever had and his intending withdrawal has occasioned much regret. He has never had a charge preferred against him and his record is an exceptional one. At the present time he is on duty in the business district during the day.

HONOR JUDGE NEWCORN

Friends and Fellow Members of Bar Present Him With Gavel.

GIFT A GREAT SURPRISE

He Thought Judge Swift Was the Only One To Be Honored—Expression of Esteem By the Donors.

District Court Judge William Newcorn was presented with a handsome gavel, Monday, by friends and fellow-members of the Union county bar. The presentation was made in the Elizabeth court, and Judge Addison C. Swift, of that city, received a similar gift.

The presentation came as a complete surprise to Judge Newcorn. He had been asked to come to the court to represent Judge Swift's gavel, and had no suspicion that one was in store for him. It was Judge Swift's first day in court after a long and dangerous illness, and Judge Newcorn believed the presentation was wholly to be made into a welcome-back for the Elizabeth jurist.

When Judge Swift had read the court list, Charles A. Trimble, of Elizabeth, arose to speak on a motion in the fictitious case that had been slipped in the list. Mr. Trimble's motion was merely made into a well-phrased presentation of Judge Swift's gavel. Judge Newcorn was puzzled, and began to feel hurt.

"Why did they ask me to come all the way from Plainfield to make a presentation," he complained, "and then pass me over."

Blushing surprise swallowed up Judge Newcorn's annoyance when James C. Connolly, another member of the Elizabeth bar, arose to reply in the "case," and disclosed the other gavel. Both gavels are of solid ivory, with gold inscription bands. They rest in plush-lined leather cases.

The following expression of esteem accompanied the gavels:

"We, the undersigned, friends, and fellow-members of the bar desiring to give lasting expression to the high esteem in which we hold Hon. Charles Addison Swift, Judge of the District Court of City of Elizabeth, and Hon. William Newcorn, Judge of the District Court of the City of Plainfield, with and without gavels, join in subscribing to a fund with which is to be purchased a 'gavel' for presentation to them, believing that whenever it may come within their views they will be materially reminded that we, those names hereto subscribed, hold them to be eminently fitted by reason of their well known honor, honesty, integrity, coolness and fair mindedness for the honorable position to which they have been appointed.

Fanwood Club House Damaged.

A neglected brush fire in the rear of the Fanwood Clubhouse opposite the Fanwood station, Saturday afternoon, spread to the bowling alleys connected with the building and caused $150 damage. An alarm was turned in and it was only by hard work that the borough fire department prevented the flames from spreading to the main building. The loss is covered by insurance.

Planning for Plainfield's Exhibit.

Dr. Henry M. Maxson, superintendent of the Plainfield Public Schools, was in Trenton on Wednesday conferring with officials in the office of the State Board of Education about sending work from the Plainfield schools to the Jamestown Exposition.

CONSIDER STREET WORK

Much Business of Minor Importance Occupies the Time of Common Council.

THE MONTHLY REPORTS

Ordinance Creating Office of Police and Fire Surgeon Goes to Second Reading With Slight Opposition.

It being announced by the owners, Woolston & Buckle, that the lease held by the city for certain rooms in the building on North avenue occupied by the Common Council, Mayor Fisk, Board of Health and other officials, is invalid by reason of the change of ownership, Councilman Tolles, chairman of the finance committee, moved at the April meeting, Monday, that the committee be authorized to have the lease corrected as to form and presented to the Common Council for approval with the idea of making a new lease. The agreement has not expired, but no changes were made in it after Woolston Bros. sold the structure to Woolston & Buckle and the city is now occupying more room than when the lease was first made. It will be corrected and submitted for approval of the owners and Common Council.

Mr. Gloak moved an amendment to the ordinance covering the duties of the city physician, Dr. C. D. Laflburrow, which provides that he shall be a police and fire department surgeon, attend to emergency cases and provide medicines, as heretofore, and that for the performance of the extra services he shall receive an additional $200 as salary, making $600 in all. The ordinance was adopted on first and second readings and ordered advertised. Mr. Tyler alone voting no.

Mr. Grinna called up the ordinance approved July 5, 1906, providing for the macadamizing of certain streets, and it was adopted on third reading. He also called up the ordinances on third reading to establish the side lines on West Front street, between Central avenue and Grant avenue and Grove street and West End avenue, to open and lay out Arlington avenue, between Fourth and Fifth street, and they were adopted. Mr. Grinna's ordinance providing for the extension of the sanitary sewer was withdrawn to allow for alterations in the wording of the ordinance which was not clear. Public hearings were granted on the above ordinances, but only in the case of the Plainfield avenue storm sewer ordinance, which was introduced later and adopted on first and second readings did any one speak for or against them.

Residents of Richmond and East Seventh streets petitioned for a fire alarm box at that point and the matter was referred to the fire committee, as was also a similar petition from residents of Grant and Sherman avenues for a fire box there.

The communication from the Board of School Estimate, certifying $90,000 as the amount needed for the erection of the new public school building at Essex street and Arrow avenue, was referred back to the board for completion as to a few details.

James Craig and others asked for two electric lights, one on West Front street, near Jefferson avenue, and the other on Jefferson avenue. The petition was referred to the light committee.

Mayor Fisk appointed Benjamin Urquhart, the colored mail-carrier, a special policeman and the appointment was confirmed. The petition from M. D. Rae for an electric light on Berkely avenue, was referred to the light committee. The resignations of Frank Stilwell, special policeman, and Theodore Martin, a regular policeman, the latter to take effect April 15, were accepted. Stilwell resigned about a month ago.

Building Inspector T. O. Doane reported that seventeen permits were granted during the past month. City Judge William N. Runyon presented his quarterly report. There were 174 cases before him, of which number thirty-two were fined, twenty-five sent to jail and sentence suspended on payment. Four cases were dismissed and one put in charge of the probation officer. The sum of $152 was collected and $23 was given to Chief Kiely for expenses. The balance being turned over to the city treasurer.

Clerk Horace G. Adams, of the district court, reported receipts of $99.76 and expenditures of $42.76, with a balance of $67, for the past month.

The petition of J. C. Hilton, of East Third street, asking for the return of $10.80 as excess taxes due to a clerical error, was acted upon favorably.

Upon motion of Mr. Tolles $3,000 was transferred from the general fund to the fire fund and $1,500 from the general fund to the pool fund. Mr. Tolles moved that when the meeting adjourn it be to meet on Tuesday night, April 9, for the presentation of the tax ordinance.

Mr. Hibbard offered a resolution, which was adopted, that the Plainfield Water Supply Company be requested to extend its mains through streets in which sewers are to be laid, at no expense to the city. Another resolution by Mr. Hibbard, which was adopted, authorized the fire and building committee to purchase two horses for the fire department at a cost not to exceed $700.

Mr. Tyler reported that the public affairs committee had held several meetings and had been in correspondence with Col. Hine, of the Public Service Corporation regarding certain complaints as to local trolley service. As a result of this the company has restored the fifteen-minute service on the Arlington avenue line and attention will be given to the complaint that cars fail to stop for passengers.

PLAN TO MACADAMIZE MANY THOROUGHFARES

PUBLIC HEARING TO BE GIVEN ON ORDINANCE ON MONDAY NIGHT, MAY 6.

Provisions for macadamizing many streets in the city, closely following action taken to establish the grade in them, was made in an ordinance introduced by Mr. Ginna, chairman of the street committee, at the April meeting of the Common Council Monday night. The ordinance was adopted on first and second readings, ordered advertised and at the meeting to be held May 6, it is the intention of the Common Council to adopt it on third reading after granting a public hearing.

The streets to be macadamized are the following: West Second street, between Liberty street and Plainfield avenue; Randolph road, between Arlington avenue and Cedar brook; Arlington place, between Park and Arlington avenues; Cottage place, between Washington and Richmond streets; College place, Denmark road, Sycamore street, between Fourth and Fifth streets; Hillside avenue and West End avenue, between Front avenue and Cedar brook.

The ordinance authorizes the issuance of nine $1,000 street improvement bonds, and that upon the completion of the work application is to be made to the Court of Common Pleas for the appointment of commissioners who shall assess benefits according to the usual plan, but that no instance is a property-owner to be assessed beyond actual benefits to him and the balance is to be paid by the city out of the general tax for such purposes. In the case of West End and Hillside avenues, and Denmark road the gutters are to be paved with slag on each side of the street. The width of the macadam varies from sixteen feet in a majority of streets to thirty-two feet in West End and Sycamore avenues. The work is to be completed by September 30 next.

VETERAN FIREMEN HOLD THEIR ANNUAL MEETING.

Exempts Elect Officers and Delegates to the State Association.

The Exempt Firemen's Association held its annual meeting Monday, and elected the following officers: President, V. W. Nash; vice president, Charles Connover; secretary, Guillermo Thorne; treasurer, E. M. Laing; trustees, D. W. Littell, E. M. Laing, W. A. Woodruff, T. O. Doane, Jerome Mercer.

The association will be represented by Guillermo Thorne and J. O. Cranston at the Relief Association. George Clark is the representative to the Board of Visitors. Delegates to the State Exempt Association, of which D. W. Littell is president, are as follows: J. O. Cranston, Charles Connover, George Studer, E. T. Van-Winkle, George Ball. The life members of the State Association from the Plainfield organization are: V. W. Nash, E. M. Laing, W. A. Woodruff, Guillermo Thorn, T. O. Doane, E. A. Vermeule, J. E. Flannery and D. W. Littell.

The association increased its membership during the year. The reports showed a strong financial condition.

How to Keep Furs.

If garments are not cleaned before they are laid away and there are moth eggs in them, neither camphor nor any other preventive will keep them from developing and eventually devouring the fur.

If furs are well brushed and freed from dust, they need not be packed away in any of the much used moth preventives.

In packing furs away for the summer they should first be well aired, cleaned and shaken of moths' eggs that are not visible now may develop during the hot weather.

The whipping of the furs should continue until no dust arises. Then the pieces should be put out in the sunshine for a day or two and then shook again.

If the lining is soiled or worn, remove it before putting the garment away.

Harry A. Smith's Funeral.

A large number of friends from this city, including a delegation from Trinity Commandery, No. 2, K. T., attended the funeral of Harry Atwater Smith, at Somerville, Saturday afternoon. It was held in St. John's Episcopal church and was conducted by Rev. Charles Fiske, of Somerville, assisted by Rev. Harrison B. Wright, of Bola, Pa. The choir of Grace church, this city, in charge of William B. MacClymont, and assisted by Judge William N. Runyon, sang at the service.

PLANS FOR FLORAL FETE

Eleven Bands of the King's Daughters Combine for Big Display and Sale.

LISTS OF CHAIRMEN

Each Band Assigned to a Booth Represented By a Flower—Smoking Room to Be a Feature.

The committees in charge of the arrangements for the "Floral Fete, to be held at the Casino, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 11, 12 and 13, afternoon and evening, have decided on the various booths, the kinds of flowers to distinguish them and the articles to be sold at each. As the name of the affair implies, flowers will be used in profusion, the various circles assuming charge of the booths, which they will decorate and take charge of.

The circle, articles sold, decorative flower and president in charge of each follow:

Benevolent Band, Mrs. William Myers; cake, daffodils; Charity Circle, Mrs. A. T. Slauson; useful table, sunflowers; Loyal Daughters, Mrs. J. A. Peterkin; Red Cross table, carnations; Daughters of the Cross, Mrs. S. St. John McCutchen; sofa pillows and fancy articles, violets; Cup-Bearers, Mrs. Henry L. Hall; candy table, flowers; Cheerful Workers, Mrs. Margaret Leo; flower booth, Miss Helen Phillips; shadow play, afternoon and night; mice and cheese grab, poppy; Brightside and bound books, casmos; Golden Rule, Mrs. Anna Most; lemonade well; lemons; Whatsoever, Miss Runyon; Japanese tea room and grape juice; wisteria; Emmanuel, Miss Ella Mackey; ice cream; clematis.

Mrs. W. L. C. Glenney will have charge of the jewelry table and the flower will be fleur-de-lis; hat pins, Mrs. George A. Beaton; autumn leaves; small folding tables, porch and tea tables, Mrs. David F. Ginna; holly hocks; small water colors framed, Mrs. E. H. Ladd, Jr.; morning glory; Japanese table, Japanese artist to paint pictures, Mrs. H. K. Testwuide; cherry blossoms; Mrs. E. P. Fetcker; treasure; toys to amuse children, daisies; supper room, Miss Susan Rafferty; tulips. Mrs. Dorsey W. Hyde will have charge of the doll table and the decorations will be dog-wood.

A novel feature will be the smoking room in charge of F. W. Butler. Cigars and cigarettes will be sold there and every convenience for smokers afforded. The bowling alleys will be in charge of George Schoonmaker.

EASTER AT MARCONNIER.

Many Delightful Features Attract a Large Gathering to the Chapel.

S. S. Swackhamer, Esq., made an appropriate address, the pupils of the Sunday-school gave recitations and there was the usual hunt for the Easter candy eggs, at Marconnier chapel, Sunday afternoon. Rev. J. Tucker Lansdale, pastor, was in charge of the programme and Horace J. Martin, Sr., led in the singing of the Easter carols. There were at least 150 people present at the exercises and they were considered the most successful yet held.

It was Mrs. Swenck, a former resident of Oak Tree, who introduced the egg hunt and she provided the amusement each Sunday, seventy-five baskets of the candy variety being distributed all over the grounds. A large number of children joined in the hunt. At the close of the exercises Mr. Martin was presented with $5 gold piece, and Miss Mary Morrison, pianist, a $10 gold piece, in appreciation of their faithful services during the past year.

MISS BEECHING PRESIDENT

Plainfield Primary and Junior Sunday School Teachers' Union Elects.

Officers were elected and reports presented at the annual meeting of the Plainfield Primary and Junior Sunday-school Teachers' Union, held in the Y. M. C. A. Monday afternoon. These officers were re-elected for the coming year:

President, Miss Nettie Beeching; first vice president, Mrs. J. A. Powlison; second vice president, Mrs. Frederick Baker; third vice president, Mrs. D. R. Darby; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. R. W. Barnes; musician, Mrs. L. R. Schodeld; librarian, Mrs. William Morse.

Owing to removals the membership is slightly decreased from that of a year ago, but the interest has increased. The regular contributions were made during the year to the Y. M. C. A., and that of the different Sunday-schools. While no new work was taken up during the year, that performed has been of a practical nature.

Received Degree As Optician.

Horace E. Vail, of 446 Orchard place, returned Saturday from Easton, Pa., where he has been pursuing a course of study and has just received his diploma from the Easton School of Optics.

NOTED LAWYER MAY BE COMMENCEMENT SPEAKER

HAMPTON L. CARSON A POSSIBILITY AT P. H. S. EXERCISES.

The City Board of Education held its monthly meeting Monday, but a few minutes sufficed to transact all the business that came before it. The Board of School Estimate submitted a formal report in which it specified the fact that $90,000 had been decided upon as the amount needed for the new school to be erected on Essex street. Permission was granted Superintendent Maxson to have the course of study reprinted and the teachers' committee was empowered to make the necessary appointments for the coming year.

On motion of Mr. Cave, a resolution was passed to the effect that *bids for the usual coal supply be ad*vertised for and that they be opened at a special meeting on Monday night, April 15. The president was empowered to secure a place for holding the annual commencement exercises and suggestions were received for the speaker. The names of Dr. Jesse L. Hurlbut, formerly of this city, but now of Morristown, Attorney General Hampton L. Carson, of Philadelphia, and several others, were mentioned.

MONDAY AFTERNOON CLUB OBJECTS TO SHAW PLAY

ADOPTS RESOLUTION PROTESTING AGAINST "MRS. WARREN'S PROFESSION"

The Monday Afternoon Club at its meeting Monday in the Casino formally adopted a resolution of protest against the production of "Mrs. Warren's Profession" at the local theatre on Friday night. The resolution was introduced by Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, a daughter of Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, and after several had spoken in vigorous terms against the appearance here of Bernard Shaw's handiwork it was decided by an unanimous vote to have the protest published in the local papers. A member of the club said this afternoon that she did not believe they would send a copy of the resolution to the local authorities.

The resolution follows:

"Resolved, That the Monday Afternoon Club has heard with indignation and regret that 'Mrs. Warren's Profession' is to be produced in Plainfield. They desire to protest against the production in our city of this play, or others of a similar character, as calculated to injure public morals."

The last paper in the programme on "Primitive Man in America" was presented by Miss Susan M. Rafferty. Its subject was "The Government and the Red Man." The paper was one of unusual merit, giving in a concise and interesting manner some ment in dealing with the conditions. the various policies adopted by different administrations of the government in dealing with the problem. With some mistakes acknowledged, there has been an earnest desire on the part of the government to deal fairly and justly with these wards of the nation, according to Miss Rafferty's statements. The paper elicited interesting discussion.

Evangelistic Services.

Beginning next Sunday night, H. A. Ironsides, of Oakland, Cal., and Henry Acomb, of Minneapolis, Minn., who spoke in the Y. M. C. A. last Sunday, will begin a week of evangelistic services at the Y. M. C. A. hall. The meetings will be conducted independently, under the auspices of no church or organization. Services will be held on Sunday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and following Sunday.

16-Year-Old Bride.

Rosaline Bonavigila, a pretty 16-year-old Italian girl, was married to Dominick Maccerone, by Justice Hezekiah Hand Monday. The ceremony was performed at the justice's home on East Sixth street. The bride's parents were with her, and a lively celebration was held at their home on Hunter avenue, Scotch Plains, after the ceremony. The groom is an expert wood-carver, employed in the Aeolian factory at Garwood.

H. Russell Voorhees Returns.

After an absence of seven months, during which time he covered all the principal cities of the west, H. Russell Voorhees, traveling manager for Voorhees & Company, advertising specialists, of New York city, returned home Friday night. Mr. Voorhees has been on a business trip for his house, and besides had a pleasant trip in California, Oregon and Washington.

Miss Anna Luder, formerly of this city, and Charles Winn, of the borough, will be married this evening at the home of the bride in East Millstone.

Miss Addie Weaver, formerly of New York, is making her home for the present with her father, Deputy Sheriff P. V. Weaver, of the New Madison.

J. A. Staats, of the Hotel Kensington, has returned from a visit with his father at Chatham.

WITH THE FESTIVE GRIPPE

Written by One Who Evidently Has "Been There."

The grippe is the most vicious of diseases. It begins in the night and sleeps not by day. Nor will it let its victim sleep. Where it comes from is not known, but everyone is aware when it gets there, that it has come to stay. It takes off its things and puts its trunk in your best room. It seems to be on an indefinite leave of absence from home to make life as uncomfortable for its host as possible. It puts its feet on your best furniture, uses your best linen towels to clean its shoes, and takes special delight in leaving its dirty linen about for you to pick up. It assaults you from the front and from the rear. It pounds away at your head until you can stand it no longer; it runs up and down your spinal column; puts your legs out of commission and destroys your appetite. The grippe is the most unfeeling and thoughtless of all diseases. Where *some diseases are content with affect*ing certain organs or certain portions of the body, frame, and letting it go at that, the grippe comes in and lays siege to the entire system of human economy. It knows no feelings of decency or consideration. It laughs you to scorn, and when you are alone it mocks your groaning. Of all diseases spare me from the grippe.—Detroit Free Press.

CHANCE TO MAKE A PAIR.

Smart Young Man Had Less Fun Than He Anticipated.

Whoever is acquainted in the vicinity of St. Johnsbury, Vt., knows of Orville Lawrence, of whom many stories are told like the following:

Mr. Lawrence was driving up to the St. Johnsbury house with a little fox terrier sitting at his side. A sporty young drummer was sitting on the piazza smoking a cigar in company with some friends, and he resolved to have some fun at the expense of Mr. Lawrence.

"Sir, how much will you sell that dog for? I should like it very much for my wife, who loves pups."

"Wall," said the old man, "you had better take it, and then your wife will have two."

Origin of the "Broad Arrow."

The unmistakable "broad arrow," of which convicts wear the livery, is said by the fact that it was a royal mark is quite uncertain. The story that it was taken from the arms of Henry Viscount Sydney, who was master general of ordnance at the end of the seventeenth century, is exploded by the fact that it was in use long *before his time. Peppys bankered af*ter the idea that the "arrow" might be really an anchor, and others have seen in it a commemoration of the English archers' prowess. It has been boldly identified also as the mystic Tau of the cross, as a mystic Druid letter signifying superiority, and as the symbol of Mithras as sun god.

The Spaniard of To-day.

I find the typical Spaniard of to-day in an Aragonese peasant, elderly but lithe, whom I lately saw jump from the train at a little country station to examine a very complicated French agricultural machine drawn up in a siding; he looked at it above and below with wrinkled brows and intent eyes, he ran all around it, he clearly could not quite make it out; but there was no flippancy or indifference in his attitude toward this new, strange thing; he would never rest, one felt, until he reached the meaning of it. And the grief of many of us will be that he will not remain, that before the Spaniard will cast aside not a few of the things which now draw us to Spain.—Havelock Ellis, in the Atlantic.

A British Institution Failing.

As regards the long and deadly warfare between the turkey and its flat-breasted rival, the goose, for the prime honors of the Christmas dinner table, an expert confesses that the goose's defeat in popularity is probably irretrievable now, according to an English exchange. "The flesh is prolific," said he, "too rich for the delicate tastes of well-to-do people, and there is not enough of it for the poor. None the less, for the real trencherman who has a healthy gusto and a well-filled purse, your turkey, which has to be helped out with sausages and bacon to give it a flavor, is nowhere in it with your goose."

Hint for a Short Sermon.

About 25 years ago the annual session of the Maine Methodist conference was held in Portland. The Rev. John Colling, a canny Scot, was then in his prime and a member of the conference. He was called on to open with prayer one of the afternoon sessions, which was to be addressed by a minister whom we will call Mr. M., a man who was well known as a lengthy sermonizer.

Remembering this failing in the course of his prayer "Uncle John" exclaimed: "Oh, Lord, bless Brother M., who is to preach to us; may he preach the everlasting gospel, but may he not be everlastingly about it."

Sickness as Age Advances.

At the age of 20, the average man loses six days yearly by illness; at 45 he will lose 26 days.

HEALTH OFFICER FELL INTO APRIL FOOL JOKE

HE THOUGHT COLORED OFFICER WAS MAN WHO BROKE ORDINANCE.

Through not knowing all the officers on the police force, Health Officer Leon Thurlow fell into the role of victim in an April fool joke at police headquarters Monday afternoon. He was much chaffed over it about the municipal officers this morning.

Mr. Thurlow, not knowing Patrolman Saunders, mistook the officer for a colored man brought to headquarters for a breach of the health ordinances. When Mr. Thurlow, hearing that the man had been taken into custody, hurried to headquarters to see how the case was to be disposed of. Chief Kiely and Saunders was there when he arrived. The colored prisoner was out of sight in the rear.

"There is the man," said Chief Kiely, pointing to Saunders. Mr. Thurlow walked up to the colored officer and began to rate him for his supposed offense. Saunders, catching an illuminating wink from the chief, carried on the joke. Mr. Thurlow talked to the officer for twenty minutes, annoyed and surprised by the seeming flippancy and indifference of the supposed offender, for twenty minutes before he discovered his mistake. He acknowledged that the joke was on him and he has had to submit to a lot of "jollying."

ANCIENT ARMIES.

Italy a little before Hannibal's time was able to send into the field nearly 1,000,000 men.

The army of Terah, king of Ethiopia, consisted of 1,000,000 men and 300 chariots of war.

Sesostris, king of Egypt, led against his enemies 600,000 men, 24,000 cavalry and twenty-seven scythed armed chariots in 1491 B.C.

The city of Thebes had a hundred gates and could send out at each gate 10,000 fighting men and 200 chariots—in all, 1,000,000 men and 2,000 chariots.

Hannibal went from Carthage and landed near Palermo. He had a fleet of 2,000 ships and 3,000 small vessels and a land force of 300,000 men. At the battle in which he was defeated 150,000 were slain.

Y. M. C. A. Baseball Meeting.

Candidates for the Y. M. C. A. baseball team met at the association building Friday night to talk over plans for the intercity pennant race. It was decided to have the candidates out for field paces in a week or ten days. The weather, it was decided, was too changeable at present for practice. Physical Director Lisman said identified also as the mystic Tau of the cross, as a mystic Druid letter signifying superiority, and as the symbol of Mithras as sun god. identified also as the mystic Tau of the cross, as a mystic Druid letter signifying superiority, and as the symbol of Mithras as sun god. to give out the names of the probable team members. Howard Craig is temporary captain of the team.

THEIR FAVORITE BEVERAGES.

What Some of the World's Great Men Preferred to Drink.

The entertaining author of "Collections and Recollections" has been writing on the favorite beverages of great men. Thackeray's choice was claret. He said that "our intellect ripens with good cheer and throws off surprising crops under the influence of that adorable liquid, claret." Mr. Gladstone, to whom the other pleasures of the table meant nothing, was a stickler for port, a believer in it, a judge of it. Mr. Russell says that the only feeble speech he ever heard from Gladstone was made after dinner in an otherwise hospitable house, where wine was not suffered to appear.

Lord Tennyson drank his bottle of port every day, and drank it undecanted, for, as he justly observed, a decanter holds only eight glasses, but a black bottle nine. Mr. Browning, if he could have his own way, drank port all through dinner, as well as after. Sir Moses Montefiore, who lived to complete his hundred years, drank a bottle of port wine every day after he came to man's estate. Mr. Pinchin, the wine merchant in "Little Dorrit," thought champagne "weak but palatable," and Lord St. Jerome, in "Coningsby," was esteemed by the young men a patriot "because he always gave his best champagne at his ball suppers."—Town and Country.

WOMAN IN STRANGE FIELDS.

Exploration and Discovery No Longer Left to the Sterner Sex.

Not long ago the triumph of a woman who had ascended one of the Himalaya peaks to a height hitherto unequaled by any mountain climber was duly chronicled. A few days later a foreign news item announced the arrival in South Africa of an American young woman who seeks the jungle in order to study the language of the monkey tribe. She is alone in her daring quest and appears to have a full realization of its perils.

Still another venturesome woman is Margaret Selenka, of German birth, who is to head an important scientific expedition to Java in the early part of the coming year. She goes there in the endeavor to establish the identity of a fossil man-ape found on the island, as the so-called missing link.

It is evident that these women are admitting no handicap because of their sex. They are courageously entering regions that few men have penetrated and their action suggests that it may not be long before the supremacy of the sterner sex in the fields of exploration and discovery will be very seriously questioned.

A Wonderful Country.

"Eastern visitors to the west are generally prepared for any phenomenal showing in the line of agriculture, stock-raising and the like," says a Colorado man, "but once in awhile they are taken by surprise.

"A New Hampshire man, who was spending his vacation on the ranch of a relative in Colorado, went out one morning to inspect a large incubator in which the young chicks were hatching. In one corner of the machine a neglected peach-seed, encouraged by the warmth of the atmosphere, had burst, and a tiny sprout several inches long was growing out of it.

"'Suffering Caesar!' exclaimed the New Hampshire man, as this caught his eye, 'do you hatch out your peaches in this country?'"—Harper's Weekly.

Fishermen Use Wireless.

The wireless telephone, it is claimed, has successfully entered into the Gloucester fishing industry. For the last week experiments have been conducted by the wireless telegraph station at Grant Rock, which is equipped with a wireless telephone, with a small vessel stationed among the fleet of the south shore fishermen 12 miles out in Massachusetts bay. Recently, it is asserted, the fishermen wished to learn the prices ruling in the Boston market. The operator on the wireless-fitted boat called up Grant Rock and telephoned the fishermen's request. The land operator asked Boston and the answer was forwarded back to the fishermen.—N. Y. Post.

Condensation With a Vengeance.

A Kansas editor is said to have entertained extreme ideas with reference to the value of a "condensed style." On one occasion owing to lack of space he wielded his pencil at the end of a syndicate serial story with this result in the way of compression: "Reginald took a small brandy, then his hat, his departure, besides no notice of his pursuers, meantime a revolver out of his pocket and lastly his own life."

Understone.

Bobby gazed critically at his new baby brother.

"Don't you like him, dear?" asked the nurse.

"Y—es," he admitted. "But don't you think you ought to send him back for a minutes? He's too rare!"—Cleveland Leader.

Might Head Her Off.

"Henry," said Mrs. Peck, "I'm going to get a phonograph and talk into it, so that if I happen to die first you can still hear my voice."

"Perhaps," replied Henry, hopefully, "I will die first."—Houston Post.

Relief in the Baby's Cries.

"Why doesn't your wife sing to the baby when she cries?"

"She used to, until she discovered that the neighbors preferred to hear the baby."—Cleveland Leader.

TROUBLE AHEAD FOR JACK.

His Well Meant Advice Evidently Caused All the Trouble.

Recently a lady was seen hurriedly approaching the gate at the Grand Central Depot, in New York. She had a traveling bag in one hand, a hat box and a bunch of flowers in the other and an umbrella and a box of lunch tucked under her arm. There was not a moment to spare, but the gatekeeper stopped her mad rush.

"Let me have your ticket, please," he commanded.

"I can't," she said, turning first red and then white, "but I have one. Please let me pass, I've got to catch that train."

"You will have to show your ticket, madam," repeated the gateman sternly. Tears glistened in the lady's eyes.

"I tell you I can't, it's—it's— Well, I pinned it in my— Oh, I put it where I wouldn't lose it, and I can't get it till I have a chance to— Oh, do please let me through!" She was allowed to pass, and was heard to say as she made a dash for the train:

"The next time Jack worries me into putting things where I can't lose them I guess I'll know it."

CONFIDENCES OF A CODFISH.

Revealed Secret of His Lengthy Absence From Home.

Capt. Collins, a well known fisherman of the banks, was persuaded into buying a large codfish by a fish pedler. After the departure of the pedler he saw it was not fit to be eaten, so it was thrown away.

In a few days the pedler again stopped at Collins' door. The captain went out to his cart and began to examine his fish. Suddenly leaning down, he placed his lips close to a large cod and began whispering to it.

The pedler looker rather astonished at this, and as soon as the captain raised his head he asked what he did that for.

"Well," replied Collins, "I was just askin' him how his relatives were, out in the old ocean."

"And what did he say?" asked the pedler.

"He said," replied Collins, "that when he left them they were in good health, but as he hadn't seen them for two weeks, he did not know whether they were alive or dead at the present time."—Boston Herald.

Nor Was His Neck Rubber.

The plaintiff's lawyer in the breach of promise case thought he would make life a burden to the unfortunate young man who was the unwilling defendant.

"Do you mean to say," he asked, after a number of embarrassing questions, "that after you had been absent for an entire month you did not kiss the plaintiff, to whom you were engaged to be married, when you first saw her on your return?"

"I do," responded the defendant, firmly.

"Will you make that statement to the jury?"

"Certainly, if necessary."

"Do you think that they would believe you?"

"One of them would, I know."

"Ah, indeed! And why should he, pray?"

"Because he was present when I first saw her. He was at the gate when I rode up, and she stuck her head out of the second-story window and I said to her, 'How d'ye do?' and called out I'd be back to supper in half an hour. I'm no giraffe," and everybody smiled except the lawyer.

Mistake of a College Girl.

Charles Dana Hazen, head of the history department of Smith college, had excused one of his pupils from recitation on account of sickness. Shortly after the recitation hour the professor had occasion to pass through the main street of Northampton, and, much to his surprise, saw his excused student coming from the opposite direction.

This was a critical moment for the college girl, who took in the situation with a glance. Something must be done at once to escape his notice. The book store nearby was her only resort, and if she could have reached it on time she would have been all right. In her excited state of mind she got into a saloon just one door from her intended hiding place. On discovering her mistake she rushed into the street and into the arms of the professor.

Beats the Story Books.

For about 30 years Joseph Glover Southmay put off what he might have done any day. Consequently he has just reappeared at Middletown, Conn., after an absence of 26 years. Funeral services were held for him a generation ago, when he was believed to have been at sea. This amazing part of the story is that Southmay for 30 years has been running a farm a little more than 20 miles from Middletown. There is room enough in this world, it appears, unless a man is really trying to hide.

Terror's Effect on Hair.

It has been repeatedly affirmed that Queen Marie Antoinette's auburn hair turned white in the days of the reign of terror, and an English surgeon named Parry states that just after the Indian mutiny he actually saw the jet black hair of a rebel Sepoy, who was under examination and feared a dreadful death, turn white in the course of an hour. In the time of the commune in Paris, the dark hair of Baron Alphonse de Rothschild was blanched in a few hours.

DESCRIBES CANAL WORK

Former Mayor W. L. Saunders Speaks Highly of General Conditions in Panama.

SAW A BULL FIGHT

Butchery Was Too Much for Engineer Who Quit Scene After Three Animals Had Been Slaughtered.

When questioned by a Daily Press reporter, Friday night, with reference to his observations while on his recent trip to the Panama canal zone, former Mayor William L. Saunders, of the borough, related some interesting details of the great undertaking now being carried out by the government. As president of the Ingersoll-Rand Company, the country's largest concern for the manufacture of rock drills and air compressers which are an important factor in the digging of the big ditch, he was in a position to note the engineering features and gained a very favorable impression of the pluck and perseverance of the Americans. According to his opinion, the big contract is steadily being completed and the work will only stop when the great railway is finished and ships are making their way through it.

"In going through Mexico to Havana and thence to the Isthmus," said Mr. Saunders, "I was impressed by the fact that these countries, which we have always known as Spanish America, are rapidly becoming Americanized by the fact that the people from the United States are there in large number; they are investing capital in these countries and their influence is everywhere felt. There are 6,000 Americans in the city of Mexico living in a colony in one of the best parts of the city and they represent the progressive element of the community. American pluck and enterprise comes to the front everywhere and while I do not expect to see it, yet, it seems plain to me that the progress of events is sure to extend the domain of the United States much further south than the Texas boundary."

"I had expected all along to find the isthmus of Panama something like a dismal swamp, but instead of that, I found it high and dry. The most striking impression one gets of the canal is that it runs across a pleasant country where the breeze blows all day long and where it is seldom warm except in the sun at mid-day.

"The sanitary conditions are admirable, streets are paved and sewered and the whole community gives one the impression of being a prosperous American colony. A trip on the Panama railroad from Colon to the Pacific doesn't differ in general appearance from a Sunday trip on a way train to the suburbs of Philadelphia.

"The canal is under way and in active operation throughout the line. The organization in charge of the work is a very superior one and the esprit de corps is perfect. During one of the days when I was there, reports came in that 33,000 cubic yards of material had been removed from the Culebra cut that day, this being the high water mark. At that rate the Culebra cut may be completed in seven years.

"As a matter of fact, the Culebra cut of which we hear so much, is nothing more than a great ditch and no serious engineering problem is involved there. This cut can best be understood by referring to the Watchung hills over in North Plainfield. Imagine an excavation through them eight miles in length and down to the level on the Plainfield streets, 300 feet wide at the bottom with sides sloping to a width of 1,000 feet or more at the top. Imagine these lines and you have the Culebra cut.

"The Gatun dam is the great problem of the canal. This dam is intended to imprison the waters of the Chargres river, thus producing an inland lake, 110 square miles in area and deep enough to carry the ships over half the length of the Panama canal, the total distance of the canal being fifty miles. This dam is to be built of earth with a concrete core wall and its dimensions are about a mile and a half long, half a mile wide at the bottom and it is as high as the roadway of the Brooklyn bridge is above water."

While he was in Mexico, Mr. Saunders witnessed a bull fight and his description of what the people in that country call sports is very interesting.

"I went to the affair," Mr. Saunders said, "as is the custom among all strangers and I saw what the people told me was one of the most desperate fights they have had in many years. I am glad I went because what took place would have taken place whether I was there or not and because my experience taught me that I must never go again. The bull never has a show but is brought in before each fight, 10,000 people, and is simply butchered to make a Mexican holiday. They killed seven bulls this particular day but three was all I could stand.

"The killing of the bulls is not so bad as the treatment of the horses. The most desperate bull they had there was a monster-colored animal of such ferocity that before they could tire him out to the point where he might be approached with the sword, they ran six horses into the ring, each one carrying an armor-covered rider. I saw the bull throw two of these horses practically over his head and he gored the other so desperately that their entrails dragged upon the ground."

SCHOOL ROMANCE HAS HAPPY CLIMAX

MISS ROSS AND MR. DAVIS, CLASSMATES AT COLLEGE, ARE TO WED.

Announcement is made of the approaching marriage of Miss May Ross, daughter of Postmaster Richard Ross, of Bound Brook, and Eugene Davis, who is now completing his course of study in the theological seminary at Alfred University, in preparation for mission work in China. The event will be celebrated at the home of the bride, at West Fifth street and Arlington avenue, in June.

The marriage will be the termination of a romance begun while Miss Ross and Mr. Davis were students at Alfred University, from which both were graduated. Mr. Davis was the star player on the football team while in the university, and also stood high in his studies. After Miss Ross was graduated Mr. Davis continued his studies in the seminary, and the friendship formed at college was continued. It is expected that the couple will go to China after their marriage, where they will take charge of a mission station under the auspices of the Seventh-Day Baptist denomination.

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

The Hon. Mrs. Harbord, of London, has made a successful balloon trip across the English channel. She is the second woman to cross in a balloon.

Miss Bertha W. Becker, of Chalfont, Pa., who recently received a commission as notary public, is one of the youngest in the country. She attained her majority a short time ago.

A professor at Berne university is Miss Gertrude Woker. She is twenty-six and passed all her examinations some time ago with great distinction. She lectures on physics and chemistry.

One of the most active women in New England is Mrs. Betsey Cowns, of Winsted, Conn., who claims to be ninety-nine years old. She earns her living by doing general housework, washing, ironing, etc.

When Mrs. W. A. Clark, wife of the former Montana Senator, entertains in their Massachusetts avenue home, Mrs. Clark gives her guests a genuine treat in a harp recital. She is a cultured musician, especially skillful on the harp.

SPRING.

Just a kiss of the low hung clouds
To the earth below,
Just a touch of the soft white hands
And the flowers grow.

Just a kiss from the smiling Sun
To the budding trees,
Just a touch of the magic hands
And life is in the breeze.

Just the tears of April rain
And spring begins,
Just a prayer of a mother's breast
And memory sings.

Just a song from the other world
The secret of the air
In God's own time He gives us this
And clothes the earth so cold and bare.

Warned.

Some years ago Miss Mabel Love was playing the title role in "Little Red-Riding Hood" at Dublin. She was entering the room to visit her grandmother in bed when an excited and anxious little voice shouted from the gallery: "Stop, stop! It isn't your grandmother. It's a wolf." The house burst into a storm of applause and laughter at the child's innocent alarm for the safety of the little maiden in the red hood.

LITERARY

Is there a more independent position in this world than that of a childless widow left with just enough money for her not to have to think about it? "Love's Undertow," the complete novelette in Lippincott's April number, by Anna A. Rogers, tells the story of such a woman. Interest is divided between the brainy, well-balanced and womanly widow, and her Amazon girl friend Dione, who refuses to acknowledge that she loves a young physician because she is at outs with "things as they are" relating to the sex question. The reasons for her capitulation to the cause of love, are ingenious and by no means overdrawn. Though the author declares in the first paragraph of this fascinating tale that the foundation of Mrs. De Ro's second marriage was laid during the lifetime of her first husband, the reader is kept guessing which of four men is to carry off the prize.

What promises to be another of Everybody's notable series is begun in the April number under the title of "Secrets of Success." James J. Hill is the hero of the first romance—a fascinating life-story of the man whose intelligence and driving power have lifted him to the pinnacle of railroad achievement. Carl Snyder goes to the bottom in a study of our daily railroad wreck horror. In "Growing Railway Death Roll: Who Is Responsible?" he answers his own question, sparing no one, and he offers a remedy—in fact three remedies, all efficacious and practicable.

That the railroad interests of the country have long had a stranglehold upon the government, starting their orders to the highest authorities without fear of disobedience, is the assertion made by Gilson Gardner in Success Magazine for April. The representatives of the railroad sit in Congress and have been present in the national conventions of both parties. In this second article of his series on "The Third House," Mr. Gardner devotes his attention to the railroad lobby at Washington, outlining the work of some of the leading lobbyists and describing the expensive and highly-organized campaigns conducted against the Rate Bill and other measures proposed in behalf of the people.

Effective variety is what we are accustomed to look for in the make-up of the Atlantic Monthly, but this quality seems especially noteworthy in the current April number. Three, at least, of the articles will make a strong claim upon the attention of men of affairs. "Mutual Life Insurance—The Case for the Agent" is a vigorous and clear-headed defense of the agent's rights against the attacks of the critics. It is written from the inside—by a man who knows from experience what sound insurance means. In "The New Tariff Era," R. L. Bridgman states the causes that have brought about the present widespread and determined movements against our superannuated tariff system. E. A. Ross, whose recent scathing denunciation of "The Criminaloid" has aroused so much discussion, appears again with an article suggestively yentitled "The Grift in Law," and the article will make it clear that truths like this should be uttered, and Professor Ross does not mince words.

Bear hunting in the Rocky Mountains is pretty exacting sport anywhere you find it. Nowhere is it more so than down in the southern end of the Rockies in the northern New Mexico, and especially in the heavily timbered canyons of the rugged peaks of the Pecos River Forest Reserve. This country's chief attraction is that it is little known by sportsmen generally, and it is so remote and unfrequented that it is a happy hunting ground for the favored few who know its fastness. There are bears in the Pecos country. In fact the "woods are full of them." This fact will be mournfully attested by the ranchmen who live along the river and the cattlemen who have herds grazing up the slopes of the higher mountains. It is a good place for Bruin. The canyons are deep and dark, and the aspen and spruce and pine forests are dense, and in places almost impenetrable. The mountain streams are full of fish thick shrubbery. There are silver-tip grizzlies in plenty, cinnamon bears and black bears. In certain seasons their depredations on stock are frightful. At times they appear to slaughter the stock just for amusement, for other signs are found to be found. Sometimes they are more than mere "signs"—big boulders pulled up on of their sockets and rolled down the mountain side by the hungry animal looking for succulent worms or insects, bushes torn up and trampled where he has been pulling down berries, logs torn apart and thrown about where he has been searching for grubs.—E. Dana Johnson in April Recreation.

When Congress was in session during the winter the railroad interests were arguing strongly against the tendency toward centralization. The talked much and eagerly about the superiority of the States and the danger of President Roosevelt to invade the sphere of the several commonwealths. But now that Congress is adjourned, these same railroad interests have been declaiming with equal earnestness against the tendency on the part of States of legislatures to regulate the highways of commerce, and declare that the only proper thing is national regulation. They have not only been asking the States to defer action in order that the national policy may be carried out, but they were even appealing to President Roosevelt to meddle in the affairs of the States by trying to persuade Governors and legislatures to drop pending measures. This, of course, is something that it was manifestly impossible for the President to do. It is obvious enough, meanwhile, that the larger aspects of railway control must belong definitely to the central Government. On the other hand, we will remain a great deal that will lie within the proper sphere of the particular States. There need be no conflict, either in principle or in practice. The general standards of railroad administration must be fixed by Congress and the Interstate Commerce Commission; but there are many smaller lines of railroad lying wholly within States and subject only to State jurisdiction. The States may very properly increase the power conferred upon their railroad commissions and may deal with rate questions and taxation questions as they deem best. The railroads have recourse to the courts in case of arbitrary or unruly severe action; but meanwhile, their best remedy is in the spirit of candor and frankness, to the people and to the public authorities. They should help rather than hinder honest politics.—From "The Progress of the World," in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for April.

There is much in the April McClure's that you do not want to miss. The leading article by George Kibbe Turner is a study of the ethics of dissipation, and, the ruin and disaster that it has brought. "The City of Chicago" is the title, and Mr. Turner shows the tremendous forces that are working to destroy the social organization of the lawless city. His viewpoint is entirely new. "Mary Baker G. Eddy, the Story of Her Life and the History of Christian Science" continues to pile up its interest arousing facts—the various and many wanderings of Mrs. Eddy, while she was hazily evolving her Science and teaching the art of Quimby's healing, are graphically told.

Ray Stannard Baker, "the great reporter," begins his series on the negro with an article in McClure's Magazine. "Upon the ocean of antagonism between the white and negro races in this country there arises occasionally a wave, stormy in its appearance. Such a wave was the Atlanta riot," says Mr. Baker, who then proceeds to describe the spectacular disturbance and the disaster incident to its fury. Great full-page portraits of negro types—and a wonderful black mammy on the cover—illustrate the first article. The first authoritative and complete story of the Brownsville affair, who after years of experimenting have made flying practicable, is told by Herbert N. Casson.

The April number of The Metropolitan Magazine is an ideal one for the early spring days, when the fireplace and the reading lamp are man's best comforts. "The New Criminal," by Broughton Brandenburg, furnishes an interesting resume of the working plans of the modern burglar, and also the methods by which the flat dweller or the one who lives in a lonely house may protect himself and his property against his attempts. Captain Charles T. Boyd, of the United States Army, contributes a valuable paper on "China's Military Awakening," and what it may mean to the world. Captain Boyd visited China's great modern armies, watched them at work in the field, and he draws from what he saw a valuable forecast.

The April number of The Poular Science Monthly contains the following articles: "Pioneers of Science in America" (illustrated with full-page portraits of each: "Benjamin Franklin," by Dr. S. Weir Mitchell; "Alexander von Humboldt," by Baron Speck von Sternberg; "John James Audubon," by Dr. C. Hart Merriam; "John Torrey," by Dr. N. L. Britton; "Joseph Henry," by Dr. Robert S. Woodward; "Louis Agassiz," by the Rev. Edward Everett Hale; "James Dwight Dana," by President Arthur T. Hadley; "Spencer Fullerton Baird," by Dr. Hugh M. Smith; "Joseph Leidy," by Professor William Keith Brooks; "Edward Drinker Cope," by Professor Henry Fairfield Osborn. "Notes on the Development of Telephone Service," by Fred DeLand; "The General Economic Importance of Mosquitoes," by Professor John B. Smith; "How Shall the Destructive Tendencies of Modern Life Be Met and Overcome?" by Dr. Richard Cole Cabot; "The Value of Science," by M. H. Piongare; "A Defence of Pragmatism," by Professor William James; "Civology—A Suggestion," by Professor Lindley M. Keasbey; "The Reclamation of the North Platte Valley," by Fred H. Newell; "A Vocabulary Test," by E. H. Babbitt: "A National Department of Health;" "The Research Departments of the Carnegie Institution;" "The Sage Foundation;" "The Problems of Astronomy."

Ice Fifty Cents a Hundred.

While the dealers who control the ice out-put in Plainfield and North Plainfield have not yet held a meeting to decide upon the price of ice for the coming season, in the opinion of one dealer it will be fifty cents a hundred. Last year the retail price was sixty cents a hundred. The usual reduction will be made in the wholesale price.

MISS READE TALKS OF WORK AMONG HEATHEN

"HOME THOUGHT FROM ABROAD" HER SUBJECT AT WOMEN'S MEETING.

Encouraging reports from the women's missionary societies, together with an address by Miss Mina A. Reade, acting field secretary of the Women's Board at Boston, marked the thirty-fourth anniversary meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the First Baptist church, Friday afternoon. While the society did not raise quite as much money last year as in previous periods, a considerable sum was contributed to the foreign work. Miss Ida Yerkes, treasurer, reported the receipts to be $452.02 with a balance of one cent, all having been expended for the cause. A balance of $1.80 was reported in the contingent fund.

Mrs. B. J. Shreve, who completes her thirty-fourth year as secretary for the society, presented a report of events showing the progress made in the cause of missions which was a source of much encouragement to all.

The Women's Home Missionary Society also reported the work accomplished during the past year. Mrs. Frank W. Jones, treasurer, stated that $478.80 was raised, about $200 more than a year ago, and there is a balance of $1.35. This society has a membership of about 100. Of the amount raised $200 was for the special fund for the Chicago Training School, The report of Mrs. George H. Robins, secretary, was full of interest.

The report of the Young Women's Missionary Society showed that $122 was raised during the year, of which amount $70 was given to the foreign work, $10 to home missions, $10 to the Baptist Home for the Aged; $10 for the Chicago Training School and $2 to the educational fund. The society has a membership of forty-five.

More than ordinary interest was shown in the first annual report of the Junior Missionary Society, of which Miss Ethel Case is the superintendent. The membership is thirty and $35 was raised during the year for missions. The society attended the meeting and took part in the exercises.

Mrs. J. A. Chambliss, as president of the foreign missionary society, presided, and she introduced Miss Reade. The speaker, who has a charming personality, devoted the first few minutes of her time in talking to the children, telling them of what had been accomplished by little ones in some of the foreign fields. She then spoke on the subject of "Home Thoughts from Abroad," emphasizing the importance of the part to be taken in the advancement of mission work by those who are obliged to remain at home. She described the foreign side of missions as being so broad as to be almost beyond the grasp of the workers. She told of the wonderful revivals in India, China and Africa, and read extracts from a letter written by a missionary in India, which showed that the work is most encouraging.

Miss Reade laid great stress on the open door in China, making it possible for missionaries to accomplish great things there, and how western ideas in the establishment of schools are being welcomed. The speaker reported that there are now 612 Baptist mission schools abroad and that during the past year there were 1,200 conversions. There are also 172 native Bible readers, in addition to the training schools for nurses and hospitals. There are now twenty-two distinct calls for mission workers abroad and only five are available.

Miss Reade referred to the anniversary meeting to be held at New Haven soon, and said that it was the sincere wish of the Women's Board of Foreign Missions that the year could close with $25,000 in. To do this $25,000 must be secured. In closing she urged most earnest prayer on the part of the women and greater effort for the cause of both foreign and home missions.

A social hour followed and tea was served under the direction of the women. Those who assisted in serving by several young women.

The Jap Baby.

How do you suppose the babies in Japan take an airing? In baby carriages, you say? Of course not. The Japanese never do anything the way we do it. When the baby's about three days old it goes out for its first glimpse of the world strapped on somebody's back, and that's the way it goes every day till it can go on its own feet. Sometimes its mother or its nurse takes it, but very often it rides on the back of its brother or sister, who is perhaps not more than four or five years old. These little nurses don't seem to be troubled at all by their charges, as you would suppose. They play ball and tag and run races and fly kites in spite of the fact that they have their babies. What is more remarkable, the babies are perfectly happy and hardly ever cry, though when their young nurses run with them the poor babies' faces bang back and forth against their caretakers' shoulders till an American baby would howl with pain and rage.—Bertha Runkle in St. Nicholas.

GOOD FRIDAY OBSERVED

Protestant Churches United in Service at Crescent Avenue Church.

MANY ADDRESSES MADE

Six Ministers Spoke — Rev. Mr. Finn In Charge—Rev. J. S. Zelie Pronounces Benediction.

According to the annual custom, local congregations united in a Good Friday service at the Crescent Avenue church Friday night. Eight churches, representing five denominations, took part in the proceedings and the attendance was one of the largest noted in several years. This fact was commented on by Rev. Dr. Erskine M. Rodman in the course of an address during the evening. He remarked that at previous gatherings the number of people present had been so small on one or two occasions that it seemed as if the devil had been providing some counter attractions.

The service was in charge of Rev. A. E. Finn, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, and the pastors who spoke on "The Seven Words from the Cross" were Rev. R. Vicars Stevenson, of the Methodist church; Rev. Dr. Charles W. Parsons, of Grace M. E. church; Rev. Erskine M. Rodman, rector-emeritus of Grace church; Rev. Charles E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church; Rev. T. Thomas Hussey, pastor of St. Mark's and *Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, of the Con*gregational church.

Rev. A. C. McCrea, pastor of the First M. E. church, read a short Bible lesson following congregational singing, and Rev. Mr. Stevenson spoke on the first words: "Father forgive them, for they know not what they do." The lesson to be derived from this text, he said, was that the pain and suffering of Christ made him look out beyond it to the poor unconscious instruments of the tyrant's power. He remarked upon the unconsciousness of self embodied in the prayer and stated that the keynote of the text was "renunciation."

The second words, "Verily I say unto you, this day shalt thou be with me in Paradise," were spoken upon by Dr. Parsons.

"It is not all of life to live now, it is not all of death to die once," he said, in prefacing his remarks. The third words, he added, in the fact that God stooped to intimacy with a common thief.

Rev. E. E. Roberson had been assigned the third words but was unavoidably detained and they were spoken by Rev. Mr. Herring, who made the fourth words, "My God, My God, why hast Thou forsaken me?" by Dr. Rodman. He spoke briefly, his main thought being that in that awful hour, Christ was bowed down by the sense of all the sins of the human race, past, present and future.

"I Thirst," the fifth words, were spoken of by Rev. Mr. Herring, who took occasion to remark in connection with this theme that he believed that in the course of a few years, the Baptist, Presbyterian and Methodist denominations would have stricter views regarding Holy Week.

The sixth words, "It is Finished," was discussed by Rev. J. S. Zelie. When those words were uttered, he said, it was the supreme moment in the life of the Master.

Rev. Mr. Goodrich spoke of the seventh words, "Into Thy hands I commend my spirit." In discussing them he mentioned the statement of an English scientist who said that Caesar died like a man but Jesus died like a God. Mr. Goodrich added that Christ died like a man and that the crucifixion was not only a spectacle for the angels of that age but that it was a human experience.

Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue church, offered prayer in closing the meeting. The offering taken will be donated the Children's Home, a practice that has been observed since the union services have been held.

J. B. DUKE WILL TOUR EUROPE.

Not Known Whether Mrs. Inman Will Be in Party.

Following the rumor from Atlanta, Ga., of the engagement of James B. Duke, of Raritan, president of the American Tobacco Company, to Mrs. Margaret VanDyke Inman, widow of the late William Inman, of New York, is the statement given out that Mr. Duke is now preparing for an extensive trip through Europe with a party of friends.

The party will start in May, and Mr. Duke will take his collection of costly touring cars along for the accommodation of his friends. It is not known whether Mrs. Inman is to be a member of the party.

Mr. Duke, contrary to his custom, has not laid out any new work on his 2,000 acre estate for the summer. The extensive improvements started last season will be completed during the absence and the place will be put in shape for his reception on his return from Europe.

The million-dollar mansion which Mr. Duke planned to build after his marriage to Lillian M. Duke, has never been started, although an elaborate site surrounded with Italian gardens, lakes and fountains has long been prepared for it.

THEIR SONGS OF GLADNESS TOLD OF RISEN LORD

In Protestant and Catholic Churches Alike the Faithful Hail the Resurrection of Christ Jesus.

FLOWERS AND MUSIC

Special Sermons On Easter Day—Children's Services—Church Edifices Beautifully Adorned.

Easter was observed in all the churches of Plainfield with special music and handsome floral decorations. Full congregations attended the services.

Although the weather was chilly, the expected church parade was to be seen. Front street, Park avenue, Watchung avenue and West Seventh street were bright with pretty gowns. All the women with new gowns had plenty of time to show their new sartorial possessions before the rain came down.

First Baptist.

Elaborate Easter exercises were held at the First Baptist church Sunday morning and afternoon, which included several anthems by the large chorus choir under the direction of Howard M. Case, organist and a strong sermon in the morning by the pastor, Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss. A feature of the morning service was a prelude, violin solo, Miss Florence Wohlfert, accompanied by Mr. Case on the organ. The floral decorations were attractive, there being large banks of white and pink azaleas from the conservatories of C. V. McCutchen.

At the morning service the choir sang three special anthems with a response and an offertory. The solo parts were taken by Miss Pinella C. Harris, soprano; Miss Gertrude Hinz, contralto; William Holmes, baritone, and George Smith, tenor.

The Sunday-school exercises and anniversary were held in the afternoon at 3 o'clock and were largely attended by members and friends of the school. The programme follows:

Prelude, "Simple Aveu," Thome, violin, Hance; organ; carol, "Awake Glad Easter Morn," school; invocation, Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss; responsive Scripture reading, led by F. W. Jones, assistant superintendent; anthem, choir; carol, Easter Lilies," Junior Department; recitation, "Message of the Angels," Junior Department; coral, "The Easter Story," school; primary session; offertory, "Meditation," Massenet, violin solo, Miss Florence Wohlfert; carol, "The Leaves Are Resounding," school; benediction, postlude, organ. No evening service was held.

Crescent Avenue.

The programme at the Crescent Avenue church did not depart from the ordinary services to any great extent but there were large congregations both morning and evening. Rev. Dr. S. Zelie occupied the pulpit and he preached two strong sermons dealing with Eastertide. The musical programme was in charge of Choirmaster James Stanley and William P. Dunn presided at the organ. The members of the choir are Mr. Stanley, bass; Miss Carroll, alto, and Mr. Piccaver, tenor. The order for the services was as follows:

Morning—Prelude, Coronation March; Meyerbeer; anthem, "Awake Put on Thy Strength," Cass; chant, "Christ Our Passover;" response, "Grant, We Beseech Thee," offertory, "The Lord is Risen," Sullivan; anthem, "At it Began to Dawn," Buck; postlude, Grand Chorus, Hollins. Evening—Prelude, "War March of the Priests," Mendelssohn; anthem, "Sing Ye to the Lord," Lloyd; response, "Father in Heaven;" offertory, "They Have Taken Away My Lord," Sudlers; postlude, "Easter March," Merkel.

The pulpit platform was grouped about with palms, plants and ferns.

Park Avenue Baptist.

As usual on such occasions, the Easter services at the Park Avenue Baptist church, Sunday, were elaborate. In the morning there were appropriate anthems by the chorus choir, assisted by the church orchestra, and the pastor, Rev. A. E. Finn, preached an Easter sermon. The church was lavishly decorated with palms, Easter lilies and potted plants, furnished by members and friends. In the afternoon the primary and intermediate departments held their exercises, which consisted of Easter carols, exercises and class recitations.

The services in the evening, under the auspices of the Sunday-school, were especially interesting. Superintendent George E. Hall was in charge of the programme, which was as follows:

Selection, orchestra; carol, "Hail the Morn," school; responsive reading, prayer, carol, "'Tis the Joyous Day," school; recitation, "Easter," Clara Hadley; recitation, "Spring Stories," Marielle Dunham; duet, "Night Is Over," Leonard Erwin and Lyle Smith; offertory, orchestra; carol, "O Time of White Lilies," intermediate choir; recitation, "If I Could Choose," Katherine Lee, Edith Lowry, Madeline Moy, Hilda Van Winkle; carol, "Hail Our King," school; "Telling the Easter Story," Mrs. William Sebring, Miss Arline Brown; carol, "Almighty to Save," school; carol, "Bright Easter Day," intermediate choir, emblematic exercise, "The Gates of Heaven," "Confession, Miss Ella Runyon; "Temptation," Miss Mary Clark; "Baptism," Miss Anna Clark; "Crucifixion," Mrs. W. S. Lowry; "Resurrection," Miss Cora B. Brokaw; "Wanderer," Miss Florence K. Hawkins.

In connection with the evening services, Pastor Finn baptized several candidates. The committee in charge of the exercises comprised Superintendent George E. Hall, Miss Cora Brokaw, Miss Emily C. Runyon, Mrs. W. S. Lowry, Miss Mary E. Clark and Miss Florence G. Hawkins.

First Methodist.

The Easter services at the First M. E. church were largely attended both morning and evening, and at the Sunday-school exercises in the afternoon. The edifice was elaborately decorated with flowers and palms. The feature of the services was the musical programmes by the choir under the direction of J. Edmund Skiff, organist. At the morning services six new members were received and two children were baptized by the pastor, Rev. A. C. McCrea, who also preached an appropriate sermon, morning and evening.

The morning musical programme was as follows:

Anthems, "Christ the Lord," Wilson; "Awake Ye Saints," Schnecker; soprano solo, "I Know that My Redeemer Liveth," Handel, Miss Bertha van Nuise Wirth. The evening programme was as follows:

Anthems, "Awake Up My Glory," Barnby; "Christ the Lord Is Risen," Buck; "How Beautiful Upon the Mountains," Spinney; solo, "Easter Morn," VanLaer; "Christ Has Won the Victory," Hawley; solo, "Christ the Lord," Sullivan, Miss Suzanne Zimmerman.

"Their Easter and Our Easter," a missionary service, was held in Vincent chapel, in the afternoon, consisting of special anthems, recitations, etc. The chapel was decorated with potted plants and palms, and a feature was the distribution of pink carnations to every member present. Miss Evelyn Bergen, superintendent, was in charge of the programme, which was as follows:

Recitations, Caryl Dunavan, Gladys Sherwood, Alice Joy, Cora Bender, Edward Crone, Marion Linn and Robert Beckwith; response, "What the Lilies Tell," Bessie Marchant, Howard Hall, Muriel Courser, John Bolsterle, Ruth Lynn, Stanley Houston; song, class; song, "Praise Him Robin," Edward Crone, Clarence Skiff, Gladys Sherwood, Ruth Lynn, Bessie Marchant, Howard Hile, Alice Joy, Chester Alpaugh, Lillian Apgar.

The beginners' programme was as follows:

Recitations, Loren Pope, Bertha Starbuck, Ella Vail; song, "O, Lovely Little Violet," Janet Marchant, Charlotte Skiff, Frank Rowley, Jr.; recitation, "Robin Redbreast," Carlton Moore, Elizabeth Hicks, Alfred Little, with chorus by choir from the primary department; recitations, Foswell Ewart and Janet Marchant.

Bethel Chapel.

Rev. F. B. Tildoh occupied the pulpit at Bethel chapel both morning and evening and preached Easter sermons. There was no other special observance of the day but in the afternoon the Sunday-school department enjoyed an interesting programme. It was in charge of Superintendent A. W. Duxbury and comprised addresses by W. D. Murray, Leander N. Lovell, recitations by pupils; a solo by Miss Graham, of the Crescent Avenue choir, accompanied by Organist William P. Dunn, and Easter music by the school. Miss Leonard acted as pianist.

First Presbyterian.

No special Easter services were held at the First Presbyterian church Sunday, the programmes being postponed until next Sunday, when Miss Anna Case, the new soprano, will be here to sing with the quartette choir. Yesterday the quartette choir sang anthems appropriate to the day and the pastor, Rev. C. E. Herring, preached Easter sermons. The regular session of the Sunday-school was held in the afternoon.

All Souls', Unitarian.

Rev. A. C. Nickerson, pastor of All Souls' church, preached a sermon yesterday morning appropriate to the day and Mrs. Jay Bender, soprano soloist, sang "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth." The Sunday-school met after the morning service, but no special exercises were held.

Faith Chapel.

Easter was appropriately observed at Faith Chapel Sunday morning and in the evening when the Sunday-school exercises were held. The chapel was decorated with palms, potted plants and flowers. At the morning service a chorus choir sang special music and Mrs. Andrew J. Stiglitz sang a solo as an offertory. The usual Sunday-school session was held in the afternoon and at night the special school service was held.

This programme was given in the evening under the direction of the superintendent, L. W. Randolph:

Organ voluntary, Howard M. Case; Scripture reading, Frank Stewart, assistant superintendent; recitation, "Easter Lilies," Miss Justine Roberts; soprano solo, "Easter Dawn," Miss Louella C. Harris; recitation, "A Silent Messenger," Miss Lillian Byno; carol, "Easter Lilies," school; chorus, "The Easter Lesson," primary department; recitation, "The Goblins Will Get You If You Don't Watch Out," Miss Justine Roberts; soprano solo, Miss Leila Druse; recitation, "Be Glad 'tis Easter Day," Miss May Mecklenger, Miss Edna Stewart, Miss Beatrice Overbaugh; recitations, "Easter Lilies," Miss Mildred Meeker; "The Conquering King," Miss Bessie Carson; song, "Alleluiah," school; address, Rev. J. W. Munson; recitation, "If I Could Be Like Christ," Miss Lucy Hall; recitations, Miss Mary E. Clark and Miss Florence G. Hawkins.

Holy Cross Church.

Holy Cross church was well filled with Easter worshippers at the principal service of the day, at 11 o'clock in the morning. Rev. George A. Waters, rector, took his theme from John 11: 25, dwelling upon the idea of recovery from the cares of life by turning to Christ. He spoke of the change from death to life eternal as not only true in the life of Jesus but in all who turn to Him.

St. Joseph's Church.

Rev. Father Gabriell, a Passimist father, was the celebrant at the high mass, at which a very large congregation was in attendance. Father Miller, the rector, preached on the Resurrection impressively, and referred to the persecution of the church in France at the present time. He predicted the final triumph of the church over the irreligionists of that country. The altar was beautifully decorated with Easter lilies and palms.

Trinity Reformed.

The Easter programme at Trinity Reformed church was conducted on the customary elaborate scale and comprised three services in all, the first being a sunrise gathering beginning at 6 o'clock, in charge of Frederic H. Andrews.

At the customary morning service, Rev. Dr. E. P. Johnson, acting pastor, delivered a strong, impressive Easter sermon from the text Colossians_iii-1: "If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God." The musical programme was in charge of Organist and Choirmaster A. L. Titsworth, and the manner of its rendition entitles him to no small degree of'credit. The excellent quality of the instrumental parts was added to by Mrs. Violet Truell Johnson, violinist.

A beautiful display of lilies and ferns about the pulpit added greatly to the spirit of the occasion.

The Sunday-school was in charge of the Sunday-school and an extremely interesting programme was enjoyed by a large gathering. The features were fine music by instrumentalists, singing by the school, a stirring address by Dr. Johnson and words of encouragement to the scholars by Superintendent F. E. Smith. The singing was led by W. C. Leek and the accompanying musicians were Miss Lillian A. Force, piano; Miss Evelyn Berg and Kenneth Stuart, violins; E. D. Young, cornet, and Elmer Wheeler, flute.

Recitations were rendered by members of the school as follows: "Glad Easter," Theo. Vail; "Faith," Christine Conrad; "The Children Are a Joy," Clara Lee; "Easter Bells," Edna Smith, Margaret Smith, Ella VanArsdale, Nellie McAfee and Marion Woolley; "Grandpa's Answer," Charles Todd; "Easter Message," Margueriete Barkaleev, Marjorie Story, Elsie Bodine, Addie Freeman and Magdeline Layton; "Easter Bonnets," Adelaide Cole; "Easter Bells," Maude McAfee.

The evening's entertainment was brought to a close by the benediction pronounced by the venerable Rev. A. F. Todd, of Dunellen.

Warren Chapel.

The Easter services at Warren chapel, Sunday, were marked by special anthems morning and evening by the chorus choir, and two special sermons by the pastor, Rev. Joseph O. McKelvey. The chapel was prettily decorated for the occasion. In the morning the choir sang, "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth," and in the evening, "He Is Risen," including a solo by Miss Nora B. Schenck. In the evening the selections by the choir were "Easter Echoes," and "Jesus the Lord is Risen." The Sunday-school exercises in the afternoon were largely attended. The school sang Easter carols and there was an interesting talk by Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, editor of The Sabbath Recorder.

Grace M. E.

While Easter was observed at the morning and evening services with special sermons and appropriate carols, the principal celebration of the day at Grace M. E. church was conducted in the afternoon by the Sunday-school. Addresses were made by Dr. Parsons, Raymond Brokaw and Superintendent Conroy; Miss Bertha VanNuis Willis and Miss Zimmerman, of the First M. E. choir, sang solos and a number of Easter verses were recited by the pupils. The collection taken was for the foreign mission fund. Dr. Parsons occupied the pulpit at teh church services. His morning subject was "Now is Christ Risen from the Dead."

Mrs. Thomas McDonald, of the Congregational church, sang a solo at night.

Hope Chapel.

No especial services marked the day at Hope chapel though large congregations were in attendance. Rev. L. R. Howard occupied the pulpit and in the morning the Patterson baptismal font, the gift of Mrs. Robert Patterson, of Port Chester N. Y., in memory of her son, Harvey L. Patterson, was used for the first time. The floral display was elaborate. At the Sunday-school session, the pupils sang Easter carols with Judge Runyon as accompanist and under the leadership of S. B. Howe.

Monroe Avenue.

The morning service at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church was taken up entirely by the exercises of the Sunday-school department in charge of Walter McGee. The children sang carols with Miss Charlotte Aldrich acting as accompanist, and also gave recitations. An address was made by Rev. E. E. Roberson. The evening service was held as usual and an Easter sermon was preached by the pastor. The church was very prettily decorated with palms, plants and cut flowers.

SILVER JUBILEE.

Bishop McFaul Will Attend St. Joseph's Church Celebration.

At the several masses Sunday Father Miller of St. Joseph's church, North Plainfield, announced that final arrangements had been made for the silver jubilee which would occur next Sunday, being the twenty-fifth anniversary of the church's establishment in the borough.

At 10:30 a. m. a solemn high mass will be celebrated, at which the Rt. Rev. Bishop McFaul will preside. It is expected that a large number of priests will assist in the ceremony. Admission to the church will be by ticket which are being distributed to pew holders and others.

Monsignor Brady will be the celebrant at the high mass. Fathes Diedrich, of Bound Brook, will be deacon and Father Devine sub-deacon.

COLLEGE AND SCHOOL.

The sum of $300,000 has been voted by the Philippine administration for the construction of schools in Manila and the provinces.

Milton Academy, of Milton, Mass., one of New England, has sold 1,700 acres of land he owned in Nebraska for $91,000, which he has donated to the Wittenberg college of Springfield, O.

Dr. John F. Goucher, president of the Woman's college, Baltimore, now traveling in the orient, has secured scholarships which, when in operation, will permit four girls from India to be continually at the Woman's college.

Almon G. Merwin, the oldest school-teacher in New York city in point of service, will retire from active work with this year's close of school. He began teaching school when he was sixteen years of age at Delphia, N. Y.

REAL EASTER BRIDE.

Miss Long Married to Richard Willis Higgins Yesterday Afternoon.

Richard Willis Higgins, of 469 West Front street, and Miss Mamie Elizabeth Long, of 72 Somerset street, were married Sunday afternoon at St. Mary's church. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Delahanty, at 4 o'clock, before a gathering of friends and relatives.

Miss Long was attended by Miss Margaret Kane, and the best man was Thomas Higgins, brother of the groom. The bride was dressed in a champagne colored gown of striking design, with a hat to match.

Mr. and Mrs. Higgins will go on a short wedding trip today. They will make their home in this city.

An Awful Shock.

The deputy stage manager at the Theatre Royal, Dublin, at once time was a little nervous and excited, who had a strange dislike of the ladies of the ballet and treated them rather harshly. He wore a wig, but the fact was not generally known. On one occasion, however, an enraged corypheee threw him by the hair, and off came the wig, exposing a shiny expanse of cranium. He at once dashed off to complain to Mrs. Harris, the manager's wife, but the good lady could only gasp in stupefied tones, "Good gracious, Mr. Linders, why, you are bald!" To which Linders instantly replied: "No, madam, no. My hair became loose with horror!"

Funeral of Mrs. Whitenack.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary M. Whitenack was held Sunday afternoon at the residence of her brother-in-law, John Whitenack, of Grandview avenue. It was conducted by Rev. E. P. Johnson, D. D., acting pastor of Trinity Reformed church, of which Mrs. Whitenack was a member for many years, and was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends. The body was afterward placed in the receiving vault at Hillside cemetery. Those who acted as pall bearers were G. Q. Dolliver, H. E. Gayle, Henry Woodland, Alburtus Swalm, T. H. VanZandt and E. F. Sheppard.

A Great Relief.

"Lady," said Meandering Mike, "do you want any wood chopped?"

"No," was the sharp answer.

"Nor chores of any kind done?"

"No."

"In dat case I feels relieved. I kin take a chance on askin' you fur somethin' to eat."—Washington Star.

WEST END STORM SEWER

Measure in Common Council Passed to Second Reading After Some Argument.

MR. GLOAK OBJECTS

He and Mr. Tyler Have Lively Time and Mr. Mellick Tries to Restore Harmony—Sectional Feeling.

Daniel F. Ginna, chairman of the street committee, introduced the ordinance providing for the construction of the Plainfield avenue storm sewer in the Common Council Monday night. P. H. Stewart and J. W. Sandford spoke in favor of the scheme and urged that the Common Council provide some relief from the wretched condition during heavy rains in that section of the city. Letters favoring the sewer were also received from F. R. VanWyck, Senator Ernest R. Ackerman and E. H. Ladd.

Mr. Gloak, who is a member of the street committee, offered decided objections to it's going through until it was first threshed out in committee meeting. He moved that it be referred to the committee for that purpose. Mr. Ginna declared that he had repeatedly tried to get the members of the street committee together, but had failed. Mr. Tyler said that the Plainfield avenue storm sewer was first agitated four years ago, when Mr. Gloak was chairman of the street committee, but before he could speak further, Mr. Gloak replied that he was not chairman of the committee then, and when Mr. Tyler told him he was, he said, "Well, I wasn't the chairman." Mr. Tyler stated when the Richmond street sewer was first introduced he waived all objection on the ground of a "gentleman's agreement" that the Plainfield avenue sewer should receive equal favor in consideration. Subsequently the street sprinkling question was brought up and the question of paying for the work. It was urged that it was something greatly needed and the property members were asked to forego the Plainfield avenue sewer improvement another year, when it was agreed that there would be no trouble in putting it through.

Mr. Gloak was getting restless during Mr. Tyler's explanation and when he concluded was promptly on his feet with a denial of certain statements. He said that it was two years ago and not four that the Richmond street sewer was laid and that the street sprinkling had nothing to do with the Plainfield avenue improvement. What he objected to was the remarks of Mr. Tyler at the committee meeting that "he was going to have the Plainfield avenue sewer that it had to go through." He said that he did not like to be told things in such a way.

At this point Mr. Mellick poured oil on the troubled waters and was the means of ending the argument. He said that it was the first time in all his experience in the council that such a sectional feeling was displayed and he urged that as all the members were present to represent the best interests of the city that it was their duty to give the West End of the city something it needs. He believed it would be a grave error to turn down the improvement, all were laboring for one common end, the city's good, and he could see no reason why the improvement should not be granted. It would give great convenience to the residents and should not be delayed.

As a last retort, Mr. Gloak stated that there was no recommendation from the committee and he didn't like the way the matter had been handled.

President Daniel then put Mr. Gloak's motion to refer the ordinance back to the committee, and it was lost by a vote of eight to two, Councilmen Tyler, Frank Randolph, Ginna, Mellick, Hibbard, Charles Randolph, Montgomery and Daniel voting against and Councilmen Gloak and Buxton for the motion.

Mr. Ginna's motion to adopt the ordinance on second reading prevailed, all the members voting in favor of it. It was ordered advertised and will come up for final adoption at the May meeting.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE.

Abrush dipped in salt water should be used in cleaning bamboo furniture.

Good macaroni is of a yellowish tint, does not break readily in cooking and swells to two or three times its bulk.

A simple and very efficient disinfectant to pour down a sink is a small quantity of charcoal mixed with water.

Warm bread and cake should be cut with a knife and blade of which has been heated by standing it in boiling water.

To remove fruit stains from the hands hold the hands in the fumes of a sulphur match or over burning sulphur.

When a house is being painted, pails of water should be placed in the rooms. A handful of hay plunged into the water helps to get rid of the smell.

Wring chamois out of soapy water without rinsing. When it dries it is soft and serviceable, instead of stiff.

CITY FATHERS' ROUTINE

Public Affairs Committee will Investigate Fourth Street Trolley Service.

RECEIVE BLDG. PERMITS

More Lights in Various Parts of the City—The Board of Trade On Its Job.

Following a ten minutes' recess which as usual lasted over an hour, the Common Council at its adjourned meeting, last night, transacted a great amount of business. In the routine a petition was received from the Morris Brothers' Auto Company, of East Fourth street, asking for permission to erect a one-story extension, 37x45, concrete, in the rear of the auto shops, and U. B. Crane asked for similar permission to erect a one-story building back of his store at 219 West Front street. Upon the motion of Mr. Sibbard, chairman of the fire and building committee, these petitions were referred back to the committee with power to grant them if the plans meet with its approval.

F. W. Lloyd, of the West End, reminded the members of a complaint made by him in December last against the alleged wretched trolley service on Fourth street and urged that something be done to remedy it. He said that the service is worse than ever, and the cars which are wrecks are run on any old schedule. The matter was referred to the public affairs committee.

L. E. Hart asked for permission to move the dwelling at West Front street and Elmwood place to Elmwood place, and the matter was referred to the fire and building committee.

In the matter of Elston M. French and the State Board of Taxation, concerning 1906 taxes, the matter was referred to the corporation counsel. A communication was received from E. F. Feickert, secretary of the Board of Trade, asking that North avenue be included among the streets to be paved with vitrified brick. This was referred to the street committee and was considered later. The Board of School Estimate certified to the Common Council the amount of money needed for the erection of the proposed new school on Darlow avenue, which is $90,000.

Tax Collector J. W. Murray, Jr., was authorized to receive from the Public Service Corporation $409.57, that being its share of the expense of macadamizing Monroe avenue last year.

Mr. Tolles, chairman of the finance committee, offered resolutions fixing $14,000 as the amount needed for street lighting during the coming year, and $2 as the dog tax, and these amounts were certified to the Board of Assessors as required by law.

Mr. Montgomery recommended the granting of petitions for the new electric lights as follows: One on Netherwood avenue, between East Front and East Second street; one on East Front street, between Netherwood and Leland avenues; Norwood avenue, near the bridge, on Sycamore street, between Sixth and Sixth streets; one on Berkley avenue, between Dunmark and Ravine roads; one on Prescott place, between Third and Fourth streets; one on West Front street, 300 feet from Jefferson avenue; one on Jefferson avenue, 200 feet north of West Front street, and one on Rock avenue at the New Jersey Central crossing. There was an unanimous vote on these lights with the exception of the ones on Sycamore street, Prescott place, Jefferson avenue and West Front street and Rock avenue, against which Mr. Tyler voted and Mr. Tolles also voted against the one at Rock avenue, feeling that at the rate they were being granted the appropriation would soon be expended.

Charged With Bike Theft.

Albert Conway, a machinist employed at the Rushmore Dynamo Works, was arraigned before Judge Runyon this morning on a charge of stealing a bicycle preferred by Raphael Kase, a fellow workingman. Kase said he recognized the rims belonging to his bicycle on a wheel ridden by Conway. The latter denied the charge, and told a straightforward story. Judge Runyon laid the case over until tomorrow morning for disposition, releasing Conway under $50 bail, S. N. Rushmore, the defendant's employer, went on his bond.

Drunk Fined.

John Remmples, charged with drunkenness, was arraigned in the City Court this morning. He was fined $5.

Lewis E. Waring, of West Seventh street, is one of the judges at the annual horse show of the Brooklyn Riding and Driving Club, being held this week.

GANG RUNS OFF WITH ITALIANS' STREET PIANO

SCOTCH PLAINS HOODLUMS AT IT AGAIN—ONE CAUGHT AND FINED.

Charles Machin, of Scotch Plains, was arraigned before Recorder Clark at the township jail yesterday, charged with being disorderly by stealing a street piano. Machin was one of a gang who took the piano, which had been left for safe-keeping by two Italians, from the barn of Deegan's Hotel, Monday night. They ran off with the instrument for a lark.

Marshal Logan, of Fanwood, ran into the gang, and they fled, leaving the piano behind. Logan caught Machin, who was slow in getting started. He made the prisoner haul the piano back to the barn and then locked him up.

Machin was fined $10.75. The Italians got their piano back.

HITCH OVER CONTRACT FOR CRUSHED STONE

COMMON COUNCIL DECIDES TO RE-ADVERTISE FOR BIDS.

For the reason that the bids for furnishing crushed stone, crosswalks and culverts for the remainder of the year were received by less than a quorum of the street committee, Mr. Ginna, the chairman, offered a resolution at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, last night, that all bids be rejected. He then offered another resolution authorizing the committee to re-advertise for bids, the same to be received and opened at the Common Council rooms on Thursday night, May 2.

Mr. Tolles voted against the resolutions on the ground that the bids were received and the contract for crushed stone awarded to Smalley Brothers. Mr. Montgomery also voted against the resolution to re-advertise for bids, because he thought the committee should first consider the matter.

Mr. Tolles wanted to know what the city would do in the meantime for stone, and this brought forth a statement from Mr. Ginna, who said that Corporation Counsel Marsh advised that the city could do but one thing, and that is re-advertise for bids and he thought it to be the quickest way of settling the matter.

The trouble arose over the fact that in the bids for crushed stone, the Watchung Stone Company was six cents lower than Smalley Brothers; but it is claimed that it can not deliver stone from its own quarries at once. Inasmuch as the city reserves the right to reject any or all bids, the committee, it is understood, decided to give the contract to Smalley Brothers, believing that the Watchung Stone Company was not in a position to deliver stone. It was afterward claimed by Warren B. Travell, of the Watchung company, that the city could have stone any time it desired. Later the question arose as to there being less than a quorum at the committee meeting and to obviate any further trouble it was thought best to secure new bids.

Fan Writer to Talk.

Charles Battell Loomis, the author and humorous, will appear before the Young People's Association of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church on Tuesday night, April 23, at which time he will give selections from his latest book, "A Bath in an English Tub." In the current number of the Cosmopolitan Mr. Loomis has a story, entitled the "Offenses of Billy," the scenes and incidents of which are taken from Plainfield life.

Increased Pastor's Salary.

One thing that entered into the decision of Rev. E. E. Roberson to return to the Monroe Avenue M. E. church for another year, with the approval of the Bishop, was that his congregation unanimously voted to increase his salary from $1,000 to $1,500, and under these conditions he said that he would prefer to remain in Plainfield another year at a salary of $1,500 than go to the Orange M. E. church at $2,000.

Dan S. Roberts' Funeral.

The funeral of former councilman Dan S. Roberts, who died at his home on Prospect place, yesterday morning, will be held at the late residence Friday afternoon at 2:30. Rev. Dr. E. M. Rodman will officiate. The body will afterward be placed in the receiving vault at Hillside cemetery.

Perkins' Labor Bill Passes.

The bill increasing the salaries of State labor inspectors from $1,000 to $1,500 and the assistant commissioner from $1,500 to $1,800, passed both the House and the Senate yesterday. Assemblyman Randolph Perkins, of Union, sponsored the measure in the lower branch.

MORE PAY FOR EMPLOYES

Mayor Argues Increased Cost of Living Demands Better Wages.

FAVORABLY RECEIVED

Recommendation Referred to Committees and Will Be Brought Up For Action at Next Council Meeting.

Believing that the city is not paying its policemen and firemen sufficient salary in view of the present high cost of living, Mayor C. J. Fisk recommended a new scale of wages for these employes at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, last night. The scale suggested and the Mayor is slightly in excess of the scale adopted earlier in the year, and it is believed it will give satisfaction among the firemen and policemen. The Mayor argued long and convincingly that living conditions had changed materially and it was due the employes to give them more pay.

The scale as suggested for the police is as follows: Captain, $1,250; detective sergeant and sergeant, $1,080 each; roundsmen, $1,020 each; patrolmen, $88.33 a month and promotions $60 a month, the men in the last named class to be removed at the pleasure of the Police Board of Common Council.

This schedule was recommended for the firemen: Chief, $1,250; first assistant, $1,200; captains, $1,080 each; five-year men, $1,000; 2-5-year men, $900; probationers, $60 a month, they to be removed at the pleasure of the Fire Board and Common Council. The chief also receives $500 as building inspector.

Upon the motion of Mr. Mellick the matter was referred to the fire and building and police committees, each member to receive a copy of the new scale recommended by the Mayor. It is understood that the majority of Councilmen favor the increase and that the matter will be acted upon at the next meeting.

HUFF WHILE IN HUFF HELD UP TROLLEY CAR

HE WAS AFTER HIS RIGHTS BUT FOUND A CELL INSTEAD.

Chief Weiss, of the borough police force, was standing in front of police headquarters last night, when his attention was attracted by the ceaseless ringing of a street car bell. When the trolley came opposite the station the motorman called out that a man in a runabout just ahead had kept in front of him all the way from Johnson's drive and had refused to turn out. The chief recognized the automobile driver as F. J. Huff and told him to let the car go by but received the reply that he wouldn't.

"This is a public street," said Huff, "and I've got just as much right on it as the trolley company has."

The head cop immediately took charge of things by way of answering and led the horse from the rails. Huff protested that his rights as a citizen were being interfered with and when Weiss told him to keep quiet he dared the officer to arrest him. The dare was accepted and Huff spent the night in a cell.

When arraigned before Recorder Dolliver this morning he was charged with drunkenness and disorderly conduct but denied the former. When Chief Weiss asked for an adjournment to get witnesses to prove it, Huff admitted both and was fined $3.

30 YEARS CHURCH CLERK.

MR. LEONARD RE-ELECTED.

First Baptist Congregation Elects Officers at Annual Meeting.

J. Herbert Case, T. S. Armstrong and Samuel St. John McCutchen were re-elected trustees for a term of three years, and Oliver B. Leonard was elected church clerk at the annual parish meeting of the First Baptist church, last night. Mr. Leonard has served as clerk continuously since 1876.

In the presentation of the annual reports it was shown that the receipts for the year from pew rents, weekly offerings and basket collections amounted to $9,000 and this sum has been disbursed for various objects and current expenses.

It was reported by Mr. Leonard that progress is being made in the compilation of the annual church book which is to contain the list of members, officers, various societies and financial reports for the past year.

Mrs. H. E. Gayle, of Vine street, is convalescing from a severe attack of tonsilitis.

CITY BUDGET ANNOUNCED

Exclusive of School, Library Fire, Police Poor, County and State $61,080.

$35,000 FOR THE STREETS

$29,000 for Fire, $26,0000 for Police, $14,000 for Lighting, $7,500 for Library, $6,700 for Poor and $700 for Garbage.

The annual tax budget for the coming eyar was introduced in an ordinance by Chairman Tolles, of the finance committee, at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, last night, adopted on first and second readings and ordered advertised. This was not done, however, until the Council, together with Mayor C. J. Fisk and City Treasurer W. F. Arnold held an executive session for one hour. In round figures the increase in this year's budget over last is about $10,000.

The amount specified for general purposes, exclusive of school, library, poor, fire, police and State and county taxes, is $61,080, and included in this amount is $35,000 for street improvements; $14,000 for street lighting; $4,000 for the principal on sewer bonds, $9,000 for the interest on sewer obligations; $6,700 for the poor, including $1,000 for the care of the indigent poor at the hospital; $7,500 for the Public Library and Reading Room; $29,000 for the fire department; $6,440 for the interest on school bonds, and $700 for the principal on the garbage disposal plant. The amount given to the police department is $26,000 and the dog tax is fixed at $2.

$1,000 SUBSCRIBED FOR Y. W. C. A.'S HOME

FORMER MAYOR JENKINS' HOME TO BE ACQUIRED BY INSTITUTION.

Through the generosity of friends of the movement, the provisional committee of the Young Women's Christian Association, which has been hustling during the past few weeks, announced that the first $1,000 has been secured toward the purchase of a home for the association. The question of securing a home has been the most difficult, but at a meeting of the committee, together with the finance committee and several prominent women, several properties were considered. It was finally decided to advise the purchase of Mrs. O. L. Jenkins' house on East Front street.

It is the wish of those interested not to assume this responsibility until the required $7,000 is pledged and a special account has been opened in the bank so that any contribution or pledge, no matter how big or small, may be sent to Mrs. F. G. Mead on East Front street. It is believed that the entire amount will be raised within a short time. The organization meeting will be held at the Y. M. C. A. on Thursday night, April 18.

The property selected on East Front street is particularly adapted to the needs of the association and after a few changes are made, and the proposition has been received enthusiastically. It is possible that after the organization is completed Miss Tappen, of Utica, N. Y., will be called as the permanent secretary. She is now in town and will remain here for the present, acquainting herself with the work.

COUNTRY CLUB CHANGE.

J. W. Baker a Trustee and Head of a Committee.

At a meeting of the trustees of the Plainfield Country Club yesterday, J. Whitney Baker was elected a trustee to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of T. R. Van Boskerck. Mr. Baker also succeeds Mr. Van Boskerck as chairman of the golf committee. Under the rules, the chairman of a committee has the appointment of his own committee so that when a chairman resigns, his committee ceases to exist.

Mr. Baker has chosen his own committeemen, making the following appointments: Robert H. Cox, R. S. Rowland, J. E. Erickson, E. B. Shoemaker. He will probably add another man to the committee later on. The new committee has already held *one session, and it busy on the sched*ule for the year, which will be out about April 20.

Repeats Peru Lecture.

Mrs. Frank P. Adams repeated her lecture on Peru, under the auspices of the Men's Club of the First Presbyterian church last night. The church was three-quarters filled, in spite of the weather. Mrs. Adams scored as great a success as she did at the Y. M. C. A.

CONTRACTORS WIN POINT

Court Orders Property Owner to Pay Over Money to Sub-Contractors

FUND IN CHANCERY

Injunction Obtained By Alonzo Aldrich Against Boice, Runyon & Co. Dismissed By Vice Chancellor.

The decision of Vice Chancellor Bergen at Trenton, yesterday, in the suit of Boice, Runyon & Co. against Alonzo Aldrich, dismissing the injunction obtained by Mr. Aldrich in which he sought to withhold Boice, Runyon & Co., as well as other claimants, from getting money alleged to be due them, is said to be of great importance to contractors in general. As a result of the decision the claimants can now obtain their money and Mr. Aldrich is obliged to pay the costs.

Mr. Aldrich contracted with William H. Brokaw to build a house for him at Grant avenue and West Fourth street, and when it was completed, several sub-contractors had claims against Mr. Brokaw. They served notice on Mr. Aldrich to hold back money due on the contract. This he did, the amount being $800.

Three months passed and Aldrich did not pay the money over and in the meantime he rented the house. On January 1 suit was started by Reed & Coddington for Boice, Runyon & Co., in the district court to recover $200. In that suit Boice, Runyon & Co. obtained judgment. Then Mr. Aldrich, claiming that there was a dispute among the contestants and that he did not know to whom he should pay the money, turned the amount over to the Court of Chancery and took out an injunction preventing Boice, Runyon & Co. from getting its money. An answer was filed and yesterday a hearing was granted by Vice Chancellor Bergen with the result that the injunction was dismissed. It was declared that Mr. Aldrich had no occasion to pay the money to the Court of Chancery, but should have given it to the sub-contractors.

The other parties interested in the action and who benefit by the decision of the court are the A. D. Lozeaux Lumber Company, represented by J. P. Runyon, Esq., and Arthur E. Giles, represented by Walter L. Hetfield, Jr. The sub-contractors will now be able to get their money.

COLBY KNOCKED OUT IN THE FIRST ROUND?

ACKERMAN'S BLOW KILLS BOXING BILL ESSEX MAN FOUGHT FOR.

Assemblyman Hahn's bill, No. 98, to permit physical culture schools to hold boxing exhibitions received its death blow in the State Senate at Trenton yesterday afternoon.

Senator Colby advocated the bill and explained its desirability.

"It is a good bill and ought to pass," said Mr. Colby.

"I vote no," promptly said Senator Ackerman, of Union county, when the roll call began.

"Eight-ounce gloves can hurt nobody," said Mr. Colby.

"I could knock a man down and kill him with eight-ounce gloves," retorted Senator Frelinghuysen. "I shrink from brutality, and I vote no."

Eight Senators voted for the bill and five against.

Assemblyman Hahn later surveyed the field of carnage to see if there was any chance of obtaining the three additional votes needed for passage. An attempt may be made to secure a reconsideration, but it is doubtful if the necessary eleven votes can be obtained.

LANDLORD DAY.

Tenant Cares Take Up All the Session of District Court.

Landlord and tenant cases took up the session of the District Court yesterday. Five of them were decided.

A non-suit was granted in the case of Abrams and Kunzman against P. Y. Young. The case of Nathan Myers against James McAvoy was discontinued. Frederica Houston won her case against William Hickings. Mrs. Houston lost a suit for rent against James Crane; her case was thrown out. May Morton Pope won her suit for the possession of 406 Grant avenue from W. Edmund Williams.

$68,000 BOND ISSUE TO BE MADE BY CITY

TO MEET EXPENSES OF SEWER SYSTEM WORK—IN $1,000 DENOMINATIONS.

For the purpose of covering the cost of all the sewer improvement work done last year, Mr. Tolles, chairman of the finance committee, introduced an ordinance at last night's meeting providing for the issuance of $68,000 worth of sewer bonds, the same to run from May 1, 1907, to May 1, 1941, and bear interest of 4½ per cent. The matter was first introduced through a resolution and this was followed by the ordinance which was adopted on first and second readings and ordered advertised.

Another resolution offered by Mr. Mellick and adopted, authorized the city treasurer to have the sixty-eight bonds of $1,000 denomination each, engraved. The expense is to be borne by the whole city, it being for work for which no assessments for benefits can be laid.

FLIM-FLAMMER GETS TWO MONTHS IN JAIL

PLAINFIELDER RECEIVES SIMILIAR SENTENCE FOR LARCENY OF $24.

George Davis, the New York young man who on March 13 flim-flammed a clerk at Voehl's bakery by an old "short change" game, was sent to jail for two months by Judge Atwater in the Union county court this morning. He entered a plea of non vult and the sentence was evidently lessened because of his saving the expense of a trial. Davis was caught by George Voehl in Timbo's restaurant, to which place he had gone after leaving the bakery and where he was trying to work the same game.

At the same session of court, Ernest L. Treat, colored, of Plainfield, charged with the theft of a bicycle, entered a plea of not guilty through his counsel, William G. DeMeza. He filed a waive of indictment in trial by jury and will be tried before Judge Atwater next Thursday.

James Davis, colored, of this city, who was indicted for the larceny of $24 from a trunk in a boarding house, pleaded guilty and sent to jail for two months.

H. L. Freeman, of Newark, who was indicted for forging the name of LeRoy Gibby to two checks aggregating $18, entered a plea of guilty and will be sentenced next Wednesday. Freeman has already served two terms for similar offenses, one of seven years in Joliet and another of two years in a Western penitentiary.

MOXON MAY WEAR HIS CAP.

Resolution Aimed at Assemblyman's Headgear is Voted Down.

There was one resolution that did not get the support of the members of the House at Trenton yesterday.

It was a resolution to the effect that all members of the House be compelled to remove any headgear they might design to wear.

The tall and lanky form of Assemblyman John E. Moxon of Union, was floating around the Assembly chamber conspicuously. He wore a skull cap. The resolution was aimed at him in a joke.

His Republican friends cried "nay" on the vote so loudly that the Democractic side, from which the resolution emanated, could not be heard.

"Mr. Moxon will wear his cap," said Assemblyman Thomas C. Elvins, who was temporarily in the Speaker's chair.

MRS. TOVELL HOST.

Reception and Musical Given By Her Last Night.

Mrs. Robert Tovell, of West Third street, gave a reception and musical at her home, last night, there being a programme of vocal and instrumental selections, including songs by a quartette consisting of John Chamberlain, Robert Tovell, Harry DeHart and Richard Snyder; vocal solos by Harold Willard; piano solos by Edwin Tovell and soprano solos by Miss Isabelle Snyder. After the programme refreshments were served.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Harry DeHart, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Snyder, Mr. and Mrs. John Chamberlain, Mr. and Mrs. Charles August, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Willard, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Sharp and Mrs. Frank Knecht, the last named of Norfolk, Va.

Arbor Day has been appointed by Governor Stokes to fall this year on Friday, April 12. The city High School is preparing to observe the occasion by an interesting programme, to be given on Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

PERMANENT PAVE SURE

Common Council Will Adopt Ordinance After Public Hearing on May 6.

INCLUDES NORTH AVE.

Approximate Cost To Be $45,000—Messrs. Tyler and Hibbard Raise Objections.

The anticipated ordinance providing for permanent pavements in the business part of the city was introduced by Chairman Ginna, of the street committee, at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council last night. The ordinance, which was exclusively described in the Daily Press some weeks ago, calls for the use of vitrified brick. It was first read for the information of the Common Council, and when it was discovered that the streets named did not include North avenue, it was amended to provide for that thoroughfare after much discussion.

The ordinance specifies that the work shall be completed by November 30 and that the pavement be the equal of that now in use on Watchung avenue, between North avenue and Second street. The streets to be paved are the following:

East and West Front street, between Watchung and Madison avenues; Somerset street from front to the brook; Watchung avenue, from East Front to East Fourth streets, except between North avenue and Second street; Park avenue, between Front and Fourth streets; North avenue, between Park and Watchung avenues; East Fourth street and Sycamore streets; Arlington avenue and Seventh street; Arlington avenue and Eighth street. In the case of the last three mentioned streets they are to be paved at the intersecting points only.

The cost of the work will be $45,000 and the sum will be raised through the issue of street improvement bonds, which are run a period of nineteen years, and bear interest at 4½ per cent. Upon the completion of the work application is to be made to the Court of Common Pleas for the appointment of commissioners who shall assess the property-owners directly interested for benefits, and all cost in excess of benefits is to be paid by the city.

Mr. Gloak contended that North avenue should be included in the streets to be paved and it was his suggestion that led to a discussion of the matter. Mr. Ginna claimed that North avenue is and has been in first-class condition and he thought the expense unnecessary at present. Mr. Buxton and Councilman Frank Randolph favored the improvement of the avenue, while Mr. Hibbard opposed the amendment offered by Mr. Gloak to incorporate the street in the list. He wanted to know whether the railroad company would share in the expense.

Mr. Tyler said that while North avenue gets lots of traffic, it is not of the heavy kind and that in introducing permanent pavement in the city the committee is even now divided in its opinion as to whether brick is the best thing to use. He thought that later some material that is better might be found. The proposed improvement with brick he considered an experiment at the most and he believed that North avenue should be eliminated. President Daniel replied that he thought not, as the railroad would derive little benefit. He believed that the greatest benefit would be to the city.

Mr. Ginna finally suggested a separate ordinance to provide for North avenue, inasmuch as the cost for the streets to be improved had been determined and it might delay the passage of the ordinance. He changed his mind when Mr. Montgomery said that Street Commissioner Mr. Hibbard could at once the cost of paving North avenue and it could be inserted in the ordinance. At the request of Mr. Ginna, Mr. Gavett said the cost would be $7,000 and the figures in the ordinance were changed from $38,600 to $45,000. Mr. Hibbard voted against the amendment. After the ordinance is adopted on final reading arrangements will be made to advertise for bids for the improvement. A public hearing on the ordinance is set for Monday night, May 6.

Beggar Jailed for 30 Days.

John Jensen, a one-eyed 65-year-old Swede, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Chief of Police Kiely for begging. He had a printed appeal that said he couldn't see very well out of his good eye, and took to begging only under the spur of stern necessity. He lost a good home in Sweden, the appeal continued, but the great kindness of the American people made him happy as if he still had it. Judge Runyon gave him another indication of the public's readiness to help, by sending him to Elizabeth for a thirty days' stay at the taxpayers' expense.

They contemplate putting $100,000 into the venture.

As yet they have only spent a few hundred. As the place does not now in any way resemble a temple, Mrs. Kuchcinski is content to call the place the Hillside Health Dens.

Mrs. Kuchcinski is peculiar. She does not believe any more in materia medica. She believes in color and goats. The former is for the cure of all diseases. The latter aid in proper living.

JAP BOY WILL TEST SUIT.

Keikichi Aoki Selected as Subject in Frisco School Dispute.

San Francisco.—In these days of internal and international complications over the Japanese educational problem in California, the most prominent figure is Keikichi Aoki, the ten-year-old son of Michisuye Aoki, who has been selected by Japan and the United States to be the subject of the test case in the courts.

The boy's father refused to send him to the oriental school when the segregation rule of the board of education went into effect. He was selected as an example by Consul Oyen and the United States district attorney, who will present the case to the court for the United States.

importance must revolve around young Aoki until the highest court has passed on it. By that time the little Japanese boy will have helped make several chapters in modern history.

The board of education has no objection to the selection of Aoki as the subject for the court action, and from now on the case will make rapid progress in court unless some unforeseen complications arise.

Valuable Candle Nut.

The candle nut is a native of the Pacific islands, and the oil is derived from the fact that the kernels are so full of oil that, when dried, they can be stuck on reeds and used as candles. The people of Hawaii, after having roasted these nuts and removed the shells, reduce the kernels to a paste, which, when flavored with pepper and salt, is said to be a most appetizing dish. The bark of the nut and the gum which exudes from the tree have medicinal values, while the burned shell is used to make an indelible ink, with which tattooing is done.

NOT NECESSARY.

By all means let us cling to the old spelling. If the present style was good enough for our parents why not good enough for us?

The "ough," for instance. Instead of dropping the g why not, if it is a good thing, use it more freely?

Why not raise your ghat to a geat if she is gfat?

And k—what harm in a little more of a sensible custom? If you have the knowledge why make a knolse. Knobody is knaughty. A knife is knever knice unless knecessary. And why should not a knave knail knapkins to knarcotics? And are knapkins better than gnapkins?

Kno; decidedly knot!—Life.

April 14: "God Revealed in Christ." "The Word became flesh and dwelt among us."

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

Passages for reference—John x, 14; II Tim. i, 12; 1 John i, 1-3.

A vast deal of thought and much writing have been given to this text and these passages from various points of view. There is a difference of opinion as to some things that they may mean. But there are other truths which nearly all can agree upon as being properly within the meaning of those who wrote these passages.

As clearly as words can, it does such a thought John seems to be saying that the Divine One, who was the Creator of all things, had finally taken upon him—if human form and had lived among men and in so living among them had shown a grace and truth such as could be shown by no one except Him who is so related in nature to God the Father as to be properly called "the only begotten from the Father."

It is a fascinating inquiry which almost always arises here. How could God become man?" It is the doctrine of the incarnation. The answers to the problem have been many and varied. No one has solved it clearly and completely. How can any one be fully human expect to understand the way in which God lives and to set forth fully the mode of His existence either as God alone or as God-man in union?

But the most important matter for us is not to know how the divine one could be emptied in any sense or degree of His glory and become subject to human limitations of weakness, hunger, pain and death. That which is of great value for us to know is what He showed us of human life which God would have us live. Did He say anything of the Father's will regarding us? What are the possibilities open to us in goodness and in reaching a purer life? Did He come to know God better, and will He help us to more clearly our duties and privileges in spiritual things? We are needy. There are many things we crave. We are ignorant. There are many things we desire to know. We are weak. There is much which we would help and for which we have not strength. We have thoughts of evil and are not free from evil desires, tempers and actions. We long to be better, to live a life which is high above these things. God Christ say in the words of John that He has overcome these things. God Christ not only tells us of these things, but He did live a life free from these imperfections and adopt the sins which hold us fast in their grip! Those are the items of greatest interest to us to have answered. And it is in just these things that we see the glory of the Father. Here also the grace and truth we have been seeking and have never found in any other.

Read closely the story of His days on earth. Read with the heart as well as mind and you will find the light, truth and life, and the grace will shine through, and the truth will come into your soul, and you will soon find the way to the Father through Jesus Christ. The evidence of His divinity will be right there in the living Son of Him giving you the power of a new life, the power to look up to God in love and without dread and feel all through your nature the great soul filling throb of affectionate confidence which finds expression in the cry, "My Father." To them that receive Him gives He power to become the sons of God. This is the sure and abiding proof of His divinity. When you have felt that power working within you and transforming you from a sinful nature to Israel, "prince of God." It was on his return to Canaan. He was about to meet Esau. He sent the people across the stream of water, and he remained, all night alone. His persistency is here illustrated and his prevailing power in prayer. But that night God gave Jacob a new heart. He was born again, converted. God gave him a new disposition. Henceforward he lived a clean, godlike life, a fit representative of one through whom the Saviour was to come. With God all things are possible. He can still change the hardest heart and make the uttermost" all who come to Him.

3. Jacob's life teaches us a lesson on God's providential care over His people. While on his way to his uncle's Jacob had his first experience with God promised to go with him and to bring him safely back. He kept His word to the letter. He had a mission for this wayward son of Isaac. In the great trials of his life God kept him. He despaired when Joseph was sold into Egypt, but lived not only to see the face of Joseph, but his sons Ephraim and Manasseh, and died blessing them. His body was returned to the land of promise and buried there, and Joseph, his best beloved son, took up the chief work of "the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob." God is the same unchangeable God. He still takes special care of His own. Fear not, but keep up heart. "Commit thy way unto the Lord and trust also in Him, and He will bring it to pass."

A Great Little Society.

Field Secretary Crane, in the Pine Tree Endeavorer, tells about a little Christian Endeavor society on Beach Hill, Me., which has only four active and nine associate members. They meet regularly and have a president, vice president, secretary and treasurer, a prayer meeting and a lookout committee, all from their four active members. Very truly does Mr. Crane add: "Christian Endeavor societies should be weighed rather than counted. A society of ten members may weigh more in God's scales than a society numbering a hundred."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning April 14.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Lessons from the patriarchs. III. Jacob.—Gen. xxviii, 1-15.

Jacob was the younger of the twin sons of Isaac and Rebekah, the older being Esau. Though the twin sons of the same parents, Jacob and Esau were very different in appearance, in their methods of living, in their characters and their ambitions and aspirations. Jacob was born peculiarly at the well of Lahai-roi about 1837 B. C. He bought the birthright from Esau and afterward received the blessing from his father Isaac which should have been Esau's by practicing a well known deceit upon his father, who was practically blind from old age. God severely punished him for his deceit, for He had promised him the special blessing and its superior advantages and would have fulfilled His promise had Jacob but waited. Because of this treachery he was compelled to flee from Canaan, as the wrath of Esau was great against him. He was now seventy-eight years old when he went to his Uncle Laban's, in Padan-Aram, in Mesopotamia. Here he lived for twenty one years and then returned to Canaan with Leah and Rachel, his wives, eleven sons and a large property. Benjamin, his youngest son, was born between Bethel and Bethlehem. Rachel, his mother, died at his birth and was buried at Bethlehem. Jacob and Esau were reconciled upon Jacob's return to Canaan, but parted and never met again except when they buried Isaac, their father. Joseph was later sold into Egypt. When Jacob was 130 years of age, he also went thither and spent the last seventeen years of his life there, dying at the age of 147. His body was embalmed and afterward was brought back to Canaan and buried in the cave of Machpelah, where Abraham, Rebekah and Leah had already been buried. In all his wanderings and misfortunes God had been with him and cared for him, and his life is unusually filled with lessons of the greatest importance.

1. Jacob's life teaches that God cannot be deceived with impunity. Jacob means "supplanter," and his early life proved the applicability of his name to his character. He supplanted Esau, deceived his aged father and later deceived his uncle Laban. In his planning and scheming for the birthright he even tried to supplant God's methods of working. God had promised him the birthright, but Jacob could not wait, and with the aid of Rebekah, his mother, he took the matter into his own hands. He received the blessing due to Esau but not because of his deceit, but in spite of it. And then he paid for his folly. The mutual love of Rebekah and Jacob was great. He was compelled to flee from Esau's wrath, but his mother and he thought it would be but a short separation, yet God kept him twenty-one years in banishment. And Laban deceived him in giving him Leah instead of Rachel, whom he thought he was marrying. No man can successfully deceive God. No man can successfully force the hand of God. "Be not deceived. God is not mocked." "Wait on the Lord, and He will bring it to pass."

2. Jacob's life teaches the power of God to regenerate and save. Up to a certain time in Jacob's life he was about as great a rascal as a man could be. His birth was "low down" and "desperately wicked." But in a night God changed him from Jacob, "supplanter," to Israel, "prince of God." It was on his return to Canaan. He was about to meet Esau. He sent the people across the stream of water, and he remained, all night alone. His persistency is here illustrated and his prevailing power in prayer. But that night God gave Jacob a new heart. He was born again, converted. God gave him a new disposition. Henceforward he lived a clean, godlike life, a fit representative of one through whom the Saviour was to come. With God all things are possible. He can still change the hardest heart and make the uttermost" all who come to Him.

Life.

What is your earthly life?
A transient vapor, rising from the sea.
What is your life in God?
Nowhere and lasting as eternity.

This life all may possess;
As a free gift to all it is designed
For "whosoever will"
Of every race and tribe and clime and people.

Proceedings of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union.

OFFICIAL.

Regular meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union, N. J., held on Thursday, March 7, 1907, at 2:30 p. m.

Owing to the absence of the Clerk Mr. N. R. Leavitt was designated and appointed as Clerk pro tem.

Roll call showed the following members present:

Director King and Freeholders Cady, Cladek, Darby, Doane, Fay, Griffith, Jones, Kruse, Maurer, Meisel, Perry, Pierson, Robinson, Smith, Swain, Wilbur and Woodruff—19.

Absent—Freeholder Adams—1.

On motion, the reading of minutes of previous meeting was laid over.

COMMUNICATIONS.

To the Board of Freeholders, Union and Somerset counties:

Gentlemen—Herewith I hand you statement of the net cost of building West End Avenue bridge, to the prosecution of which work I gave time and attention, without compensation, nearly all of last summer and fall.

You will note that with the one hundred dollars, withheld at the time you accepted the bridge from the estate of William Farrier and the bondsman included, the amount of profit would be less than thirteen dollars, while on the other hand, if you retain this money as agreed same, William Farrier estate will be a loser to the extent of eighty-seven dollars.

In my opinion, and considering the circumstances under which this work was undertaken and carried to conclusion, I feel that the settled in permanent retention of the sum withheld at last payment should not be required and I trust your respective boards will see your way clear to pay this amount to the estate of William Farrier and provide that any additional work desired on this bridge be done at the expense of the two counties interested.

The estate of William Farrier, consisting of his widow, Mrs. Farrier, in all cases, Mrs. Farrier is entitled to sum entailed, and I trust your boards will accord to us the same treatment in this matter as you would like to receive under similar circumstances.

Very truly yours,
Charles E. Kelly, Bondsman,
Estate of William Farrier.

County Engineer Hubbard briefly explained the circumstances attendant upon the building of said bridge and the loss to the contractor, Farrier; loss of money to the estate by reason of the death of Mr. Farrier; the acceptance of the bridge and recital of $50, to cover the making good of certain deficiencies and discrepencies in the construction of said bridge.

After discussion it was ordered that the matter be referred to the Committee on Plainfield Bridge, with power. The Director appointed Freeholder Gruener and Doane to fill the vacancies on the above-mentioned bridge committee.

NEW BUSINESS.

By Freeholder Gruener:

Resolved, That the Director appoint a committee of three to investigate the damage done to the bridge over the Rahway river on the Rahway river on Woodbridge road above the Six Roads, in Rahway, by the New York and New Jersey Telephone Co., and report the condition of said bridge and their recommendations to this Board.

Freeholder Gruener briefly explained that the bridge had been damaged as to mason work and iron rods by reason of the conduits laid across said bridge by the said Telephone Company.

The resolution was then adopted without dissent.

The Director appointed as the said committee, Freeholders Gruener, Cladek and Perry.

By Freeholder Pierson:

Resolved, That the Director appoint a committee of five, to meet with the officers of the New Jersey and Staten Island Ferry Company, for the purpose of submitting to them the schedule of rates of ferriage, etc., over Staten Island Sound, between Elizabethport and Staten Island, and to report to the next meeting of this Board their recommendation of such revision.

The resolution was adopted without dissent, and the Director appointed said committee, Freeholders Pierson, Krouse, Donahue, Robison and Wilbur.

By Freeholder Wilbur:

Resolved, That the bill of "Elizabeth Revue," $31.25, for publication, and the following eelction bills, viz., W. H. Jaques for printing Tax ealist $30, J. F. Taylor $30, and James Reilly $10, be paid by the County Collector when approved by the Clerk of the County Board of Elections.

Freeholder Krouse moved the adoption of the resolution, and, on roll call, it was unanimously adopted.

The following bills, properly audited and approved, were read, and on roll-call, unanimously ordered paid, viz:

THE HALL OF FAME.

"Edith and Theodore Roosevelt" was the signature to the message of sympathy which went from the White House to the widow of ex-Governor Higgins.

One of the oldest deputy sheriffs in Maine is David O. Trafton, of Newport. He is seventy years of age and has served as a constable in the town since 1888.

Judge Craig Biddle, who has served continuously on the Philadelphia bench for more than a quarter of a century, recently celebrated the seventy-fourth anniversary of his birthday.

Madison Horn, a citizen of Watrous, N. M., is believed to be the only man living who took part in the Seminole Indian war in Florida. "Uncle Joe," as he is known, was born in Boone county, Mo., in 1819.

Frank Bristow, one of the Baker University students who won Cecil Rhodes scholarships at Oxford, is a son of Joseph L. Bristow, former assistant postmaster general and editor of the Salina (Kan.) Journal.

Marcus Hanna, of South Portland, is teh only lightkeeper in Maine who holds the gold medal awarded by Congress for saving a life. Captain Hanna won his medal while keeper of the Two Lights at Cape Elizabeth.

George W. Vanderbile and Mrs. Marshall Field have bought two half squares fronting on Massachusetts avenue, Washington, and will build palatial residences here. They both expect hereafter to spend the winter in Washington.

Charles L. Freer, of Detroit, possesses the greatest known collection of Chinese art. All characters are represented, and recently photographs were taken of the collection for preservation and to use in studying the subject at various institutions.

James D. Greer, a young farmer of Nacogdoches, Tex., has established a model farm on a tract of land where fine up agricultural products during the last two or three years. He is accomplishing for gain and certain kinds of vegetables what Luther Burbank has done for fruit.

Here's the laziest man in the world. A Scotchman named Thompson living in Lurgan, Ireland, went to bed in 1877, never leaving it until a short time ago, and then only by compulsion. He was forced to go to a workhouse while his mother was ill, but allowed to leave he at once went to bed again.

King Edward's cigar bill is larger. He is an inveterate smoker, and the weed he uses is valued at anything from $1 to $2.50 apiece. It is said by an English newspaper that the king's cigars are the product of a particular plantation in Havana which supplies no one but his majesty and Lord Rothschild.

Walter Sampton, of East Fifth street, who was recently operated upon for appendicitis his health, returned from a stay in the mountains, having fully recovered his health.

HELPED NOMINATE LINCOLN.

Nathaniel Voorhees Thinks He and Senator Cullom Are the Only Survivors of Convention.

Nathaniel Voorhees, father of former Governor Foster M. Voorhees, of New Jersey, who is an octogenarian, is becoming reminiscent lately over the convention that in 1860 named Abraham Lincoln for the Presidency of the United States. He was a delegate to that historical gathering, and he says he has reason to believe that he and United States Senator Shelby M. Cullom are its only survivors.

There are Republicans still living—many of them—who voted for Fremont and Dayton, the first candidates the Republican party ever put in the national field, and Democrats who even tell of their first vote having been cast for Andrew Jackson, and some, reasoning by analogy, think that all the throng the helped to name Lincoln cannot yet have passed to the great reckoning, and so are inclined to advise the aged delegate to look out for his health.

A man could have cast his vote for Lincoln and Hamlin in 1860 and still be only sixty-eight years old today. But the delegate to a National Convention is generally older than the first voting age, and, on the assumption that those who were in the Lincoln convention were thirty-five years of age, they would be considerably past the fourscore mile stone now, and most of them would be over that.

The proportion of men who pass the fourscore mark is very small, and Mr. Voorhees' conclusion that there are but two survivors of the 1860 gathering does no violence to the probabilities.

The Lehigh Valley R. R. Inaugurates Another Arrangement for the Greater Convenience of the Traveling Public.

A circular letter has been issued by the General Baggage Agent of the Lehigh Valley Railroad announces the placing in effect of a special delivery checking system for baggage, which enables patrons of the line to have baggage checked from residences, hotels or other points direct to residences, hotels, steamship piers, etc., at destination.

This system has been in eect covering a limited number of cities at the present time, but no announcement extends is widely so that it now covers practically all of the important cities east of Cincinnati and Chicago including points in Canada.

On baggage thus checked, the transfer charges are collected when the checking is done; the amount for transfer being reasonable.

This will prove a great convenience to passengers who dislike the trouble of looking after the detail of the transfer of baggage to or from stations, and the cost will be no greater and in some instances less than would be charged locally by transfer companies.

SMALL ECONOMICS.

Rag carpets and rugs are much used, and here is a chance for mothers to entertain children and at the same time derive benefit. Small boys, as well as girls, like to sew, and by cutting rags into strips and having the children sew them together, many a rainy afternoon or long evening can be pleasantly spent.

Underwaists for children may be made at home and be equal to the bought ones, if cut how by heavy drilling and finished with bands stitched on where the buttons are to be sewed.

If embroidery is edged with Valenciennes lace it is made pretty and inexpensive collars and cuffs.

As a rule children like plants and flowers, and it is well to let them have one or two growing blooms for which they are responsible, for they will be interested in seeing them grow and will come to take a pride in having them look well, which means they have to be carefullytended, and this will give youngsters something to do in idle moments.

BEAUTY "DONTS."

Don't dry your face in a hurry; a quick, anyhow rub coarsens the skin and injures its beauty.

Don't eat your meals quickly; this causes indigestion and a red nose.

Don't worry; other people's troubles are quite as bad as yours.

Don't real till midnight; one hour's sleep before 12 is worth five afterward.

Don't expect physic and tonics to keep you well if you neglect the laws of health and hygiene.

Don't think you can sit day after day over your work when you ought to go out for a brisk walk without your complexion suffering.—Home Chat.

ANATOMICAL NOTES.

The proper distances between the eyes is the width of one eye.

There are 527 distinct muscles in the human body, of which eighty-three are in the head and face.

There are three times as many muscles in the tail of a dog as there are in the humanand hand and wrist.

The length of the sole of the foot should be equal to one-sixth of the height of a perfectly formed man.

Proceedings of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County.

OFFICIAL.

Regular meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union, N. J., held on Thursday, February 7th, 1907, at 2:30 p. m. Roll call showed the following members present: Director King and Freeholders Adams, Cady, Cladek, Darby, Doane, Donahue, Gruener, Jones, Krouse, Maurer, Meisel, Perry, Pierson, Robinson, Smith, Swain and Woodruff, 18; absent, Freeholders Fay and Wilbur, 2.

Owing to the absence of the clerk, Mr. N. R. Leavitt was designated and appointed Clerk pro tem.

On motion the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting was laid over.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Elizabeth, N. J., Jan. 8th, 1907.

Hon. Freeholders of Union, Elizabeth, N. J. Dear Sir: As President of the State Crarities Aid Association I made my yearly inspection of the Union county jail and found it in its usual, in most excellent condition; perfectly clean and its inmates under the best of discipline. I wish to express my appreciation as President of the Association at the progress being made in the construction of a prison for women, and that in a short time it will be ready for the reception of minors. I was questioned by the Association to say to you that the Union county jail is today the cleanest, the best managed, and in every respect the best governed jail in the State.

I am yours sincerely,
E. E. WILLIAMSON,
President State Charities Aid Association.

On motion of Freeholder Cady received and ordered to be spread on the minutes in full.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

By (special committee on Milton avenue drawbridge of Rahway, N. J.

Gentlemen: Your committee appointed to this board for the purpose of investigating the repairs on the drawbridge at Milton avenue, in Rahway, for which F. Ayers rendered a bill to this board for $211.63, desire to report as follows: That we inspected the bridge and work done, and the circumstances surrounding said repairs, and while they feel that the bill should be the payment of which said bill seem to be proper, yet your committee would recommend the payment of said bill, as we find from actual inspection and explanation by the contractor that the work and materials charged for were performed and furnished. Your committee would also recommend the adoption of a rule that no Freeholder order work to exceed the sum of fifty dollors without receiving authority from this board.

Respectfully,
Thomas J. Pierson, Henry Krouse, Chas. A. Smith, Peter H. Meisel, Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Adams the report was received and recommendations therein contained adopted without dissent.

By the committee on claim of David Taylor for damages, etc.

Gentlemen: Your committee, to whom was referred the claim of David Taylor for injuries to horse by falling through bridge at Washington avenue, in the payment of a county line bridge, would respectfully report that they had conferred with a similar committee of the Somerset county board and have agreed on a compromise settlement of thirty-five dollars; one-half to be paid by each county. Would recommend that a warrant be drawn for $17.50 in favor of David Taylor.

S. P. T. Wilbur, Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Gruener the report was received and the recommendation therein contained, adopted on roll call by a unanimous vote.

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

L. FORCE, Editor and Proprietor.

THURSDAY, APRIL 11, 1907.

A score of men, more or less, have been mentioned in connection with the Gubernatorial nominations, but the fact is that no leader of any prominence through the State has pledged himself to any particular candidate. This is not surprising for the convention is months off yet and it would be foolish indeed for a leader to tie himself to any boom before the political atmosphere takes definite shape. Indeed, it is not unlikely that before fall comes, some new comer in the field may prove to be stronger than anyone so far mentioned. At any rate it is more than likely that not until September will it be possible to tell how the land lies. And in the meantime, the leaders will shuffle the political cards to suit themselves.

Dan. S. Roberts, better known to the community as "Uncle Dan" Roberts, has been called to his reward at the ripe age of eighty-two years. As a member of the Common Council he rendered valuable service. To this and the other members of the combination known at the time as "Big Six," Plainfield is indebted for many of the facilities which have marked it as a progressive city. During the period in which they were in power the combination was more or less in public odium for their purposes were much misunderstood and greatly misrepresented. Time has considerably changed the public view of that subject however, for to-day the majority of citizens are thankful that such a combine did exist.

The bench and bar has showed its regard for Vice-Chancellor Henry C. Pitney, the retiring jurist, by presenting him with a handsome clock. What should prove more precious to him is the high esteem in which he be held by the people of this State which he has so ably served during all these years.

Four "possibilities" for the gubernatorial nomination are picked by Charles J. Fisk as being desirable candidates, they being Judge Fort, State Senator Frelinghuysen, Chandler W. Riker and William M. Johnson. Very good, Mr. Mayor, but how about Gilbert Collins and Mahlon Pitney.

The Trenton State Gazette says that "William Randolph Hearst is on his way down Salt River." Judging by past performances, Mr. Hearst ought to have a controlling interest in that stream by this time.

Senator Colby paid a high tribute to Attorney-General McCarter yesterday. Good heavens, can it be possible that he can see anything good in a regular?

SECOND REGIMENT IS LIKELY TO BE CHOSEN.

Probably Will Be Picked to Go to Washington to Attend McClellan Shaft Dedication.

National Guardsmen of New Jersey are speculating at this time as to which regiment of the State's military forces will be sent to Washington on May 2 to represent the Commonwealth at the dedication of the McClellan monument. That the State will be represented is assured by the fact that the bill providing for the appropriation of $10,000 for the expenses of the demonstration has passed both houses of the Legislature and will be signed by Governor Stokes today.

Just which regiment will be assigned has not been officially announced, but it is understood that among the military authorities of the State there is a strong inclination to select the Second Regiment.

The Third Regiment's going to Washington is considered by those in a position to know to be out of the question because there are assurances that the Camden guardsmen will be picked out for the coast artillery manoeuvers in which the army this summer either at Fort Hancock, or Fort Mott. The Third is considered the logical regiment for this duty because its jurisdiction is that part of the State in which coast artillery would be most needed in time of trouble.

The Second Regiment has had nothing in the way of special and attractive duty since it was in Washington at the time of the McKinley inauguration, for this reason the military authorities are disposed to consider the Second Regiment for the Washington trip in May with exceptional seriousness.

Helping a Worthy Charity.

Through the kindness of Woolston & Buckle several rooms have been papered at The Day Nursery; George S. Tobin has made the connections for the bath-tub donated by Mr. H. Andrews, and A. E. Willard has placed a piano in the place.

Miss Nischwitz Engaged.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Nischwitz, of Fairview avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Minnie May Nischwitz, to Richard Layton Bellis, of Somerville.

AMUSEMENTS.

It is never more than once in a decade that such an entertaining and interesting play as "The Man of the Hour" is written and produced and sometimes it is not as often as even that. It is therefore not to be wondered at that New York theatregoers have welcomed the production as the one bright success of the present theatrical season for it strongly appeals to people in every walk of life. The Savoy theatre is crowded at all performances and the play which is now in its sixth month will, undoubtedly, have to be continued indefinitely in order to satisfy the demand for a piece that is both, bright and wholesome. The sharp, crisp, clever dialogue with which "The Man of the Hour" abounds makes the play go with a vim that is refreshing. Seats are now selling for twelve weeks in advance, including the usual Thursday and Saturday matinees.

The Actors Society of America will give on Tuesday night, at the Lyndson theatre, its third annual benefit performance in aid of their building fund. This society, while at times confused with the Actor's Fund, is an old separate business association to which the leading professionals belong and is one of the most honored theatrical institutions of America. For the performance which already has attracted a remarkable number of offers from the best artists of both sexes and to help assure the success of this third annual benefit the Professional Woman's League will turn to and assist the given under the direction of Mary Shaw a one-act playlet called "A Gentle Jury," in which the most prominent actresses now playing in the city of New York will play both the leading and the minor parts. Besides this the members of the Professional Woman's League has offered to join forces with any other organization and as they recently made for their own organization a little more than $6,000 with a benefit bazaar it seems likely that their aid will be material in the success of the Actors' Society benefit. Among those who have volunteered their services are Ethel Barrymore in the one-act play, "Carrotts;" Edwin Abeles and supporting company in the yacht scene from Hearn's "Mlle. Modiste," Victor Herbert with a 'cello solo of his own composition; Holbrook Blinn and supporting company in the one-act play, "A Blaze of Glory," by Paul Armstrong, which was recently a sensation at the Garden Theatre when Nat Goodwin played it and Mr. Armstrong contended that it was played without his consent; Mary Shaw and a company made up of leading actresses of the Professional Woman's League in a one-act play, "A Gentle Jury," and Edgar L. Davenport and his company in the one-act play, "The Man About Town," by Stanilus Stange, by permission of Charles Dickson.

"The Man of the Hour" proves to be an overwhelming success at the Savoy theatre. A success without a star in the cast is a rare occasion to the theatrical world, but in the Brady-Grismer production the capable cast is so evenly balanced that the supposedly essential feature is unnecessary. Recent experiences in aldermanic manifestation develops another strongly familiar scene in "The Man of the Hour" and politicians who are familiar with the game find the play a timely exposition of political affairs not only in New York but fitting well any large city in America. The piece is so full of humor while still depicting conditions known to all newspaper readers that its merit is appreciated by all degrees of the social and official world.

Pixley and Luders' latest musical comedy, "The Grand Mogul," which Klaw & Erlanger have given a magnificent production at the New Amsterdam theatre, will begin its third week at this house next Monday evening. There have been many musical successes presented in New York during the past ten years, but never before one that scored such a remarkable success from the musical standpoint alone. There are eighteen musical features and every one is a positive hit. In fact, there are so many really excellent numbers following in rapid succession, and they are all so enthusiastically applauded, each performance becomes a sort of musical sensation. The score is certainly a treat to everyone who delights in light music. The book, too, is excellent and interesting. It is arranged in three acts. The first act, the second scene laid in Honolulu, is substantially burlesque and presents the Hawaiian Islanders on the stage for the first time. The native "hula-hula" dances, presented by twenty-four beautiful young girls, are very artistic and attractive. The second act, laid in Paris, with scenes in the Island of Jude in the Philippines, are sung with most attractive snap and dash. Frank Moulan sustaining the principal comic role. The company surrounding Mr. Moulan is a talented one, the parts not already singing the prima donna part with singers of distinctry. Matinee performances are presented Wednesday and Saturday afternoons.

The New York Hippodrome is an admirable substitute for Florida as a winter resort, as, at the big playhouse, tourists and others may witness a typical, tropical scene, even in the coldest weather, when the beautiful mermaids and a dozen fishermen splash merrily in the great water tank supposed to represent the ocean. The water is heated and bathing in it seems an alluring prospect, if one may judge by the pleasure with which the mermaids and fishermen disport themselves. This scene is the big feature of "Neptune's Daughter," and is making New York talk as it has never talked before about a stage novelty. Of all the thousands of people who witness this scene, not one can tell where the mermaids go when they disappear beneath the water. New circus acts are constantly being introduced in the arena, and the opening spectacle, "Pioneer Days," with its band of Sioux Indians, are intensely dramatic series of admirable stage pictures of early life in the West.

Besides the state secret which is nightly discussed in "The Ambitious Mrs. Alcott," and which is now public property, as far as it can be, there is another secret connected with this Leo Ditrichstein and Percival Pollard play that very few people know about. Before the production of the play, it was generally understood that there was a suggestion in it of a famous international controversy, that within the past few years has been a carefully guarded diplomatic secret. It has now got to be known that when the play was put in rehearsal at the Astor theatre, Managers Wagenhals & Kemper received a request that a member of a certain governmental office in Washington be permitted to attend one of the early rehearsals. It was explained that this was not an official request and that there was really nothing official about it, but that somebody "wanted to know." The source from which the request came, however, made it quite plain that there were some diplomats in Washington who were a little bit nervous as to just how much of a certain state secret the play would divulge. Wagenhals & Kemper gave their consent; the official presented himself promptly during one entire afternoon, sat all alone in the body of the Astor theatre, a silent, lonely spectator of the new play. At the close of the rehearsal, he said: "You are quite right. The secret is there, but it is so delightfully told, and so carefully clothed that I do not think there can be any objection to it from outside interests." Now Wagenhals & Kemper are wondering what would have happened if the play-wrights had been less careful in their handling of the theme.

"They call me a star," said Rose Stahl on the other night in her dressing-room at the Hackett theatre, "but I'm really a lightning change artist. I make as many changes of costume in 'The Chorus Lady' as a chorus girl in a musical show. When I'm on the stage I'm on the run for my hat, coat and gloves. I've hardly poked my nose in in the second act when I begin to take everything off that Anthony Comstock will allow. I put on another costume. At the end of the act I am seen tearing off my clothes in order to make way my sister from the bad man of the play. In the third act I come to the bad man's room, but there I only get as far as the hat and coat. In the last act I enter fully dressed and remove my things off stage. This constant change has become a regular joke with Mr. Forbes and myself. Shortly after I enter in the last act I have a sympathetic scene with my mother and my sweetheart. At the dress rehearsals some one in front said: "Perhaps this third act love scene would be more effective if Miss Stahl would take off her coat and hat?" For one moment I was frozen with fear but to my relief I heard Mr. Forbes shout: 'Just let her try it, and I'll nail them on.'"

Awarded Contract for Stone.

The Watchung Stone Company, of this city, has been awarded the contract by the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Middlesex county for the crushed stone to be used in macadamizing the Park avenue road, commencing at the Plainfield city line and extending toward Metuchen.

NEWARK TO HAVE A MASONIC TEMPLE

STRUCTURE WILL BE ERECTED IN CENTRAL AND CONVENIENT LOCATION.

Newark is to have a Masonic Temple. It is to be a building with accommodations for the fraternity that will meet every demand of the several chapters and will have lodge rooms in conformity with the plans approved by the grand lodge officers. The temple will be erected in a central and convenient location, which, for the present, is known only to the committee having the project in charge.

Masons throughout the northern section of the State have awaited the opportunity of aiding in the construction of a temple suitable for their purposes, and many plans have been suggested from time to time. Recently one of the lodges in the city discussed this matter thoroughly and determined upon definite action. A circular letter was prepared and copies thereof, put in circulation during the past two weeks, which met with instant response from members of almost every lodge in Newark.

According to the plan proposed in the letter sent out by Triluminar Lodge No. 112, F. and A. M., it is proposed that a temple be built by the subscriptions of members of the local lodges. The plan as formulated by Simon Friedberger, chairman of the committee, to which the whole proposition has been referred, is to offer stock through the officials of the various lodges at a par value of $300 a share to be paid for by subscribers at the rate of $5 a month for five years.

Money derived from this source is to be deposited so that it will draw interest and from time to time be invested in securities of established value approved by a board of trustees to be hereafter elected by subscribers. When the funds are of sufficient amount the plans contemplated for the actual construction of the temple will proceed without delay.

The three-story brick building 114 Springfield avenue, Newark, sold six months ago by Samuel S. Scheuer & Company to Otto Reiss for $16,000, has again changed hands at private sale for $15,000, $1,000 less than that obtained by the real estate dealers. The new purchaser, Rosina Kohn, of Springfield and Belmont avenues, Newark, will convert the first floor of the property into a first class bakery.

METROPOLITAN GOLF HANDICAPS LISTED

TWENTY-THREE MEMBERS OF PLAINFIELD COUNTRY CLUB AMONG NUMBER

The handicap committee of the Metropolitan Golf Association, of which Leighton Calkins, of this city, is the chairman, has issued the official list of handicaps for the season, which is based on the system invented by Mr. Calkins. The following members of the Plainfield Country Club are handicapped as follows:

Robert Abbott, 3; Frank O. Reinhart, 4; J. Whitney Baker, Dudley H. Tarrows, W. Lester Glenney, 5; Frank C. Talmadge, Willard Wadsworth, 6; Morris Dunnell, Jr., P. Rogers, Jr., J. H. P. Wharton, Jr., William Glenney, R. Story Rowland, Clement B. Morgan, E. B. Shoemaker, 8; Leighton Calkins, Henry D. Ebhard, S. D. Lounsbery, Roger F. Murray, Gerald W. Shoemaker, Edgar I. Serrell, H. Reeve Stockton, T. Earl Stockton, Morgan T. Townsend, 9.

It is the plan to keep the list always up to date, and for that purpose handicappers are urgently requested to send in voluntary reports from time to time throughout the season, whenever one or more players show any improvement in playing form. This will throw only a little work on each club, and will be of great assistance to the handicap committee. The responsibility rests with the club failing to make reports of their players are continued on this list with ratings which ought to be reduced or otherwise modified.

Bridge and Euchre Party.

A bridge and enchre party was given Saturday afternoon by Miss Elsie Brokaw, of Sycamore avenue, in honor of Miss Howell and Miss Barlow. There were ten tables at which the two games were played during the afternoon. The bridge prize was won by Miss Adelaide Ball and the euchre prize by Mrs. Charles Stillman. After the game refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

Wedded a Month Ago.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Helena Liable, of Trenton, and Henry C. Brose, of 215 Vine street, North Plainfield. The ceremony took place in Jersey City, on March 12 last, Judge Sweeney, of that place, officiating. The couple is making their home in the Babcock building.

Miss Dolliver's Debut.

Borough Recorder and Mrs. Charles M. Dolliver, of Fairview avenue, are parents of a girl, born to them Sunday morning.

WESTFIELD FANS FORM AN ATHLETIC CLUB

THERE WITH-THE GOODS AS USUAL—TO JOIN THE STATE LEAGUE.

Baseball matters for Westfield assumed a definite shape at a meeting of enthusiasts held at Gale's Club house in that place on Saturday night. The Westfield Athletic Club was organized with the following officers: President, Elbert E. Snyder; secretary, George A. Schaefer; manager, David T. Smith; treasurer, A. E. Snyder.

The team will be admitted to the Lackawanna League and a committee consisting of President Snyder, Manager Smith and Charles H. Denman was appointed to attend the schedule meeting of the league to be held in Newark next Saturday. Subscription lists are being circulated about Westfield to raise sufficient money to assure securing a team qualified to make a demand for the pennant from the start.

A "good wood" club has been formed from the old-time, dyed-in-the-wool, blown-in-the-glass, burnt-on-the-cork fans, each member agreeing to contribute a dollar a week from April 15 to September 1. This will guarantee a weekly help of fifty dollars. There is every indication that Recreation Park will repeat in 1907 its success of the past, when everyboy in Union county had their eyes turned toward Westfield.

SEVENTH-DAY BAPTISTS HOLD ANNUAL MEETING.

The sixty-ninth annual meeting of the Seventh-Day Baptist Church of Christ was held in the church, yesterday afternoon and evening, when officers were elected and reports presented for the past year. Dr. Henry M. Maxson acted as moderator. The meeting opened at 3:45 o'clock in the afternoon with social greetings and at 4 o'clock the business session commenced with prayer by the pastor, Rev. George B. Shaw.

The report of the Board of Trustees was presented by Henry M. Maxson, the secretary, and by William M. Stillman, treasurer. These *showed a satisfactory condition finan*cially and spiritually.

Dr. Maxson was elected trustee for five years, to succeed himself. The other officers chosen are as follows: Church clerk, Asa F. Randolph; assistant treasurer, George E. Stillman; auditors, Arthur L. Titsworth, Charles H. Dunham; chorister, David R. Titsworth; organist, Miss Jessie M. Titsworth; ushers, Percy Spicer, George Clark, J. Wendell Mosher, Charles Neagle, F. Rollin Williams, Milton St. John, A. B. Titsworth.

This closed the afternoon session and a social and fellowship hour was enjoyed, during which supper was served by the social and refreshment committees of the Women's Society for Christian Work and the Christian Endeavor Society, of which Mrs. Frank J. Hubbard was the chairman.

The evening session convened at 7:30 o'clock, with devotional exercises by Rev. George B. Shaw. Reports of the various departments of church work were presented, including one by the pastor. It was stated that only one death had occurred in the church during the past sixteen months. The present membership is about 250. Reports were given by Asa F. Randolph, church clerk; Orra S. Rogers, superintendent of the Sabbath-school; Mrs. Orra S. Rogers, the president of the Women's Society for Christian Work, and Miss E. Marie Rogers, secretary, for the senior, intermediate and junior Christian Endeavor societies. All reports were encouraging and showed progress.

An interesting part of this service was the rollcall and reading of letters from absent members. One of these letters was from Mrs. D. B. Rogers, of Horseheads, N. Y., the only living constituent member of the church. She is the mother of L. T. Rogers, of this city.

A committee comprising the pastor, Rev. George B. Shaw; J. A. Hubbard, president of the Board of Trustees, and the deacons, was appointed to arrange for the observance of the seventieth anniversary of the church which will occur in February, 1908. Before the meeting closed A. C. Hunting was elected moderator of the next quarterly meeting.

The annual meeting of the Seventh-Day Baptist Church of Five years of Piscataway Township, was held in the church at New Market yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. I. F. Randolph was moderator, A. E. Curtis secretary and J. R. Dunham treasurer. George E. Tyndall was elected trustee for the term of five years and C. E. Rogers was elected church clerk. The church membership is 190.

Following the meeting the men of the church entertained the members at supper in the parsonage and a phonograph entertainment was enjoyed.

This church has had a prosperous year under the pastorate of Rev. Mr. Jordan and the new year opens with bright prospects.

Mayor Charles J. Fisk declared today that he had no preference for the Gubernatorial nomination. Among the men already mentioned for the honor he said that either Judge J. Franklin Fort, former Senator William M. Johnson, Chandler W. Riker or Senator Joseph Frelinghuysen would make a desirable candidate.

On the 17th and 18th of May there will be handicap medal play at 18 holes, prizes for the lowest score. Beginning on May 18th and continuing for the next three Saturdays there will be a putting contest at clock golf and commencing September 7th and continuing for the remaining three Saturdays in September there will be a putting contest at clock golf. On June 14th and 15th there will be handicap medal play at 18 holes and during October there will be play for the De Lamater cup. Drawings will be made on October 2 and the matches can be played any time within the following week.

Form Coach-Owners' Club.

Certificate of Incorporation has been filed in the office of the County Clerk by the Elizabeth Coach-Owners' Club, the objects of which are to take over the membership of a certain unincorporated association known as the Elizabeth Liverymen's Protective Association of the State of New Jersey, and to carry on and continue the work of that association and to protect the members of the association in the conduct of their business. The trustees, five in number, are: Ben Ogden, John F. Martin, George Weltmer, James G. Keenan and Charles J. Jensen.

Sunday-School Teachers Meet.

Between thirty and forty members of the Plainfield Sunday-school Teachers' Union met in the small hall of the M. C. A. Monday, showing that the interest in this new organization is growing. F. E. Smith, superintendent of Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school, taught the lesson, "God Gives Jacob a New Name." Suggestions were given to assist the members in teaching their classes. George E. Hall, superintendent of the Park Avenue Baptist church Sunday-school, will teach the lesson next Monday night, "Joseph Sold by His Brothers."

YOUNGEST OF PASTORS

Infant Son of Former Plainfield Girl Has Odd Distinction.

FATHER'S ASSISTANT

"Rev." Baby Is Grandson of Rev. Jesse Lyman Hurlburt, Former Pastor of the First M. E. Church.

In 1928, when George Hurlburt Dougherty, grandson of Rev. Jesse Lyman Hurlbert, former pastor of the First M. E. church, one of the most prominent clergymen in the Newark conference, becomes of age, he can furnish proof that over twenty years ago he was an assistant pastor of a Methodist Episcopal church. He can claim that he was the youngest assistant pastor of any denomination in the world. For "Rev." George Hurlburt Dougherty was made an assistant pastor at the age of four days, with a yearly salary of $1.

The church which has this baby as assistant pastor is the Broad Street Park Methodist Episcopal church, Elizabeth. The honor of holding the position is the son of Rev. George P. Dougherty, who is now serving his third year as pastor there.

The baby was born March 21 and was made assistant pastor Mch. 25 at the first quarterly conference. When Presiding Elder Day learned of the birth of a son to Rev. and Mrs. Dougherty he sent his congratulations. While the conference was in session William Buchholtz, one of the laymen, made a motion that George Hurlburt Dougherty should be appointed assistant pastor. This was quickly seconded and carried.

The presiding elder allowed the motion to be recorded. Then the salary of the new assistant came up before the body. It was decided that he should have $1 a year, but the amount was turned over to the younger Dougherty at the close of the conference.

The mother of the "Rev." Jr., was Miss Bertha Grace Hurlburt, daughter of Rev. Jesse Lyman Hurlburt. Mrs. Dougherty was born in this city.

Since the announcement of his appointment the baby clergyman has received hundreds of congratulatory telegrams, post cards and letters.

REV. E. E. ROBERSON DECIDES TO REMAIN.

Urged by Congregation, Pastor to Continue at Monroe Avenue Church.

At a congregational meeting held after the preaching service at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, Sunday, an unanimous call was given to the pastor, Rev. E. E. Roberson, to return for another year. Notwithstanding the call received from the M. E. church, of Orange, he expressed his willingness to remain if the Bishop so decides.

It was planned that Mr. Roberson should go to the Orange church and that Rev. Audley J. Bliss, of the Rahway M. E. church be sent to the Monroe Avenue church, but a discussion of the changes resulted in asking Mr. Roberson to consider his decision, which he did. Mr. Bliss received a call from the M. E. church, of Somerville, and if the latter church meets with the Bishops' approval, he will no doubt be sent there. The Monroe Avenue church members felt that Mr. Roberson had accomplished a great work during the past year and that he should remain another year. However, they would not stand in the way of his promotion if the Bishop was agreeable to the change. The chances are that Mr. Roberson will remain in Plainfield.

HUNT CLUB ENJOYS FIRST RIDE OF YEAR.

Tea at the Clubhouse—Dinner in the Evening.

The Watchung Hunt Club held its first meet of the year Saturday afternoon. It was enjoyed by nearly a score of riders. The going was good.

They met at the country club and rode to Oak Tree, where a check was held. When the hounds were laid on again the chase let to the clubhouse at Colonia, where tea was served.

Among the riders were:

Charles D. Freeman, Charles C. Marshall, Dr. M. O'Malley Knott, Fred Schenck, Charles Fisk, Jr., L. F. Waring, Mr. Bonnar, Mrs. Wilde, Miss Gertrude Noe, Chauncey Sayers, Mr. Jefferies, C. E. S. Bellows, Leonard Smith, Walter S. Lucas, Masters Mellick, and two whips.

In the evening S. A. Cruikshank gave a luncheon dinner at the clubhouse.

Reception at P. H. S.

A well attended reception for present and former pupils of the Plainfield High School was held in the High School assembly room Saturday night. Dancing was enjoyed throughout the evening, music being furnished by Miss Mabel Maxson, piano; Arthur Mosher, violin; Percy Mygrant, cornet. Refreshments were served. An admission fee was charged, the proceeds of which go to the Boys' Athletic Association.

Fred. Van Auken Elected Captain.

On account of illness, Benjamin L. Lombard, captain of the Naval Academy baseball nine, has resigned, and Frederick T. Van Auken, of this city, has been elected in his place.

RECOGNITION IN HEAVEN

Dr. Chambliss Declares Bible Teaches That Friends will Behold One Another.

GIVES HIS REASONS

Divine Bases His Argument on Scriptual Quotations—Perfect Joy There.

"Does the Bible Clearly Teach That We Shall Know Each Other in the World to Come," was the subject of the discourse by Rev. J. A. Chambliss at the First Baptist Church last Sunday, before a large congregation. Basing his reasons on the Scriptural quotations, friends and relatives will know each other in the future life, and furthermore the Heavenly Joy will be perfect.

"I do not say that people deceive themselves," declared Dr. Chambliss, "when they say that they will be satisfied with Him alone, but that they are pious beyond that which is written. The chief question to do the Scriptures teach that we shall know each other in Heaven. Theories and guesses are poor substitutes, but what we want is Thus saith the Lord." We are told by the Scriptures that we shall see the prophets, patriarchs and apostles, but this would be without point if there was to be no recognition, and the Scripture which says that these apostles shall judge the twelve tribes of Israel would be without reason unless there is to be recognition.

"Then arises the question, shall we know the apostles, prophets and patriarchs and not each other. The Lord never had favorites on earth and His measure was not according to man's mind. I believe that right here in Plainfield there are saints whose crowns will be as radiant as that of Paul's. The Scripture teaches that we shall know, that there will be companionship, a re-union, and a perfect bond of unity together as the Bride of the Lamb. We shall be known even as we are known."

"There is only one thing that would prevent recognition and that is the destruction of the memory. Let the physical changes be as great as they may, if the memory remains there will be recognition. Then the question remains shall we remember? We are told that before the Judgment Throne we shall be our own witnesses, and that the Judge will appeal to the individual as to what they did and did not do on earth. Thus we are taught by the Bible that we shall remember the past and it is impossible to question this truth. There will be particular blessings in special services. Some will have the glory of the sun, others the glory of the moon and still others the glory of the stars. Every man will be rewarded according to his own labor. This recognition will be possible it also follows that we shall mingle one with another. These facts are so confidently stated in the Scriptures that they must be accepted as the hope of the believer."

MAZE GREEN'S OLD STANDBY FAILED HIM.

HIS USUAL TALE DIDN'T WIN MERCY FROM JUDGE RUNYON.

Maze Green, the little old man with the big thirst who has been arrested several times in the past few months, tried to work the City Judge Runyon used a big stick on those who try to fool him. Maze tried a wornout tale on the magistrate, and he will have forty days in jail to think over his foolishness in attempting to string the Court.

Maze was arrested Monday by Patrolman Saffron, at Second street and Park avenue, who found him lying helplessly drunk on the sidewalk. Maze told the judge he was awful sick, and wanted to get back to his folks to commit a decent end. That yarn had worked once before, and he looked hopelessly at the magistrate when he finished it. The Judge's answering gaze was cold.

"You went to go home this time," said the court. "You be going to Elizabeth for forty days."

Maze was shocked. "Oh, my goodness, don't do that," he pleaded.

"Just that," said the court. "Take him away."

Policeman McDonald hailed the seventy-year-old to his cell and a commitment was made out. Maze's family told the Judge last night that he was a hopeless old scamp and not entitled to much consideration.

To Tell Indian Stories.

During the past few years, Mrs. Alfred Chester Coursen, who is to give a musical recital before the Monday Afternoon Club next Monday afternoon on the "Indian Song and Story," has filled many successful engagements in various parts of the country. She is the happy possessor of a beautiful contralto voice, and her programmes are the result of long original study and research. This entertainment follows naturally the two lectures given by George Wharton James and Dr. Eastman in connection with the study of Indian life by the club.

ST. JOSEPH'S JUBILEE

25th Anniversary of Parish Marked by Most Imposing Ceremony of Church.

BP. McFAUL PRESIDES

Father Leahy Sketches History of the Congregation—Dinner Given By the Pastor to Visiting Prelate and Clergy.

The silver jubilee mass, Coram Pontificate, celebrating the twenty-fifth anniversary of the organization of St. Joseph's parish in North Plainfield took place Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock. It was a most elaborate ceremony. Twenty priests took part, and the ceremonial moved along in rhythmic solemnity. A choir of children's voices added sweetness and beauty to the occasion. Had there been St. Joseph's weather, the occasion would have stirred the hearts of the congregation into a remembrance of the May morning fifty-six years ago when the mass so dear to the Catholic was first celebrated in this community. There is a tradition that St. Joseph is the patron of good weather. Yesterday was a bit bleak for the season, but it was brisk and exhilarating and brought out a congregation which was only limited by the capacity of the church.

In the church edifice were a few who sat there twenty-five years ago. There was the gray haired Monsignor-Father Brady, who celebrated the mass which ushered in the new parish, and who officiated in the same capacity yesterday. He had earned his gray hair, and his purple robe after all these years of labor. The bleak unfinished walls of the first day were replaced yesterday by suitable furnishings; a feeling of domesticity pervaded the place. Those who have passed through the vicissitudes of twenty-five years, and who have linked their lives with this interesting parish enjoyed the delicious bit of romance as they remembered the kindly, benevolent, learned Bishop O'Farrell as he spoke there a quarter of a century ago. His eye beamed in a manner which attracted everyone in the church and who thought it beamed on him alone.

Yesterday the Rt. Rev. James A. McFaul, invested with the robes and insignia of the exalted office, took his place at the altar. Twenty-five years ago yesterday a meagre pittance was offered to begin the work. Yesterday the offerings amounted to over two thousand dollars. So great has been the prosperity of the parish that all its property is free of debt, and a large amount of money is placed aside for a new church. These thoughts are suggested by a brochure compiled by Father Miller and arranged by David J. Carney, which was distributed at the church yesterday.

The processional began promptly at 10:20; sixteen acolytes bearing the cross, and the censer, preceded the priests and bishop. They approached the altar during the "Hymn to the Pope." Then the mass was begun. Mgr. Brady was celebrant, Father Dunvine, the sub-deacon. Father Dunvine, the sub-deacon; Father Dunphy, of Dunellen, was master of ceremonies; Father Walter T. Leahy, of Princeton, preached the sermon. He referred to the early history of the parish, and reviewed the incidents eloquently.

At the offertory the "Tantum Ergo" was sung by James E. Bailey and Alfred E. LaPorte. The mass was rendered by the boys' choir entirely according to the Gregorian chant. The Ite Missa Est was chanted by Father Dietrich.

After the services Bishop McFaul made a short address, in which he expressed himself as pleased with the progress of the parish, and indicated that a new church would be soon necessary. He spoke of the desirability of a parochial school.

The following priests took part: Monsignors John F. Brady and Fox; deacons of honor, Rev. Andrew M. Eagan, and Rev. John Tyrrell, attending Rt. Rev. James A. McFaul, bishop of Trenton; Mgr. O'Grady, Very Rev. Dean Mulligan, Fathers Devine, Dietrich, Leahy, Dunphy, Tyrrell, Shandel, Schwartz, Eagan (Gabriel, and others, including the scholarly rector, Rev. William E. Miller.

AUTOIST HURT WHILE REPAIRING HIS MACHINE.

Another Car Hits John McIntyre As He Bends Under His Own.

John F. McIntyre, of North avenue, is lying at his home with two broken ribs and a crushed head, the result of an automobile accident last Friday afternoon. The accident happened on the road back of Bound Brook.

Mr. McIntyre was automobiling and something went wrong with his machine. While he was bending under another auto, speeding along the road, struck him. He was taken home, where he has since been confined.

Illustrated Lecture.

Rev. Charles L. Coder, of Rahway, will give an illustrated lecture at Grace church Friday night on the subject of "Three Hundred Years of the Church in America."

GEORGE F. ODIORNE DEAD

Stock Broker, Who Had a Varied Career, Follows His Wife to the Grave.

Master of Sailing Vessel, When 20, Later a Trader, Hotel Manager, Newspaper Worker and a Broker.

George Frederick Odiorne, who was business manager of the Courier-News for nearly fourteen years, died Monday morning at the home of his brother-in-law, Frank W. Runyon, of West Sixth street. He had been ill since last December with a lingering disease and grew rapidly worse following the death of his wife who passed away six weeks ago. During the past few days he had been in a semi-conscious state and the end had been momentarily expected.

George Frederick Odiorne was born at Roxbury, Mass., fifty-six years ago Saturday and was one of a family of eleven children. His father was State Senator George F. Odiorne, who opened up the exclusive "Back Bay" district and who was one of the most prominent politicians in Massachusetts at one time.

When but fifteen years old, the son became infatuated with the sea and shipped aboard a vessel, more in a spirit of venture than anything else. He became an expert sailor and five years later was master of a big vessel. He circumnavigated the globe many times, undergoing novel experiences and making a prominent name for himself in shipping circles. Strangely enough, he never experienced a storm and this form of sea terror was foreign to him. His father had always been opposed to his following a sailing career, however, and at the age of twenty-seven parental inducement resulted in his giving it up.

He then went to Madagascar as the representative of a big trading company and remained three years. Returning to America he became manager of the Windsor Hotel at Denver, Col. It was one of the largest and most up-to-date hotels of the day and proved a successful venture. Tiring of the business in 1883, Mr. Odiorne came East and lived quietly until 1891, when he assumed the position of business manager of the Plainfield Courier, established in this city in that year by Mr. Runyon. He remained in the position until the merged Courier-News was sold to the present owners a little over two years ago. Since then Mr. Odiorne had been a bond broker with an office in New York, continuing in business until his health failed.

On August 17, 1889, Mr. Odiorne married Miss Annie Munelle, daughter of the late Dr. William Munelle, of Wheeling, W. Va., her death occurring six weeks ago Saturday. The surviving relatives are a sister, Mrs. Louise Stebbins, who is very ill at her home in South Orange; and three brothers, John F. Odiorne, a manufacturer residing at Hackensack; Walter Odiorne, superintendent of the Pennsylvania State Reformatory at Huntington, and Howard Odiorne, a cotton raiser in South Carolina.

PITNEY RECEIVES GIFT ON HIS RETIREMENT

MEMBERS OF STATE BAR HONOR VICE-CHANCELLOR.

At the conclusion of Monday's session at Jersey City Vice-Chancellor Pitney ended his labors as a part of the State Court of Equity and said farewell to his colleagues in office and the members of the bench and bar so far as his official position was concerned. The members of the committee from the State Bar Association having charge of the birthday festivities a few weeks ago had prepared to give the retiring Vice-Chancellor something tangible by which he might remember the occasion in future years and had purchased a handsome Tiffany clock with musical chimes. It cost several hundred dollars.

The court room was crowded with members of the bar from all parts of the State. Judge Gilbert Collins, who made the presentation, said:

"For a long time you have graced the equity bench of this State and you have endeared yourself to all the members of the bar who have appeared before you. It therefore affords me great pleasure to present you in the name of the members of the bar this clock."

The Vice-Chancellor was about to respond when Vice-Chancellor Stevens stated that he also had something to say. He spoke in the same strain and was followed by William M. Johnson, of Hackensack, and Frank Bergen, of Elizabeth.

When you want a first-class haircut, shave or shampoo there is one place you can be sure of getting it. That's at E. B. Maynard's shop on North avenue.

Mrs. Arthur Masters and daughters, of Third place, will sail on Saturday for South America.

UNION'S LAWYERS DINE

County Bar Association holds Its Annual Banquet at the Hotel Astor.

PLAINFIELDERS THERE

Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh As President of the Association Presides at Function.

The fourth annual dinner of the Union County Bar Association was held at the Hotel Astor, New York, Saturday night, and like the previous ones it was a great success. The addresses of the evening, delivered by leaders of the Bar not only in the county, but the State, were masterpieces of oratory.

As president of the association, Craig A. Marsh made the opening address, this selection from Wordsworth being assigned to his toast:

"Because the good old rule
Sufficieth them, the simple plan,
That they should take who have the power,
And they should keep who can."

The other speakers and their toasts were as follows:

Judge Gilbert Collins, "The Relation of the Lawyer to the State;" Prosecutor William H. Speer, "Our State;" Senator George S. Silzer, "The Lawyer in Politics;" Jeremiah A. Kiernan, "The Junior Member."

The guests at the dinner were as follows:

Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh, District Court Judge William Newcorn, County Registrar F. H. Smith, William R. Townsend, Francis J. Blatz, Walter L. Heifield, Jr., Jos. B. Coward, former City Judge William R. Codington, all of Plainfield; Judge Edward S. Atwater, District Court Judge C. Addison Swift, Assistant Prosecutor John K. English, Edward Nugent, Clark McK. Whitmore, County Collector Nathan R. Leavitt, Director Major Benjamin King, Board of Freeholders; Councilman LeRoy Mack, Sydney W. Eldridge, former Assemblyman Joseph T. Hague, T. M. Kelley, Samuel Schleimer, Jeremiah A. Kiernan, County Clerk James C. Calvert, William D. Marshall, Clarence Meyer, Robert L. Eaton, Frank Pfaff, of Elizabeth; Berkeley C. Austin, of Cranford; Paul O. Oliver, of Westfield; F. C. Hyer and C. D. Ward, of Rahway.

These are the officers of the association: President, Craig A. Mash, Plainfield; vice-president, N. C. J. English, of Elizabeth; secretary, Fred C. Hyer, of Rahway; treasurer, Nathan R. Leavitt, of Elizabeth. The executive committee consists of William R. Codington, chairman; William A. Coddington, Plainfield; Jeremiah A. Kiernan and Samuel Schleimer, of Elizabeth.

BURNED TO DEATH IN A SANITARIUM FIRE

FORMER PLAINFIELD WOMAN SUFFERS TERRIBLE FATE IN CONNECTICUT.

In a fire that destroyed the Grand View Sanitarium, at South Windham, Conn., early Saturday morning, Mrs. Backus, a former Plainfielder, was burned to death. She was a resident of Windham.

There were twenty patients. John Donohue, head of the company which operated the institution, was away, but his family, who were in the building, escaped and helped rescue the patients. A furious wind was blowing and the structure was quickly consumed. There is no fire department at Windham.

Several of the sanitarium patients had very narrow escapes from death and were overcome by smoke. Most of these lost all their belongings. The Grand View stood on a hill and the flames were seen for miles. Its occupants knew nothing of the fire until it had cut off all exists save the windows. They were panic-stricken and their escape is next to miraculous.

It was reported that more than one life was lost, but this could not be verified. The sanitarium was formerly a summer hotel. The loss is $25,000.

INJURED IN RUNAWAY.

George Larkin Badly Hurt in Mishap; Members of His Family Bruised.

While driving home from the annual meeting of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, at New Market, Sunday, George Larkin, one of the oldest residents of Piscataway Township, his son-in-law, Walter Dunn, and members of his family were thrown out of the wagon. It required the services of Dr. Main and another physician to close the cuts about Mr. Larkin's head and restore him to consciousness. The other members of the family escaped with slight injuries.

The party was leaving the church yard when the horse, a fractious one, first became unmanageable. The animal suddenly made a quick turn in the road and upset the carriage, throwing the occupants out. Mr. Dunn was quickly on his feet and he quitted the horse.

JAIL FOR FLIM-FLAMMER

Thomas Held Kennary's $10 Bill by Slick Manipulation.

HE TORE NOTE IN HALF

Kennary Wanted to Withdraw Charge, But Judge Runyon Wouldn't Allow Him To.

Convicted of flim-flamming a companion of ten dollars, Edward Thomas, twenty-seven years old, was sentenced to thirty days in jail and fined $50 in the City Court Monday. Judge Runyon, in passing sentence, said he was the most artful dodger brought before him in a long time.

Thomas was arraigned with Gus Satterlein, whom the police have described as a "sport," on complaint of John Kennary. Kennary and the defendants were drinking in the barroom of the Kensington hotel, when Satterlein was handed a $10 bill by Kennary, who told him to pay for another round of drinks. Thomas said, "Give me the money," and Satterlein handed it to him. Thomas asked for another one, and Kennary, thinking, he testified, that it was all in fun, gave another $10 bill to him. A few minutes later Thomas handed him what appeared to be the two bills folded up. He put the bills in his pocket without suspicion, but taking them out again for some reason, he discovered that the supposed two bills were in reality the halves of one bill folded over in such a way as to look like two.

Thomas denied tearing one bill or keeping the other, and submitted to two searches, neither of which missing bill was not found in his pockets, but Kennary was not satisfied and had a warrant sworn out for him at police headquarters.

Thomas was found and arrested by Patrolman Saffron. At the station house he was searched to his skin, and the missing bill was found inside of his underdrawers.

In court this morning, he said he couldn't account for it. He thought that Mrs. Howell, Mrs. Gould, Fritz and "The Sphinx of Rock Island," ex-Judge Moore); "Roosevelt and William II," an interesting exposition of the intimate threads of international diplomacy; "A Theological Thunderstorm in England," in which the views of the Rev. R. J. Campbell, prophet of heretic, whose recent utterances have set a thousand ministers to preaching sermons, are discussed clearly and without bias; "Immorality of Present-Day Fiction," and "Current Movements" finish out an unusually comprehensive number. Put forward by a serious thinker. The play reprinted this month is Charles Klein's "The Lion and the Mouse."

From Joe Mitchell Chappie's article, "The Truth About Panama," in the National Magazine for April: in company with a German and English sea captain, I learned more fully than ever before the wisdom of making a lock canal, for those who have passed through the Suez Canal know of the time consumed, partly owing to the narrowness of the passage and the danger of hurrying, and partly from the character of the soil, which will not bear the friction caused by the rapid passage of a vessel through the water, for if the water be sent forcibly against the banks of the canal, it draws down the sand. The Panama Canal will have none of these defects. Here there will be a great reservoir of 110 square miles, where ships can be rendezvoused and proceed at full speed over the larger portion of the Isthmus, the actual navigable canal occupying but nine miles of the forty-nine miles across the Isthmus.

The Forum, America's standard quarterly review, is out for April-June. The regular departments of American Politics, Foreign Affairs, Finance, Education, Applied Science, Literature, and Music, are as usual ably and comprehensively filled; while special articles reflect faithfully the views of thought, research, and phisophy in our times. Henry Litchfield West, in an analysis of Elihu Root's recent notable address before the Pennsylvania Society in New York city, traces the growth of federalism in this republic, speculates as to the future of the States under our dual system of constitutional government. The British House of Lords, the Kaiser and the Reichstag, and the new Russian Duma, are prominent among the foreign topics discussed. Sidney Maurice Low, Alexander D. Noyes skilfully feels the pulse of the financial market. Joseph Sohn gives a broad critical resume of New York's latest and greates opera season. Applied Science, recorded by Henry Harrison Suplee, has to its record credit some highly important developments in hydraulics, aeronautics, and electric traction.

If you trade with John A. Koch, the Watching avenue butcher, you will get the choicest cuts of meat, the best poultry and at prices that will suit you.

LITERARY.

The cover of the Burr-McIntosh Magazine for April is a reproduction of the famous painting, "The Mirror," by George R. Barse, Jr., of the National Academy of Art. It is one of the most exquisite reproductions that has appeared in any magazine for a long time. The portrait form contains many very prominent stage people, among them being Ellen Terry, Madam Pauline Donalds, Madam Giannina Russ, Annabelle Perry, Mlle. Linva Cavaleri and Miss Grace Ellison. This issue contains an article by Mr. Burr McIntosh on the present condition of the Philippines, illustrated with photographs made by Mr. McIntosh, as official photographer of the Taft Exposition in 1905. This article will not fail to attract attention of all who are interested in our Eastern possessions and, particularly, as it was written by a man on the ground who is in a position to learn the actual state of affairs. Another fine issue of the Burr McIntosh Monthly is superior to any previous issues, attractive as all of them have been.

With every succeeding issue the new Circle magazine shows many improvements and advances. The April number contains several interesting original articles, in addition to the twenty odd departments, covering practically every subject of interest in the home. Laura B. Starr has an article, "Japanese Children at School and Play," which is illustrated by Genjiro Yeto, the famous Japanese artist, and also contributes an illustrated article, "The Boys' May Festival in Japan." "Inexpensive Housekeeping in Paris," by Georgiana Homer, contains much practical information on housekeeping in Paris. Garrett P. Serviss, the famous astronomer, contributes "What We Might See on the Moon;" "A Famous Doll's House" is an illustrated article by Alice Corkran, dealing with an unusual subject.

Current Literature under its new, editor has become a record of contemporary life. Elsa Barker, the well-known poet, says of it that it is the best critical journal—critical in the wider sense—published in the world today. The leading articles for April are: "The Seven Railway Kings of America" (with seven full-page photographs of Morgan, Harriman, Hill, Vanderbilt, Gould, Fritz and "The Sphinx of Rock Island," ex-Judge Moore); "Roosevelt and William II," an interesting exposition of the intimate threads of international diplomacy; "A Theological Thunderstorm in England," in which the views of the Rev. R. J. Campbell, prophet of heretic, whose recent utterances have set a thousand ministers to preaching sermons, are discussed clearly and without bias; "Immorality of Present-Day Fiction," and "Current Movements" finish out an unusually comprehensive number. Put forward by a serious thinker. The play reprinted this month is Charles Klein's "The Lion and the Mouse."

NEARLY 600 DIVORCES IN JERSEY LAST YEAR

GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS COMPLETE RESEARCH INTO RECORDS OF PAST YEARS

New Jersey is famous as a corporation state, and has made herself prominent among the other states of the Union by her progressiveness and her wealth, but New Jersey as a divorce state now comes to the limelight. The officials of the government department of labor and commerce, who are gathering statistics concerning divorces in all the states from 1867 to 1907, have completed their work within her territory.

The number of residents divorced in the various cities of the state last year follows: Atlantic City, 15; Asbury Park, 9; Atlantic Highlands, 2; Bordentown, 1; Belvidere, 2; Bridgeton, 18; Boonton, 2; Bayonne, 3; Burlington, 4; Camden, 61; Cape May, 1; Cape May Court House, 1; Dover, 2; Elizabeth, 12; Englewood, 3; Eatontown, 1; Frenchtown, 2; Flemington, 1; Hoboken, 19; Hackettstown, 1; Jersey City, 75; Lambertville, 2; Long Branch, 2; Lakewood, 3; Millville, 6; Morristown, 8; Montclair, 1; Mt. Holly, 4; Newark, 136; New Brunswick, 8; Newton, 2; Orange, 2; Paterson, 58; Plainfield, 9; Passaic, 5; Perth Amboy, 4; Princeton, 1; Phillipsburg, 7; Red Bank, 4; Rutherford, 1; Somerville, 6; Salem, 8; Summit, 1; Schooley's Mountain, 1; Sussex, 1; Trenton, 35; Town of Union, 2; Westfield, 1; West Hoboken, 4; Washington, 5; Woodbury, 1.

This makes the total number of decrees of absolute divorce granted in 1906, 571.

GAINS MANY MEMBERS

Board of Trade Secures Biggest Single Increase in Its History.

HOLDS LIVELY SESSION

Several Improvements for the City Animatedly Discussed — Public Bath Question Turned Over to the Common Council.

The Board of Trade held another enthusiastic meeting Thursday. Several new faces were among the score or more members who attended. A feature of the session was the addition of twenty-five new names to the membership roll, the largest increase ever made at one meeting.

The new members are: D. J. Carney, A. E. Force, W. B. Travell, P. F. Gillette, D. S. Miller, Thad Doane, Jr., Ira L. LaRue, J. H. Crane, Edmund Rushmore, Milton Mendel, Armstrong Mulford, Rudgel Townsend, A. R. Thurlow, Joseph Cadmus, W. R. Townsend, Albert W. Pangborn, G. W. V. Mott, Alexander Milne, A. E. Hoagland, — A. Smith, J. F. W. Bamberger, Roman Adelberg, A. C. Lehrman, William C. Dunham, Ralph L. Morrow. Most of the new members were secured by President Harry W. Marshall.

A communication from the L. J. Wing Manufacturing Company, makers of disc fans, relating to a new site for a factory, was referred back to the secretary for further correspondence, so the Board might learn what the Wing people wanted. A letter from Miss Margaret C. Holly, of the Organized Aid Association, to Mayor Drake, and turned over by him to the Board, was read.

Public Baths.

Miss Holly's letter was on public baths. She said some place was needed where working men and boys could bathe.

President Marshall said he did not think the subject one for the Board of Trade to pursue. It belonged in the Councilmanic activities. He did not believe the city was prepared to pay the $5,000 Miss Holly thought the bath might be built for. L. B. Woolston said he approved of the idea, but thought some such place could be built right on or at the brook, where land was cheap. He said if the city would take some of the $2,500 it was spending in municipal water ownership investigation, which he thought all a farce, the bath might be built. The matter was referred to the president of the Common Council.

The Elizabeth Board of Trade sent a letter detailing some of the methods whereby the membership was increased and the influence of the body extended. Mr. Marshall said some of the suggestions would be acted upon. A gift of $50 for the publicity fund, from the Plainfield Trust Company, was acknowledged with thanks.

Station Names.

President Marshall reported in the movement to have the tickets from or to the Netherwood, Grant Avenue and Clinton Avenue stations changed to read as from, or to, Plainfield, for flat rates from all the stations, and for a low-priced ticket. He said not much progress had been made. Answering an opening communication, General Manager Besler said there would be no difficulty about changing the names. A day or two later, the general manager wrote that the people in the Netherwood section had objected to the change so far as their station was concerned. Regarding the flat rate, Mr. Besler wrote that the telephone bill would interfere with it. Mr. Marshall said he intended to see Mr. Besler and press the matters to a definite understanding.

President Marshall announced the appointment of the following committee on subscription and membership: M. J. Roth, J. F. Kenney, H. Schwed, E. M. French, J. F. MacDonald, L. B. Woolston, Charles Conover, John Johnson, A. H. Laing and H. A. Todd.

Arc Lights.

The subject of arc lights was introduced by President Marshall. He said he had been told by a P. S. C. official that eighteen arc lights, covering the whole business district, could be installed at an expense of about $300. It was agreed that arc lights were needed, and a committee consisting of J. V. E. Vanderhoef, A. E. Force and Arthur Murphy was appointed to press the matter. They will have a petition circulated among the business men. As Mr. Vanderhoef's suggestion it was decided to have the Board represented at the conference between the P. S. C. and the Council as to new lighting rates for the city.

L. B. Woolston offered a resolution to the effect that the Board recommend that if the old Belgian pavement, North Avenue be included in the improvement. He said he could see no reason why North avenue should have been left out of the plans for hard pavement. It needed the permanent pavement as much as any thoroughfare. The resolution was passed.

Sidewalks and Lawns.

F. A. Dunham suggested that the Council be called upon to take some action regarding sidewalks out of plumb and below grade. He said there were many of them, and that their condition made walking after rains or thaws very disagreeable. It was agreed that if the walks needed attention the Council should order the work done all over the city. The subject was laid over for a month.

D. W. Littell protested against the small cars run on the Fourth street, Arlington avenue and Netherwood lines. He said they were too small for the traffic, and overloading was often necessary. The cars were dirty, filthy and not fit to ride in, he said. It was a good thing on which to test the promise of President McCarter, made at the Board of Trade banquet, that he would be glad to help Plainfield redress any such condition, President Marshall said. The Fourth street cars, Mr. Marshall said, ran through a section that brought undesirable companions for passengers at all particular about themselves, and he thought larger cars might give them room to spread out and not touch elbows so closely. The secretary was asked to write to Mr. McCarter.

STOCKHOLM BRIDE FOR INSURANCE MAN

MISS FRANCIS G. EDMAN BECOMES MRS. FRANK ALLEN.

Miss Frances Geraldine Edman, of Stockholm, Sweden, and Frank Allen, of Pittsfield, Mass., were married at 8 Thursday evening, at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. J. B. Probasco, on East Front street, in the presence of a number of relatives and friends. Rev. George Clover, superintendent of St. Luke's Hospital, New York, of which institution the bride is a graduate trained nurse, and who was for many years her pastor, performed the ceremony, assisted by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, of the First Baptist church.

The bride was gowned in white crepe de chine, trimmed with Irish point lace, and she carried a prayer-book. She was attended by her sister, Miss Carla Dagmar Edman, of Paris, who wore a gown of white taffeta, trimmed with point de Venice and carried carnations. The best man was Dr. Norman H Probasco. The bride was given in marriage by Dr. J. B. Probasco.

As the bridal party entered the parlor the wedding march from Lohengrin was played by Howard M. Case, piano; Paul DeNike, 'cello, and George M. C. Smith, viola, and during the reception which followed they rendered a fine program of music.

The house was lavishly decorated with flowers, the parlor being green and white, and the dining room being garnished with sweet peas, the chief color being pink.

The bride received many gifts from friends and relatives here and abroad. She also received many cablegrams of congratulations. After a short bridal tour the couple will live for the present at No. 78 Washington avenue, and later will move to Pittsfield, Mass., where the groom is employed as auditor for the Berkshire Life Insurance Company.

The bride is the third daughter of the late Francis Bernard Edman, a banker in Stockholm, and is a descendant on her mother's side of Governor Francis Shirley, one of the early Governors of Massachusets, who came over to America as a young man.

SECRETARY OF THE COUNTY ENGINEERS

Robert A. Meeker, of this city, was elected secretary of the State Association of County Engineers at a meeting in Trenton Tuesday afternoon. Twenty of the twenty-one counties of the State were represented by their engineers at the meeting, which was conducted in the offices of State Road Commissioner E. C. Hutchinson at the State House.

Good roads, their making, maintenance and repair were the spic topics under discussion.

The session was conducted until late in the afternoon. Prior to adjournment the following officers were elected: President, J. A. Albertson, of Camden; vice-president, Frank J. Eppele, of Mercer; secretary, Robert A. Meeker, State supervisor of roads; treasurer, Joshua Doughty, of Somerset. It was decided to meet in Trenton again next year.

State Road Commissioner Hutchinson entertained the members of the association at a dinner at Margerum's after the meeting.

PARK CLUB DANCE.

The Easter dance attracted several hundred members and friends to the Park Club Thursday. The club was decorated, chiefly with palms and flowers, banked about the stage, behind which vonDer Heid's full orchestra was seated. The affair marked the resumption of social activities in the city and borough. During the evening refreshments were served. The patronesses were Mrs. Henry A. McGee, Mrs. Edward H. Ladd, Jr., Mrs. Walter M. McGee and Mrs. Chas. A. Reed.

The next social event of interest at the club will be in informal dance on Saturday night.

CHECK FOR METHODISTS

Newark Conference Receives $10,000 From Executors of Murphy Estate.

EX. GOVERNOR'S FATHER

Money Will Apply to Centenary Fund For Aged and Feeble Ministers—Proceeding of Conference.

A check for $10,000, the biggest gift that the Newark Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church has ever received, was turned over Wednesday afternoon by the executors of the William N. Murphy estate, to apply to the centenary fund for aged Methodist clergymen. When the announcement was made Wednesday at the first night session of the conference, which opened at Morristown Wednesday morning, there was great rejoicing.

The gift is that provided for in the will of the late William H. Murphy, father of former Governor Franklin Murphy, a Newarker, and often alluded to as "the best friend the Methodists of the city ever had." It was given on condition that the Conference, by October, 1907, raise a like sum, and thus has been the means of adding $20,000 to a fund in need of support.

It is just fifty years ago this month that the fund was started for the aid of old and feeble clergymen who are beneficiaries of the interest earned only when the $100,000 has been reached. The fund last night reached $83,-080.68. Now $17,000 lacking is to be raised was discussed. Both Dr. Daniel Halleron, president of the society, and Dr. Milton E. Blanchard, treasurer, agreed that it must come from the large churches of the Conference.

Mrs. Hadley R. Woodward, who is the conference secretary, said the society has now but 1,000 and 1,100 members. She added that in the Newark conference are now 2,300 members of fifty-four separate auxiliaries. Mrs. Woodward told of the society's attempt to reduce a debt of $200,000 contracted by the society at large. Payment of $5,000 on this amount has been pledged by the Newark Conference Society, and the secretary said that four-fifths of this had already been paid in. Society members now each year, she said, had given $12,842.

The Rev. Charles E. Locke, of Brooklyn, referred briefly to Mormonism, and declared that to admit Utah as a State was political infamy. The Rev. Dr. Joseph F. Chamberlain, of Bloomfield, Mass., where the groom is employed as auditor for the Berkshire Life Insurance Company.

The bride is the third daughter of the late Francis Bernard Edman, a banker in Stockholm, and is a descendant on her mother's side of Governor Francis Shirley, one of the early Governors of Massachusets, who came over to America as a young man.

SECRETARY OF THE COUNTY ENGINEERS

Robert A. Meeker, of this city, was elected secretary of the State Association of County Engineers at a meeting in Trenton Tuesday afternoon. Twenty of the twenty-one counties of the State were represented by their engineers at the meeting, which was conducted in the offices of State Road Commissioner E. C. Hutchinson at the State House.

Good roads, their making, maintenance and repair were the spic topics under discussion.

The session was conducted until late in the afternoon. Prior to adjournment the following officers were elected: President, J. A. Albertson, of Camden; vice-president, Frank J. Eppele, of Mercer; secretary, Robert A. Meeker, State supervisor of roads; treasurer, Joshua Doughty, of Somerset. It was decided to meet in Trenton again next year.

State Road Commissioner Hutchinson entertained the members of the association at a dinner at Margerum's after the meeting.

erous layman gave us another $10,-000. At this late day there is but a small fraction of the necessary $10,-000 required to secure the Murphy bequest. At the last conference the treasurer's report showed him to be in possession of interest-bearing assets to the amount of $70,241. This produced a revenue of $3,091 for the year, which was paid to the conference stewards for distribution among the claimants to supplement the regular collection for 1906. This was brought about by donations from the Laymen's Association by the collecting of old subscriptions and some bequests, of the chief of which was the sale of property willed to the conference by the late Rev. Isaac W. Cole. This year's work has been entirely devoted to the effort to secure the balance of the $10,000 from the churches."

CALLS BOROUGH'S HAND

Stone Co. Objects to Council's Method of Receiving Bids and Awarding Contracts.

DECLARED UNLAWFUL

Assertion Sustained and New Bids Will Be Advertised For to Be Opened When Received.

Asserting that its method of receiving bids and making awards had been conducted contrary to law, the Watchung Stone Company, through its president, Champlain L. Riley, protested to the Borough Council, Friday, against giving out of the pole contract for furnishing the cracked stone needed in street work. In a communication, the reasons for the company's action were fully explained and after they had been heard by the council, Mayor Smalley made the motion that bids be readvertised for and the contract awarded in strict keeping with the legal conditions. A resolution to this effect was offered and carried.

In President Riley's communication, he stated that the borough had advertised for stone bids to be delivered at Frank W. Rowley's office at 218 West Front street on April 1. The general manager of the company was at the place on the date and at the specified hour, in the interest of bidding but neither his bids or any other was opened. The law demands that when bids or proposals for supplies or for public works or buildings are called for by officials, they must be opened in the presence of the parties bidding or their agents and the contents of each one made known, a record of the same being made for further reference.

Mr. Riley asserted that this was not done and when the manager asked Mr. Rowley when or where the bids would be opened he was unable to state. Thursday the chairman of the street committee informed Warren B. Travell, the stone company's manager, that no time or place had yet been fixed for opening the bids. The protest was made after receiving this information and the president's letter declared that no action should be taken on the bids, irrespective of the question whether the Watchung Stone Company was the lowest bidder or not. In a closing paragraph he wrote:

"Common fairness to bidders for the furnishing of supplies to the borough, and sound business principle as well, require that the time and place for receiving and opening such bids should be definitely fixed in the advertisements calling for them, and that the bids should be publicly opened at that time and place in the presence of the bidders and that immediately thereafter it be known that the bidders and the public may know that the bids are fairly presented and the contract awarded to the lowest bidder."

The communication was referred to the committee on streets and public health, and after the resolution calling for new bids was passed, Mayor Smalley asked that they be gotten as quickly as possible as the street department needs the stone.

In speaking of the matter this morning, Manager Travell, of the stone company, stated that Mayor Smalley had informed him that his concern was to get the contract and under the circumstances the protest could not be construed as a "get back" because of losing it. The company merely wished to point out, he said, that the Watchung method of receiving bids and awarding contracts was wrong and should be remedied.

In the regular order of business at the meeting, the Board of Health asked for an appropriation of $1,000 for its work in 1908, the same to be given to the secretary and treasurer on January 1 next. Recorder Dollitor reported eleven arrests during March and $20 in fines collected. Peter Dooley was appointed a regular fireman to succeed Ambrose Campbell, resigned, his pay to be $50 a month for the first three years. In connection with fire matters, Councilman Smith offered a resolution that new uniforms be purchased for the two small men at a cost not to exceed $40 and same was passed. Mr. McGee offered a resolution that $1,000 be borrowed to meet claims, after which council adjourned until next Monday night when a report on street matters will be presented by Councilman Waldron.

STATE G.A.R. ENCAMPMENT

Outline of Programme at Annual Reunion to be at Atlantic City.

MR. BRIGGS TO SPEAK

Department Commander Atkins Pays a Tribute to Grand Army —Special Trains.

A meeting of the joint committee of the City Council and Board of Trade on Monday was held recently to make arrangements for the annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, to be held there in June. Mayor Champion presided and welcomed Department Commander Alfred Atkins, who spoke with pleasure of the fact that the people of Ocean City had invited the encampment to be held there.

It was decided to spend $100 for badges. The portrait of Department Commander Atkins will be placed on them.

As outlined, the encampment programme is as follows:

Thursday—Meeting of encampment at 2 p. m.

Parade at 5 p. m.

Camp-fire in the evening, at which United States Senator Briggs is expected to be present and speak.

Friday—The business meetings of the encampment will be held, the sessions ending in the afternoon.

Organ recital in the First Presbyterian church in the evening.

One of the members of the committee having made a remark, as a joke, to Department Commander Atkins that Ocean City was a "dry town," Mr. Atkins replied:

"The Grand Army of the Republic is a temperance organization. I mean that. I don't mean that all are total abstainers, but most of them are temperate. I can say that within the last few months I visited seventy-seven posts, and in only three places was I offered anything stronger than coffee. The members of the Grand Army have enough respect for themselves not to drink while they are with others of them. Some do not like Trenton on this account. To the credit of the G. A. R., I may say that the majority of the members prefer coming to a place like Ocean City. We are proud of our record as soldiers and as one of our sentiments that we shall remain so and gain the confidence and esteem of the people."

On account of the encampment three special trains will be run from Jersey City to Ocean City. Extra facilities for handling the visitors will be given by the railroad companies just before and during the holding of the encampment.

N. J. AND P. T. PLANS A NEW TROLLEY LINE

WILL CONNECT SOMERVILLE WITH PRINCETON.

It is authoritatively announced that the New Jersey and Pennsylvania Traction Company will construct a new line from Princeton to Somerville, a distance of eighteen miles, during the coming summer. T. G. Kitchen, the engineer in charge of the surveys, is now on the work.

Mr. Kitchen states that part of the railway will be located on private right of way from fifty to 100 feet away from the public roads. Most of the public roads will be no grade crossings of any railroad. It is contemplated to establish a fraction fast line to Princeton which will cover the distance in twenty minutes.

The road will connect at Princeton with the Trenton line, making the first through trolley line from the State capital to the northern section of the State.

The road will also carry freight at night, and freight and passenger stations will be established in all towns along the line. There will be two bridges, the largest being across the Raritan river, where the bridge and its approaches will exceed 1,800 feet.

The Peasant Prince Coming.

Under the direction of William E. MacClymont, who will give his comic opera, "The Peasant Prince," at the New Plainfield theatre in May, the principals held a satisfactory rehearsal Wednesday night at his home. The opera gives promise of being one of the best Amateur productions yet seen here. The chorus comprises sixty people.

Philip S. Scovel Dead at 74.

Philip S. Scovel, 74 years old, widely known throughout South Jersey, where he had practised as a lawyer for half a century, died Wednesday at his home, 108 State street, Camden, from complications following an attack of grip. He is survived by a widow and six children.

Shortest Will Filed In Hudson.

Johnson H. Dudley, late of 371 Bergen avenue, Jersey City, who died on February 23, left one of the shortest wills ever admitted to probate in Hudson county. It merely sets forth that the estate is given to the testator's wife, Mrs. Harriet S. Dudley, and names her as executrix.

OIL AND TAR FOR ROADS

Union's Board of Freeholders Will Treat County Highways With Both.

GIFT OF GEN. DRAKE

Members of Board On Tour of Inspection—Found Last Year's Work Had Good Results.

When the appropriation for repairs of county roads are made in May by the Union County Board of Freeholders the work of oiling and taring the roadways for the laying of dust will be resumed. Having this in mind the committee on county roads, consisting of Freeholders Adams, Kroused, Chadek and Pierson went through a portion of the county Wednesday afternoon to note the results of the use of oil and tar last year.

They left Elizabeth in carriages and went out Rahway avenue as far as Rahway and then to Westfield avenue. Major King, the director of the board, who accompanied the committee, said today that in a general way they found the roads they traveled over in very fair condition.

The oil and tar were distributed during the latter part of August last year on Rahway and Westfield avenue westward from the city line. On Westfield avenue the tar was used to a short distance above Bender's Hotel. Beyond that point the oil was used.

On Rahway avenue the tar was distributed for an eighth of a mile from the city line and oil used afterward. In all about eight miles of the road was treated.

The committee found yesterday that there was no lasting result of the distribution of oil but the effects of the sprinkling of tar was still noticeable in some spots. Because of this they are of the opinion that the tar is the more serviceable, but it is much more expensive. Using oil on the roads the expense is about $90 a mile, while the use of tar or "Tarvia," as it is called in trade, costs about $800 a mile.

Last year the oil and tar were distributed over the roads by men carrying large sprinkling pots filled from a tank wagon or truck. This year an effort will be made to have the boilers in which the oil and tar are heated mounted on specially constructed carts with sprinklers attached, and in this way save much of the cost of labor.

The appropriation last year for all county road expenditures was $17,-500, and about the same amount will be appropriated this year. The roads treated will be in the more thickly-populated districts.

PURELY ROUTINE WORK AT FREEHOLDERS' SESSION

BOARD TO PLACE A BRONZE TABLET IN THE COURT HOUSE.

Matters chiefly of a routine nature were considered at the April meeting of the Union County Board of Freeholders, Thursday afternoon. It was reported that a bridge on Westfield avenue, near Woodbridge, was damaged somewhat by the heavy cables of the telephone company, which are run across it, and the board decided to fix it and send the bill to the telephone company.

It was decided to place a bronze tablet near the guns in the Union County Court House, giving of history of them.

The committee appointed to arrange for the widening of the county road at South avenue and Broad street, Westfield, reported that it would be necessary to buy land to make the improvement, and it recommended that Westfield buy the land and then the avenue could be widened. The board has no authority to purchase land for such purposes.

A letter was received from the secretary of the Staten Island Ferry Company, stating that he desired to confer with a committee from the board on a plan to rearrange fares.

FANWOODITES COMPLAIN.

The Fanwood Township Committee, at its April meeting Friday, received a delegation of residents from Alton, who entered a protest against the action of John Mair in blocking the ditches in front of his property and forcing the water to back up and cover the land of adjoining property-owners. The complaint was made by Louis Teitz, who said that his corpa and property in the past had been damaged to the extent of several hundred dollars.

After an investigation it developed that the course of the water was an artificial one and the committee advised the delegation that its redress would have to be secured through the courts, that the committee had no power to act.

Mahlon Decker In Town.

Mahlon S. Decker, the veteran guide at Lake Hopatcong, and considered one of the best fishermen in the county, has been spending a few days in town as the guest of Freeholder S. P. T. Wilbur.

Three Flags and a Banner Given to Union County to Hung in Court House.

Silken Banner Cost $1,000—Flags Had Waved In Great Battles of the Rebellion.

An interesting ceremony took place Thursday afternoon in the Freeholders room of the Union County Court House in Elizabeth at the monthly meeting of the board. It was presentation to the County of Union of three battle flags and a banner which had been in the possession of Elizabeth's Veteran Zouaves for more than twenty years. Two of the flags formerly were carried by the Fourth United States Infantry in the Civil War, while the other was the battle flag of Phil Kearny's Brigade.

The banner, a silken one valued at $1,000, was presented to the Zouaves in July, 1886, in San Francisco, by the George H. Thomas Veteran Guard of that city when the Zouaves made their memorable trip across the continent to attend the annual national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic in the City of the Golden Gate.

General J. Madison Drake, commander of the Zouaves for forty years, presented the relics.

In making the presentation he said, in part:

"These remnants of the colors of the Fourth United States Infantry, presented to me by Captain William H. Gill, U. S. A., who long since crossed the silent river, waved in the fore-front at Fredericksburg, Antietam, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, and were with Grant when he swept through the Wilderness.

"The silken banner, a beautiful work of Oriental art, costing more than $1,000, was presented to the Veteran Zouaves of this city by the George H. Thomas Veteran Guard of San Francisco, Cal., while guests of that city during the year 1886.

"These relics of the greatest fratricidal conflict the world has ever known, beside which all other contests were pigmies in comparison, which I today deliver into your custody, lent the lustre of their stars to the cause of despair as well as to joy in the hour of victory, grandly borne as they were by brave hands forward through smoke and carnage, planting them at last, after four long and terrible years, on the edge of the spring lines of Appomattox. Four years of the lives of our country's defenders are wrought into their faded woof.

Died for the Flag.

"I recall instances of unparalleled bravery exhibited in the war for the Union, where more than five men in one regiment, who loved ever flag above all things else, sacrificed their lives, one after another, in defending our beautiful and priceless standard from the foe. It was instances of this character that added luster to the American soldier, and established for him a reputation for courage and interpidity never attained by any other. It was because of this inborn heroism that our unsullied flag now floats upon hosestly gained but useless possessions in a far-off land, however much it may look like fact, and it is because of this that America's glorious sun of peace is now in the zenith, high up under the dome of the Union, preserved by the sacrifices of its gallant defenders, its refulgent rays illuminating a happy and prosperous land, and each star and flag, from whose ethereal blue no star was lost in disunion's eternal night of political darkness.

"And what is the lesson which we should carry away from this scene—what the suggestion which surings from this memorable day but that, if is anything, it seems to me to be this—that we need, all of us, to emulate the robust fidelity to all the duties of citizenship which the soldiers of the Union uniformly displayed, and to seek with equal self-sacrifice the best good of the people in all the relations we sustain, and every exercise we make of the power inherent in us."

Freeholder Benjamin King, director of the Board of Freeholders, accepted the gift in behalf of the county.

Forty Years Wed.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry. Corsa, of East Second street, celebrated their fortieth wedding anniversary Wednesday night, the affair being held at the Camera Club rooms. Dancing was a feature of the evening, the Virginia Reel being a popular number. During the evening supper was served. Mr. and Mrs. Corsa received a number of gifts, including a Morris chair from the East Second Street Euchre Club.

Rogers Renamed.

Captain John M. Rogers, adjutant of the Second Regiment of the National Guard, has been renamed for that post by Colonel Nelson Y. Dungan. Captain Rogers, in accordance with the military custom, resigned when the new colonel was elected to office. His resignation was not accepted.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Dunn, of Sandford avenue, have been entertaining Mrs. Dunn's mother, Mrs. Van Vleck, of Rahway.

BOROUGH IN THE CLUTCHES OF SOMERSET COUNTY JOY PREST OF LAYMEN

Councilmanic Committee Reports That There is No Hope of Securing Fair Return for Taxes.

ITS ROADS NEGLECTED

Mr. Hyde Furnished Figures to Show How North Plainfield Suffers at Hands of Board of Freeholders.

After an investigation that has been in progress since the communication was first received, the Laws, Ordinance and Taxation Committee of the Borough Council Friday reported on Francis DeL. Hyde's protest that the Somerset county Board of Freeholders discriminated against North Plainfield in the expenditure of money for road improvements. At his own expense, Mr. Hyde had maps prepared and figures compiled to show where the borough residents were not receiving just returns for the taxes they paid and that sections at the other end of the county were getting all the benefits. As he is one of Plainfield's largest property owners he asked that something be done to compel the freeholders to make a more equal division and in his communication he suggested appealing to the State Legislature if the matter could not be adjusted otherwise.

The Laws, Ordinance and Taxation Committee was authorized to follow up the protest and the report they submitted was as follows:

Your committee on laws, ordinances and taxation would report on the communication of F. DeL. Hyde, president, &c., Union County Investment Co., to the Mayor and Council of this borough, and referred to this committee, as follows:

That while it deprecates the condition of affairs disclosed by the petition and accompanying map (which without verification we assume to be correct) that the borough does not, in the opinion of the petitioner, receive from the Board of Chosen Freeholders its just ratio of benefits in proportion to the amount of county taxes paid by the property owners, still after consideration and investigation we are of the opinion that upon the facts as stated in said communication no successful legal action can be taken against the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Somerset county.

The phraseology of the great majority of the statutes referring to freeholders is "The said freeholders are hereby authorized to lay out, alter and change roads which have been rendered impassable;" again, "It shall be lawful for the Board of Chosen Freeholders to improve and keep in repair such new roads," and again, "That any board of chosen freeholders may cause any or all roads over which it shall have acquired and assumed control in the manner provided by law to be suitably lighted," &c., &c., thus showing that their power is considered discretionary. In support of this we find in the case of the State vs. The Freeholders of Essex, reported in 3 Zabriskie at page 214, where an application in the name of the State, by William O. Price and others, for a mandamus to the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Essex to compel them to erect and rebuild a bridge," &c. Judge Nevius states, and cites as his authority, exparte Nelson 1 Cow. 417, "That where an inferior jurisdiction, vested with discretionary power to do or omit any particular act, has not been guilty of clear and manifest abuse, in the exercise of that discretion a mandamus ought not to be granted for the court cannot control and ought not to coerce that discretion." Hence we are of the opinion that it would be inexpedient to involve the borough in litigation and the expenses attendant thereon, in a question of this kind where there seems to be no prospects of a result favorable to the borough.

As to the suggestion in the petition that we seek legislative aid to correct the grievance therein complained of, namely to govern the expenditure of the moneys in the possession of the freeholders in the different political subdivisions in proportion to the amount received by them from said subdivisions or "on the basis of taxes actually paid by the taxpayer of the borough or township or in the basis of population." We are of the opinion that the Legislature would refuse to deprive the Boards of Chosen Freeholders of the discretionary power which they now have.

Yale Concerts.

Better and stronger than ever the Yale Glee, Banjo and Mandolin Clubs will be at the Casino on Friday night, April 26, under the auspices of the Plainfield Yale Club. It is said that the clubs have a number of specialties that make a hit. The concert will be followed by a dance.

JUDGE J. B. DILL HOST OF MASONIC MASTERS

JURIST HONORS THE RETIRING AND NEW HEADS OF ANCIENT ORDER.

The leading Masonic function of the season was held last night in the Women's Club, East Orange, in the form of a reception given by Judge James B. Dill to the incoming grand master of Masons of New Jersey, Austen Hall McGregor, of Newark, and to the outgoing grand master, Walter Chandler, of Elizabeth. The reception was largely attended by men who are prominent in Masonic and busines circles in this State, among them being Jacob Kirkner, of this city, past grand commander of the Knights Templar of New Jersey.

Elaborate preparations were made to have the reception a grand success. The auditorium where the function was held was a mass of decorations, including palms, ferns and cut flowers, and streamers of the national colors.

The music was furnished by Claude's string orchestra, and vocal music by Hope Lodge Glee Club, under the leadership of Arthur D. Woodruff, of New York. The orchestra was entirely hidden on the stage by an embankment of ferns and flowers.

Following the reception the doors were opened by Justice J. Franklin Fort, of the Supreme Court, who acted as master of ceremonies, and introduced as the speaker of the evening, Grand Master Austen H. McGregor, who delivered an address on "Brotherhood and Masonry." Winthrop E. Scarritt was the next speaker and at the conclusion of his remarks presented to Judge Dill, the host of the evening, in behalf of his guests, a costly silver service. The gift was taken by surprise, as he said that the gift was entirely unexpected. In a few well chosen remarks the judge thanked his brother Masons for the gift. The jewel is very expensive and is of the best of workmanship.

Other addresses were delivered by Past Grand Master Walter Chandler, Right Worshipful Deputy Grand Master William D. Wolfskell, of Elizabeth, and Right Worshipful Grand Warden J. Clarence Conover, of Freehold.

A banquet followed the speeches and good fellowship prevailed at the table.

Following the banquet dancing was indulged in.

The reception committee consisted of the following well-known Masons: Austen Hall McGregor, Walter Chandler, Justice J. Franklin Fort, General H. Heber Breintnall, all of Newark, and General Joseph W. Congdon, of Paterson.

MRS. GERKEN QUITS HORSE SHOW IN ANGER

DISPLEASED BECAUSE HER FAMOUS TEAM FAILED TO LAND BLUE RIBBON

Because her famous pair of high steppers, "Newsboy" and "Shopgirl," which were exhibited at Plainfield's first horse show, were defeated for the first prize in the Durland horse show, New York, Wednesday, Mrs. John Gerken, their owner and driver, threw the red ribbon presented her for second honors, on the tanbark and drove straight from the ring to the street. She snubbed her whip as she vanished as if expressing her opinion of the judge's decision.

Experts who have often seen the Gerken pair bear off first honors in shows said that "Newsboy" and "Shopgirl" were not up to their best form in appearance last night. They did not seem to be in the pink of condition, while C. W. Watson's mares, "Kittie Gray" and "Chatterbox," going together like one horse with true and brilliant action, put up the performance of their lives. Competition was wholly between these pairs and Mrs. Gerken had been confident that hers would get the blue.

Mrs. Gerken did not enter her horses in the local show last summer and it was said at the time that she had not been pleased with several decisions in which her horses figured second best the year before. While she owns a large number of prize-winning horses, "Newsboy" and "Shopgirl" are her especial pets and she has shown her temper on more than one occasion when they have failed to land the blue.

MONEY.

The first coining machine was invented by Bruchner in 1553.

The first cent and two cent pieces were first coined in 1864 and the nickel half dime in 1866.

The earliest Greek coins bore a lion or tortoise on one side and a punch mark on the other.

During the reign of Numa Pompilius, 700 B. C., an experiment was made with wooden money.

Edward Kennerd Returns Home.

Edward Kennerd, of the borough, who was one of the forty-five U. S. marines stricken with typhoid fever at Colon several weeks ago, has returned home from the Brooklyn Navy Yard hospital. The attack was not severe and he will be entirely well inside of ten days.

A LIGHTING CONFERENCE

Representatives of City P.P.A. Discuss Contract With P. S. C. Officials.

WILL MEET AGAIN

Said That a Rebate Will Be Made for Past Service and a Lower Rate Given in the New Contract.

For the ultimate purpose of making a new electric light contract with the Public Service Corporation, Mayor Charles J. Fisk arranged for a preliminary conference Wednesday to discuss informally such provisions as the company or city officials cared to introduce. The meeting was held in the Mayor's office.

The Public Service Corporation was represented by L. D. H. Gillmore, of Newark, assistant to Frank Bergen, chief counsel for the company; H. C. Richardson, in charge of the Metuchen branch, and J. K. Arnold, Jr., who is in charge of the electric department in this city. The city was represented by Mayor Fisk and F. L. Montgomery, Henry D. Hibbard and William S. Tyler, of the light and tree committee; George P. Mellick, from the committee on public affairs; President Daniel, of the Common Council, and by courtesy of the Mayor, R. Henry Depew, Henry Hibbard and F. E. Kinsman, of the Plainfield Protective Association, attended.

The conference was purely for the purpose of considering matters pertaining to the street lighting in Plainfield, and while nothing that transpired last night is binding on either the city or the P. S. C., many suggestions were offered on both sides and some of these will be incorporated in a new contract to be drafted and submitted before final action is taken by the Common Council or the company.

It was admitted by the representatives of the company that there were certain irregularities in the lighting service in the past and they gave every assurance that in the future they would be corrected in so far as it would be possible to do so.

A feature of the discussion was the proposition offered by Mayor Fisk. It was that certain allowances be made by the company to the city for the irregularities in the past. This appeared to be well received by Mr. P. S. C. representatives and they promised to present it to the company and do all in their power to effect a satisfactory adjustment of the contract. One sure thing developed as a result of the conference and that is the probability of a substantial reduction in the future in the price of both arc and incandescent light services, and the city will have a far more satisfactory contract with the company.

Wednesday's conference was one of several that will probably be held. There was free and full discussion of the lighting question in which all present took part. The session lasted from 8 o'clock until nearly midnight and was harmonious in every way. The company representatives showed in every way their willingness to cooperate with the city in giving good and satisfactory service.

The Public Service Corporation light bills have been held up this year by the Common Council, pending the making of a new contract, and at each meeting the bills were simply laid over as not ready for audit. When the new contract is made the Common Council will act on the old bills.

GODD TO KNOW.

Bananas should not be put into a refrigerator—in fact they should never be allowed to get colder than 60 degrees. A chill turns bananas black, prevents them ever ripening properly and renders them unfit for use.

Fruit stains upon the hands may be removed by rubbing with the juice of ripe tomatoes.

Don't be afraid of being too clean or washing away your skin with too frequent use of soap. Pure soap is a tonic, and if needs be it can be used twice a day on the entire body with no other than beneficial effects. The cold bath is stimulating and pleasant, bupt it is not a cleansing bath.

For rheumatism try the very simple cure of hot water. Take at least a pint before retiring at night. The object of taking hot water late at night is that during the hours you are resting, and the digestion is not being tried, the hot water can do its work on the gastric juices.

TO CLEAN LEATHER.

Carefully dust the leather, then wash with warm water, being particular to remove all soiled spots and dirt.

Wipe dry and then wipe over with a black cloth dipped into the beaten white of egg mixed up with its bulk of warm water.

Flaxseed water is always good for cleaning leather-upholstered furniture.

Pour half a cupful of boiling water over two tablespoonfuls of flaxseed and bring to the boiling point. Strain and when cool apply with a cloth to the leather.

DEWEY PARK CAR BARNS OPENED WITH RECEPTION

EMPLOYES AND THEIR FRIENDS THE GUESTS OF PUBLIC SEVICE.

The new car barns of the Public Service Corporation, located at Dewey Park, were formally opened Thursday, the event being marked by a big reception to employees and their friends by the corporation. It was an unique event in more ways than one and the first time the Public Service has ever shown its hospitality in the social line.

The motormen, conductors and other employees of the Elizabeth, Plainfield and New Brunswick divisions were invited by the company to attend the opening and each was given the privilege of bringing one or two friends. The result was a crowd of several hundred arriving at the barns, many of the visitors being there an hour or more was spent in looking over the place and afterward everybody gathered in the main storage room which had been arranged with seats. The throng was addressed by J. W. Vreeland, vice president and superintendent of transportation; R. S. Church, claims agent in Union and Middlesex counties, and J. B. Gettings, district superintendent. They spoke of the company's reasons in making the change to Plainfield and other places to Dewey Park and declared that the move would be much more beneficial to the employees.

An orchestra from this city was in attendance and rendered musical selections. Solos were also rendered by Messrs. Hunter, of Elizabeth, and Boyle, of New Brunswick, while Frank Quinn, of Westfield, gave a song and dance. Refreshments were served in conclusion and for those who cared to remain, dancing became the order.

The committee which arranged and had charge of teh affair for the company consisted of George Luhr, chairman; William Davenport, Michael Walsh, Joseph Durfee, Jerry Griffin, Fred Selfridge and George Fine.

HOLY CROSS BOYS' CLUB SCORES A HIT

GOOD EVENING'S ENTERTAINMEN PROVIDED BY THE BOROUGH LADS.

Under the auspices of the Boys' Club of the Church of the Holy Cross a fine entertainment was given in the parish house, Wednesday, before a large audience. The programme, as arranged by the rector, Rev. George A. Warner, was full of fun and kept everyone in good humor from beginning to end.

Features of the entertainment were solos by Rowland Bomeisler, the boy soprano from Grace church, East Orange. He sang "Two Maidens," by Edgar Newcomb; "Twickenham Ferry," by Marzials, and "Daddy's Little Baby Boy," by Neidlinger, and he received a great ovation.

The programme opened with a selection by a trio, "Smiles and Caresses," first and second violin and piano, Messrs. Berse, Knowlton and Conroy, and after two selections by Rowland Bomeisler, the roaring farce, "The Ruggles in Society," was given by the following cast:

"Mrs. Ruggles," Earl Moran; "Sarah Maud," Walter Knowlton; "Jane Maxwell Ruggles," Peter Riley; Howard Riley; "Kitty," Alan Diman; "Clement," Carroll Taylor; "Elly," Walter Thomas; "Cornelius," Karl Noble; "Peoria," Harold Noble; "Larry," Harry Kanen.

The appearance of the German Band was a great success and their selections were well received. Following another solo by Rowland Bomeisler, the laughable sketch, entitled "Jumbo Jim," was given by this cast:

"Jumbo Jim," Russell Conroy; "Mr. Gobbleton," William Little; "Lawyer Cheatem," Ira Vail; "Henry Merville," Fred Gray; "Adelaide," Percy Watson; "Hannah," William Taylor; "Mrs. Gobbleton," Bert Miller; three laborers, Russell Vail, Harold Blazier and Benjamin Berse.

The club will net a profit of $50 which will go toward the fund for the summer's outing.

CHURCH AND CLERGY.

The Lutheran church recently issued a call for 1,000 new ministers to fill vacancies in that denomination.

A large Filipino Methodist Episcopal church is in process of erection in a prominent location in the city of Manila.

In Bloomsbury, London, recently a clergyman conducted the service and preached for about five minutes to an absolutely empty church.

The Free churches of England have sittings for 1,000,000 more members than have the Episcopal churches and nearly double as many Sunday-school teachers.

Clergymen in Scotland have been discomfited recently on discovering imitation money, made of silvered pasteboard and looking like shillings, in the offertory on Sundays. One minister says that no one "can quarrel with the ingenuity displayed in the manufacture of these 'coins.' They are absolutely perfect—to look at."

HOPE CHAPEL HOLDS CONGREGATIONAL MEETING

ENCOURAGING REPORTS RECEIVED FROM THE VARIOUS ORGANIZATIONS.

Hope chapel's congregation held its annual meeting for the reception of reports and the transaction of various items of business. Rev. L. R. Howard presided as chairman and Ralph Eckert was made secretary. The attendance was large.

It was shown by the reports that all the organizations connected with the chapel had enjoyed a prosperous year and that the outlook is very encouraging. The benevolences raised from all sources amounted to $2,400, exclusive of the Henry C. Squires' organ memorial fund for which $745.13 is now in hand. Fourteen new members were received into the church during the year and there are now 395 names on the roll. The congregation raised $1,009.21 in the past twelve months, according to the report of Treasurer Robert Slorah.

The Sunday-school department now has a membership of over 500 and the average attendance appears under the superintendency of the late Henry C. Squires has been continued since H. R. Munger and G. Herbert Condict have been in charge, the latter being superintendent at the present time. Treasurer John H. Case reported the school's receipts for the year to have been $598.44 with a balance of $19.38. A general report for the department was given by Mr. Condict and though he has not been in charge long enough to be thoroughly familiar with the details before he succeeded Mr. Munger, the gathering received a comprehensive resume.

Reports were received from the secretaries and treasurers of the various organizations as follows: Ladies' Aid Society, Mrs. M. W. Clark, secretary; Mrs. L. R. Howard, treasurer; membership thirty-seven: receipts for the year $388.98; balance on hand, $48. Ladies' Missionary Society, Mrs. M. W. Clark, secretary; Mrs. Joseph Brown, treasurer; membership, forty-seven; receipts for the year, $116.46, not including a missionary box of $50; balance, $7.41. Church Boys' Club, Morris Hunter, secretary; Miss Clara Hunter, treasurer; membership, twenty-seven; receipts for the year, $26.90; balance, $3.10. Men's Club, Wallace Morton, secretary; H. C. Vogel, treasurer; membership, twenty-five. Boys' Club secretary, Walter Firstbrook; treasurer, Harry Kerney; membership, thirty; receipts for past six months, $53.02; balance $14.58. Mary Miller Wright Memorial Missionary Society, Miss Clara Eckert, secretary; Mrs. L. R. Howard, treasurer; membership twenty; only three meetings have been held, the society having been organized only a short time ago. Flower Committee Women's Bible Class, Mrs. John Johnson, treasurer; receipts for the year, $19.74; balance, $4.09; Flower Committee Men's Bible Class, Donald McInness and Thomas Hendry, treasurers; receipts $5.06; balance $4.58. Penny-a-Week Society, receipts for the year, $190.91, $50 having been paid for the education of a little girl at Wolfpoint, Mont. Cooking School, report presented by Miss Clara E. Masters; thirty-eight members, four teachers and four substitutes.

Robert Slorah was re-elected treasurer with Walter Bradford, Thomas Hendry, Donald McInness and Fred Wharton assistants. A new Ways and Means committee was appointed to consist of David Bowden, Walter Firstbrook, Donald McInness, Henry C. Vogel, John Slorah and Mrs. M. W. Clark.

WATCHUNG STONE CO. HAS PUT IN APPARATUS.

Champlain L. Riley Chosen Head of New Stone Crushing Concern.

The Watchung Stone Company, recently incorporated under the laws of the State, has established an office at 816 Third place. The officers are President, Champlain L. Riley; vice president, H. W. Riley; secretary, Ira W. Travell; treasurer and general manager, Warren B. Travell.

The company's plant is located on the first mountain at the head of Harrison street, the borough, where thirty acres have been acquired and complete and modern equipment established there. The land extends from the top of the mountain to the base, where storage pockets and weighing scales have been built and Watchung avenue and Harrison street. The plant is equipped with a crusher of the Gyratory type, the output being from 200 to 400 tons a day. A. Robins' belt conveyor is used to carry the stone from the crusher on the summit to a long gravity railway 1,000 feet long carries the stone from the screen to the large storage, which has a capacity of 1,500 tons, arranged so that teams can drive through the tunnels beneath them.

The company has received the contract from the city to supply it with crushed stone during the coming year, its bid of $1.04 being the lowest of several received. It is expected that the contract will be publicly awarded at the next Common Council meeting.

Miss Frances Rafferty, of White Plains, who has been visiting her parents on Sandford avenue, has returned.

DRUNKS STIR THE FORCE

Two Calls For Patrol Wagon Causes Much Scurrying of Cops.

SALOON DOOR SMASHED

Dog Fancier Beaved a Rock When More Drink Was Refused—Seventy-Year-Old One Disappeared.

Because he had been refused more drink by the bartender, George H. Parker, 48 years old, of Cushing road, a breeder of fancy dogs, threw a rock through a pane of glass in the door of Rafferty's saloon, Park avenue, Friday afternoon. He had been drinking more than was good for him, and the barkeeper decided he had had all that was necessary for any one man to carry. Parker, enraged at the refusal to serve him with more liquor, went out into the roadway, picked up a stone and drove it straight into the doorpane. Then he ran.

Patrolman Charles Flynn started after him a few minutes later, on a wheel and overtook him on East Fifth street near Watchung avenue. Parker was highly excited, and gave the policeman trouble. He tried to hit Flynn several times, and the policeman was forced to block quickly. Parker cut himself about the head and face in his tantrums.

The street fracas caused considerable excitement. Parker swore a blue streak in a loud tone, and this and his struggles drew a big crowd. On the way down Fifth street, Patrolman McGinley met his fellow officer and the prisoner was taken into his instance. A bit further on Patrolman Tobias Nolan fell in behind the other two policemen. At the Watchung avenue corner Policemen Theodore Martin and Frank Sweeney were standing as the others came up. At the same time, the patrol wagon rattled down the avenue and a short distance behind came Detective-Sergeant Flynn on a bicycle. Just as the drunk was heaved into the wagon, Patrolman McDonald turned into Watchung avenue from North avenue. The people who happened to be passing gathered an impression that a riot call had been sounded. Nothing happened after Mr. Parker was pushed along the bottom of the patrol wagon, and the bluecoat force silently molted away. Some of the excitement was transferred to Park avenue and Second street a few minutes later when the wagon was called out to the curb in front of the Hotel Kensington. When the wagon got to the scene the drunk had disappeared, and most of the loose cops, re-enforced by Patrolman Payne scurried about that corner. They didn't find the drunk, because a North Plainfield clergyman had taken him under his guidance.

Maze Green, of North Plainfield, a seventy-year-old, was the drunk. The clergyman couldn't hold him in his custody and turned him over to the police at the station house.

Maze and the strenuous Parker were arraigned in the City Court this morning, both penitent. At Chief Kiely's request, Parker's case was adjourned to Wednesday, in order to give the police a chance to get witnesses. Maze pleaded illness and a tendency to apoplexy, and won a suspended sentence. Judge Runyon said he didn't want Maze dying in a fit around the station house. Maze has been pinched before.

MONO FIELD CLUB COMPLETES ORGANIZATION.

Plans Made to Place a Strong Amateur Nine in the Local Baseball Field.

The Mono Field Club members met in the Hotel Iroquois parlors, Friday night and perfected organization by electing the following officers: President, William H. Bechtel; vice president, George A. Conover; secretary and treasurer, Dan F. Randolph; manager, Herbert Conover.

The club has planned to put one of the strongest amateur nines in the field that Plainfield has ever had and during the next couple of weeks the officers will devote considerable time to selecting the players for the team. Among the candidates for positions are John Enright, who was a member of the Safe Works league nine; Taylor Mehaffey, formerly with the P. H. S.; Jack Peacock, one of the borough High School's strongest men last year; Eugene McLaughlin, Frank Emmons, Richard Bird, Grover Schuck and several others who have done good work with local aggregations. New uniforms have been ordered and the schedule is being made up in order to get down to business by the first of May. City teams wanting games are asked to communicate with Manager Conover at once.

The club has planned to have a permanent home and a committee composed of Grover Schuck, Herbert Conover and Richard Bird was appointed to secure the needed rooms. They will report at another business meeting to be held next Thursday night at 8 o'clock.

Warner Philpott, of Westervelt avenue, gave a phonograph party at his home Wednesday night. There were about forty guests. The evening was spent in dancing and listening to many fine selections on the phonograph, including some of his own make.

Licensed As a Lay-Reader.

H. S. Guinn, of South avenue, superintendent of the Sunday-school at St. Stephen's church, has been licensed by Bishop Scarborough, as a lay-reader. It is quite necessary that there should be someone with authority who can act in case of emergency, and it was at the request of the rector, Rev. A. S. Peck, that Mr. Guinn was licensed.

Touzeau—Nelson.

Miss Beatrice Nelson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Nelson, of New Market, and Fred Touzeau, of Dunellen, were married quietly by Rev. Frank Fletcher, former pastor of the New Market Baptist church, at his home, in this city Thursday night. They will live in Dunellen where Mr. Touzeau is employed.

If It Decides to, the Event Will Follow that of the K. of C.

Committees from Franklin, Somerset, Benevolent and Plainfield Councils, Jr. O. U. A. M., met last evening to receive a proposition from W. S. Miller as to holding a carnival in Plainfield for a week during the summer.

As far as the committees were concerned the proposition was favorably received and they will report accordingly to their councils.

In case it is decided to hold the carnival it will not conflict with the one being planned for the first week in June by Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus. It would be held much later in the eason.

JR. O. U. A. M. MAY HOLD AN OUT-DOOR CARNIVAL.

"UNCLE DAN" DIED TODAY

D. S. Roberts, Member of "Big Six," Succumbs at the Age of 82 Years.

A FAMILIAR FIGURE

In the Livery Business All His Life—Until His Retirement—Survived By Seven Children.

Following an illness of nearly four weeks with an acute form of blood poisoning, former Councilman Dan S. Roberts, one of the oldest and best known residents of the two Plainfields, died Monday at his home on Prospect place. It was practically certain that recovery was impossible almost from the time he was first affected and during the last two weeks his death had been expected daily. The poisoning was confined to the lower limbs, but it was only exceptional vitality for a man of his years that kept him alive. He was conscious almost to the last moment and conversed with members of the family shortly before the end at 8:20.

Dan Spangenberg Roberts was born at Bethany, Pennsylvania, January 29, 1825, and when he was but a young man his parents moved to Wilkes-Barre. He engaged in the livery business or something, as he was known, and operated stage lines through the surrounding country, railroads at that time being few and far apart. He built up a great volume of business between Wilkes-Barre and Stroudsburg and the residents of that section may still remember the time when Dan Roberts handled the reins over the backs of some of the finest teams ever seen in the Wyoming Valley.

When Joseph Scranton, after whom the bustling Pennsylvania city is named, received the contract to make rails for the first stretches of the Erie Railroad, he secured Dan Roberts to take them from that place to Port Jervis, N. Y. It was a long haul and one fraught with many difficulties but Wilkes-Barre man was equal to the task and accomplished it to his satisfaction. When the last rail had been delivered, Mr. Roberts saw the opportunities there were in the rapidly growing town of Scranton and he located a livery business there. It grew rapidly and coupled with shrewd real estate deals the returns soon made him among the well-to-do residents of the place. His home was located in what is now the heart of the city and he held the property for many years.

In 1879 he decided to retire from business and was induced by friends to locate on a farm near Rahway. He spent a small fortune in improving the fields but soon became restless and chafed under the quiet life after the long period of activity. In 1886 he decided to re-enter business and came to Plainfield, starting a livery at Second street and Park avenue, where the Marsh building now stands. Soon afterward he took Jasper Cadmus as a partner but within a year sold out to him and acquired the stables conducted jointly with Latimer Hotel. They existed from West Front street down to the brook or where the New Madison and Stillman buildings have since been put up. He remained there until 1886, when he erected the building running from Park avenue to Second street, now occupied by the Plainfield Tab Company. He operated a livery there that became the best known in the city and conducted the business until six years ago, when he retired for the second time. Since then he had lived quietly on Prospect place.

In 1891, "Uncle Dan," as he had come to be known by everyone with whom he came in contact, was elected a member of the Common Council, he organized the "Big Six," which managed the city affairs at that time, the others being the late Seymour Smith, Walter L. Hetfield, Sr., Leonard Spangerberg, Carlos C. Gallup and the late Elmore D. Moffett. It was agreed among the "Big Six" that Joseph B. Coward should be appointed city clerk and in return the Democrats were to name the president and the committees. Roberts and Smith were Republicans. Charles Lyman, by three points in a whirlwind finish. His score was 100 against ninety-seven for Mr. Lyman. The tournament was in progress for a month and created the greatest en- thusiasm. At a reward for winning out Mr. Murphy received a handsome stick pin with a diamond and amethyst in the centre.

operate the city's affairs and they became known everywhere as the "Big Six." Despite the fact that they had exceptional power it is said that it was used only for the good of the community. When "Uncle Dan's" term was completed he retired and never again sought public office but always pointed with pride to his record as a city father.

Mr. Roberts married on July 4, 1847, Miss Elmira Lameraux, of Wilkes-Barre, who died three years ago. They were the parents of nine children, of whom seven are now living. They are Mrs. Emma Burr, of Scranton; Miss Adelaide Roberts, who resides at the home; Austin Roberts, of Brooklyn; William Roberts, of Scranton; George Roberts, of Philadelphia; Charles Roberts, of Somerville, and Harry Roberts, at home.

CONTRACT IS AWARDED FOR MEMORIAL WARD

HOSPITAL GOVERNORS GIVE THE WORK TO CHAS. M. WILSON.

Aside from the announcement of the fact that the contract for the building of the special ward at the hospital has been awarded to Charles M. Wilson, together with the report of the medical board, little was done at the April meeting of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, at the Casino, Monday. There was just a quorum present.

The report of the medical board was as follows: Patients remaining at date of last report, 39; patients admitted, 47; males, 21; females, 26; discharged cured, 41; males, 15; females, 23; improved, 6; males, 4; females, 2; died, 10; males, 3; females, 7. Total treated, 86; remaining, 39; males, 15; females, 14; hospital days, 1,096; operations, 52; dispensary patients treated, 44; males, 24; females, 20; dispensary visits, 98; operations, 11.

It is expected that next week Mr. Wilson will commence the work on the new ward which is given by Mr. and Mrs. James DeGraff and Mrs. Samuel Hufford, in memorium of it was recently published in The Daily Press.

MRS. TOWNSEND BURIED.

Three Speak at Services—Interment at Plains.

There was a large gathering of relatives and friends at the funeral services of Mrs. Phebe Ann Townsend, widow of Tappan Townsend, which was held Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock from the home on Mountain avenue, Scotch Plains.

There were three speakers, Joel Borton, of Woodstown, and William Richards, of New York, both members of the Society of Friends, and Rev. A. C. Nickerson, pastor of All Souls' church, this city. The interment was in the Baptist cemetery at Scotch Plains and the pall-bearers were Dr. F. W. Westcott, J. M. Bettens, Dr. Edward Washburne, Alfred Young, Townsend H. Fellows and S. P. T. Wilbur.

HOMEOPATHS TO MEET.

Will Hold Their Fifty-fourth Annual Session in May.

The Continental Hotel, Newark, will be the meeting place for the fifty-fourth annual session of the New Jersey State Homeopathic Medical Society on May 7. Two sessions will be held, one in the morning and one in the afternoon.

The following physicians will speak: Dr. H. C. Harrison, of Camden; Dr. Edward Washburne, of Plainfield; Dr. Percy L. Hare, of Atlantic City; Dr. R. F. Rabe, of Hoboken; Dr. Katharine Klein and Dr. Llewellyn E. Hetrick of Asbury Park.

A SPRING FRILL.

One of the little frills of the spring is the running of lace with folds of chiffon velvet. A very pretty gown of tan-colored broadcloth is finished at the neck with some cream-colored lace, fitted at the throat as a high stock. Through the open mesh of the lace there are run narrow bands of burned orange chiffon velvet, each little row of the velvet is finished at the back of the neck with a little gold buckle no bigger than a dime. Two of the handsome lace waists but are finished with narrow bands of chiffon velvet run through the lace.

WEDDING RECEPTION.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Willis Higgins, who were married last week, held a wedding reception at the house of the bride Monday, at 72 Somerset street. It was attended by a large gathering of friends, who presented the couple with many handsome gifts.

Songs, some of them illustrated, and dancing were enjoyed. Fred Long recited and sang. When the party broke up the guests sang "We'll Be Happy By-and-By."

Arthur Murphy Wins Tourney.

Arthur Murphy won the invitation bowling tournament at the Park Club, Saturday night, defeating Charles Lyman by three points in a whirlwind finish. His score was 100 against ninety-seven for Mr. Lyman. The tournament was in progress for a month and created the greatest en- thusiasm. At a reward for winning out Mr. Murphy received a handsome stick pin with a diamond and amethyst in the centre.

DESCRIBED TELEGRAPHONE

Instrument Records and Repeats Conversations Transmitted by Telephone.

LIKE HUMAN VOICE

Operator Speaks and Hears With One Transmitter-Receiver—Invention of Poulson.

An illustrated lecture describing the wonderful possibilities of the Telegraphone, an invention by Poulsen, of Copenhagen, was given before the Men's Club, of the First Baptist church, Monday night, by Willard M. Miner, of this city.

This machine, which was invented six years ago and which will be introduced in this country within the next two months, is an electro-magnetic instrument which exactly duplicates the human voice. It completes the telephone, supersedes talking-machines and widens the field of telegraphy.

A tiny steel wire receives vocal or other sounds from the electro-magnets, between which it passes, as it spins from the left spool to the right one. It records these sounds in the same operation and will duplicate them at any future time. The operator both speaks and hears with the one transmitter-receiver. The machine occupies but a small space, about six inches, and is not in the way. The disc or steel wire used to record conversations or other sounds are magnetized locally. The machine can be attached to a telephone, set automatically, and in case an office is located in the city can receive a message from a person at any distance, through the regular connections and when a person for whom the message is intended returns he can start his machine and the message will be repeated to him. The records are non-destructible, except through the use of a magnet stronger than the magnetization of the steel wire or disc.

Mr. Miner answered a great many questions showing the almost innumerable practical uses of the machine, in taking dictation of letters, as an amusement in the production of entire operas or other entertainments. It can be set to any speed and a person can transcribe messages from it on a typewriter or will, it records the conversation a hundred times if necessary. In the matter of agreements between two persons over a telephone, the instrument will record every word.

Last night Chester Briggs and Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan made records of mandolin and piano selections and conversation and they were repeated exactly as given. If necessary the machine will make a record for a four-hours' conversation.

Peary Plans New Trip.

New York, April 10.—Application of Robert E. Peary, U. S. N., for leave of absence of three years was approved yesterday by the Secretary of the Navy, and this action has uncovered the fact that Commander Peary purposes to make another attempt this summer to reach the North Pole. The three years' leave of absence during which he made his famous journey to the farthest point north ever reached by man—87 degrees, 6 minutes—expired last Sunday, and the new leave begins at once. Preparations for another dash toward the Pole have been under way all winter, but Commander Peary and his associates of the Peary Arctic Club have been keeping secret their action, as it would be a breach of courtesy, if not of discipline, for the naval officer to announce his voyage until his superiors made it possible by their approval. The order granting the leave of absence stipulates that the time is to be devoted to arctic exploration, so that

AID ASSOCIATIONS MERGE

Charity Organization of Plainfield and North Plainfield is Formed.

TRUSTEES ARE NAMED

Body of Fifteen to Conduct Affairs of New Society—Its Objects Outlined.

Following considerable detail work a merger of the Organized Aid Association and the Plainfield Relief Association was effected at a joint meeting of the associations held in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, last night. It was a largely attended meeting and great interest was manifested in the consolidation. The action last night was in reality a ratification of that previously taken by the executive committees of the two associations, when resolutions authorizing the consolidation were adopted.

Dr. Henry M. Maxson, as president of the Organized Aid Association, presided and a meeting of that body was held first. The secretary, William S. Tyler, read the resolution, which was adopted by the executive committee on April 9, and by a majority vote it was adopted by the members. Out of a membership of 154 there were eighty votes cast in favor and none against.

Considerable amusement was occasioned when C. W. McCutchen, whose name was not called by the secretary, remarked that it was not often that he had the opportunity to vote in Union county and he would like to avail himself of it. This led to the discovery that several other names were omitted and after an explanation they were called and the votes recorded. It was stated by Mr. Tyler that in effecting a merger many technical points had arisen and it was the aim of the officers to simplify them as much as possible.

The meeting of the Plainfield Relief Association then followed and at the request of its president, Mrs. J. Kirtland Myers, Dr. Maxson continued as the presiding officer. Miss Mabel Pierson was the secretary. The association took exactly the same action as the other organization, and thus by the unanimous adoption of the resolution the consolidation became a fact. The relief association showed a membership of 126. Of course, names appeared on the membership list of both associations, and this will be straightened out in perfecting details.

The combined officers will now file a certificate of incorporation in the office of the county clerk under the new name, "Charity Organization Society of Plainfield and North Plainfield," after which the fifteen chosen trustees will meet and organize by electing officers. The trustees chosen for the first year are the following:

Henry L. DePorest, Hugh R. Fox, Mrs. Samuel Huntington, Henry M. Maxson, Samuel St. John, C. Cutchen, Mrs. Frederick G. Mead, John Doull Miller, Dr. William H. McCray, Mrs. J. Kirtland Myers, Miss Mabel Pierson, Mrs. Charles S. Cater, Mrs. Percy H. Stewart, Mrs. Elizabeth Tiffany, William S. Tyer and William G. Wright.

The objects of the association are set forth in the resolution adopted by the executive committees of the two previous associations, which was published in The Daily Press recently. They are identical with those heretofore adopted, the only difference being that it will prevent a lapping of aid given to deserving persons and make possible a stronger organization.

The Plainfield Relief Association was the oldest organization of the two, it now being in its twenty-ninth year. During its existence it has filled a peculiar and effectual place in its efforts to care for the poor of the city and borough. There was such harmony between it and the Organized Aid Association, which was formed about twelve years ago, that one proved a help to the other. Yet notwithstanding the great care exercised there was occasionally an over-lapping of charity and it was this that brought about the merger. Under the new order of things this will be impossible and the newly-formed association will be in a far better position to attend to the needs of those who deserve help.

Selects Provisional Brigade.

Brigadier-General D. F. Collins yesterday received notice that he had been selected by General F. Farnier Wanser to command the provisional brigade which will represent New Jersey at the unveiling of the General George B. McClellan monument at Washington, D. C. The brigade will be made up of the Third Regiment, Second Troop, and Battery B of the National Guard of New Jersey.

Sesame Club Meeting.

The Sesame Club will meet tomorrow morning at the home of Mrs. A. C. Nickerson, No. 768 Kensington avenue.

MR. DE ROSSET WEDS AT SISTER'S HOME

MARRIES MISS GENEVIEVE SMITH AT MRS. PARKER'S RESIDENCE.

Miss Genevieve Smith and Graham de Rosset, both of New York, were married yesterday afternoon at the home of the groom's sister, Mrs. Andrew McClean Parker, of West Seventh street, by the Rev. Franklin S. Moore, rector of St. Mary's church, Alexandria avenue, New York. The affair was a quiet one, being attended only by the immediate relatives of the couple.

Mrs. Daves, of New York, a cousin of the bride, was matron-of-honor, and Armand de Rosset, brother of the groom, was best man. Miss Adelaide Parker, niece of the groom, was flower girl. The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, James Schofield, of East Orange. An informal reception followed the ceremony and later Mr. and Mrs. de Rosset left for North Carolina, where they will visit relatives of the groom prior to making their home in New York. Among the guests were Captain and Mrs. James Parker, of Perth Amboy.

POLITICAL ASPECT OF MORMON CHURCH

MRS. RANDOLPH READS PAPER AT THE WOMEN'S MISSIONARY SESSION.

Letters from the home mission fields, appointment of committees and a paper by Mrs. L. V. P. Randolph on the "Political Aspect of the Mormon Church," were features of the meeting of the Women's Home Missionary Society, of the First Baptist church, yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Reuben Knox, the president, was in the chair.

Mrs. Alexander D. Mallison conducted the devotional exercises, after which interesting letters were read from Miss McLean, of the Hopi Indians in Arizona, and from Mrs. MacMurray, who is in charge of the mission station in Oneida county, Kentucky, in the mountain white district.

Six new life members were added to the society's roll—Mrs. Morris A. Zook, Mrs. Hannah Y. Flanders, Mrs. J. A. Pawlson, Miss Jennie Whitney, Mrs. Harold Serrell and Miss Laura J. Runyon. Mrs. Knox announced these committees for the year: Work—Mrs. Harold Serrell, Mrs. J. B. Probasco, Mrs. F. E. Klinsman. Music—Mrs. J. Hervey Buchanan. Music—Mrs. George White, Miss Anna Bolce. Programme—Mrs. J. A. Chamblass, Mrs. Hannah Y. Flanders, Miss Jennie Whitney. Barrel and box—Miss Ida Yerkes, Mrs. Alexander Thorn, Mrs. J. A. Powlson. Appraising value of barrels and boxes—Mrs. Walter M. McGee, Mrs. George A. Chapman, Mrs. B. J. Shreve.

The rest of the afternoon was devoted to the reading of a paper by Mrs. L. V. F. Randolph, which was full of interesting facts concerning the Mormon church and the political aspect of it. She visited Utah in 1880 and while there gained much knowledge about the Mormons and their religion. She stated that one method to be employed by the Mormons in furthering the interest of their religion is that of sending two missionaries into every county of every State in the United States.

It was the opinion of Mrs. Randolph that while the Mormons are naturally quiet in their manner of adding converts to the church and spreading the principles of their religion, they are growing stronger and their influence is spreading to all parts of the country. Mrs. Randolph exhibited a Mormon Bible, which she obtained in Utah and this was the object of much interest among the members of the society.

Will Give Two Performances.

The Plainfield Operatic Association has decided to give the comic opera, "Pinafore," two nights, May 2 and 3, at the Casino. The rehearsals are progressing satisfactorily and it has been decided to engage Antone Glockner, of Elizabeth, to direct the performance. William Holmes will take the leading part, "Sir Joseph Porter." The principals are exceptionally good, and the chorus one of the best yet organized.

Missionary Meeting.

A report on the recent Presbyterial meeting was read by Miss Emily Tracy at the monthly session of the Crescent Avenue church Foreign Missionary Society yesterday afternoon. Miss Harriet Halloway led in the topic, which was on India. Much of interest in connection with the missionary study classes was brought out.

Y.W.C.A. NEEDS $1,000 MORE TO BUY HOME

ASSOCIATION WILL START WITH THREE-HUNDRED MEMBERS.

Final plans for the organization meeting of the proposed Young Women's Christian Association, to be held at the Y. M. C. A. tomorrow night, are being made today by the provisional committee. The reports from all sub-committees show that much has been accomplished through the earnest efforts of those who have taken the initiative in the movement. The association will start tomorrow night under most favorable auspices.

The membership committee has found in the city over 300 girls and women who have signified a desire to become charter members of the organization and who want to enjoy the privileges of the association classes and Christian influences. Nearly $3,000 of the $4,000 necessary for the purchase of the Dr. Jenkins' property on East Front street, has been raised and the finance committee is anxious to report at the organization meeting that the entire $4,000 has been secured. Subscriptions may be sent to Mrs. Frederick G. Mead.

The organization meeting will be full of interest. Mrs. James Cushman, of New York, vice-president of the National Y. W. C. A., and Miss Eleanor Brownell, general secretary for New York and New Jersey, will greet the Plainfield association as a part of the State work and of the world-wide association. Announcement will be made of the different classes to be formed and good times soon to be enjoyed. The meeting will be open to all.

HIS PLAN TO FOOL THE COURT FAILED

FORGER HEAVILY SENTENCED WHEN JUDGE LEARNS OF HIS SCHEME.

Henry F. Freeman, who pleaded guilty to two charges for forging the name of LeRoy Gibby, of Summit, and who has a record of having served fourteen years in all in different prisons and reformatories throughout the country, was arraigned before Judge Atwater in the Union County Court, this morning.

A few days ago he informed one of the court officers that he was going to get a light sentence and that when he appeared before the Judge he intended to go on an exhibition of crying for the purpose of working on the sympathies of the court. This information reached Judge Atwater and when Freeman was called he was given three years in State Prison on each of the two counts, the sentence to run concurrently.

DIFFERENCE OF OPINION OVER CALL TO PULPIT.

Rev. C. B. Condit Says He Is Coming to Trinity Reformed Church—Consistory Hasn't Acted.

North Branch, April 17.—Rev. Charles B. Condit, who has been pastor of the Presbyterian church at Liberty Corner, Monmouth county, for the last nine years, has tendered his resignation, which has been accepted by the board of trustees. He will become pastor of Trinity Reformed church, in Newark, to which he has received a unanimous call.

Joseph H. Broenel, a member of the consistory of Trinity Reformed church, of Newark, said yesterday morning that no call had been extended to any clergyman, but that at a congregational meeting in the church last night several names were to be voted upon. He said that no direct call had been extended to Mr. Condit, but that the latter's name, with three or four others, had been presented to the congregation at a recent meeting.

Leslie Thompson was appointed to confer with the candidates and make a report last night. Mr. Broemel said that the names of the candidates will be put before the congregation for approval, and the one receiving the majority of votes will be tendered the call.

Will Give a Matinee.

According to many requests, the management has arranged for a matinee performance of Nat Will's "A Lucky Dog," at the New Plainfield theatre Friday night, April 26. The attraction appears here as a benefit performance for the local firemen.

Book President Goes Abroad.

Louis Kepler Hyde, president of the City National Bank, accompanied by Mrs. Hyde and their children, Miss Helen Hyde and Louis K. Hyde, Jr., will sail tomorrow on the Augusta Victoria for Europe. They will be abroad an indefinite time.

GETS CONSCIENCE MONEY

Joel Randolph Receives a $100 Bill From a Remorseful Unknown.

ASKS FOR FORGIVENESS

Sender Says He's Ashamed to Reveal His Identity—Mr. Randolph Puzzled.

Joel Randolph, a wealthy retired citizen residing on East Front street, was puzzled to receive a $100 bill in his mail this morning. With it came the following letter:

"Enclosed you will find $100. This is principal and interest on about twenty-five or thirty dollars which was a good many years ago. I think that is about the amount. Hope you will forgive me should it be any more. Will you please acknowledge that you got this through the Plainfield paper so I will know you got it. Will not tell you who I am as I am ashamed to. We are both getting old. So you will forgive me."

The letter was unsigned. It was dated and postmarked Plainfield.

Mr. Randolph says he cannot think of anyone who defrauded him of $25 or $30. Figuring on the basis of the interest, the money must have been secured more than twenty years ago. Mr. Randolph can remember no incident in which he was victimized and is completely at sea to account for the conscience-money.

"I have no idea whatever where this money came from, but as you see it's a genuine yellow back," said Mr. Randolph. "I'm sorry that the man feels so badly over the matter and I want you to say for me that I freely forgive—make that plain."

RED STAR TAVERN BURNED TO GROUND

FIREMEN HELPLESS BECAUSE OF LACK OF WATER.

The Red Star Tavern, on Jerusalem road was burned to the ground, early last night. A passerby saw smoke pouring out of the back window about 11 and gave the alarm, but when the engines arrived the firemen could do nothing but look on.

The tavern is opposite the Westfield Golf Club, and there is no water hydrant in that section. After watching the fire burn for a half hour the firemen returned to their quarters.

The tavern was occupied and run by S. M. Joseph, and the property is owned by Charles Gamgnall. The building was worth $2,000, and the fixtures were valued at $500. The cause of the fire is unknown.

The hotel is located about half way between Scotch Plains and Westfield, and the fire companies of those two places responded to the alarm. The Westfield chemical engine also responded but could do but little more than protect the outbuildings as the hotel itself was a mass of ruins.

WANT TO RAISE $1,000 TOWARDS MEMORIAL FUND.

Elizabeth District of Newark Conference Women's Society to Honor Mrs. Knowles.

The Elizabeth District of the Newark Conference Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal church, of which Mrs. A. C. McCrea, of this city, is district president, has joined in the movement to build a Bible training school at Kiu Kiang, China, in commemoration of the life and work of Mrs. J. H. Knowles, Newark Conference secretary.

Mrs. Knowles has been secretary in the Conference for twenty-eight years and the members feel that something should be done to show their appreciation of her long and faithful services. It is proposed to erect the school for the training of native Bible women, costing not less than $2,000. Of this sum, the Elizabeth district wishes to raise $1,000. The money must be in the hands of the treasurer by Sept. 20, 1907.

SOMERSET COURT.

Suit Against Ballentine & VanFleet —Grand Jury Still Probing.

The case of Lamereoux against Ballentine & VanFleet, a tort action, was taken up by the Somerset county court this morning. It is on this afternoon.

The grand jury continued its investigation of the alleged irregularities in the vote for Assemblyman in Warren Township. It was said in certain quarters that no indictment would be found. The authority for such statement is unknown.

WORTHAM'S DEFENCE WAS WORTHLESS

HIS WITNESSES COULDN'T REMEMBER CONVERSATION—JUNKMAN JACKED UP.

Henry Wortham, colored, accused of stealing a bicycle by Charles Hadeway, also colored, was arraigned before City Judge Runyon, sitting as a state magistrate, this morning. He was held for the grand jury in the sum of $200.

Wortham said the wheel Hadeway accused him of stealing was given to him by Cecil Pittis, for whose brother, Dr. A. H. Pittis, he worked. He detailed an alleged conversation with Mr. Pittis to Judge Runyon, and stuck to his story of it after Mr. Pittis, and William Coles, a young colored man whom he said had stood by and heard the talk, denied any recollection of it.

In connection with the case, Louis Levine, a junk dealer, to whom the wheel was sold, was arraigned for not keeping a book in which all his purchases were registered, as required by ordinance. Detective-Sergeant Flynn, tracing the wheel to Levine, discovered his breach of the law and placed him under arrest.

Levine pleaded ignorance of reading or writing as his excuse. He said he had to trust his memory, which he thought was good enough. None of the junk dealers kept books, he declared. Judge Runyon told him the ordinance was specific on that point, and ordered him to start a book. He was reminded that his license was granted with that understanding, and that he was bonded to observe the law. Levine promised to hire a boy who could write, and have a book kept.

WIFE'S TALE BRINGS HIM HEAVY PENALTY

JUDGE SENTENCES DESERTING HUSBAND TWO YEARS IN PRISON.

George Winfield, of Elizabeth, who pleaded guilty last week to a charge of breaking and entering a saloon, was arraigned in the county court this morning for sentence. He would probably have gotten off with a light sentence, if his wife had not interfered.

Mr. Winfield wrote to the court, stating that she understood her husband was in jail, and if true she hoped that he would get the full penalty of the law. He had deserted her and her children over a year ago, she wrote, and had been arrested later for stealing a pair of shoes in New York. Subsequently he called at her mother's home and aked for lodging. She took pity on him and the next morning she discovered that he had walked off with the meter.

The letter had its effect for Judge Atwater gave Winfield two years in State Prison.

George Keading's Funeral.

The funeral of George Keading, who died at his home on West Third street, Monday, was held in St. Mary's church this morning, a large gathering of relatives and friends being present. The mass was said by Father Cassidy. There were a large number of floral tributes, one of them being a set piece from the local Barber's Union. Interment was afterward made in St. Mary's cemetery. Those who carried the casket were Samuel Stranahan, John Nargard, Lewis Bimble, Fred Willard, John Powers and William Gaub.

Miss Stewart Weds Today.

Miss Elizabeth Stewart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Stewart, of West Seventh street, and William F. Taliaferro, formerly of Virginia, but now of Plainfield, will be married this afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents by Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church. A reception will follow. After a month's wedding journey the couple will reside on West Third street, which property has been purchased by the groom.

Popular Pastor's Reception.

The Ladies' Aid Society and other auxiliaries of the First M. E. church will tender a reception to Rev. and Mrs. A. C. McCrea tomorrow night to mark his being continued by the bishop as their pastor for the coming year. Not only members of the faith but townspeople generally are invited to attend. The reception will be held in Vincent chapel.

Gift for a Library.

At a meeting of the trustees of the Scotch Plains public library, last night, Philip Jahn, head of the Excelsior Fire Company, announced that the company would pay all expenses attendant on the repainting, decorating and carpeting the library rooms, and would pay for new shelving.

COYNE'S HOUSE IS TO BE HIS PRISON

HE MUST STAY IN IT TWO MONTHS OR FACE A STERN JUDGE.

Michael Coyne, an old offender, was arrested last night for helpless drunkenness by Patrolman Charles Flynn. He was upset in court this morning when City Judge Runyon told him his family wanted him put away as a sufferer from alcoholic dementia.

"If you will give me a chance," he pleaded, "I will stay away from town, for a while anyway."

"Can you stay in the house for two months?" asked the magistrate.

"Yes, sir," said Coyne eagerly. He said he could send out for his work. He is a tailor.

"Well," said the judge, "I will postpone this case for two months. If you are seen downtown within that time I will have you brought before me again, and I will dispose of the *case as seems best at that time. Re*member, Coyne, that this is your chance to win a way of the disposition favored by your family. If you stay in the house and behave yourself for two months, they may give up the idea that you ought to be put in Morris Plains."

CHOSEN MODERATOR OF LOCAL PRESBYTERY

REV. C. C. HERRING PRESIDED AT ELIZABETH PRESBYTERY SESSION.

At the session of the Elizabeth Presbytery, held in the Second Presbyterian church at Rahway, yesterday, Rev. Charles E. Herring, of this city, acted as moderator. Fully 100 delegates were in attendance, but the business transacted was purely of a routine nature.

The meeting opened yesterday morning by singing the doxology. Prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. Maxson and Rev. Dr. Sipp and scripture was read by Rev. Dr. Mouvet. After a hymn, Rev. W. T. Stuchell, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, moderator, made prayer. This was followed by roll call and the election of Mr. Herring as moderator. Rev. Dr. T. C. Mayham, pastor of the Trinity M. E. church at Rahway, was invited to a seat with the ministers of the Presbytery.

Luncheon was served at noon by the women of the church and the *afternoon was devoted to purely rou*tine matters. In the night session, Rev. Charles Steizle, of the Presbyterian Board, gave an address on "The Relation of the Church in the Labor Movement." Dr. Steizle has made an exhaustive study of the subject and delivered the address in this city early in the winter.

GOVERNOR STOKES SIGNS SOME INSURANCE BILLS.

Also Approves Two Measures Directed Against Monopolies and Trusts.

Trenton, N. J., April 17.—Radical changes were made in the insurance laws of the State as a result of the report to the recent Legislature by the special commission which last summer investigated conditions under which insurance companies do business in New Jersey.

A series of bills introduced at the instance of the commission went through both the Senate and the House without opposition and yesterday Governor Stokes signed them.

The Governor also signed yesterday two "trust-busting" measures. Senate joint resolution No. 1, introduced by Senator Minturn, of Hudson, provides for the appointment of three Senators and three Assemblymen to investigate the increasing cost of ice, coal and other necessities of life, popularly believed to have been brought about by the monopolies created under the corporation laws of this State.

Senate joint resolution No. 2, by Mr. Robbins, of Burlington, provides for the appointment by the Governor of five commissioners to inquire into the increase in the cost of stone road building in this State, also to report to the next Legislature on the advisability of State ownership of quarries for the production of road stone.

Heffernan Will Case Adjourned.

The Heffernan will case, which was set down for today at Elizabeth, was adjourned for one week to allow the counsel for the contestant, Edward Nugent, to further prepare his defense. Thomas Heffernan, a brother of the late Michael Heffernan, is contesting the latter's will. He was left $1, but it is argued that after all expenses are paid and a tombstone, which was provided for in the will, is erected, there will be practically nothing left. Walter L. Herfield, Sr., represents the executor, Joseph Harrigan.

HIS DISASSOCIATED EGO

Psychopathic Defense of Geo. H. Parker, in the City Court.

AGAIN CHARGES Mc CUE

Gets No Satisfaction Out of That, and Fails In His Medico-Legal Plea For Leniency—Fined Ten Dollars.

George H. Parker, the man whom the former patrol-wagon driver, Thomas O'Gorman, assaulted in his cell, was arraigned before City Judge Runyon this morning to answer for his disorderly conduct the day of his arrest. He was fined $10 or twenty days in jail.

Policeman Charles Flynn, who arrested Parker, testified that he was disorderly on the street, cursing violently and in a tone that reached *passersby. William Townsend, sec*retary of the Union County Tax Board, testified to seeing Parker pick up a stone or some other object from the gutter and hurl it through the door of Rafferty's saloon. Before that, Mr. Townsend testified, Parker went up to the door and tried to smash the glass with his fist and his elbow.

Parker pleaded for leniency on the grounds that he was not himself when he committed the disorder and that he had suffered much, mentally, physically and financially for his "indiscretion." He said the row in the saloon started because he objected to slighting reference to women, and reached an acute stage because there was an old grudge between him and John Sullivan, the barkeeper. He said he didn't intend to break the window, but acknowledged that he wanted to hit Sullivan with the missile.

Doorman Thomas McCue testified that Parker was the most disorderly prisoner he has seen brought into the station house.

"Didn't you, Officer McCue," come into the cell and hit me with a club?" asked Parker.

"I did not," said the aged policeman.

"You are under oath now, and you understand the nature of an oath?" challenged the prisoner. "Did you, in the presence of Almighty God, swear you did not hit me? I know you said so once before."

"And I say so now," said the old man sturdily.

"I'll leave you to God," said the prisoner piously.

"I hope to be with Him," retorted McCue.

Parker pleaded earnestly for leniency, with a wealth of psycopathic allusion. He held that it was not himself, but an abnormal creature created by drink that heaved the stone and cut up high jinks. He, the real Parker, detested profanity and had often protested against its use by others. He was well aware that "in vino veritas," but observation and mature reflection had convinced him that true lapses of memory, of such a nature as to constitute a complete disassociation of the ego from mental control, would occur.

Judge Runyon said he would take the prisoner's sufferings into consideration, but his very appeal proved that he was a man who should have known better than to fall as he did. A man with fewer advantages might be pardoned for going on a rampage, but it was expected of other citizens that their conduct be nearer society's standard of moral ethics. The court cut into another plea from Parker to impose the fine.

SURPRISED ON BIRTHDAY.

Friends Join in Celebrating Mr. Force's Sixty-first Birthday.

Desiring to wish him many happy returns of the day, friends, including some life-long ones, surprised A. L. Force, editor and proprietor of The Daily Press, at his residence in Duer street, last night. Mr. Force had spent the day by serving his county as a grand juror, and when night came he was completely surprised by the sudden appearance of friends who joined in celebrating his entrance upon his sixty-second year.

The evening was enjoyably spent in playing "Bunco" refreshments being served at the conclusion of the games. A large birthday cake, surmounted by seven lighted candles, was cut and served to his guests by the veteran newspaper man. Mr. Force received a number of handsome presents as well as an unique one.

Mr. Colby's Plans.

HELPLESS PRISONER BEATEN BY SPECIAL OFFICER

The Charge Against Thomas O'Gorman Fully Sustained and He is Allowed to Resign.

POLICE BOARD HEARING

Patrolman Nicholas Meyers Also Arranged For Alleged Reckless Shooting and Decision Is Reserved.

The Police Committee of the Common Council held a long session in Mayor Fisk's office, Wednesday, for the purpose of sifting serious charges preferred against Special Officer Thomas O'Gorman, who has been driver of the patrol wagon since it has been in service, and Patrolman Nicholas Meyers, one of the oldest members of the force. After witnesses in both cases had been heard, O'Gorman was allowed to resign and decision in the Meyers affair was reserved for one week in order to allow the stenographer to prepare the testimony for careful perusal. The specific complaint in the O'Gorman matter was for "unnecessary violence toward a prisoner" and in Meyers', reckless shooting.

The charge against O'Gorman was made by Chief Kiely in behalf of George H. Parker, of Lelan avenue, who was arrested last Friday afternoon on a drunk and disorderly charge shortly after he had hurled a stone through a glass door in Rafferty's saloon. Parker alleged that when he was locked in a cell he made a noise to attract the attention of Captain Fredericksen in order to get bail. Doorman McCue and O'Gorman both warned him to keep quiet, under threat of getting a "clubbing" and when he continued to shout and make a noise with a tin bucket, O'Gorman entered the cell and struck him a few times on the arms and legs with a heavy stick to which was fixed the key to the cell door.

None of the blows were especially heavy and after O'Gorman went out, Parker started to make the noise again. He kept it up for several minutes when the officer returned in high dudgeon and repeated the striking process with the same weapon. He struck Parker on the body and then forced him down on the iron cot. As he did, the stick caught him on the forehead, inflicting a gash an inch and a half long, which, while not rendering him unconscious as he afterward learned, about twenty minutes. The wound was so severe that a call was sent for City Physician Lafburrow and when he could not be located, Dr. Genewein was secured to sew it up.

O'Gorman was brought into the room and asked by Mayor Fisk whether he was guilty or not guilty of Parker's charge. He replied:

"I handled him roughly, yes."

In his defense he decared that Parker was "tearing" down the cell and that when he was told to keep quiet he replied with the vilest language, making both O'Gorman and McCue the object of his remarks. Repeated warnings failed to have any effect and O'Gorman then entered the cell, more to frighten him than anything else. The second time he went in, O'Gorman said, he did not intend to strike him on the head and that it so happened that the key got under the stick and made the gash. His statement as far as the main points were concerned, was corroborated by Doorman McCue, who added that Parker was like a wild man from the time he was brought into headquarters.

When asked by Councilman Mellick as to what right he had to go in the cell when it is Doorman McCue's place to look after prisoners, O'Gorman said he thought he should do so from the fact that McCue is an older man and was less able to cope with Parker. When returned to the witness chair, Parker denied using profane language or that he had attempted to tear down the cell.

Patrolman Meyers was charged by Mrs. Sophia Komosko, of 1221 North avenue, with shooting a bullet through a parlor window at her home on the night of March 12 between 2 and 3 o'clock. She declared that the family was seated in the kitchen when they heard a pistol report and at the same instant a crash of glass in the front room. Her brother-in-law, Andrew Robinski, the outside and her husband, Nicholas Sarc, looked out of the kitchen window, both noticing a policeman walking rapidly down North avenue toward Leland avenue. Robinski went as far as the corner where he was informed by Officer Bowers, who lives at 1201 North avenue, that "Cop" Nick Meyers had been shooting.

When Mrs. Komosko was placed on the stand she declared that while her relatives were outside she went into the parlor and found a .38 calibre bullet held by a thick curtain, the lead missile having first passed through one corner of the window. The next morning, she said, she was working in a front room upstairs when Meyers' twelve-year-old son, Nicholas, came by on his way to school and she heard him say to one of her boys:

"My old man didn't mean to shoot through your window, last night; he was shooting at a dog."

After that she went to Chief Kiely and made the complaint, giving him the bullet she had found in the curtain. No report of the shooting had been made at headquarters previous to that time.

Meyers pleaded not guilty to the charge and stated in his behalf that he left his home at 1251 North avenue that night shortly before 8 o'clock and that as he went down the front porch he heard a report. It was rather foggy at the time and to him, he said, it seemed to be a torpedo on the new Jersey Central tracks, for that reason paying no particular attention to it. He was hailed on the corner by James Brown who said:

"What's the matter Nick; somebody shooting dogs?"

Meyers declared that he replied, "O, I guess so," and continued on to the Nethervood trolley terminus to catch a car. He said he was to go on duty at 9 o'clock that night and wanted to see part of a play at the theatre before reporting. He asserted that he had not carried a .38 calibre pistol in nearly two years and that the weapon he has had during that time is a .32.

When Meyers had completed his direct testimony he was addressed by Mr. Mellick, who said:

"Officer Meyers, this is a very serious affair and whether or not you fired that shot you have been guilty of neglect of duty. You were not made a policeman simply to patrol a certain beat; an officer is always on duty and I cannot see why you should have kept on your way to go to a theatre when you heard something like a pistol shot. In your reply to Brown you confessed that you thought it was someone shooting and made no mention of torpedoes. It was your place to stop and not leave the vicinity until you had exhausted every effort to learn where that report came from. You should also have reported the fact to your superiors."

Nicholas Meyers, Jr., was called to testify and denied saying that "the old man didn't mean to shoot through the window." He declared that Andrew was in the Komosko house when Andrew Komosko called to him and said:

"Come see the hole your father put in our window."

When he went in the yard and up on the porch, he asserted positively that Andrew said:

"August (another Komosko boy) broke the window and he got a beating for it."

When questioned by Councilman Daniel, the defendant's son clung to this story but was unable to explain why Andrew had first said his father had broken the window and immediately afterward that August did it.

John Hensey, who lives at 1211 North avenue, a neighbor of Meyers, at East Second street, and Terrill road, were the only other witnesses called but their testimony was unimportant.

WANT VICE CHANCELLOR TO DISMISS INTER-PLEADER.

Sub-Contractor Will Oppose Alonzo Aldrich's Move in Litigation Over Fund.

The question as to who will pay the costs of the action brought against Alonzo Aldrich by Boice, Runyon & Co., and the J. D. Loizeaux Lumber Co., is an important feature of the interesting case. These sub-contractors, through counsel, appeared before Vice-Chancellor Bergen at Trenton on Tuesday, and had the injunction, restraining the sub-contractors from bringing suit to recover money alleged to be due them, dissolved.

Arthur S. Giles, represented by Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., was the last one of the sub-contractors to file a stop-notice from paying the money due on the contract awarded William H. Brokaw for erecting the house at Fourth street and Grant avenue. A hearing will be granted next month on application to have the bill of inter-pleader filed by Mr. Aldrich, dismissed.

The total amount alleged to be due the sub-contractors is $1,025, and Mr. Giles' bill was $370. Mr. Aldrich turned over $725 to the Court of Chancery claiming that there was a dispute among the sub-contractors as to who did work for whom it should be paid. Mr. Giles claimed that there was no necessity for the filing of the bill of inter-pleader, that there was no dispute. He also claims that Mr. Aldrich paid Mr. Brokaw $75 before this action was brought, and that after deducting amounts due Boice, Runyon & Co., the J. D. Loizeaux Lumber Company, there should be a balance of $249 instead of $724 as appears.

Court Plainfield Growing.

Court Plainfield, No. 1144, Independent Order Foresters, accepted four applications and initiated five members Friday night. Fred D. Wilbee was elected orator and a member of the finance committee in place of J. E. Elliott, resigned. The court now has more than 400 members and in honor of the event a special programme was enjoyed, including speeches and songs. Ice cream and cake were served, followed by a smoker.

Measures Permit City and Borough to Make Contract for Former to Dispose of Sewage.

UP TO THE GOVERNOR

House Acted Favorably Last Night On House Bills—Drawn by Charles A. Reed.

The bills permitting an agreement to be made between Plainfield and North Plainfield for the city to dispose of the borough's sewage now rests with Governor Stokes' signature to become laws, the measures brought over from the Senate having been passed by the House Thursday.

The measures in question were drawn by Corporation Counsel Chas. A. Reed, of North Plainfield, at the request of the Borough Sewerage

Charles A. Reed.

Commission. They were introduced in the Senate by State Senator Jos. Frelinghuysen, of Somerset county, who secured favorable action on the part of that body. When the bills reached the House, Assemblyman W. W. Smalley, of Somerset county, took charge of them and last night, after Speaker Lathbridge had consented to have them placed on the calendar immediately, they were passed by the House.

Senate Bill, No. 287, permits North Plainfield to enter into an agreement with Plainfield for the disposal of its sewage. It also provides for a bond issue to cover the expense, these bonds to run for forty years instead of thirty as is the case at present. The bill also provides for a sinking fund of not less than one per cent., the present law being for not less than three per cent.

The companion measure, Senate bill, No. 232, allows Plainfield to enter into an agreement with North Plainfield to dispose of the latter's sewage. A law now on the statute books permits the city to enter into an agreement with a town, city or township, but no provision is made for such an agreement with a borough.

FINAL SERVICE OVER BODY OF "UNCLE DAN" S. ROBERTS.

Funeral at His Late Home Attended By Large Gathering of Relatives and Friends.

With a large gathering of relatives and friends in attendance, the funeral of Dan S. Roberts, who died Tuesday morning after an illness of nearly four weeks, was held Friday afternoon at his late home onn Prospect place.

Rev. Dr. E. M. Rodman, rector-emeritus of Grace church, who had been a close friend of "Uncle Dan" almost from the time he came to the city, was in charge of the service and conducted it on simple lines. He read appropriate scripture lessons and in addition spoke feelingly of the kind old man whom no one knew but to love and who always had a smile and pleasant word. During the service, City Judge William N. Runyon sang two of "Uncle Dan's" favorite hymns, "Leaning on the Everlasting Arm" and "Crossing the Bar."

There was a large display of handsome floral tributes that included nearly a dozen set pieces. One of them was from Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., of which he had been a member during his local residence. He had been prominent in the Masonic order for sixty years.

Following the service the body was placed in the receiving vault at Hillside cemetery and interment will be made later. The casket was borne by Major Newton B. Smalley, former Councilman Leonard Spangenberg and Walter L. Hetfield, who were members of the "Big Six:" City Judge William N. Runyon, William W. Warnock and Morris C. VanArsdale, all of whom were close friends.

His Lumber Deal Didn't Work.

George Baumann, a recent arrival from Germany, started from his home in the East End early Friday night, to buy lumber with which to make a door in his house. A neighbor told him he was foolish to buy it, because the Central Railroad had a lot of lumber lying around loose at the Richmond street bridge. Baumann thought, too, that he might as well have some of the railroad planks, and went after three of them. Patrolman Nicholas Meyers caught him lugging them away, and placed him under arrest. Judge Runyon fined him $5 in the City Court Saturday morning.

Judge Advocate Walker Makes Presentation Speech and the Colonel Feelingly Responds.

A complimentary dinner was tendered to Brigadier General Dennis F. Collins, commander of the Second brigade of New Jersey National Guard of New Jersey, Wednesday, by officers of the Second regiment in the Colonial room of the Trenton House at Trenton.

A silent toast was drunk to Coll. Nelson Y. Dungan, of Somerville, the regimental commander, who is ill at his home.

Judge Advocate Edwin Robert Walker, on behalf of the officers of the Second regiment, presented to General Collins a handsome cut glass punch bowl, glasses, ladle and plates.

General Collins responded feelingly in accepting the gift, which was a manifestation of the esteem in which the former colonel is held by the officers of the Second regiment.

Judge Walker made the presentation in the form of a general order from the head regimental officer and was as follows:

State of Your Appetite,
Trenton, N. J., April 10, 1907.
Special Orders No. 1—2—3.

Issued in connection with a Luncheon, by the Officers of the Second Regiment, N. G. N. J., in honor of Brigadier General Dennis F. Collins, Commander Second Brigade, N. G. N. J., given at the Trenton House, Colonial Room, Wednesday, April 10, 1907, at 9 p. m.

1. Circular No. 2, from the office of the adjutant, being the modus operandi responsible for the coming together of those present, the following will be observed as early as possible, departure therefrom being permitted only upon application through proper channels:

2. The olive colored liquor, in small glasses is a seductive concoction calculated to sharpen the appetite and warm the blood—but

3. The cold consomme in cups will sufficiently cool the blood to enable one to enjoy the plentiful supply of broiled teeksaks garnished with potatoes in various styles.

4. The steaks will advance to extended order, and, after a short skirmish, will close en masse and be relieved by the asparagus salad, which will act as a support until the arrival of the relief, toasted crackers, cheese and coffee.

5. The lighting of signal torches (Jose Villa cigars) will offer to all participants in the combat an opportunity to rest, during which time a number of "Dig" will be expressed to the "Low Downs" their views on matters of great import to nation, state and city.

6. The "enlisted men" on the flanks will provide thirst quencher upon request, during the entire engagement.

7. The engagement up to this point having been under command of the regimental quartermaster, and the orders now calling for rapid fire from the "Ups," command of the combat will be assumed by Col. Nelson Y. Dungan, while the quartermaster consults with the commissary and judge advocate as to their standing and the proper position they should occupy during the mortal combat.

By order of
GEN. GASTRONOMY.

NEW USE FOR DIRECTORY.

A stylishly dressed and altogether good looking woman was turning over the leaves of the directory in a leisurely manner when an irascible old gentleman, known to his acquaintances as a man with a very small stock of patience, entered.

He wished to used the directory, too, possibly to look up the address of a man who owed him money.

He stood about, now and then casting heavy looks in the direction of the directory, and coughed suggestively. A business man in a hurry, forsooth. He wanted to know when Walter Jones lived. It is a block or two away. He had forgotten the number. He fell in line.

Then the man who sought some city official, but knew nothing of his office, except that it closed in a few minutes, joined the ranks of waiters.

Still the woman placidly turned over leaf after leaf, without any apparent intention to decide whether it was Brown, Jones or Smith she was seeking.

Finally, when matters were beginning to grow very tense, a young man rushed in.

His mission would positively admit of no delay, so he politely offered to assist the young woman, suggesting that his experience might tend to lessen her labor and save time.

When he asked her what name she sought, with a sweet smile full of appreciation, she said:

"Oh, thank you. You are very kind. I am trying to find a real pretty name for my brother's baby. He has asked me to name it. It's a boy and it's so hard to find a real pretty name."

BOWLING TOURNEY ENDED

Big Contest Concluded Last Night With Two Teams Tied for Third Place.

ROLL-OFF NEXT WEEK

Gaddis and Dilkes Formally Declared the Winners—Kiely and Runyon Second.

With two teams tied for third place, the big bowling tourney which has been conducted at McLaughlin's alleys since last December, was brought to a successful close in the presence of a big gallery of enthusiasts Friday night. Percy L. Gaddis and William Dilkes were formally accorded first place and Chief Kiely and Judge William N. Runyon second, while Charles F. Meyer and Dan Mack and Harry Radin and Harry Ackor are in a deadlock for the remaining prize. In order to decide which wins, the two teams will roll a series of three games some night next week.

The result of the tourney so far as first and second place were concerned was known last week, but the schedule called for further games. The wind-up came last night and interest centered in what Radin and Ackor would do as the last of two games, out of three which confronted them, would bring a tie with Meyer and Mack, who stood with twenty-five wins and seventeen losses. The opposing team should have been Edward Britton and Frank Willett, but these bowlers preferred to have them roll against their average in order to avoid any suspicion of "throwing." Radin and Ackor were in fairly good trim but only once did they succeed in passing the figures.

The tourney was one of the most interesting that has ever been conducted in the city and has done more than anything in recent years to promote the sport locally. It started with eighteen teams but for various causes this dropped out shortly after the lead-off on December 11. The other fifteen stuck it out and rolled the scheduled forty-two games, the matches sometimes drawing crowds of two and three hundred enthusiasts. The prizes aggregated $100 and of this amount Kiely and Runyon will get half; $20 for second place and $10 in each instance for high team score, high team average and invidiual average made by Kiely. Gaddis and Dilkes get $40, first money, and will go to the team winning the roll-off between Meyer and Radin and Ackor.

Gaddis and Dilkes, who landed first place, are a nervy team of bowlers and for a time it looked as though they would capture high team average, finishing a close second to Chief Kiely. They won some splendid victories and from the beginning of the tourney kept a good lead in the other contentants. In the home stretch, however, a prevalence of splits, which some Gaddis' way in the closing games, pulled them down somewhat and almost phenomenal bowling by Kiely and Runyon brought the second team to within one game of the leaders at the end.

Kiely is looked upon as the city's best bowler and if honors were to be divided, Dilkes would come second. He is known to the enthusiasts of the game as "Steady Bill" because of his cool shooting under averse conditions and the regularity with which he piles up scores of 200 and over.

The teams which finished in the tourney and the number of games won and lost are as follows:

	W.	L.
Gaddis-Dilkes	31	11
Kiely-Runyon	30	12
Meyer-Mack	25	17
Radin-Ackor	25	17
Sheelen-Alberts	23	19
Koons-Skinner	21	21
Mullen-Conklin	21	21
Causebrook-McLaughlin	20	22
W. Schaub-J. Schaub	20	22
Blatz-VanEmburgh	18	24
Willett-Britton	26	16
Nash-Skelly	16	26
Leland-Thompson	15	27
Maltby-Thiers	15	27
Wooliston-Cunningham	13	29

NO COMMISSION MEETING.

Water Investigators' Session Postponed to April 19.

Because several members could not attend the monthly session of the Water Commission scheduled for Friday night, it was postponed until Friday night, April 19. The engineering committee has been unable to do much work on account of weather conditions, and this is one of the most important things in connection with the investigation, it will be impossible to prepare a complete report until its work is finished.

The legal committee has been making some progress. It has conferred with Corporation Counsel C. A. Marsh and has learned what rights the city has in the matter of acquiring the water works, either by purchase or condemnation proceedings.

Re-engaged Quartette and Organist.

The music committee of the Congregational church has re-engaged the present quartette choir for the ensuing year: Mrs. Thomas McDonald, soprano; Miss Jessie Haines, contralto; J. H. Sanford, tenor; B. F. Tallamy, bass; Mrs. B. T. Barnes, organist.

FIRST BAPTISTS WIN MEET

For Second Time They Carry off Honors of Sunday-School Athletic Contest.

GET SILVER TROPHY

Congregational a Poor Second: Warren Chapel Third, and First M. E. Church Fourth.

As in the first meet, the First Baptist church team walked away with the honors at the second Sunday-school Athletic Association meet, last Friday, at the Y. M. C. A., defeating the First Methodist Episcopal church, the Park Avenue Baptist church, the Congregational church, Warren chapel and Grace Protestant Episcopal church. Trinity church won the tug-of-war, a special event, defeating the Congregationalist team in the final heat.

The Baptists scored 86 points. Their nearest opponents, the Congregational church, scored 19 points. Warren chapel scored 14 points and the First Methodist Episcopal church 13 points. The winners will receive a silver trophy and the seniors who got first and second places will receive silver and bronze medals; the boys and intermediate contestants who won firsts will get bronze medals.

The attendance was large, and a good deal of interest was manifested. Every race and their rooters and contestants would gather for a self-encouraging yell. One of the events, the sack race, was protested on the ground of foul by the winner, but the protest petered out.

The events were as follows:

Fifteen-yard dash, Juniors—Won by D. R. Miller, First Baptist; James Lindzey, First M. E.; second, James Manning, First Baptist; third, time, 2½ seconds.

Fifteen-yard dash, boys—Won by Walter Walker, Warren chapel; M. Krewson, First Baptist, second; Herbert Hillman, E. R. Fountain, First Baptist, third; times, 2 2-5 seconds.

Sack race—Won by Carlton Smith, First Baptist; C. Small, first Baptist, second; time, 27⅛ seconds.

Standing broad jump; intermediate—Won by William Flanders, First Baptist; C. Strayer, First Methodist Episcopal, second; F. C. Denton, First Baptist, third; distance, 8 feet 8 inches.

Three standing broad jumps, juniors—Won by D. R. Miller, First Baptist; James Manning, First Baptist; James Lindzey, First Methodist Episcopal, third; distance, twenty-four feet.

Three-legged race, boys—Won by Butler and Hillman, First Baptist; Fountain and Krewson, First Baptist, second; time, 17⅛ seconds.

Running high jump, seniors—Won by Steiner, Congregational; Newman, Congregational, second; Lueder, Congregational, third; distance, 5 feet 1 inch.

Potato race, relay, intermediate—Won by First Baptist, Warren chapel second, Congregational church third.

Running hop, step and jump, intermediate—Won by Flanders, First Baptist; Denton, First Baptist; Miller, First Baptist; distance, 30 feet 10 inches.

Running broad jump, seniors—Won by Douglass, First Baptist; Banks, First Baptist, second; Bentley, Congregational, third; distance, 16 feet 2¼ inches.

Potato race, boys—Won by Love, First Methodist Episcopal; Walker, Warren chapel, second; Hillman, Congregational, third; time 39 seconds.

Pin race—Won by First Baptist; Warren chapel, second.

12-pound shot put, colsed to Y. M. C. A., handicap—Won by Manning; Banks, First Baptist, second; Spear, third; distance, 43 feet 5 inches; actual put, 31 feet 5 inches.

Tug-of-war, special — Congregationalists defeated Baptists; Presbyterians defeated Methodists; Congregationalists defeated Presbyterians; Trinity church defeated Warren chapel, and in the finals defeated the Congregationalists.

12-pound shot put — Won by Banks, First Baptist; Odell, second; Watrous, third; distance, 32 feet 5½ inches.

8-pound shot put—Won by Flanders, First Baptist; Denton, First Baptist; distance, 28 feet.

Potato race, ½ mile—Won by L. Manning, First Baptist; Lueder, Congregational, second; Odell, Congregational, third; time, 1:55¾.

Mr. and Mrs. Gallup Entertain.

The Friday Night Whist Club held its last meeting of the season, Friday night, when the members were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur T. Gallup, of West Front street. There were four tables. Mrs. Hiram Woodruff won the prize for the women and William Townsend received the prize for the men. The affair was one of the most delightful of the season and after the play an elaborate supper was served.

Working On Light Contract.

No future date has been fixed for another conference between the city officials and the Public Service Corporation representatives to adopt a new contract for the street lighting. The work of preparing the new contract is now underway and when completed will be submitted for the consideration of all parties interested.

TRIO OF "GOOD" CROOKS

Police Say Capture of Wire Thieft Suspects Landed Clever Criminals.

TWO HAVE BAD RECORDS

Said to Be Gang That Has Cut Wires and Stolen Signal Apparatus For Some Time Along the Lehigh.

No bit of police business in months has caused more pleasure to the local authorities and the police of the Lehigh Valley railroad than the capture, yesterday, of the three wire theft suspects at the hobo camp near Samptown. Chief Kiely, of the Plainfield department, and Chief Lee, of the railroad force, are convinced that the prisoners are the ones who have been playing havoc with the Lehigh wires between South Plainfield and New Market and in the district about Bethlehem, Pa., for months. They are believed to be three of the cleverest and most active wire thieves in the country.

The prisoners give their names as Edward Bennett, of Wilkesbarre, Pa.; John Norman, of Baltimore, Md., and Harry Brown, of Philadelphia. Bennett has been identified as Arthur Gleason, 32 years old, a native of Newark, and twice convicted there of grand larceny. He was convicted of burglary and served eighteen years of the sentence. Brown, confronted with his picture and the record of his arrest and conviction in Newark for grand larceny, acknowledged this morning that he was Henry Dorsch, alias "Nigger," an experienced crook wanted in Newark. Norman, who, under examination, said his right name was Giovanni Accelius, but denied a criminal record. The police have learned nothing about him, but are hunting for information.

The men were captured through sharp work by Chief Kiely and his right-hand man, Detective-Sergeant Flynn. Two weeks ago, when Policeman Frank Sweeney, scared two men into dropping a big bag full of meitel zinc at Front street and Clinton avenue, one of the thoroughfares leading to South Plainfield, Chief Kiely suspected that metal and wire thieves were at work along the Lehigh. A few days later County Detective Jacob Johnson, of Aston, telephoned to the chief and asked him to help in hunting down a gang that was crippling the Lehigh with thefts of wire and signal apparatus, and then the Chief knew there was something to work up in the neighborhood of South Plainfield.

A hobo came into police headquarters yesterday morning that the three prisoners were in the camp at Samptown, and that they had telegraph wire there. Just as the chief was making plans to raid the camp, Detective Flynn, of the Lehigh force, who had been working on the case, telephoned from South Plainfield to ask if there was anything new in the hunt. The Chief told him to come over to Plainfield and get into the game.

A closed wagon was hired in this city, and Detective-Sergeant Flynn and Detective Holly went in it to South Plainfield. Hidden in the vehicle, the detectives made their approach to the camp unsuspected, and a sudden descent, with drawn revolvers, resulted in the speedy capture of the three suspects. They were brought to this city and locked up in the station house.

Chief Lee and Chief Leyden, of the New York Division of the Lehigh road, came here this morning to complete the identification of Bennett and Brown. They brought the pictures and rogues' gallery records of the two with them.

Complaints against the prisoners were sworn out before Justice R. P. VanBuskirk yesterday afternoon. They will be sent to New Brunswick today.

Detective-Sergeant Flynn found a lot of the wire cut down near South Plainfield Wednesday morning in the Samptown camp yesterday afternoon. It was buried at the edge of the camp.

DOCTOR LOSES SUIT.

Verdict of No Cause of Action Favors Lawrence Kerwin.

In the suit brought by Dr. A. K. Brennan against Lawrence Kerwin, before Justice Warden and a jury, at Somerville, Friday, a verdict of no cause for action was returned by the jury after five minutes' deliberation. Dr. Brennan sought to recover $10 for professional services, his claim being that the defendant was suffering from alcoholic gastritis, that his life was endangered by the use of it himself and that Mr. Kerwin was not entitled to free service by reason of the fact that he was a member of the Ancient Order Hibernians, of which Dr. Brennan is the physician.

The defendant, represented by Justice von Minden and Dr. Platt on the stand and he testified that Mr. Kerwin had appendicitis, and that Dr. Endicott diagnosed the case as the same. W. G. DeMeza represented Dr. Brennan.

Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., has accepted the invitation of George A. Warner, rector, to attend services at the Church of the Holy Cross, on Ascension Day evening, Thursday, May 9. Sir Knights B. Frank Coriell, Henry Woodland and Clark J. Pope have been appointed a committee to arrange the details.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

April 21: "God Yearning For the World." God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son.—John iii, 16.

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

Passages for reference—Matt. xxiii, 37-39; Mark x, 21; Luke xix, 41-44.

"How does God feel toward us?" This is perhaps the most important question we ever ask. How shall we find the true answer?

If we look around us at the great world from which we get food, shelter, clothing and the countless natural things needed for bodily life and well being, we may learn something of His power and rulership and possibly may get a glimpse of His wisdom and providence care in making things work together so admirably. But we cannot search far before we are struck with the apparent disregard in the workings of nature, for all which we term moral and righteous. The good man gets no more consideration than the wicked one here. No emphasis and no reward is placed on doing the worthy right. Fire, flood, blighting disease and the host of disastrous things overtake the man striving for righteousness just as they do the vicious, until many who have searched for God only in physical nature or who have expected to find Him by direct revelation have become deeper and purer life are seriously perplexed. The great world of nature gives them no adequate response to their search after moral right and truth and places no premium on goodness. The soul cravings for authority and a master spirit to give sanction and satisfaction to the soul's search for right and duty find nothing to meet their needs. Here is a grave peril to all who are earnest of soul.

But why should any one expect to find in material nature the satisfaction of the soul's needs? Heart needs heart. The person needs to have companionship with persons. He may at times get tired of men and the pressure which of life and circle to get back to hills, woods and clouds, and streams and pillow the head on Mother Earth. All this is born of the physical and satisfies only the bodily life. It never enters the inner spirit since many where we live in things of principle, truth, right, obligation and love. If our God be only a God of nature, He can never lead us to the deeper treasure we crave in our moral and religious makeup.

This is just where our boys in Christ begins. He showed in His talk and acts that He had found what no other man of the race had ever discovered. He knew God as Father, who loved men and would be glad to have them in a way that the physical life could be sustained even if some men were bad. His inner nature could only be known by those who were lovingly obedient to His directions. He was from the beginning of all things filled with a purpose to make God known to those who would receive Him in the tenderest and most glorious manner. His glory and joy are to be shared by His loved ones. All the treasures of the Divine fullness are to be lavished on His children who seek to know Him in righteousness and love.

The inner secret of the Divine nature is the eternal and infinite craving to give and to bless. Outpouring love, ceaseless and limitless, is the fullest expression of His being. Calvary does has known this in its depths because He is the eternal, only begotten Son. Only He has been able to tell it to us, live it before them to the very fullness and limit of death and then through death to bring to light the eternal life and immortality which are for those who find the Father through Him.

Have you found rest for the soul in this supreme fellowship? Faith, God through Christ? If not, why not seek until you find? God needs you. You need God. He is seeking you. Let Him find you. That is the worth of life here.

Go on in the Lord's Way.

Do not examine so closely whether you are doing much or little, ill or well, so long as what you do is not sinful and that you are heartily seeking to do everything for God. Try so far as you can to do everything well, but when it is done do not think about it; try rather to think of what is to be done next. Go on simply in the Lord's way and do not torment yourself. We ought to hate our faults, but with a quiet, calm hatred, not pettishly and anxiously. We must learn to look patiently at them and with through them the grace of self abnegation and humility. Be constant and courageous and rejoice that He has given you the will to be wholly His.—St. Francis de Sales.

Thought's Effect on Action.

Change your thinking and you will change your acts, and since most of the diseases result from wrong acting produced by wrong thinking you must change your thinking before you can change your acts.—John Ramsey Askin.

Lasting Happiness.

The very first condition of lasting happiness is that a life shall be full of purpose, aiming at something outside of self.—Black.

Sentence Sermons.

No grip is so hard to shake off as that of early religious convictions.—Maurice Thompson.

Courage does not consist of the absence of fear, but in the subjugation of fear.—Cardinal Manning.

Either God will shield you from suffering or He will give you unfailing strength to bear it.—St. Francis de Sales.

Great truths are greatly won, are found by chance.—Bovee.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning April 21.

By REV. R. H. DOYLE.

Topic—Some Ways to read wise books.—Prov. iv, 5-9.

We live in a reading age. The mass of reading matter that comes from the press, from the daily newspapers to the most profound treatises upon religion, science and philosophy has never been surpassed. In the past the chief difficulty was the absence of books. Today the great difficulty is the abundance of literature. There is scarcely a home without its dailies, magazines and in many cases libraries ranging from a few books to an immense number of volumes. In Christian homes books of all character are to be found. Christian libraries are no longer limited to Baxter's "Saint's Rest," Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress" and Doddridge's "Holy Living and Holy Dying." An occasional work of fiction hidden away by the young people of the home lest the eyes of parents should look upon it. Public libraries exist by the hundreds and in almost every village and town as well as in the large cities. The fact is that the best as well as the worst books of the world are accessible to almost every one who desires to read them.

The abundance of reading matter and its easy access today form one of the great problems of life so far as reading is concerned. The difficulty in solving it is a most serious one. It is folly to suppose that any one can read all the books that are even worth reading. The wise reader who reads to get wisdom will carefully select those which in the quantity of reading. Quality is always desirable to quantity. A few books well mastered are more valuable as a means of wisdom than libraries fitted with beautifully bound volumes, the covers of which are seldom if ever opened. Books are written to be read and not for ornamental purposes. It will require no small amount of wisdom to select the wise books that are to be wisely read, and most young people are largely left to some direction in their reading by some one who has had wide experience in the selection of the best books to be read.

It is safe to say, however, that some books of all forms of literature should be read. He is certainly an unwise reader who reads nothing but poetry or history or fiction. Poetry, history, essays, science, philosophy, religion and even fiction should all have some place in our reading. The greatest danger in the present day is the strong bent of a tendency today to read too much fiction, to read it so lightly as to enervate the mind and especially to read fiction of doubtful moral character. When it comes to fiction the popular taste of today clamors for much of the sensational, the unreal and even the immoral. Let it be known that a modern novel is a little shady in character, and it is in great demand, as the librarians at any public library can testify. This is one of the great perils in this line to prove the perversity of the human heart. What we would not listen to from the lips of another we are willing to read in private. But there is no more dangerous reading than this. The mind of a young person getting started may be soiled forever by the reading of one such book in a lifetime, and by the constant indulgence in such literature the inward life may be made wholly foul and unclean. Young people, as you value a clean, pure life, cut out such reading. It leads to impure thoughts and imaginations and even to impure deeds and should have no place in the literature of one who desires by reading to be made better and, above all, purer. There is an abundance of good fiction, not only in the writings of the masters of the past, but in the modern books of fiction. This is one of the places where we are to "avoid the very appearance of evil."

What we should read should be determined largely by the purpose of our reading. It is no longer considered a sin to read good fiction while away an hour or simply for present entertainment. But great stress is laid upon reading too much upon this kind of reading. Nor is it necessarily unwise to follow to some extent our personal tastes in reading. No law requires us to pin or over Dickens, and Browning if we do not care for them. They have written, nor does it betray a lack of literary taste to candidly confess that they do not appeal to us. If we prefer poetry and other poets, let us follow our preference, but no one should read anything but poetry. History is one of the most profitable forms of reading. But the cultivated man or woman will want some knowledge of all the great authors and their works, and it is amazing what can be accomplished if we will but systematize reading along these lines every day and even at odd times and moments. The only rule is to keep faithfully at it. To Christian Endeavorers it is hardly necessary to say that the Bible should have the supreme place in our reading. There is no kind of literature that it does not contain—history, poetry, law, science, philosophy, letters and even romance—and, above all, rightly read and followed, it "maketh wise unto salvation."

BIBLE READINGS.

Ps. xix. 8-10; xciv, 12; Prov. i. 1-7; ii, 1-7; iii, 13-23; viii, 10, 11; John v, 39; Acts xvii, 11; I Tim. iv, 13; II Tim. iii, 14-16.

Common Sense Elasticity.

That bright Irish Endeavorer, Rev. J. D. Lamont, says that "C. E." stands for common sense elasticity, and he goes on to say societies to use the utmost freedom in adapting to their needs the methods sent out by Christian Endeavor leaders or in rejecting them altogether. "For example," he says, "in society in the country is not obliged to meet once a week. It may meet once a fortnight or once a month if nothing better is possible."

OUT OF THE PAST

By MILDRED GRAHAM

(Copyright, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

He was handsome as a god in his uniform of black and gold. He stood in lithe grace at his post, with the August sun tanning his fair skin, and smiling daringly at the dark-eyed girl in the front row of the grand-stand. He was a prepossessing young fellow, and spoiled by the attentions of women until he thought himself irresistible. The score-card hinted unkind things about his playing, and the papers ventured that his release was a matter of time; but for all that he was the "ladies' favorite," and many a dainty floral offering, and many a perfumed note found its way to that "dear Nick."

He was only a "professional," and too fond of drink to rise in the game. Brought up in the slums, his face showed telltale lines, and his eyes were—not nice! And yet—he was fascinating.

Valerie was young in those days—a brown-eyed schoolgirl in the early teens. She was an enthusiast, and admired all the "baseball fellows" with a girlish hero-worship. It had been all very well until Nick signed. She had worshiped from afar, and none of the players had cared to notice the girl with the silvery eyes, who wore a costume in the colors of their uniform when she dared. Most of them grew deadly tired of the notice of women in the course of a season! But Nick was young to the game, and knew he was handsome, and one day one of the fellows pointed out the girl in her yellow blouse, with a laugh for her infatuation. That was the beginning.

Valerie was beautiful even then—her color was warm and rare, her full lips mutinous, her eyes somber—marvelous. He was "out for fun" in his careless way—that was all. It required but little maneuvering—he met her—and to Valerie it was the realization of a dream! He suggested that she say nothing at home of their friendship—players were so maligned, he told her. She saw no danger in the warning, and she was happy, with unreasoning happiness.

But soon—he never meant it—it was weakness in him—and he thought how the dark-eyed girl knew would say him if they knew—but somehow those somber eyes took a strange hold upon his heart. The day came when the game went ill, and errors thickened, if she was not there to watch his every gesture on the field. The flowers and smiles and languishing glances of the others fell dead. He cared only for the tribute of dusky eyes, lighting with admiration for her hero. A sort of new manliness possessed him—a feeling of protection toward her, and he could not laugh it away.

To Valerie the world was rose-hued. She was scarce 16, and she knew no world beyond the school-room. Home life was uncongenial—or she fancied so. In her impetuous fashion she had only to lock her secret in her heart and dream away the hours they must be parted. She loved him, and the days were sweet and all too short.

It was about this time that he received the fall. She was running base—some said he was not quite "in condition" that day. He slipped and wrenched his knee. A slight hurt, only. He walked to the bench and smiled at the stand. He was "on the bench" for a few days, and then they saw that it was serious.

It was bitter to him when he found that he could play no more. The day that they released him, he had a hard hour, alone with his pain, and his future. He thought of Valerie, a little shocked that he knew much of her he had gone than he had meant to go, and regretted with a pity he could not still.

When he found he must go east for treatment, he sent for her. She was white, and cold, and still, and her eyes distressed him. He told her tenderly, almost forgetting that it had been an idle thing—the amusement of a summer hour. He told her that they must part for a time, until he could play again, until some of the "ugly" swelling vanished his skin, until his salary—"

Perhaps he meant it in the moment, or perhaps he could not bear the light of the dark eyes, suddenly blank and expressionless. And then he told a moralizing, and told her he had done wrong to win her, and spoke of his life and his habits, with something almost like a touch of real regret. She clung to him and would not listen. She loved him, and the end of the world came with the parting.

Afterward he knew that he had loved her then, for he felt his power that day—and spared her.

He went away and left her to her dreams—but her memory grew haunting. Months passed before his letters ceased, and in them before that time had come the subtle change, the note of depth, the tenderness, the longing, and—the weariness. But he told her nothing of himself, and when she ceased, she could not understand. Again and again she wrote until her letters came back "unclaimed."

Valerie was absent from school in those days, and lay upon a couch beside the window for silent weeks, in a curious illness that defied science. But when she found she did not die—that not even prayers availed to relieve her of the task of useless life—she rose again, and it was said that she was well. She returned to her classes, and only now and then some one remarked the strangeness of the dusky eyes.

One day—it was wild February weather, and its depression was upon the school room—one day the strangeness of those eyes seemed to hold wildness as well as gloom. She failed in lessons and seemed deaf to questions and reproof. A teacher asked if she were ill again. She looked at the questioner blankly, and answered "No."

That evening the janitor swept from the floor a piece of crumpled newspaper. There was hardly more than a paragraph upon it—a line or two briefly stating that the player who had been so popular early in last season was in a hospital at Chicago, awaiting amputation of his leg, made necessary by injuries received on the diamond.

That night Valerie wrote an impassioned letter imploring him to send for her. She told him she would throw her very life into the balance and leave all for him—all for only a word! It was a foolish letter, full of schoolgirl love, and of sentiment learned from lurid novels, but there were months of heart-breaking in it! She was still young enough to love like that—and she loved them!

It was a foolish school-girl's letter—but when it came to him as he lay on his cot, facing the ruin of his future, and waiting—when it came, impassioned, tear-blotted, pouring out her wild love for him—he held it beneath his cheek with two thin hands, and forgot, for once, that a child missed, and thought what might have been of life and love.

She had not long to look for his answer, though the task was difficult upon his cot, and the time for waiting pain. And he told her gently: "No."

He repeated his worthlessness, showed her the whole of his misspent life, told her the whole truth about her idol—and that she must forget. He asked her to forgive him, and forbade her to seek him. He could merely no one now—and he loved her! Thus he made his poor attempt at reparation.

In the passing of the years, Valerie ceased to search the papers for tidings, for she grew older, and she knew at length that his day of little fame was long since done. She grew older, and the piteous something in her eyes faded, and they hardened. She was a woman now, a beautiful woman but with a weary curve on the red lips, and a carelessness of friendship in her cool manner.

Then Fred came—and loved her. The pain was old, and yet at first she suffered freshly. But she saw the end. Fred was true and noble, a tender, kind, a firm will, a faithful love, and she knew he was honored among men. She did not resist him. She grew fond of Fred, and used to him, and when he asked her she consented —quietly.

She wore his ring and grew fonder of him. His kiss no longer set that icy hand upon her heart. She was used to that, also—after a time.

The day grew near. She was accustomed to the thought. Fred was a dear fellow. She had not been so weary about his coming. The thought of the marriage was restful now. Fred was so kind, so tender.

One day he found her sitting alone in the twilight. An open book was upon her knee, and a last beam of evening light falling on a pictured face. It was only the photograph of a noted actor, but in it was a shadowy trace of an old resemblance—and her eyes were seeing phantoms when he gently lifted her face to his.

"A fine fellow," he said. "A splendid engraving. We will see him when he comes again."

She closed the book swiftly and drew out of his sheltering arms as if to lay it in its place. When she returned she met his eyes once more.

It was only a few days, then, until she was Fred's wife. She was young once more, but the girl had forever vanished. Fred's wife was a woman, tender, grave, and she loved Fred—but it was different.

One of a few weeks Fred's wife—already more content, better, braver, happier. And then, one day, she lifted a paper in an idle moment, and on an obscure page read that Nick was dead.

Only a line—a bare, cold statement. He had never wholly recovered from that old shock—and was dead.

She was alone for an hour, all alone, and it was better so. An hour alone, an hour kneeling with her face in the pillows, silent hour of memory —memory of the old days and the girl's folly.

She clung to Fred that night, and her eyes were starry with their touch of sadness. She drew his chair upon the hearth, and there he sat and spoke of his life and his habits, with something almost like a touch of real regret. She clung to him and would not listen. She loved him, and the end of the world came with the parting.

Afterward he knew that he had loved her then, for he felt his power that day—and spared her.

He went away and left her to her dreams—but her memory grew haunting. Months passed before his letters ceased, and in them before that time had come the subtle change, the note of depth, the tenderness, the longing, and—the weariness. But he told her nothing of himself, and when she ceased, she could not understand. Again and again she wrote until her letters came back "unclaimed."

Valerie was absent from school in those days, and lay upon a couch beside the window for silent weeks, in a curious illness that defied science. But when she found she did not die—that not even prayers availed to relieve her of the task of useless life—she rose again, and it was said that she was well. She returned to her

MAINWARING'S REVENGE

By EDEN E. BEXFORD

(Copyright, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Mainwaring noticed that the eyes of a good many men sitting in his vicinity were turned toward one of the boxes, and he looked that way to see what the attraction was.

"Ah—that Jezabel," he said, to himself, as he saw the woman's face that was drawing men's eyes like a lodestone. "I might have known without looking. It's the old story of the candle and the moth. Poor fools. They never learn wisdom until their wings and singed. I've a mind to paint the picture of a vampire and put her face into it. She lives in blood."

As he gave a second look toward the box from which the face of Sybil Leith shone out like a vivid tropical flower, he turned pale. Two men were entering it. One of them was Gimth Deane, the one man of all he knew whose friendship he cared for. The other was the woman of the life upon which he was entering was next to nothing. He was bringing to it a faith in all mankind, and womankind, as well—a belief in the goodness rather than the badness of others—and the enthusiasm of boy who is half intoxicated with the prospect before him.

"It's the beginning of the end," he said, under his breath. "I had hoped he might be spared. If she breaks his heart—and she will if it suits her fancy—I believe I could kill her.

He watched the progress of matters in the box with the crimson curtains, and his heart sank with a sick foreboding as he saw the eager look in the poor boy's infatuated eyes.

"I am sorry to see you in the Leith box last night," he said to Deane next day. "Beware of the woman you met there. Her smile means ruin."

"I've heard as much from others," laughed Deane. "But do you know—I don't believe a word of it. You don't know her. I'd stake my life on her womanliness."

"You'd lose it, then," answered Mainwaring, as he turned away with a bitter smile on his face and an ache in his heart. He knew it was useless if was to reason with a man who had faith in this creature who had made a plaything of human hearts for a day, or a week—as long as it suited her whim—and then cast them aside like a top.

The end of Griffith Deane's dream came sooner than his friend had looked for. He came in one day with the look of an old man in his face. Mainwaring knew what had happened the moment he saw him. His heart went out in a great wave of pity to the lure of a heartless woman's wiles.

"It's all over," groaned Deane, dropping his head on the table to hide the misery in his face. "You were right, Mainwaring, but I couldn't believe it. I can't make it seem possible, now. But it's true, for she laughed at me for having made a fool of myself. God! but that hurt! Say, John"—and the boy's head was lifted, showing the tears in her eyes—"you're useless if you can help it. She's made that way. It don't seem as if any woman would do such a thing if she could help it, does it?"

"It's the devil in her," answered Mainwaring, "for somebody could make the heart ache, and when she showed it, quivering with its pain, grind it under foot! That would be a revenge worth striving for. I wonder—"

Mainwaring did not complete the sentence. Suddenly he saw before him a new object in life, and in one swift moment he had determined to set about its accomplishment.

Mainwaring had always kept aloof from Sybil Leith. Now a change came. He sought her. It was allowed him to think that at last the spell of her beauty had drawn him within its influence. She knew that he had the reputation of being a woman-hater, and she seemed flattered at his sudden attention.

Mainwaring woke up to the consciousness that it was in him to play the part of a lover well, and he did so. So well, indeed, that Sybil Leith seemed to become a different woman under his influence. More than once she gave him the impression of being wholly surprised at the recognition of his power over her. He watched her face flush beneath his glance with a thrill of exultation. More than once she seemed to make an effort to break away from the spell of his influence, but always something more powerful than her own will seemed to draw her back into it.

And he? His brain whirled when he tried to think it all out. What was this strange power which shook him at times like the reed the wind plays with? He had deliberately set about making himself master of this woman's heart, if she had any. He was sure he had succeeded beyond what he had dared hope for, and yet—there was not that triumph in the knowledge that he had expected to find. When he was with her she seemed to be all that was womanly and become like other women who love men because to love was what they were born for. At such times, he shivered when he thought of the revenge he had been working for. But the thought of poor Deane made his heart harden within him, and Sybil Leith would have shuddered at the look which came into his face at such times, if she could have seen it, he felt sure.

One evening he was pacing up and down the beach, thinking. He had strange thoughts for company nowadays. His moods were as contradictory as the winds that shifted half a dozen times a day. He was an enigma to himself.

Suddenly he felt the presence of another. Without looking about, he knew that Sybil Leith was near him.

"What brought you here?" he cried, presently, wheeling about to face her.

"I came because I couldn't help coming," she answered. "I saw you coming this way, and felt compelled to follow."

Compelled to follow! The thought was one that gratified the man's pride, because it told of the extent of his influence over her. He was her master. And how much the mastery of such a woman meant. The thought sent the blood tingling to his fingertips.

A swift thought of Gimth Deane, as he had seen him last, trying to stupefy the ache of his heart in a bout of drunken revelry, came to him, and his face hardened under it.

"Answer me one question, and answer it honestly, if you can," he cried, in almost brutal harshness. "You love me—isn't that so?"

She lifted her eyes to his face with a look which told him that he had never seen there before. The hand that she pressed against her breast as if to still the tumult of the heart beneath shook like a leaf in the wind. She seemed trying to speak, but no words came. But in her face and in every gesture he thought he read admission of the truth. She did love him!

"I am glad of it!" he cried, and his voice had a hard, cruel ring in it. "Now you will know what you have felt when you won their love for the sport of it—what poor Griffith Deane felt when you lured him on to destruction, and laughed at him for the pain it gave him to find out the truth."

"You don't love me?" she cried. "Have you deceived me, lied to me? O, the shame of it! And you a man!" Her voice had a ring of scorn in it. Then the momentary anger died out of her face, and she cowered abjectly before him. "Have pity, have pity!" she cried. "If men will love me, can I help it?"

"Have you ever tried to keep them from it?" he asked. "Any woman can make a man understand how far it is safe to go, if she will. Do you think that I am a fool? Let me to know that I can make you suffer as your victims have suffered?"

She sank upon the sands, and covered her face with her hands. He turned to go. He dared not trust himself to say.

"O be merciful!" she cried. "Hate the woman I was, but have a little pity for the woman I am. Kiss me once—just once!—before you go. Leave me the memory of that one kiss in my life to come. I may live to be old—so old!"

He paused a moment, wavering. The thought came to him that the woman he had waged warfare against was dead. This was another woman. And she was pleading.

"O come back," she cried. "Come back long enough to tell me that you have a little pity for me. Will not the thought of what I have lost, in losing you, be punishment enough to satisfy you? Come back—come back!"

In that moment there came to Mainwaring a thought of the future. Through all eternity he would hear that cry ringing in his ears if he refused to heed it. He dared not face such a hell as that would be. And—she loved him!

He strode to her side, remembering now only that love was sweet. He bent down to her and cried as he did so:

"I have come back! I thought I was master, but I was wrong. Love is, Sybil; I am ready to forget everything but this—I love you! I would give up heaven for you. My darling, my darling!"

Then she lifted her face from her hands and looked at him. And in her eyes was such a look of wicked triumph as he had never imagined it possible for a woman to show. It was like the smile of a serpent.

"You love me, do you?" she cried. "I thank you for the greatest pleasure of my life in that confession. Know this, John Mainwaring—you have been a dupe in spite of your strong mind and powerful will. I have made your heart my plaything. I have forced you to confess yourself vanquished. O, it has been rare sport!"

And again that heartless laugh rang across the sands. To John Mainwaring it was the knell of death to hope, but love, though wounded unto death, could not die. That was the bitterest thought of all in the hour of his utter defeat.

Gamekeeper Neatly Fooled.

A French provincial paper has a story of a gamekeeper who, going his round one night, saw a poacher and pursued him, but lost him on the highway in the darkness. Soon a motor car came up, and the keeper accepted an offer from the occupants to get in for the purpose of following the poacher. But nothing could be seen of the culprit, and when the keeper asked to be let down there was a burst of laughter and an intimation he would find himself in Paris before morning. In the twilight the motor stopped in the place de la Concorde, the keeper was thrown out, and the party—which, of course, included the poacher—drove away. The unlucky keeper had to pawn his gun in order to pay his train fare back.

Some men will sit on a door-knob and think that it's going to hatch out a fighting chicken.

ISLAND INHABITED BY 60 CRUSOES

LONE COLONY OF ADVENTURERS ON TRISTAN DA CUNHA, IN THE SOUTH ATLANTIC.

ALL MADE DARK BY THE SUN

Do Without Bread for Six Months of the Year and Sustain Life Chiefly on a Diet of Potatoes.

Cape Town, South Africa.—An extraordinary picture of life on that barren isle in the South Atlantic is drawn in a letter received here from a passenger who sailed from Table bay for Montevideo by way of the island of Tristan da Cunha.

A pathetic appeal was recently received in this country for some one, preferably a Church of England man, to go to Tristan de Cunha to teach. No salary could be offered, the appeal said, as in one whole year only $25 was taken on the island.

The letter from the passenger on the Surrey brings news of a calamity which has bereft the island of a large part of its able-bodied male population and tells of conditions of privation and misery among those who are left.

Among the Surrey's passengers were Rev. Mr. Borrow, his wife and another woman, bound for Tristan da Cunha. Describing the difficulty experienced in landing them the letter says:

"The coast is very dangerous, and there was quite a possibility that the trio would have to be carried on to Montevideo, but fortunately, although we had encountered many rough seas, when we came in sight of Tristan, the weather abated, and contrary to the captain's expectations we were able to anchor within a quarter of a mile of the shore.

"Two canvas boats put off from the shore immediately, bringing letters which the islanders wanted posted. They had live sheep, ducks, etc., and cured albatross and other birds for barter, also milk. The settlers were very peculiar looking. With some few exceptions their skins are exceedingly dark, owing to the sun, but most of them are of European descent.

"The postmaster came on board. He said that the yacht Valhalla had brought them word that Mr. Borrow would arrive on the Surrey. As they had reckoned so well that they had expected us the day before.

"He said they now number only 60 inhabitants on the island, mostly women and children. The two boats alongside us had the sole able-bodied male population. Some time ago 17 men had put out to sea to fish and had been lost.

"The island is overrun with rats, which eat all the crops, wheat especially, and for six months they had not had bread, but had lived chiefly on potatoes. The rule of the islanders is for all to share alike, so that when an animal is killed each gets his portion. This applies to everything that can be divided.

"It took a whole day to land the nine tons of baggage, and, owing to the roughness of the sea, it was an extremely dangerous task. Some of the passengers helped. One was washed out of the boat, but, being a good swimmer, struck out for the shore.

"The farewells were said and the party got into one of the canvas boats which had been swinging on the davits to make it easier for them, but the combined weight was too much, and the boat began to break, so it had to be lowered into the water first, and the trio made the descent one by one, aided by the officers.

"The ship was standing very high out of the water and going down the ship's side with the roaring surf below must have been a horrible ordeal for all, but they were all very brave. We did not continue our voyage until we saw them safely through the surf and on shore, but it was an anxious time for us on board, as we could not foresee how it would be with them, every other wave seeming to cover their boat.

"The government sends a warship once a year to this island. With this exception it is a chance whether they get in touch with the rest of the world."

P. P. A. REVIEWS ITS FIRST YEAR'S ACHIEVEMENTS

President R. H. Depew Explains What Has Been Accomplished for the Community.

OFFICERS ARE CHOSEN

All Re-Elected, Excepting Vice President McCutchen, Who Declines, and is Placed on the Executive Committee.

The annual meeting of the Plainfield Protective Association, held at the Casino Monday night, was marked by two things. One was an interesting report by President R. Henry Depew. The other was a discussion on a suggestion to lower the dues from $5 to $1 a year.

Henry L. Hall brought the reduction before the meeting in a resolution recommending it to the executive committee, with which end in view amending the constitution must begin. Strong opposition to it developed immediately. It was the majority opinion that the association needed a large fund to attain proper results, and that it could not do its work with less money. The great strength in the past year, it was argued, sprang solely from the amount of money at hand for the prosecution of its work.

Mr. Hall in explaining his ideas as to the reduction, said "it was not merely a lowering of the dues he had in mind, but an increase in membership. He argued for greater numbers. He wanted quality as well as quantity, but he felt certain there were many good men, not new in the association, who would come in if the dues were lowered; men who really could not afford $5.

Mr. Depew said he believed the large fund in hand had been the association's strongest card, and that the board should keep itself powerful financially for that reason, that it should be in position at any time to present the front of an organization strong enough to battle for reform and the correction of abuses. He suggested that the dues be kept the same this year, and that, at the same time, an effort be made to increase the membership.

The executive committee will consider the question, and a plan for increasing the membership, a paid solicitor may be employed.

In connection with talk of plans for the increase of membership, the members advocated a broadening of the association's field. Mr. Depew said it was always the aim of the association to be broaden, and that the efforts had been concentrated temporarily on what seemed the most pressing problems.

W. M. Stillman suggested that permanent pavement was one of the things the association might investigate. He intimated that brick pavement might be sidetracked in favor of "tar" coating over the asphalt with advantage to the city.

Mr. Stillman also wanted the association to make an independent investigation of the cost of a municipal water plant. His wealth failed when Mr. Hall informed him that such an investigation would cost $2,500.

"Oh, in that case—" said Mr. Stillman faintly.

P. E. S. Kinsman wanted information as to what powers were won by the telephone company after it had succeeded in getting its poles on private property. He was afraid the company could do pretty much as it pleased in the way of cutting, tearing down or working on the line in backyards and lawns. Secretary C. White announced for the benefit of Mr. Kinsman and the other members with the complaints that the law committee would answer all reasonable queries.

All the old officers and members of the executive committee were re-elected, with the exception of Vice-President C. W. McCutchen, who felt he could not serve again. He was put on the executive committee, and George T. Rogers was named as vice-president. The full board of officers and the executive committee are as follows:

President, R. Henry Depew; vice-president, G. T. Rogers; secretary, Henry C. White; treasurer, J. Herbert Case. Executive committee, A. H. Atterbury, C. J. Fisk, H. E. Hall, F. E. Kinsman, C. W. McCutchen, D. B. Pitsworth, M. W. Tyler, Floyd T. Woodhull.

The association has 157 members and over $1,200 in its treasury. The receipts for this year were $1,600, about $400 being spent on the activities of the twelve month.

In his annual report, President Depew said in part:

"In regard to the soft coal smoke nuisance, a communication regarding same was sent to the Mayor and Common Council on July 21, 1906, and was referred by them to the Public Affairs Committee. We believe that nothing has been done, but we have been assured that the subject will receive attention in the near future.

"With respect to the telephone service, investigations covering a period of several months were carried on for the purpose of obtaining data regarding conditions and prices in various cities throughout the United States—such data being necessary as a basis of discussion with representatives of the telephone company. The information obtained demonstrated a charge to subscribers in this city considerably in excess of that made to subscribers in other cities larger than this, despite the fact that the telephone company's claim that an increased number of subscribers necessitates higher charges. The same data showed superior service in other cities. As a result of these, a conference with the company was proper and your sub-committee on Public Service met the officials of the telephone company at which the principal points noted were discussed at length, certain substantial reforms being promised. Several minor but important improvements suggested by your committee must necessarily await the completion of the new building but in the meantime great care is being exercised to make the service as satisfactory as possible, a material change having been already observed. Aside from these, the principal subjects of discussion are the reduction in rates generally and the substitution of private for party wires without increase of present charges. Further conferences are shortly to be held at which it is expected a satisfactory conclusion will be reached.

"The unusual advance in the price of ice and the universal feeling that this was caused not by actual necessity led your executive committee to determine that this was a proper subject for the consideration of the association. The Plainfield ice dealers were invited to a conference which was attended by members of the National Ice Co. and at which it was made clear to the ice dealers first that the high and increasing price of ice were not regarded by the community as reasonably justified by the situation and second that the association desired to reach a fair conclusion upon this matter so that neither the consumer nor the dealer would be wronged. It was expressly stated and understood that the association claimed no right to interfere with the private business of the ice companies but desired to act for the good of its subscribers and the community alike.

"With this understanding and it being suggested that the contracts of the Natural Ice Company with the other dealers were believed by consumers to be the immediate cause of the high prices noted, the representatives of the Natural Ice Company denied any such responsibility and at once agreed to exhibit such contracts to the sub-committee having this matter in charge. Despite frequent assurances on the part of the committee to obtain such inspection and renewed assurance that the same would be granted the said contracts have ever since remained carefully concealed, and a final refusal being based on the unwillingness to reveal the contents of such contracts without the consent of an important New York corporation attorney whose name was, however, refused so that conference with him was rendered impossible. While your committee understood that such conference were the means of preventing a further rise in prices it was not satisfied with either the attitude taken by the Natural Ice Company, as evidenced in its conferences and correspondence, or with the situation created by that company's monopoly in Plainfield.

"It accordingly began an investigation into the cost of equipping an artificial ice plant and the possibility of operating same on a satisfactory basis, which investigation has not yet been completed owing to the desire of the committee to have a discussion of the subject by the whole association and awaiting information as to what attitude the Natural Ice Company would assume, in view of the very large crop of ice which has been secured this winter. This attitude is best exhibited by the following reply to a letter of inquiry from your secretary to the company:

"The principal subject which has received the attention of your executive committee and of the association has been the service of gas and electricity. This is a problem which has troubled every community for years past and the solution of which necessarily presents many difficulties.

"Soon after the association was formed the propriety of a meeting between the officials of the Public Service Corporation and your executive committee and such meeting was held with President McCarter and other representatives on May 7th. The meeting was a protracted one and the whole subject was carefully discussed and as a result of this discussion a uniform rate of 12 cents per K. W. for electric lighting was made (which rate will be further reduced to 10 cents on January 1 next) as against a rate of 18 cents, 10 per cent. which was being charged, except in the case of those having special contracts. The price of gas was reduced by agreement made then to $1.15 on January 1st last, and will be reduced to $1.00 on January 1, 1909.

"In addition, great improvements were promised in the service and in the matter of complaints which, previously, had been generally disregarded, and the meeting adjourned with the understanding that there should be friendly co-operation between us.

"After giving the company ample time to correct at least a considerable portion of the bad conditions we had an investigation made by an expert and a copy of the report showing the bad conditions as to house lighting and the deplorable conditions as to street lighting, was sent to each member. Immediately after the report was issued the company began an extensive overhauling of their street lights and fixtures with the result that a great improvement has been effected and a further result was an invitation from the Mayor to your committee asking them to meet the Common Council and representative of the P. S. C. for conferences of terms of a new contract with the city. On Friday last your secretary and myself called upon President McCarter, at Newark, by appointment, for a further discussion of conditions and the following is a summary of the result of the conference:

"Improvements have been made or are underway which will cost the company, they state, from $100,000 to $125,000. New switch boards are being installed which, when completed, probably inside of two months, will eliminate the variations of light which have been so annoying and a uniform voltage of 106 will be maintained all over Plainfield and lamps giving that voltage will be furnished hereafter.

"A suggestion that posters be attached to bills occasionally, calling attention to the necessity of exchanging lamps, will probably be adopted. Lamps put out of current without notice will be investigated and stopped.

"A consumer can have his meter tested by an out-side expert at anytime and if found to be registering over 2 per cent. of the way the company will pay the expenses of such test and install new meter.

"Attention was called to the ruthless cutting of trees, as was done in Prospect avenue and same was condemned by Mr. McCarter and proper attention will be given to this in future.

"The discontinuance of special contracts with merchants and other than household consumers was discussed and the statement was made that a uniform rate of 12 cents was not being charged but that these cases were taken up and decided upon their merits.

"In regard to gas it was stated that the gas is now being enriched when necessary to bring it up to a proper standard and that much of the trouble is caused by the pipes and burners being clogged with deposited matter. That the company will be glad to have the pipes cleaned out when requested by the consumer and will furnish, free, Bray burners, which are considered the best in use today."

DIAMOND DUST

It is estimated that the yearly cost of conducting professional baseball is $5,364,000.

Murphy, the Chicago magnate, has signed Sheckard, Lundgren and Brown to three years contracts, and Evers to a two-year contract.

Experts who have seen the Boston National infield say it is as fast as any in the league. Each player on this team is equipped with four uniforms.

The Naval Academy team is quite anxious to defeat West Point this season, having beaten the Army at football and fencing. It is possible that Fred Vanhaan will have the opportunity of pitching against the West Point team.

Hal. Chase played with the New York Americans on Monday and in his customary brilliant style. He cracked out two safe hits among other things. The young Californian, besides being a great performer, is the most attractive ball player in the country today. He is the best first baseman in the land, with Jiggs Donahue a close second.

The Chatham team will start the ball rolling Saturday, meeting Madison at the latter place. Chatham now has grounds at home and will not be a travelling club, only when it plays other teams in the Lackawanna League.

The Atlantic (outlaw) League has made such inroads on the Lackawanna League that some of the teams in the latter organization scarcely know where they are at.

It is said that the Brooklyn Atlantic League is trying to land Linderman as Farrell's battery, but Manager Burke, of Elizabeth, claims that he has these players signed to play with him on Sunday at the Port.

The officials of the Lackawanna League will meet in Newark tonight and complete details preparatory to the opening of the season. It is expected that the schedule will be announced tomorrow.

Water Commission to Meet.

The water investigation commission will hold a regular meeting Friday night to receive reports on the progress thus far made. It is expected that both the legal and engineering committees will be prepared to make interesting reports.

GOLF.

When such a well informed golfer as Leighton Calkins, who is a member of the executive committee of the United States Golf Association, places himself on record with the statement, "No one doubts that the rules of golf are found wanting," it becomes evident that the present agitation is having its effect. Mr. Calkins does not, however, advocate an immediate rearrangement of the old code. On the other hand, he remarks in another part of an article which appears under his signature in "The Golfers' Magazine," as follows:

"Do we want an American set of rules or an American code at all? It seems to me this question must be answered in the negative. We do not want it. We may have it some day, but certainly we do not want it. Only as a last resort should a code of rules be adopted in this country, or in any other country, in opposition to the existing rules. There is danger that the game will fall into a chaotic state of disorder if different countries, associations or localities start in to acquire the habit of making rules for themselves.

"Yet the first serious attempt to recast the rules of golf is distinctly a service of value. The time may come when our national organization will feel that this matter must receive official attention, and preliminary work of this kind will prove of great value later on if we are ever forced to legislate for ourselves. Every one must welcome suggestions made in the spirit in which Mr. Jermain presents his views. I wish we might have a dozen such codes drawn with equal care and intelligence. They would furnish splendid material for future use.

"But more important than any immediate amending of the rules is the need of approaching the whole subject in such a way as to place the responsibility for separate American legislation, if ever we come to that, squarely where it belongs. We shall make no mistake in the long run if we err per se on the side of conservatism and patience. American golf has already attained a prominence which is hardly exceeded by its ancestor, and which unquestionably is entitled to be heard. But the orderly way to proceed, it seems to me, is in the direction of securing recognition, and if it is denied us with finality the responsibility will not be ours if we are forced to legislate for ourselves. We have never believed in government without representation."

A number of remarkably low scores were made by professionals during the last few months in the South. Fred McLeod is credited with a 36—30—66 over the links of the San Antonio golf and country Club, while Willie Anderson made new nine, eighteen and thirty-six hole records at St. Augustine. He had a 32—a new nine hole, mark—and this was followed by a 35, giving him a record of 67 for the eighteen holes. He had 67—71—138, which broke all thirty-six hole marks. Chris Crosby made a 68 on the Piedmont Driving Club links, and Tom McNamara returned a 33 at Houston. Both of these last named "pros" are homebreds.

Two Competitions.

*An all-around gymnastic competi*tion for the championship of the association will be held at the Y. M. C. A. Thursday night, April 25. A handicap athletic competition will be held on the same night. The events will be standing broad jump, three standing broad jumps, standing hop, step and jump and standing high jump.

7TH-DAY BAPTISTS TO OBSERVE 75TH ANNIVERSARY

Committee of the Second Oldest Congregation in the Denomination Preparing Program For the Event.

DATE SET, FEB. 22, 1908

Started by Members of the Piscataway Church in 1836—Has Handsome Edifice and Large Membership.

When the sixty-ninth annual meeting of the Seventh-Day Baptist Church of Christ was held on Sunday, April 7, a committee, consisting of the pastor, Rev. George B. Shaw, and J. D. Spicer were appointed a committee to prepare a programme for the seventieth anniversary of the organization of the church, which will occur on February 12, 1908. This being one of the oldest churches in the city and a branch of the mother church in New Jersey, which celebrated its 200th anniversary in 1905, the coming event will be of more than usual interest not only here but among all the members of the denomination in New Jersey and New York.

The Piscataway Seventh-Day Baptist church, at New Market, is now the oldest living church of its order in America. It was constituted in the year 1705. In 1836, a number of its membership having located in Plainfield, the question of organizing a church here began to be seriously considered. This movement finally crystalized into a church organization, which, with the assistance of the mother church, was constituted on February 12, 1838, with a membership of fifty-six persons. The early meetings were held in private houses until the first house of worship was built at Central avenue and West Third street, afterward made into a double house and leased. The cause of this was that railroad company wanted to lay its tracks adjoining the church property and it was too close for convenience of worship. Afterward the building was turned about to face on Third street and the railroad eventually elevated its tracks through the city and was able to get the straight line at that point it desired.

In the meantime the denomination made arrangements to meet in the Second Baptist church, now Reform hall, which it continued to do until its new house of worship was erected at Central avenue and West Fifth street, which was dedicated in 1866. The congregation continued to worship there until 1891, when the present handsome edifice was built on that site, and the old church was moved to Madison avenue and West Fifth street, which is now known as the Whittier School.

In the sixty-nine years of its existence the church has had ten pastors, including the present pastor, Rev. George B. Shaw. These have all been men who have taken high rank among the clergymen of the town, and its membership has been prominent in the development of Plainfield in all its material, social and religious interests.

The present edifice, which from an architectural point of view is perhaps one of the most attractive in the State, was largely made possible through the beneficence of the late George H. Babcock, as well as other members of wealth and influence, a number of whom have passed away.

The first minister called in February, 1838, was Rev. William B. Maxson, but owing to engagement in mission work in New York, was not able to accept, and supplies were obtained from neighboring churches until the following June. Rev. Lucius Crandall supplied the church from June, 1838, to March, 1840, when he was elected pastor and served as such until September, 1841. From that time until June, 1843, the pulpit was supplied by Rev. Lucius Crandall, Rev. Giles M. Langworthy, Rev. David Clawson and Rev. Walter B. Gillett. Rev. Samuel Davison was pastor from September, 1844, to March, 1846; Rev. Lucius Crandall from March, 1846, to April, 1851; Rev. James H. Cochran from May, 1852, to February, 1853, when he was removed by death. Then Rev. James Bailey was pastor from September, 1853, to October, 1864. Rev. A. R. Cornwall acted as supply in the winter of 1865-66, and as pastor from April, 1866, to April, 1867, and was succeeded by Rev. Dr. Thomas R. Williams from April, 1867, to April, 1871; Rev. Dr. Darwin E. Maxson from October, 1871, to August, 1879. Rev. Dr. H. Lewis, now Rev. William B. Maxson, but owing to engagement in mission work in New York, was not able to accept, and supplies were obtained from neighboring churches until the following June. Rev. Lucius Crandall supplied the church from June, 1838, to March, 1840, when he was elected pastor and served as such until September, 1841. From that time until June, 1843, the pulpit was supplied by Rev. Lucius Crandall, Rev. Giles M. Langworthy, Rev. David Clawson and Rev. Walter B. Gillett. Rev. Samuel Davison was pastor from September, 1844, to March, 1846; Rev. Lucius Crandall from March, 1846, to April, 1851; Rev. James H. Cochran from May, 1852, to February, 1853, when he was removed by death. Then Rev. James Bailey was pastor from September, 1853, to October, 1864. Rev. A. R. Cornwall acted as supply in the winter of 1865-66, and as pastor from April, 1866, to April, 1867, and was succeeded by Rev. Dr. Thomas R. Williams from April, 1867, to April, 1871; Rev. Dr. Darwin E. Maxson from October, 1871, to August, 1879. Rev. Dr. H. Lewis, now editor of the Sabbath Recorder, became pastor in April, 1880, and continued as such until October, 1896, when he accepted his present position and was succeeded by Rev. Dr. A. E. Main, who served as pastor from October, 1896, to October, 1901, when he accepted the position of dean at Alfred University. Rev. George B. Shaw, the present pastor, was then called from the Seventh-Day Baptist church, New York, and he has served as pastor from April, 1902, to the present time.

While the church has not had a phenomenal growth, it has been steady and today the membership is over 400. The present edifice is hardly large enough for the congregation, it frequently being difficult to seat all those desiring to attend the services. All the departments of the church, including the Sabbath-school and various societies have had a substantial growth and as reported at the annual meeting is in a most satisfactory condition spiritually and financially.

3 STORY STRUCTURE TO ADJOIN "STIRLING"

BOICE, RUNYON & CO. TO ERECT OFFICE BUILDING ON PARK AVE.

Plans are now being made by A. L. C. Marsh, the architect, for Boice, Runyon & Co., for a handsome three-story building to be erected on Park avenue, directly opposite North avenue, and as soon as the plans are accepted and the contracts awarded the work for the improvement will be started. The building, which will conform somewhat to the style of architecture of the Stirling building, will have a frontage of forty feet and extend back as far as the Stirling building. It will have a white facing of attractive design.

On the first floor will be an office for Boice, Runyon & Co., and a store for rent. The two upper floors will be devoted to offices. Space for a driveway will be allowed between the new building and the structure that is to be erected this summer by L. L. Hersch & Co., the wholesale grocers, next to the railroad. As soon as the Boice, Runyon & Co. building is completed, the firm will move its present office off the property to allow the Hersch company to begin operations.

When these two new buildings are erected there will still remain a vacant lot adjoining the Stirling, with a frontage of about forty feet. Just what disposition will be made of this land has not been decided upon yet. It is controlled by John G. MacLaughlin and The Plainfield Trust Company. No doubt an up-to-date building will eventually be put there.

SONGS AND STORIES OF THE RED MAN

GIVEN BY MRS. COURSEN AT MONDAY AFTERNOON CLUB MEETING.

A large audience at the Casino Monday afternoon listened to the recital given by Mrs. Alfred Chester Coursen on "Indian Song and Story," before the Monday Afternoon Club, finishing the club's study on "Primitive Man in America." The voices of nature expressed in Indian song and rude hieroglyphics were illustrated by charts shown by Mrs. Coursen and charmingly described by Longfellow in his song of Hiawatha. Mrs. Coursen, with a good voice, gave some Indian lullabys, love songs, incantations of the medicine men and women, the song of the corn grinders, the pipe for rain, the call to the sunrise, a funeral dirge and songs accompanying the dance in the religious ceremonials. Their music often expressed motion without words. Mrs. Coursen said, giving as an Indian criticism of American music, "You talk a great deal when you sing."

The Indian stories, the lecturer said, were a combination of Greek mythology, Arabian Nights tales and Biblical history. Some of the stories she gave of Iagoo, the boaster were similar to those told by Longfellow in his song of Hiawatha, as was the love of Shawandasee, the South Wind of the prairie dandelion.

Of the Indian music, Mrs. Coursen said its originality was generally considered without intonation or harmony, but some musician had discovered a harmony in a perfect tone sustained through a whole musical performance. The lecture closed with the chorus of warriors, which Mrs. Coursen executed on the piano to show the harmony.

Throughout the recital the unwritten tradition suggested by the lecturer was, Oh, for the child of nature of whom she speaks!

Endorse Action of Peace Congress.

The Plainfield branch of the Baraca Union of America has sent a Peace Congress, now in session in New York, expressing its appreciation of the National Arbitration and Peace Congress, and heartily endorsing the efforts of the Congress in the interest of world's peace. The communication is signed by the president, Gilbert VanNest.

Theatre Meeting.

Rev. Dr. S. Parks Cadman, of Brooklyn, will speak at a theatre meeting under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon.

DR. RICHARDS TO PRESIDE

Former Plainfield Pastor to be in Chair when Presbyterian Gen. Assembly Convenes.

UNION OF CHARACTER

Cumberland Merger Will Be the Feature of the Great Meeting Representing 1,300,000 Members.

When the 119th General Assembly of the Presbyterian church convenes in the Broad Street Church, Columbus, O., Thursday morning, May 16, in the absence of Dr. Corbett, the vice-moderator Rev. Dr. William R. Richards, of the Brick Presbyterian church, New York, formerly pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church of this city, will be in the chair. The opening sermon will be preached by Rev. Dr. Ira Landreth, of Nashville, Tenn., the last moderator of the Cumberland Assembly. The roll of the coming assembly will be made up by Rev. Dr. William Henry Roberts, of Philadelphia, stated clerk of the Presbyterian church, with the assistance of Rev. J. M. Hubbert, stated clerk of the Cumberland church.

The first order of business, after the enrollment of the commissioners, will be the election of a moderator. This year a new rule goes into effect limiting the speeches nominating candidates to ten minutes, and allowing only one speech to second the nomination, and that not to exceed five minutes. There have been assemblies when half a day or more was taken up in the election.

The feature of the assembly will be the formal consummation of the union of the Presbyterian church in the United States of America and the Cumberland Presbyterian church, which has been under way for almost five years.

Plan of Reunion.

The plan for reunion of the two great ecclesiastical bodies was approved a year ago, the Presbytedian body being in session at Des Moines, Ia., and the Cumberland at Decatur, Ill. The latter adjourned sine die as the first reunion assembly at that time. It is thought that the clerical and lay commissioners from the two bodies will number 1,000. The Presbyterian church has 246 distinct presbyteries, while the Cumberland Synod has 114 presbyteries. The Columbus assembly will be the first to be composed of representatives from the presbyteries of the reunited church, and these are being elected in the different sections of the country on the basis of one minister and one elder for every twenty-four ministers or moiety thereof in each presbytery, as provided for in the form of government of the Presbyterian church in the United States. It is more than passing significance that this epoch-making assembly is held in Ohio, as it was the synod of that State which handed up the overture asking the general assembly of its church to appoint a committee to consider the reunion.

1,300,000 Members.

According to the last annual reports, the united church represents a membership of over 1,300,000, and this does not count the new members received by both bodies since the last May assemblies. Of these, 1,185,485 belong to the Presbyterian church and the rest go to the Cumberland body.

The first church is much larger than the second in every way. The last reports give the number of Sunday-schools in the former as 1,077,305, and in the latter 106,386. The Presbyterian church has 7,842 regularly ordained ministers, while the Cumberland has 1,514. The Presbyterian church has thirty-four synods, with 114 presbyteries, as against seventeen synods and 114 presbyteries in the Cumberland. The former has 20,880 elders and 11,010 deacons, as against 9,614 elders and 2,917 deacons in the latter. There are 8,215 church buildings belonging to the Presbyterian church, and 2,869 belonging to the Cumberlanders. The total amount of money contributed to the churches last year by the Presbyterian was $19,993,308, and the total contributed by the other body was $1,012,842. Of these amounts, the Presbyterian church gave $1,226,114 for home missions, and $1,063,206 for foreign missions, while the Cumberlanders gave $38,976 for home missions, and $32,780 for foreign missions. The congregational expenses of the one were $13,664,071, and of the latter $698,554.

If the Cumberland churches stay in the union, some of the grand totals in the reunited church will stand: Churches, number of communicants, 1,304,073; Sunday-school pupils, 1,204,907; total contributions, $21,006,150; total number of churches, 10,987; ministers, 9,362; licentiates, 325; candidates, 1,111; elders, 40,494; deacons, 13,927; presbyteries, 260, and synods, fifty-one.

Tickets Can Be Exchanged.

People who have purchased tickets from the firemen for the performance of Nat Wills and company in "A Lucky Dog" can now exchange them for seat coupons at the New Plainfield theatre box office. The show will be presented on Friday night, April 26.

HEAVY LOSS FROM FIRE

15 Head of Cattle and 3 Horses Perish in Destruction of Mrs. David Steele's Barn.

ON THE RARITAN ROAD

Patrolman Thought Blaze Was In Plainfield and Called Out City Department.

Evidently set on fire by a homeless farm laborer who had been sleeping in the place all winter, the big barn on the premises of Mrs. David Steele, of the Raritan road near Alton, was burned to the ground between 3 and 4 Monday morning. The flames had gained such headway before they were discovered that it was impossible to save any of the stock and fourteen cows, an Alderney bull and three horses perished. Neighbors made an attempt to get them out but were driven back, all of the animals being located in a part of the structure near where the flames had their start.

The wind was blowing a gale at the time and for awhile it looked as though the Steele residence and another one across the street occupied by Amzi Hetfield would also be destroyed. A bucket brigade was formed and only by working constantly for half an hour were the men able to save them. The Steele house caught several times and the side nearest the barn was badly damaged.

Mrs. Steele is the widow of David Steele, who lived for many years on the Railway road a short distance from the Fanwood station and who was killed by falling beneath his wagon. He was a well known dairyman and after his death Mrs. Steele continued the business. She will suffer a heavy loss because of the fire as she carried but a small insurance.

The reflection from the fire was cast well over this city and Patrolman William Messler, who is on duty in the business district, thought it was a conflagration almost in town. He turned in an alarm from box 12 at North and Park avenues and the department responded but learned after going a short distance that the fire was out of their limits. Chief Doane continued half way to the city line, before thoroughly satisfying himself that his men could do nothing. He declared today that the reflection was one of the most deceptive he had ever noticed and that when he first left his home he thought the department was in for a hard fight.

ESSEX COUNTY GETS THE THREE PRISONERS

JUDGE RUNYON DECIDES QUESTION AS CUSTODY OF WIRE THIEVES.

Arthur Glassen, Henry Dorsch and Fred Celius, the suspected wire thieves captured at Samptown, were turned over to the Essex county authorities Monday afternoon. City Judge Runyon, who was asked by Prosecutor English to act for him in advising Chief Kiely between the rival claims of the Essex officers and the Lehigh Valley police, decided that the best interests of the public would be served by turning the men over to the Newark police.

The magistrate argued that there was a stronger case against the men in Essex county than in Middlesex, and it was best to send the men where they were likely to get the severest dose. The idea that the trio had political influence was scouted.

Chief Lee, of the Lehigh Valley force, interposed no objection. He made certain that the trio would have to face the Essex charges if things went wrong in Newark by placing his complaints in the hands of Detective-Sergeant Chrystie, of the Newark force. The complaints will act as a stay should anyone come forward to bail the prisoners out.

The men were arraigned before the magistrate on a technical charge of vagrancy. The rights of the city of Plainfield were waived, and the men were placed in the hands of Chrystie, Detective Church and an officer from the Essex county attorney's office. They were taken to Newark in a big auto.

FIVE-DOLLAR GAZE.

Chief Kiely's Look Out of the Window Pays the City.

Chief of Police Kiely looked out of the window at the station house Monday while the city court was in session, and saw Louis Levine driving a junk wagon without any number or license number on it. An ordinance says junk dealers must have both on their wagons.

The Chief gave an order to Detective-Sergeant Flynn. The detective went out, took Levine off his seat and shoved him in before Judge Runyon.

"Five dollars or 20 days in jail," said the magistrate when he heard the case. It was a second offense.

Chief Kiely chuckled. "That took out of the window," he said, "was worth $5 to the city of Plainfield."

STATE MUTUAL WABBLES

Its Assets Shrink From $2,500,000 to $1,200.00 and Plainfielders Suffer.

DEMAND A RECEIVER

Thirty-five Stockholders Here Had Approximate Investment of $21,000 In Building and Loan.

Considerable surprise, as well as apprehension, was manifested in this city Monday, when it become known that Theodore Backes, lawyer, representing State Banking Commissioner David O. Watkins, had applied to Vice Chancellor Leaning for a rule to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed for the State Mutual Building and Loan Association of New Jersey. There are approximately thirty-five stockholders in Plainfield and twenty in Scotch Plains and Fanwood. There are also a few in Dunellen.

William V. Nash, Jr., representing some fifteen stockholders, was on hand in court at Camden yesterday to apply for a receiver. Mr. Nash says that he represents $9,000 worth of stock. A Newark lawyer was also present on the same mission, but the court granted the application of the State Commissioner of Banking for a rule to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed. This matter was finally settled out of court, and officials of the organization declared there was absolutely nothing in the report that it was in financial straits.

Yesterday Backes, in answer to questions of Vice Chancellor Leaning, at Camden, said that the applications for withdrawals from the association was about $400 in excess per day of the receipts. It was on the strength of the assertion of counsel for Commissioner Watkins that Vice Chancellor Leaming allowed the rule, and made it returnable for argument on April 30.

"This association began business in 1892. It was very successful and grew to great size, so that it had at one time gross assets of more than $2,500,000 and had more than 77,000 shares in force. It has repaid to its shareholders, in withdrawals and maturity of shares, more than $3,800,000. Its present assets are about $1,200,000, and shares in force 27,000. All the money the association has, with which to do business, is what is paid to it by its shareholders. The withdrawals, owing to money conditions, have been very heavy of late and there are quite a number on file. On April 4, a stockholder who had given notice of withdrawal, filed a suit a few days before he would have been paid in regular course (and he was in fact paid), which was widely published as an application for a receiver not worth standing, in our opinion, this action was not warranted, it has had a very disturbing effect, both in increasing the volume of withdrawals and decreasing receipts. Your directors feel it may be wise, in view of these circumstances, in a purely mutual organization such as this, to continue the business and possibly by so doing impair the present value of the assets when other action might preserve their great part. They will, therefore, that the whole question should be submitted to the judgment and action of the stockholders. This can only be done by the adoption by your board of a resolution such as accompanies this, submitting it to the stockholders."

This resolution among other things provides "that at this time it is deemed advisable and for the interest of the shareholders of the State Mutual Building and Loan Association of New Jersey, in the judgment of the board of directors, that the same be dissolved and its business liquidated." If the shareholders decide to dissolve and liquidate the finances under the law they can select three or more members to act as trustees, who can proceed to wind up the affairs of the association. This is why Vice Chancellor Leaming made his rule returnable April 30, so that the shareholders can decide for themselves what they think best for them.

In the Borough Court.

Charles Messler, who was arrested by the borough police, Saturday night, was fined $3 by Recorder Dolliver, Monday. Angelo Umprarrie, was was charged by his wife with trying to break up housekeeping, was let off with a $5 fine on his promise to remain out of the borough. He has been before the court several times for the same offense.

EXHIBIT OF CITY SCHOOLS

Handiwork of Local Public School Pupils to be Shown at Jamestown Exhibition.

TRY FOR GOLD PRIZE

Plainfield Got Gold Medal at St. Louis and Effort Will Now Be Made To Get Another.

Under the supervision of Superintendent Henry M. Maxson, the instructors in the city schools, Monday completed ready for shipment, Plainfield's educational exhibit for the Jamestown exposition which opens the latter part of the month. In every way it is superior to any that has been prepared locally and teachers and pupils alike are confident that it will earn at least one gold medal. Dr. Maxson declared this morning that the exhibit is much more complete than the one which secured two first prizes at St. Louis and it will bring Plainfield into more prominence for its splendid schools than ever before.

Because of having the benefit of previous experiences in connection with the Chicago, Buffalo and St. Louis expositions, the teachers have simplified the method of preparing the specimens of class work and they have been arranged in a neat and attractive manner. The exhibit will be shown in two ways, one known as the cabinet form, wherein single pages are displayed on large card sheets, and the other the booklet form. In the latter one subject or study from the various classes or High School course, are grouped together and bound in an attractive manner.

In the latter, exceptional originality has been displayed in preparing the cover designs, all of which have been executed by the pupils. Some of them display ability that betokens embryonic artists and designers and in themselves are a splendid example of the fine work done in this study in the Plainfield schools. Pages of literary effort have also been embellished with free hand drawings in ink and water colors.

In connection with the High School's contribution to the exhibit, Principal Travell has made a feature of specimen pages from the commercial department. They show the progress of the pupils in typewriting and stenography from beginning to end and are much more attractive than the idea at first conveys. Some of the typewriting work is a model of perfection and figures have been evolved by spacing that reveal the machine's possibilities.

Every pupil and every grade in the city has been represented in the combined exhibit and it comes distinctively as class work and not something special done outside of the regular hours. Most of the specimen pages are those handed in at various times and placed in the booklets without any corrections by the teachers. Despite this fact, mistakes of any kind are few and far between.

Dr. Maxson said today that it would be impossible to allow the public to see the exhibit at this time as there are no facilities for displaying the cards and no time must be lost in getting them to Jamestown. It may be possible, however, to show them when they are sent back at the close of the exposition.

The exhibit as a whole is made up as follows:

From the grades: 6 booklets arithmetic, 7 booklets language, 4 booklets geography, 2 booklets algebra, 1 booklet geometry, 1 booklet history, 4 booklets drawing, 1 booklet kindergarten work, 2 booklets primary work; from the High School: 3 booklets French, 1 booklet botany, 3 booklets history, 2 booklet economics, 1 booklet civics, 1 booklet physics, 1 booklet plane geometry, 4 booklets German, 1 booklet English, 1 booklet typewriting, 1 booklet stenography, 1 booklet bookkeeping, 1 booklet drawing, 1 booklet "The Oracle," 11 display cards of drawing, 7 display cards of arithmetic, 2 display cards of history, 4 display cards of geography, 7 display cards of language, 1 display card of science.

Charles Messersmith Weds.

Miss Nettie B. Haffner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Haffner, formerly of this city, and Charles Messersmith, also a former resident, but now of New Brunswick, were married last night by Rev. Charles E. Sferring at his home on Watchung avenue. The couple was attended by Miss Ida Branch Jeter, William Messersmith and A. S. Martin. An informal reception followed. Mr. and Mrs. Messersmith will reside in New Brunswick, where the groom is employed.

Insane Man's Trick.

Louisville, Ky., April 15.—John Metz, an insane man, turned the tables on his brother, who had him in charge at the Tenth street station yesterday, directing a colored porter to hold his brother, Edwin Metz, until he could find a policeman. The porter did as directed, while John Metz escaped temporarily. Edwin Metz then explained that his brother and not himself was insane, and enlisted the assistance of detectives, who recaptured John Metz and took him to the police station.

ANNUAL MEETINGS OF

Crescent Avenue Presbyterian Has Particularly Prosperous Year as It Is Chapels.

LARGE SUMS RAISED

First Presbyterian and Park Avenue Baptist Also Report Flourishing Condition Financially and Spiritually.

The annual meeting of the trustees and the congregation of the Crescent Avenue church were held Wednesday in the chapel. There was a large attendance of members, the three chapels being represented as well as the mother church.

The trustees' meeting, over which Charles F. Abbott presided, was brief, the main bit of business being the presentation of the treasurer's report. Townsend Rushmore was the secretary.

W. A. Garrigues was re-elected trustee for three years, and the auditors, G. H. Goddard, A. C. Munger and Stuart H. Patterson, were continued in office. The trustees were authorized to borrow money for the use of the congregation from time to time, as they saw fit during the year.

Finances.

The report of Treasurer Joseph W. Sandford showed total receipts from pew rents to be $16,772. The regular expenses amounted to $15,791. The items that go to make up the total are as follows:

Salaries, $7,362.49; music, $3,782.90; light, $402.08; Sunday-school, $500; parsonage, repairs, taxes, etc., $528.50; interest on mortgage on parsonage, $225; pulpit supplies, $240; insurance, $245.72; plumbing and heating, $538.55; carpenter work, $49.62; painting, $60.85; repairs and electric wiring, $542.57; repairs and tuning organ and piano, $87.50; mason, $53.25; fuel, $709.99; shovels, $1.50; sand, $5.95; ice, $15.61; printing, postage, stationery, $135.16; laundry, $17.12; communion wine, $25.43; cleaning carpets, $87.59; supplies, $2.28; water supply, $88; architect, $20; repairing chairs, $7.80; carting ashes, etc., $45.

The estimated expenses for the coming year were calculated as follows:

Salaries, $5,864; music, $3,000; Sunday-school, $500; light, $375; insurance, $250; pulpit supplies, $240; interest, $150; repairs and supplies, $3,000; total, $13,379.

The Chapels.

The receipts from the chapels, Hope, Warren and Bethel, amount to $9,172. The expenses were $9,327.

The report shows that Warren chapel will cost, building and lot, $30,000. Of this amount $7,843 is lacking.

Rev. Dr. John Sheridan Zelie, the pastor, presided over the church meeting. Dr. Ellis W. Hedges, the clerk, was at his table.

Encouraging reports were received from all the departments of church work. In the report of the Young People's Association it was stated that a canvass among the Italians of the city to discover if there was a field for the establishment of a Protestant mission it was discovered that there were 109 non-Catholic Italian families, totalling 560 people.

Superintendent H. J. Cochran reported for the home Sunday-school. There are 375 pupils, with an average attendance of 202. The cradle are 35 in the cradle roll. The school cost $514 to conduct. It gave $658 to missions.

Superintendent A. W. Duxbury and Rev. F. D. Tildon reported for Bethel chapel. The membership increased ten during the year, the receipts were $676 and the expenditures $658. Superintendent E. Herbert Condict and Rev. L. H. Howard reported a steady, quiet progression at Hope chapel.

In reporting on Warren chapel, Rev. Joseph O. McKelvey said he was sorry to have to say that conditions were not what the minister in charge enjoys. He likened the chapel to a runner that was panting for his second wind. When new pulpit building, he said, would give his flock their second wind, and enable them to keep up the pace. Superintendent E. E. Parvin reported a membership of 126, an increase of 3. The receipts were $655 and the expenditures $605.

Membership 1,703.

Dr. Zelie reported a membership of 966, a net increase of twenty-three. With the chapels, the membership totalled 1,705 and the Sunday-schools 1,601. The deacons' fund amounted to $1,155, practically the same as last year. Of this $904 was expended.

The Ladies' Aid Society reported a year of liberal giving. It gave $1,722 to home missions, $1,327 to foreign missions, Boys' Mission Band $108, McAll Mission, in France, $640, and to the Flower Committee $128.

During the year the church gave $27,601 for various causes. With the congregational expense, the church paid out a total of $43,393. The principal items in the record of giving for benevolences are as follows:

Foreign missions, $5,073; home missions, $5,413; chapels, $6,021; Warren chapel building fund, $3,485; mission relief, $440; education, $302; colleges, $770; Synodical Home missions, $506; Plainfield charities, $1,815.

A motion to substitute the week before Easter in place of the first week of the year as the week of prayer was lost by a vote of 30 to 29. Leander N. Lovell opposed it on the ground that it was more in line with the other congregational churches to hold the services in January. W. D. Murray supported it, holding that the week before Easter was favorable to larger attendance, and that the time was one when the hearts of most Christians was filled with the spirit of prayer. Dr. Zelie stated that the Presbytery had suggested Holy Week as the time for the week of prayer. Not all those present voted on the motion.

Gifts to Warren.

Just before the meeting closed, James W. DeGraff made an appeal for another great effort to get the money necessary to start Warren chapel in its new building free of debt. He said a friend had $1,000 toward the $7,800 lacking on condition that the balance be raised by July 1. The offer is made anonymously.

Andrew J. Gavett, John Leal and E. E. Parvin were re-elected elders, and John F. Harman was elected to succeed the late Henry C. Squires. John Doull Miller and H. O. Newman were re-elected deacons.

First Presbyterian.

The congregational and parish meetings of the First Presbyterian church, held Wednesday, showed that the financial and spiritual condition is most satisfactory. The fiscal year is closed practically free from debt and this is gratifying to the members. Elders and deacons were elected, the question of music was left to the music committee, which comprises the Session and pastor, Rev. C. E. Herring's salary was made the same as last year and reports were presented by the various societies of the church.

The congregational meeting was held by Rev. C. E. Herring as moderator and J. M. Bettman clerk. Reports were presented by the Christian Endeavor Society, the Women's Foreign and Home Missionary Societies, Sunday-school, Forward Movement, Pastor's Aid, Little Light Bearers and King's Messengers, and each showed progress. In round numbers $1,800 was raised during the year for benevolent purposes.

J. M. Bettman and E. M. Cave were elected elders for a term of three years to succeed themselves, and A. V. Searing was re-elected deacon for three years, while Joseph C. Allen was chosen a deacon for the same period to succeed A. G. Remsen, deceased.

At the parish meeting, which followed, E. M. Case was chosen moderator and Howard A. Pope clerk. The report of the church treasurer, William H. Shotwell, showed the receipts for the year to be $5,215.25, and the expenditures the same. Included in the receipts is a bequest from the estate of Miss Carrie B. Runyon, amounting to over $200 and a special check of $100 from a friend.

In the selection of trustees, D. J. Young was re-elected for two years, and P. A. Currie, Jr., was chosen to succeed I. B. Hill, resigned, for the same period, and Joseph A. Haynes and Clarence E. Bond were re-elected trustees for a term of three years. By a unanimous vote it was decided that the pastor's salary should be the same as last year. The church membership at present is 400, there being two deaths during the past year.

Park Avenue Baptist.

The parish meeting of the Park Avenue Baptist church was held last Wednesday night. The other meeting was held several weeks ago.

The church treasurer's report showed that the receipts amounted to $4,149 and the disbursements to $4,100. In the church debt fund the receipts amounted to $2,467. There is a balance of $331.

G. W. V. Moy read an encouraging report for the board of trustees. S. A. Kent, H. D. Dean and H. Scholfield were re-elected to the board, and A. D. Thompson, Jr., was elected in the place of Roland C. Treadwell, deceased.

Changes Before Pavement Is Laid.

Before brick pavement can be laid in the business section of the city, it will be necessary for several other improvements to be made. On West Front street, between Park and Madison avenues, the Public Service Corporation will be obliged to lay new rails and ties, the ones now in use having been in service for many years. No doubt other changes in water and gas mains will be necessary and possibly some changes in the sewer pipes will have to be made.

Engagement Announced.

Mrs. John B. Moore, of Kensington avenue, announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Edna Moore, to Henry Knox McIntyre, of New York.

COL. DICKINSON MAKES PUBLIC FAGAN LETTER

IN $100,000 LIBEL SUIT SECRETARY OF STATE CALLS CHARGES FALSE.

Colonel Camuel D. Dickinson, Secretary of State, filed in the Supreme Court at Trenton Friday his declaration in the $100,000 damage suit he has brought against Mayor Mark M. Fagan, of Jersey City, because of charges made by the latter at the time the reappointment of Colonel Dickinson as State Secretary was pending.

Colonel Dickinson enters emphatic denial to all of the allegations of Mayor Fagan, branding them as "false and malicious." He also takes occasion to make public for the first time the famous Fagan letter to Governor Stokes, containing the charges against the public and personal fitness of the Colonel to longer continue in State office. It was these charges that were investigated by the Governor, during which time the term of Colonel Dickinson expired and the State Department was left without a head for almost a day. Following the declaration of the Governor that the Fagan charges were not proven the Colonel was renamed and his nomination was immediately confirmed by the Senate.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS.

Baltimore is thinking of erecting a theatre exclusively for negroes.

Augustus Bogdlan is at the head of the Fawcett stock company, Baltimore.

When "The Daughters of Jorio" is given by Marlowe and Sothern, the author, D'Annunzio, will be present from Italy.

Olla Nazimova, the Russian actress, may appear in Edwin Milton Royle's adaptation of "Article 47," originally written for Mrs. Leslie Carter.

Buffalo Bill is to start a tour of the country *this spring that will con*tinue from season to season until not a corner is left in any reason for going will be left unvisited.

Maurice Maeterlinck has purchased the Abbey of St. Wandrille, in Normandy, which dates back to the seventh century, for a summer home. It is now only a ruin, but Mr. Maeterlinck will have it restored to a habit*able state.*

"LITTLE MAC'S" MEN INVITED TO CEREMONY

STOKES REQUEST VETERANS TO AT*TEND UNVEILING OF STATUTE.*

Governor Stokes has signed Sen*ate bill No. 141. This law provides* for the attendance at the ceremonies incident to the unveiling and dedication of the statue to the memory of Major-General George Brinton McClellan, Army of the Potomac, of the officers and men now living in New Jersey who served in organizations from this State under the immediate command of General McClellan between July 27, 1861, and November 9, 1862.

The ceremony will take place at Washington, D. C., Thursday, May 2, next, at 2 p. m. It is impossible for the Governor, acting as commander-in-chief, to send personal invitations to these veterans in the State. Accordingly, through the newspapers, he extends a cordial invitation to all the officers and men who were in this command during the period specified to attend the ceremonies at Washington.

Under provisions of this act, applications should be made to the adjutant-general of New Jersey, at Trenton, and, if approved, transportation will be furnished by the quartermaster-general. Such application should specify the company and regiment from this State in which the applicant served, with his present address. The Governor urges all who wish to take advantage of this invitation to forward their applications without delay.

RATHER THAN LOSE CATS, WIDOW DIES

DRIVEN FROM HOME SHE COULD ONLY TAKE ONE ALONG.

Rather than be separated from her dozen of more cats, Mrs. Catherine Dowd, of Elizabeth, a widow, sixty-five years old, threw herself under a trolley car Friday. She was cut to pieces, and when the car was raised on jacks she had been dead for several minutes.

For years Mrs. Dowd lived in a dilapidated cottage at No. 21 East Scott Place. Recently the owner told her he would have to have more rent than she was paying. She then hired a flat elsewhere, the agent refusing to allow more than one cat in the *apartments for any one room. She con*sented to this, but repented later.

For years she had given shelter to all stray cats and sacrificed herself and her comfort, even to denying herself food for the sake of the cats. Recently she had only spoken about the place, but usually a score or more were around. She said Friday afternoon that she could not give up her pets, for without them life was not worth living.

MAYOR TO ESTABLISH THE MERIT SYSTEM

HE WILL GIVE POLICEMEN AND FIREMEN REWARD FOR MERIT.

When the Common Council acts upon his recommendation for better pay for the employees of the fire and police department men, Mayor Fisk, it is said, will advocate another change in the policy of those departments, *it being his desire to estab*lish the merit system. His idea is said to be to reward men for faithful and meritorious work. At the present time, the city employees are handed up for any dereliction of duty, but when they are entitled to special favor for especially good work there is no provision for properly rewarding them.

If the Mayor's idea receives favorable recognition on the part of the Common Council there will be an opportunity offered the policemen and firemen for unusual advancement. If an employee is found to have done something particularly praiseworthy he will be advanced over others. In other words he can "skip a number" as the saying goes. In this way, opportunities will be open to the employees which they do not enjoy at present.

Funeral of Theodore Butan.

The funeral of Theodore Rutan was held Friday afternoon at his late residence on Duer street. It was conducted by Rev. George Bowers, of Warrenville, and was largely attended. During the service Miss Jennie DeMott and Miss Florence Conroy sang "Nearer My God to Thee" and "Saved By Grace." Interment was afterward made in the soldiers' plot at Hillside cemetery, the pall bearers being William N. Pangborn, John Emmons, John Pearson, John Case, James Lewis and Colonel Albert Perry.

He Didn't Understand.

"Tell me the old, old story, Harold," she murmured.

"About our being sure to win the pennant this year?" inquired the practical youth. "It is a good deal of a chestnut, hey?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

PARISH 60 YEARS OLD

St. Mary's, Stony Hill, a Parish for Three Score Years to Celebrate.

ON SUNDAY, MAY 26

Bazaar to Be Held at Scotch Plains to Raise Funds—Rev. Linus Schwarz the Pastor.

The women of St. Mary's R. C. church, of Stony Hill, will hold a fair and bazaar at Excelsior Hall, Scotch Plains, Monday, Tuesday and Friday nights, April 17, 18 and 19, to raise funds to put the church and grounds in good condition for the celebration of the sixtieth anniversary of the existence of the parish, to be held on May 26.

St. Mary's church is the mother parish of all Catholic parishes this side of New Brunswick, Mocopin and Dover. The pastor, Rev. Linus Schwarz, and the women of the church, expect that the descendants of the old parishioners, who now occupy more comodious houses of worship, will assist trem to make the affair a success in memory of their departed relatives, some of whom are now resting in the cemetery which is part of the church grounds needing attention.

The women are striving hard to make their affair as attractive and entertaining as possible and decided to hold it at Scotch Plains, which point is easy of access.

PREPARING FOR OPENING OF NETHERWOOD HOME.

David Hand Memorial Auditorium to Be Erected for Use This Summer.

Among the new features at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home this summer will be a building to be erected by David Hand in memory of his two sons. The structure will be used as an auditorium for the holding of Gospel meetings, as well as various forms of entertainments for the children and mothers who spend the summer there.

The fresh air association, which is represented by Rev. Dr. Rodman, rector emeritus of Grace church, is making active preparations for the opening of the home May 30. From now until that time considerable work is to be done in putting the buildings and grounds in condition for the reception of the New York children and their mothers. Miss Sara Curry, manager of the home, will again be in charge of the home. She will open the season.

LONG SENTENCE FOR WORTHLESS HUSBAND

JUDGE SCORES ROBERT MORLEY AND INFLICTS HEAVY PUNISHMENT.

Robert Morley, a machinist, was arraigned before City Judge Runyon Saturday, charged with drunkenness and disorderly conduct by his wife. Morley went to his wife's home, where he wasn't wanted, Tuesday afternoon, and cursed her with language that caused the magistrate to blush when he made out the complaint. He has a police record and *is said to be thoroughly worth*less.

"Morley," said the magistrate, "of all the truck around town, you are the most worthless. You are no good at all to your wife and family, and I think it will be a good thing to put you where you can't see you for some time. One hundred dollars fine and fifty-nine day in jail."

*Mrs. Morley, sitting on the wit*ness' bench, wept silently as her husband was led away. His sentence means nearly five months in jail.

State Portraits for Jamestown.

Albert Cook Myers, superintendent of historical exhibits of the Jamestown exposition, was in Trenton yesterday in consultation with Francis B. Lee, who has charge of the historical division of the New Jersey exhibit. They called on Governor Stokes relative to securing a number *of the portraits of the original sign*ers of the Decoration of Independence now in the State capitol. Governor Stokes looked with favor on the proposition. A special effort is being made to secure original portraits of old families and also original manuscripts of New Jersey documents.

Thesis on Sewerage System.

Among the 123 candidates for degrees at Lehigh University, South Bethlehem, Pa., next June is Frederick R. Horne, of North Plainfield, who is a candidate for the degree of civil engineer. eH will present a *thesis on "Design of a Sewerage Sys*tem for Plainfield, N. J." Union county is also represented by Ira Benjamin Wheeler, Jr., of Elizabeth, whose thesis for the degree of mechanical engineer is on "Test of Engine and Boiler of the Wellbach Silk Mill, Allentown, Pa." Of the 708 students attending Lehigh University this year, fifty-seven are from New Jersey.

NOT OPPOSED TO MARTINE

Former U. S. Senator Smith Denies Report that He has a Candidate for Gov'r.

GOOD WORD FOR "JIM"

Says Plainfielder Is a Democrat of Old School and Should Be Named —Martine Would Receive Senator's Support.

Persistent rumors afloat in Democratic circles to the effect that former United States Senator James Smith, Jr., has been secretly at work to accomplish the nomination of Senator Hinchcliffe or some other prominent Democrat excepting "Farmer-orator" James E. Martine, of this city, for the Governorship, have been set at rest by an emphatic denial from the Senator himself. Mr. Smith denies that he is interested in any particular candidate. He adds, that should the convention see fit to nominate the Plainfield veteran of innumerable political battles, the latter will certainly receive his support.

In response to a query from The Daily Press, Senator Smith says: "Answering your inquiry with reference to Hon. James E. Martine, I beg to advise you that I have not expressed myself in the matter of his candidacy for Governor in any way that would indicate I was opposed to him. I have known Mr. Martine for a good many years and have always regarded him as a Democrat of the old school—'always a Democrat.' I have no choice as to whom the Democracy shall nominate in convention; should it be Mr. Martine, be *certainly will have my hearty sup*port."

POPULAR RECTOR WEDS

The Rev. George A. Warner Takes Miss Ottalie H. Lohrke as His Bride.

CEREMONY AT ORANGE

Morgan Townsend and Everett Murray Two of the Ushers—Couple Off On Their Honeymoon.

Grace Episcopal church, Orange, was the scene of a charming wedding Thursday afternoon, when Miss Ottalie H. Lohrke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto E. Lohrke, of No. 191 Prospect street, East Orange, was married to the Rev. George A. War*ner, the popular rector of Holy Cross* Church, North Plainfield. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Charles T. Wakeley, rector of Grace church. The Rev. Mr. Warner was assistant to Dr. Mann when the latter was rector of Grace church, Orange.

The bride, who was given away by her father, was attended by her sister, Miss Gertrude Lohrke, as maid of honor. She wore a gown of white satin trimmed with duchesse lace, and her tulle veil was caught up with orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of white lilacs. The maid of honor wore pink chiffon trimmed with white lace, with picture hat to match. She carried sweet Pease.

The best man was the Rev. Frank A. Staples, of Baltimore, Md., and the ushers were Morgan Ashley and the Rev. Wallace Gordon, of East Orange; Messrs. Morgan Townsend and Everett Murray, of North Plain*field, and Messrs. Harry Heald and* James H. Foster, of New York.

The church was prettily decorated and was crowded with society folk. After the ceremony a reception took place at the residence of the bride's father, which had been decorated with spring flowers. On their return from a wedding trip the Rev. and Mrs. Warner will reside at No. 30 Washington avenue, North Plainfield.

ARBOR DAY OBSERVED AT LOCAL HIGH SCHOOL.

Alfred Gaskill Speaks to Pupils on Forestry, Illustrating His Remarks.

Arbor Day was observed at the Plainfield High School Friday when Alfred Gaskill, State Forester for New Jersey, delivered a lecture on Forestry. The gallery was filled with visitors and with pupils from the Whittier School. The lecture was illustrated with colored stereopticon views showing types of forests in various parts of the world, including Europe. Mr. Gaskill showed that the value of Arbor Day is not one of sentiment but has a practical need. It originated in the western plains where trees were set out for protection against wind storms, and also for building material and fuel.

The principal object of forestry, he said, is to establish reserves about *the State and equalize the distribu*tion of trees. New Jersey, said he, 42 per cent. of the land is not worth farming, but there is no use for this to go to waste for with little expense it can be made productive. Mr. Gaskill concluded by emphasizing the fact that the success of forestry depends largely on the people, and it is everybody's duty to promote it so far as possible.

U. S. POSTAL STAMPS ACTING AS DETECTIVES

DEPARTURE IN NEW SERIES OF 1907 WHICH WILL WORK WONDERS.

The new series of postage stamps to be issued by the United States this year will be a great departure from the stamps to which letter writers are accustomed. Hitherto, similar stamps have been used all over the country, and, there has been no means of determining from what office they have been sold to consumers. All this will be changed under the new system, and every postoffice of the land will receive due credit for the amount of postage stamps which it sells, which furnishes the only basis upon which the business of the office can be estimated.

Under the old system, this method of computing the business of the different offices has not been at all satisfactory. Thousands of letters, as an instance, are handled, cancelled and dispatched from the city of New York, the stamps on which have been purchased in other offices, and for this the New York postoffice gets no credit. It is the same in every large city of the country, but under the new system this difficulty will disappear, and every office will be credited with exactly the amount of stamps which it sells.

This is to be accomplished by issuing distinctive stamps for every city of any importance in the country, which will bear the name of the city impressed on the stamps. The new postage stamps of 1907 will bear on each stamp the name of the city and State in which they are sold, and it will make no difference in what part of the country they are used, the city of their origin will have the credit for their sale.

Of course the carrying into effect of this plan will involve the issue of thousands of more varieties of stamps than have heretofore been printed, and will add materially to the labor of distributing them among the offices of the country, but it is believed that the additional expense to be incurred will be fully justified by the result of the experiment, as it will keep the department posted at all times in regard to the actual amount of business transacted at every office in the United States.

Every community of any size in the country will hereafter have its own distinctive postage stamp, bearing its name and that of the State in which it is located. In addition to the effect which this system will have upon the keeping of statistical information regarding the business of the offices, it will have another great advantage in aiding very materially to trace thieves who steal postage stamps from postoffices. This is a species of thievery which has increased greatly in recent years, and has caused the government authorities no end of trouble. As fully 6,000 Presidential postoffices will be provided with a stamp bearing in each instance the name of the city and State in which the postoffice selling them is situated, it will be seen that Uncle Sam will be provided with a fine tooth comb by which he can ascertain just where the stolen postal business originates. The thief who steals and sells postage stamps issued to one city in another part of the country can be traced by the identification marks, and be run down much more readily than he could be if all the stamps of the country precisely alike.

Postage stamps in the past have proven to be exceptionally negotiable plunder, for the light-fingered gentry. The Chicago postoffice, a little while ago, was robbed of more than $100,000 worth of stamps of small denominations, and no trace of the perpetrators was ever discovered.

With each gummed piece of paper an inanimate detective, by means of the name of the city of origin, it is scarcely possible that a thief could so completely cover his tracks in disposing of his booty.

There is only one portion of the community which will not hail with enthusiasm the advent of the new "cilled" stamps. This is the philatelists, or stamp collectors, who have become very numerous, not only in the United States, but all over the world. Instead of collecting the stamps of all nations, as formerly, most stamp collectors specialize now by collecting postal souvenirs of some one country, and, naturally, the United States is a favorite field with them. It is estimated that the carrying into effect of this new plan will create something like 50,000 new varieties of American stamps, so that the philatelist whose ambition is to possess a specimen of every stamp ever issued by the United States can scarcely be blamed for his discouragement.

"Frank Leslie" Identified.

Dover, April 15.—It has been learned that "Frank Leslie," who got a horse and rig from Gardiner's livery on Monday and drove to Fair Hills before he was apprehended, is Stewart Lee, son of J. S. Lee, of Scranton, Pa. Constable H. C. Newkirk went after Lee to bring him to Dover yesterday. The boy's parents say that he is only sixteen years old, although he looks to be about eighteen. He disappeared from home on Good Friday. The checks which he forged and cashed at the Mansion House were honored by his father. The latter said that the boy had disappeared once before and had been found in Buffalo, N. Y.

LEGISLATURE'S WORK.

...ours adjourned Sine Die Sat... will resume its meeting ... clear up business that ... attention at this time ... the past session, there were ... things done and some left ... is always the case with a ... body no matter where ...

... the measures enacted were ... Road Commission bill; the ... reform measures; the re... of the Prosecutor; liability ... act providing for State own... of potable water supplies; the ... bill; the Uniform Divorce law; the act to permit ... to express their preference for United States Senator; also the joint resolution asking Congress to move for an amendment to the Federal Constitution to enable the election of United States Senators by popular vote; the freight demurrage and other railroad reform bills; the measure for the investigation of the claims and provisions treating and the sweating evils, and several bills in the interest of labor.

Among the bills lost were the civil service bill, the referendum and initiative bills, the bill to put the Attorney-General's office in charge of ... the bill to abolish the private ... the bill to prohibit the sale of liquor and the bonding bill to legalize its sale on Sundays; the bill providing for a daily legislative record; and the bill giving judges the right to release grand juries selected by the sheriffs.

Although he has been in office a little over three months, Mayor Flick has accomplished more than could be expected in that short space of time. It will be recalled that the campaign he started in the Common Council upon assuming the mayoralty was fraught with recommendations and promises. That he is making good his promises may be seen from the present status of the chief subjects included in it. These are a few of them:

Permanent pavements for the business section—ordinance introduced in the Common Council due for final passage next month.

Investigation of the desirability of municipal control of the water supply—A commission of representative men actively at work pursuing the investigation.

Sanitary collection and disposal of garbage and ashes by the municipality—In course of investigation.

New school building for the West End—Agreement reached by the Common Council for an appropriation of $90,000 for the purpose; work to be started this spring.

Investigation of the feasibility of consolidating North Plainfield with Plainfield—Commission of representative citizens of two municipalities now preparing its report.

Better pay for city employees—Salaries of school teachers raised and those of firemen and policemen as recommended likely to be raised next month.

In addition, the Mayor is devoting his attention to a plan for erecting a fire house in the East End and for the erection of a suitable city hall.

More honors are in store for Dr. William R. Richards, who guide the Crescent Avenue church the strongest congregation in this section of the State, so he decided to do. Since becoming a minister of the denomination less than twenty-five years ago, Dr. Richards' ri... has been remarkable and today ... stands among the great leaders of that faith in this country, where its numerical strength is nearly 1,500,000.

Thanks to the Mayor, the police trials are now open to the public through the medium of the newspapers. The old method of holding trial behind closed doors and the customary refusal to give out any of the proceedings has not only been an injustice to the taxpayers who have a right to know the public business but to the police board itself. Star chamber methods are justly viewed with suspicion and the Mayor in doing away with them has taken the right course.

Mr. Harvey's rattle-trap ... at the New York Democratic Club ... banquet on Saturday night was ... sorry-five years overdue. His was a fair sample of a democratic harangue during the dark days of the Rebellion, when the calamity howlers were just as sure as Mr. Harvey is now that the country was going to the bow-wows.

The thinking members of the Common Council did not require any urging on the part of the Board of Trade or any interested citizens to include North Avenue in the list of streets to be improved by permanent pave but the action of the Board in making the recommendation showed that that body is "on its job."

PROMOTERS POPULAR.

The figures of the Public Bureau of Statistics are to be relied upon, Plainfield's population is now nearing the 20,000 mark. A bulletin issued by that department places the population in 1906 at 19,085, which was 650 more than in 1905, according to the official census compiled in that year. Two years ago, the number of inhabitants was 18,468 and if the proportionate increase is the same in 1907 as it was in 1906, and there is every reason to suppose that it will be, when 1908 is believed in there will be at least 19,608 inhabitants in the city proper.

The growth of North Plainfield has been relatively slower, however, and it is not likely that the borough will be able to show an increase of more than 200 in the two years. In 1905, it had 5,616 poulation, and when the new year arrives it is probable that the total will be about 5,800. But even at this, the total population of the two Plainfields will be approximately 26,500.

The population in other cities, as given out officially, are:

Atlantic City, 29,544; Bayonne, 44,170; Bloomfield, 12,068; Bridgeton, 15,862; Camden, 84,429; East Orange, 21,909; Elizabeth, 62,185; Hackensack, 11,429; Harrison, 13,268; Hoboken, 66,689; Jersey City, 237,952; Kearny, 14,142; Long Branch, 12,525; Millville, 12,144; Montclair, 16,851; Morristown, 12,522; New Brunswick, 23,178; Newark, 289,624; Orange, 26,493; Passaic, 39,799; Paterson, 112,801; Perth Amboy, 27,534; Phillipsburg, 13,712; Trenton, 86,355; Union, 17,269; West Hoboken, 20,250.

AMUSEMENTS.

Eddie Foy appeared in "The Orchid" at Lew Field's Herald Square theatre last Monday evening. Mr. Foy appeared for the first time in this musical comedy at the Lyric theatre, Philadelphia, two weeks ago. "The Orchid" is from the pen of James T. Tanner, author of "The Chinese Honeymoon" and other successes. The music was supplied by Ivan Caryll and Lionel Monckton and the lyrics by Adrain Ross and Percy Greenbank. Artie Choke, the part played by Eddie Foy, is an eccentric character by this well known gardner of the Horticultural College. Beside being an expert in the cultivation of flowers and plants he has a leaning for Shakespeare whom he insists upon quoting continually. The Orchid" has two acts and three scenes, the first two being laid at the Horticultural College of the Countess of Berwick. The first scene of the second act is located in Nice, showing the Promenade des Anglais, and the second the interior of the Opera house. Mr. Foy is supported by a large company which includes Trixie Friganza, Amelia Stone, Laura Guerite, Irene Franklin, George C. Boniface, Jr., Alfred Hickman, Jos. Herbert, Melville Ellis, William Wolf and a carefully selected singing and dancing chorus.

The success of the Hippodrome under its new managers, Messrs. Shubert & Anderson, has been one of the features of the thatrical season in New York. This most unique playhouse in the world is always the centre of interest for every visitor to New York. The new production, "Neptune's Daughter" and "Pioneer Days," exceeds in every way anything ever shown on the Hippodrome stage. The gorgeous ballet, entitled "Under the sea," is without any exception the most glittering and stirring spectacle of color and movement ever presented. There can be no doubt that "Neptune's Daughter" is the most puzzling and the greatest stage novelty that has ever been seen in years. Messrs. Shubert & Anderson have at one bound established themselves as the greatest producing managers in this country. Mr. Lee Shubert had long been known as one of the foremost theatrical managers, while Mr. Sam Anderson, of Cincinnati, was known as one of the most progressive managers of the Middle West. The union of these two men has evolved a combination capable of producing results of unequaled magnitude and splendor. Everything ever done on any stage has been outdone in these two massive productions, and it is the general opinion in New York that the Hippodrome will be packed twice daily until the first of August.

Ethel Barrymore is captivating crowded houses at the Empire theatre by her exquisite performances in the delightful comedy, "His Excellency the Governor." All the comedy and coquetry of her art and combined in the personation. The delicious humor of the piece is finely expressed, and the sentimental phases, which are important, are presented in a superbly natural and convincing manner. In these love scenes, she has the assistance of Oswald McKee, who plays the part of the Governor, and whose acting is at all times of artistic and sterling quality. It will interest the followers of spring fashions to learn that Miss Barrymore wears a series of beautiful and up-to-date gowns in the course of the performance. Her brother, Jack Barrymore, who has not been seen before in New York this season, has an important role in the comedy, that of Captain Carew, U. S. N. While in the merry-makings Cupid provides for the personages in the comedy. Wednesday and Saturday matinees of "His Excellency" at the Empire.

William Collier is holding up his high reputation as a fun-maker by delighting crowded houses at the Garrick theatre, where himself and his new farce, "Caught in the Rain," are in the fourth successful month. The comedian has broken all his New York records with this farce. It is the funniest play in which he has ever appeared in this city, and this fact, having been established on the opening night of the piece, it is no wonder laugh-seekers have thronged to the Garrick, and have greatly appeal to Mr. Collier and his play ever since. It is not because the farce itself is constructed on laugh-making lines that it is so tremendously popular; the fact is, Mr. Collier in writing the play, provided himself with a role that gave him the opportunities he ever had for his adroit and quaint method of fun-making, and for the breezy repartee which he knows how to handle in such effective style. All these things combine to make Mr. Collier's play, and to keep the crowds thronging in his direction.

TEMPER MAY COST HIM HIS BUSINESS

UNUSUAL WARNING FOR STOREKEEPER FROM THE CITYCOURT BENCH.

Appearing in the police court, Monday for the second time as a result of his temper, Tuffon Euperopolous, a Greek who conducts a confectionery store and ice cream parlor on East Front street, was fined $20 and warned that he would have to curb his rages or lose his right to do business.

Euperopolous was arrested two months ago, and convicted of breaking a customer's hat after a display of temper. On Saturday night, James Ennis, a youth, and two companions of his own age ordered soda at the Greek's store. Ennis hit the counter with a stick he carried, and Euperopolous ordered him to stop. The order was followed by a blow. After some words, the boys started to leave the place. As Ennis passed by him Euperopolous either threw or swung a glass, full of ice cream soda, at Ennis' head. The glass smashed against the boy's skull and gashed it severely.

With blood running down his neck and the front of his shirt, Ennis went to police headquarters and swore out a complaint City Judge Runyon happened to be in the station house, and saw the effect of the blow. Policeman John Kelly went to the Greek's store at once and placed him under arrest.

In court this morning, Euperopolous tried to convince the magistrate that he had ordered Ennis to stop his noise a half-a-dozen times, and that Ennis not throwing him but fell from his hand as he tried to ward off an attack by the three youths. Another Greek testified against Ennis, but the three boys swore that the witness was not in the place.

"Whatever the provocation may have been," said Judge Runyon, "there is nothing among the probabilities that would justify a man in hitting this boy as the defendant did. This is the first time that I am not a thing we want displayed among our business men. I will fine him $20 or 20 days in jail, and if he ever appears here again under similar circumstances I am going to see what can be done to close his place up.

"MARTY" O'LOUGHLIN MADE A PROFESSIONAL GOLFER.

Papers Given Player Under Age by the United States Golf Association.

"Marty" O'Loughlin, the professional at the Plainfield Country Club, has received the necessary papers making him a recognized professional golfer, and allowing him to enter any tournament or match sanctioned by the United States Golf Association or its allied association. In the ordinary course of events he would not be able to secure these papers until he attains his majority, but because of his excellent work in previous tournaments and his good record he was able to get them earlier.

"Marty" has already received invitations to play on many of the leading courses in this part of the country and he has decided to accept some of them. The new honors will give him additional privileges and during the coming season he will be put in charge of some of the competitions at the Plainfield Country Club. He has been practicing considerable of late and even now is almost in tournament condition.

Inspected Garbage Plant.

In company with Health Officer Leon Thurlow, Mayor C. J. Flak inspected the garbage disposal system at Atlantic City on Friday. The plant in use in that city is owned by a private concern and is said to have cost $100,000. It is of the type known as the reducing system and is said to possess some features superior to the incinerator system in use in most places.

Gold Medals to Appear at Stirling.

The Gold Medal minstrel troupe, of this city, which has been touring the suburbs all winter, will appear at Stirling next Friday night. The performance will be given in Maennechor Hall at that place under the auspices of the Stirling Athletic Association. Before the close of the troupe's "season," several other nearby places will be visited.

TALK ON PUBLIC HEALTH

What Plainfield Does to Safe Guard Health of CitizensExplained by Mr. Thurlow.

TO THE P.H.S. PUPILS

Explains Dangers of Bad Milk, Sewer Gas, Stagnant Pools, Garbage and Other Breeders of Illness.

The ways in which Plainfield cares for the health of its people were explained in a chapel talk at the Plainfield High School Monday morning by Health Officer Leon Thurlow. The most effective method, he said, is the control of the existing contagious diseases which are reported within twelve hours. Of the nuisances he said, stagnant water is the worst, as it breeds mosquitoes, which spread malaria. Although no diseases are contracted from sewer gas, a plumber devotes his whole time inspecting the plumbing of residences, as it has a tendency to run one's system down and render him susceptible to disease.

The source of ice supply is another matter of investigation that Mr. Thurlow called attention to. The water sheds of all the ponds and lakes are examined for any sewerage drainage or impurities of any kind. Ice from Tier's and the South Plainfield ponds have been condemned for domestic use. In speaking of the house to house inspection of 1903, Mr. Thurlow said it was a noticeable fact that a good many people who take considerable pride in the appearance of their front yards neglect their back yards.

The two greatest need in the Plainfield system of health protection, declared Mr. Thurlow, is a municipal collection of garbage. It is estimated that $50,000 is expended yearly for the collection of garbage, and this same work could be done by the city for a far less cost.

The point on which the speaker made the greatest emphasis was the investigation of the milk supply. Milk, he said, is the chief food for invalids and infants. The great danger lies in the number of bacteria, an excessive number of which causes all the trouble. Seventy-five per cent. of the children who die under one year of age is caused by a high number of bacteria in milk. The only way to prevent this, he said, is to produce milk under clean conditions, and that is brought about by the diligence of the Board of Health. The dairies are frequently inspected and the sanitary condition improved wherever it is needed. At least once a month an analysis of every milk is made and all the records are on file for the inspection of the public.

HIGHLAND PARK A FINE RESIDENTIAL SECTION.

Already One-quarter of the Superb Building Lots Have Been Sold.

Highland Park is located in the city of Plainfield, which is a city of 25,000 inhabitants, with the best train service to New York. The distance is twenty-four miles, but the time, including the ferry, is only forty-two minutes. The park is about fifty feet higher than the main portion of Plainfield, and is being rapidly developed. There are 700 lots, on which many houses are being built, and the street improvements are being put in. About one-fourth of the lots have already been sold, and as prices are reasonable they are being disposed of rapidly. The main trolley line runs through the property. The water is drawn from artesian wells and is exceedingly pure.

The Bridge commission appointed by the governors of New York and New Jersey made its report last week recommending one, and possibly two, bridges to be built over the Hudson river. This is thought to be assured, as all that is necessary is to have an act of Congress passed authorizing the two States to build the structure. The Bridge commission states in its report that the five counties in New Jersey nearest New York have increased in population from 4,600,000 in 1900 to over 8,000,000 people at present. The members of the commission believe that nothing will contribute more to the commercial and industrial development of New Jersey than the adoption of some of these plans for bridging the Hudson river. All of this territory is within nineteen miles of the city hall, Manhattan, and is really a part of Greater New York.

The Central Railroad of New Jersey furnishes Plainfield with 100 trains daily. It has for years experienced a gradual and healthful growth, but now a boom is looked for in that section this spring, and doubtless Highland Park will be much benefited, as it lies in that portion of the city where the most active development is taking place.—New York Mail.

Co. K's Officers Pass Exams.

Captain H. B. Kitchel, First Lieutenant Charles Peterson and Second Lieutenant A. I. Littell, of Co. K, have passed their examinations before the official examining board at Trenton and expect to receive their commissions soon. Each officer attained a high per centage at the examination.

N.P.H.S. COMMENCEMENT

ON FRIDAY, JUNE 21

Speaker Not As Yet Selected—Superintendent H. C. Krebs Arranging Award of Prizes.

While all the details concerning the graduation exercises of the North Plainfield High School have not yet been completed, Superintendent Krebs is rapidly perfecting them and will soon be able to make final announcement. Five girls and one boy will be graduated on Friday, June 21. The commencement exercises will be held at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium. The committee from the Board of Education is looking for a speaker and his name will be announced within a short time.

The graduates will be: Wilbur Dunning and the Misses Myra Emmons, Florence Smaller, Ethel Most, Edith GaNun and Lavinia Hand. The fact that the four year course has taken the place of the three year course, accounts for the small class. Next year, it is expected that the class will be much larger.

Considerable interest is manifested in the awards of prizes in the various branches of study and Superintendent Krebs is now at work determining the averages of the pupils who are competing for them.

"FLORAL FETE" NETTED $1,800 FOR NURSERY

THREE DAYS' ATTRACTION PROVED TO BE PROFITABLE.

The "Floral Fete," for the benefit of the Day Nursery, ended in the Casino Saturday night, the most sanguine expectations of the City Union of The King's Daughters, under whose auspices it was held, being surpassed, as over $1,800 was realized. In the afternoon the Casino was crowded mostly with children. Over 800 persons attended in the evening. The entertainment of the afternoon and evening consisted of moving pictures and fancy dances by Miss Helen Stevens, delighting both old and young.

The bowling alleys and the chafing dishes proved attractive to the men. Practically everything was sold at the various booths, and the few things remaining were quickly sold at auction by City Judge William N. Runyon and Hugh Dekmatel, good prices being secured. The souvenir postal cards were popular and arrangements have been made for the further sale of them.

The total receipts, exclusive of one or two booths not reported, were $2,709, and the net profit at present is $1,800. The "furnace mite box" received $6.63, and it is desired that a sufficient sum may be received for the purpose at an early date. The profits from the fete will enable The King's Daughters to pay the $1,000 due next month and leave a substantial balance to meet current expenses.

Special credit is due Mrs. F. W. Butler, chairman; Mrs. Harry L. Hall, Mrs. Charles A. Rose, Mrs. E. F. Feickert and Miss Bertha Whitney, as well as every member of the City Union of The King's Daughters for their efforts in directing the fete.

Telephone Industry Progress.

Few persons realize the rapid growth which has taken place in the past few years in the use of the telephone as a means of communication. Statistics issued at the close of the year 1906 show that there were in use in the United States alone more than 7,000,000 instruments, and an aggregate of a little over 6,000,000 miles of wire used for telephone service. The telephone industry gives employment to 90,000 persons in the United States, an increase of 171 per cent. in six years, while during the same time the number of stations has increased 239 per cent, and the wire milage 249 per cent. There is little doubt that much of this increase is due to the general adoption of the so-called "message-rate" system, in place of the flat annual charge formerly in vogue.—By Henry Harrison Suplee, in the April-June Forum.

Capt. and Mrs. Hand to Celebrate.

Captain and Mrs. William Hand, of East Second street, will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary on Saturday, May 11, in connection with the annual reunion of the 11th Regiment, N. J. Vols., which will be held at Trueh Court. Captain Hand is a member of the 11th Regiment and on account of the anniversary of his wedding falling on that date has asked his fellow-comrades for the privilege of doing the honors on that occasion.

PRAISE FOR ROOSEVELT

Rev. Dr. Chambliss Says President is Attacked Because He Dares to do Right.

PREACHES ON "TRUTH"

Honesty Is Words Necessary To Success—It Is Priceless Virtue, Declares First Baptist Pastor.

In an impressive discourse delivered by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss at the First Baptist church, Sunday, on the subject, "Advice for Buyers," the text of which was "Buy the Truth and Sell it Not," he paid tribute to President Roosevelt, who he said was being attacked by men in high places because he dared to do his duty as he saw it. He praised the President for the simplicity of his rulings and his determination to see that the laws are executed in all fairness. While he did not use the President's name in his remarks, the reference was so plain that it could not be mistaken.

In speaking of his text to "Buy the Truth and Sell It Not," Dr. Chambliss urged that all obtain the priceless treasure, the truth, at any cost. While the Scriptural injunction is that truth shall not be sold, he said, the possessor is expected to share it with others, as thus through an exchange of it the best results are to be obtained.

Dr. Chambliss drew attention to the story of the rich young man who when he asked what he must do to be saved was told that he must sell all that he had and give to the poor. It was a costly thing for him to do, but he said it served to illustrate the point that salvation is not to be had without great sacrifice. The preacher declared that truth is an absolute necessity not only in all kinds of business, but in every walk of life, that without this principle, success cannot be attained.

WILSON GETS CONTRACT.

Underbids Watchung Co. for Furnishing Crushed Stone.

*At a special meeting in the Coun*cil chamber, last night, the borough Councilmen received new bids for the furnishing of crushed stone for street work and awarded the contract to J. Wilson. The only other firm which entered a bid was the Watchung Stone Company, which protested against the awarding of any contract two weeks ago, because of alleged irregularities in the method of receiving the first bids. In some instances Wilson's bid was fifteen and twenty cents a ton below that of the Watchung company.

The Watchung company is the re*cently organized concern which* has planned to conduct a quarry on the mountain above Grove street. It presented bids for furnishing stone when the borough first called for them three weeks ago but at the time set for awarding the contract, asserted that the procedure was being conducted illegally. The Councilmen agreed that their method of awarding contracts was not in strict accordance with the law and accordingly rejected all bids and called for new ones.

COLORED COMMANDERY IN ANNUAL CONCLAVE.

The annual conclave of St. Calvary Grand Commandery, K. T., colored, State of New Jersey, was held in the rooms of Cypress Commandery on West Front street, last night. Grand Commander Eugene Phillips and staff, of New York State, together with representatives from all parts of New Jersey, were present.

These officers were elected: Rt. Eminent Grand Commander, William Jones, Plainfield; deputy grand commander, William Horn, Trenton; generalissimo, Arthur Venable, Plainfield; captain general, William Wright, Newark; recorder, James Connett, Plainfield; treasurer, Past Grand Commander William Douglass, Plainfield.

After the election an adjournment was taken to Mrs. Scott's restaurant on Madison avenue, where a banquet was served by Cypress Commandery, of this city.

THE PRESS AND STATE.

Twenty-five years ago there was not a single newspaper in the United States whose news columns were absolutely free from partisanship. Today there is no reputable newspaper in all the land which does not give reasonably honest reports of events. To be sure the effects of personal bias and prejudice will show in the chronicles of the press, because, like all other writings, they receive some colorings from prejudices of their authors, but as statements of fact they are true, reliable.

Coincident with the development of the press toward higher standings has been a gradual growth along lines of independent thought among the masses of the people, from which has undoubtedly sprung the reaction against illegitimate methods in politics and in business, which has stirred the country during the last twelve months.—Houston Post.

BRAKEMAN SAVED HER

Declaring that she had quarreled with her husband and that she had nothing more to live for, a richly dressed and bejewelled woman residing in this city, twice unsuccessfully attempted to commit suicide while riding to Plainfield on the 12:15 train from New York Saturday night. Each time the brakeman pre*vented her from jumping from* the train while it was travelling at a high rate of speed. The brakeman finally took charge of the woman, remaining with her until this city was reached, when she was turned over to the authorities at the North Avenue station and taken to her home.

The woman, unaccompanied, boarded the train at Jersey City. Nothing strange was noted about her. When the train was crossing the Rahway river near Cranford, she quickly arose from her seat, and making a wild dash for the platform was about to jump off when the brakeman caught her by the arm, and brought her back into the coach. Realizing that the woman was in a high state of nervous excitement, the brakeman watched her closely, but a little later she eluded his gaze long enough to make a second attempt to kill herself. This time she reached the platform steps, when the brakeman just caught her in the nick of time. She tried in vain to break away, but the brakeman pulled the bell rope and stopped the train. With the assistance of other members of the crew the woman was again taken back into the coach, where she was guarded until the train reached Plainfield.

Inquiry on the part of the railroad officials brought forth the allegation that the woman had engaged in a quarrel with her husband and did not care to live any longer. The incident caused great excitement among the passengers in the coach in which the woman was riding and some of the other women became almost hysterical, fearing that the Plainfielder would kill herself before she reached home.

DOMESTIC SERVANTS' CLUB.

In the belief that domestic servants need social pleasure as much as any class of people, Lady Hope, an Englishwoman of wealth, has established two clubs in London in the vicinity of her own fine West End house, says an exchange.

One is for men servants, the other for women servants. Both clubs are residential, the rooms renting from $1 to $1.50 a week, while the annual membership fee is $2.50 and $1.00 for the men and the women, respectively.

The clubs are comfortably equipped with billiard, reading, writing and work rooms, and attractive drawing rooms and assembly halls for concerts, lectures, etc. These two clubs, with a third and even larger one for working girls, of which Lady Hope is also the sponsor, number among them over 1,000 members.

Visitors of these clubhouses find them well managed. The members will be found playing billiards, others lounging in easy chairs before the open grates, still others talking politics, or doing fancy work, or writing letters or reading. Lady Hope makes those who are out of employment her special interest, being every means to find them congenial work.

This indefatigable founder of clubs —she has recently added a free club for young men in business to her other three—is a literary woman, as well as a philanthropist. Besides being the author of several novels, she contributes to the periodical press and conducts a magazine in the interests of mistress and maid. As with the camera, she has carried her photography to a high state of excellence, her large collection of pho*tographs including* many taken by her in South Africa, Egypt and on the continent, for Lady Hope has the modern craze for travel.

GYMNASIUM BANQUET.

HURT IN TROLLEY CRASH

Colored Driver Thrown From Seat and Run Over by His Own Van.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

Vehicle Was Struck From Behind by Employes Car Returning From Dewey Park Barns.

The Public Service Corporation's employes car, returning from Dewey Park with motormen and conductors on their way home at 2 o'clock this morning, crashed into the rear of a moving van belonging to N. O. Dunster, of Somerville, on West Front street, between Albert street and Mariners place. The driver of the van, Henry Howard, colored, was pitched headlong from his seat and falling in front of the van was run over by it. His right arm was broken and he sustained severe contusions that compelled his hurried removal to Muhlenberg Hospital.

The horses attached to the vehicle tore themselves from it and ran blindly down West Front street and all the way through the city. They were found at 3 o'clock this morning by a milkman, jogging along at East Fifth street and Franklin place. The police took them to a stable.

The trolley car was in charge of Motorman Charles Schotop and Conductor Phillips and was proceeding at a high rate of speed. In his statement of the accident, Schotop said it was raining heavily at the time and very dark, making it impossible for him to see any great length ahead. He was unaware that the rig was in front of him until almost directly upon it. He reversed his controller and applied the brake but the force of the crash was sufficient to demolish the rear end of the van and tear off one of the axles.

Howard was driving behind another rig owned by Dunster and in charge of John Frech, of Raritan. Frech told the police that they noticed no light or heard no bell and were totally unconscious of the danger. The crash came so suddenly that Howard had no chance to catch hold of the seat and keep himself from falling. He went down between the horses and his escape from death was little short of miraculous. In running away, the team cleared Frech's van safely and his car was not damaged in any way. The employes in the trolley car were severely shaken up by the collision but none of them were injured. Schotop escaped without a scratch.

The hospital authorities said this noon that Howard's condition is not serious. His home is at 172 Davenport street, Somerville.

HOPE CHAPEL MEN'S CLUB HOLDS ENTERTAINMENT

OUR H QUARTETTE AND OTHERS PRESENT FINE PROGRAMME.

The Men's Club of Hope Chapel presented a musical and literary entertainment in the Sunday school rooms, last night, that was largely attended despite the heavy downpour at starting-out time. The proceeds are to be added to the organ fund.

The appearing artists on the programme were the Four H. Quartette, the well known local singing organization; Miss Justine Robe of Brooklyn, reader, who has been a favorite in the city through previous appearances; Thomas Sauer, monologuist, and Thomas L. Mozza, accompanist. Miss Roberts was as distinct a "hit" in the We as she has done in the uptown ches and was compelled to respond to two and three encores after ever selection. Her character impersonations were splendid and other numbers of a dramatic nature revealed her versatility in no small measure.

Though allotted but two numbers on the programme, the Four H. Quartette were not allowed to retire and gave four or five. The organization is composed of Harry R. Roberts, Horace J. Martin, Jay Hugh Ricketts and Harry Hilmes. They have a repertoire of songs to suit the and character work that is admirable for the blues. Mr. Martin scored as individual success when he selected solo and Mr. Muir's monologue, "Tersely Told Trolleyana," was well received. The programme closed with a playlet, "A Husband's Dilemma," in which the characters were taken by Messrs. Roberts, Ricketts and Hilmes, assisted by Mrs. H. R. Roberts.

The committee from the club which had charge of the affair was composed of David Bowden, chairman; Ralph Ricketts, John Stovall and Peter Sweeny.

NEW LAW WON'T AFFECT US

Measure Providing for Change of Form of Government Has Referendum Clause.

ACKERMAN FOUGHT IT

Senator and Mayor Do Not Fear that Act Signed by Governor Yesterday Will Be Taken Advantage of Here.

Governor Stokes yesterday signed Senate bill, No. 22, an extraordinary measure providing for a change in the form of government in Bridgeton, but which unfortunately applies equally to Plainfield, Bayonne and other cities, should the inhabitants be so foolish as to take advantage of it. Locally a referendum clause is attached although there is no need for the least fear that the municipality's governing body would adopt the act should it be left to its discretion.

In discussing the new law, State Senator E. R. Ackerman, of this city, who vigorously opposed it in the Senate, stated that Plainfield there is no danger that Plainfield will be effected by it. He drew attention to the fact that he had the bill amended so that it requires two-thirds per cent. of the voters to petition the Common Council or other governing body in order that the referendum be had. In its original form, provision was made that ten per cent. was all that was necessary. Mayor Fisk, too, does in no way anticipate that Plainfield will adopt the law.

The measure in question, introduced by Senator Hutchinson, is intended for the relief of conditions said to exist in Bridgeton, but as it applies to all cities under 20,000 inhabitants it would equally affect Plainfield.

The Hutchinson bill covers sixty pages and a careful reading of it shows that should any city adopt its provisions the place would be controlled absolutely by six men in whom the entire government is vested. The provides for the election of five mayors of three years residence each to act as the Council, the term of office being graduated. It also provides for the election of a mayor. The Council by a four-fifths vote conveys itself into commissions, of three men each both for each man namely, a commissioner of finance, a commissioner of streets and highways, a commissioner of parks and public buildings, a commissioner of public works and a commissioner of safety. They take office on January 1 and have power to fill all vacancies in their body. In case they fail to agree on the commissionerships, the mayor has the power of appointment. The mayor, himself, is the pooh-bah of the city. The Council has the right to pass any measure by a four-fifths vote over the mayor's veto and it can borrow any sum or negotiate any loan it desires without ordinance or consent of the people. The salaries of the councilmen are $500 each and no official is allowed to engage in other business nor receive any passes or gratuities. The council has also power to erect and maintain a hospital, city hall and lots of other things without the consent of the people. A local option clause is also contained in the bill, as is a provision empowering the local authorities to call out the militia.

New Chorus Choir and Organist.

The officers of Faith chapel have engaged William Holmes, baritone soloist of the First Baptist church choir, to take charge of the music at the chapel, commencing May 1. He will organize a chorus choir and afterward train the voices each week in the singing of church music. Arrangements have also been made with Mrs. Clarence Murphy to take the position of organist from May 1. Mr. Holmes will continue to sing at the First Baptist church.

Rev. Mr. Goodrich to Speak.

Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, will be among those who will make addresses this afternoon at the twenty-ninth annual meeting of the Congregational Association of New Jersey, which opens today and continues through tomorrow. The address of welcome will be given by Rev. George P. Eastman, with a response by the Rev. Elliot W. Brown, of Glen Ridge, moderator of the association.

Master Mechanics in Convention.

The State Association of the Master Mechanics is holding its quarterly convention at Paterson today. The delegates from Plainfield who are in attendance are Walter Apgar, John Abbott, Lemuel B. Woolston, David Dunavan, Philip Jahn and C. W. Krausse.

Popular Concert.

The Junior Tennessee Jubilee vocalists will give a popular concert at the Y. M. C. A. Saturday night. They are said to be the true exponents of plantation song and story.

REDUCE YOUR COAL BILL

Here is the Formula for Making Ashes Burn Like Coke.

COMBINATION IS CHEAP

Plain Salt, Oxalic Acid and Water All That Are Necessary to Cut Down Fuel Expense by More Than Half.

Chemists have solved the secret of John Ellmore, the Altoona, Pa., cobbler, who invented a compound to make coal ashes burn better than the original fuel. Residents of Altoona have been using the compound with much saving in their fuel bills.

Here is the formula and the way to use it:

Common salt, one pound.

Oxalic acid, two ounces.

Water, one gallon.

Mix and moisten a mixture containing one part coal and three parts ashes and a better fuel than pure coal is obtained.

The ashes of anthracite coal burn as readily as do those of bituminous. This mixture will, upon being placed upon a burning fire, fuse into a coke like mass and deposit but little residue. The chemical action of this compound is thus explained:

When an aqueous solution of an alkaline salt, such as common salt, is mixed with coal ash, the result is that a mild lye is formed, which when mixed with any combustible material, such as coal, and upon the application of heat gives off oxygen gas, thus enabling rapid combustion.

The addition of oxalic acid caused a chemical change of greater value than the first, for the reason that it results in the formation of a carbide, which in turn gives off acetylene gas, this adding to the intensity of the heat and facilitating complete combustion.

It is possible upon moistening a small quantity of ashes without the addition of coal, to really detect the odor of acetylene gas, and if the treated ashes are placed upon a lighted fire they will fuse and burn to a fine powder.

The compound is now being used in many large industrial and mercantile places there, and it is claimed for it that it has reduced the fuel item more than half. It has eliminated almost entirely the question of disposition of ashes, which has been considerable where great quantities of coal are consumed.

Ellmore, who discovered the secret and focused attention upon the possibilities that lurked in ashes, claims that his patent will protect him in his secret. He says he has received an offer from the British Government provided he can demonstrate the practicability of his compound.

C. B. LOOMIS DELIGHTS A LARGE AUDIENCE

HIS DRY HUMOR PROVOKED CONTINUED AMUSEMENT FOR MEN'S CLUB.

Charles Battell Loomis, the humorist, delighted a large audience at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, last night, with readings from some of his latest writings, including "A Bath In An English Tub," which was fully described in a series of articles published in The New York Sun a few months ago. His dry humor was greatly enjoyed and provoked constant laughter, as he related in an amusing manner the primitive method adopted by the English at home for taking a bath.

The readings by Mr. Loomis were interspersed with vocal selections by Charles Lewis, accompanied by Mrs Lewis on the piano. The programme was a delightful one throughout. Afterward a social was enjoyed. This was the last of the season's entertainments given under the auspices of the Men's Association of the church, which have been such a success.

Evangelistic Services.

Special evangelistic meetings will be held in the Y. M. C. A. Saturday and Sunday, under the direction of Rev. E. J. Richards, an evangelist, who will conduct the services. Miss Mary Compton, a returned missionary from India, will assist, and Miss Cromwell, of Cranford, will conduct the singing. There will be a service Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock and at 7:30 o'clock in the evening, and at the same hours on Sunday.

Was Friend of Whitman.

Thomas D. Gere, of New York, a veteran newspaper man, has taken up his residence in Scotch Plains. Mr. Gere has been on the staff of the New York Tribune for many years. He was led into newspaper work by Walt Whitman, the poet, whose close friend he was.

WANT MARTINE TO RUN

Delegation of Democrats from Essex County to Visit Him.

TO URGE HIS CANDIDACY

Other Delegations Expected to Come to Cedar Brook, and Popular Demand For Nomination As Governor Probable.

Interest in James E. Martine's boom for the Democratic nomination for Governor continues to spread throughout the State. In keeping with the general trend among the rank and file of the party, a number of Essex county party workers have decided that Mr. Martine is the man who should be nominated, and they have gone so far as to plan a pilgrimage to Cedar Brook to urge the Farmer Orator to announce himself definitely as a candidate and to pledge their support.

This delegation is expected to visit Mr. Martine the last part of the week, it has the sanction, unofficially, at least, of men prominent in the Essex county Democratic councils and the movement is viewed sympathetically by Democratic workers of counties about Essex. Those engaged in it believe the pilgrimage will be followed by others and that Mr. Martine will be swept into nomination on a popular wave.

HIS SON-IN-LAW DIES FOLLOWING WEDDING

HOSPITAL BRIDEGROOM SUCCUMBS TO MERCURY POISONING.

William A. De Witt, who was thought to have been suffering from peritonitis and who, despite his illness, was married in Roosevelt Hospital, New York, last Wednesday to Miss Elizabeth Dennison Nielson, a niece of Rev. Dr. William H. Nielson, of this city, died at the institution yesterday, Coroner's Physician Philip O'Hanlon announced that death was due to taking bichloride of mercury. Coroner Harburger will hold an inquest.

De Witt was 29 years old and lived at 172 West Seventy-eighth street, New York. The ceremony was performed at the hospital by the Rev. Dr. William H. Nielson.

MINISTER RECALLS CIVIL WAR SCENES

Rev. Frank Fletcher, formerly pastor of the Baptist church, New Market, addressed a large assemblage of veterans, the Women's Relief Corps and their friends last night at an open meeting of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., in the post rooms. The divine himself fought in the Civil War and he entered into the spirit of the occasion in a manner that enthused the hearts of his fellow-veterans.

Mr. Fletcher described graphically scenes and incidents in connection with his personal experiences during the war. He enlisted in New York and organized a company of volunteers, when he concluded his studies at a theological seminary. Subsequently he was made captain of a company, then a chaplain and finally he received an appointment as one of the aides on General Sherman's staff.

The minister briefly related his experiences at Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, the Battle of Lookout Mountain, and Sherman's march from Atlanta to the Sea, all of which he took part in. Many pathetic scenes were described and incidents of hardship, privations and heroic sacrifice related.

In addition to the lecture a programme of music was given by Dr. J. F. Berg's orchestra, followed by the serving of refreshments under the direction of the Women's Relief Corps. The meeting was in charge of Dr. Berg, who is commander of the Post.

Sesame Club Meeting.

The Sesame Club will meet tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. L. Ross, 403 East Seventh St.

The Y. M. C. A. gymnasium class will hold a gymnastic competition for the association championship tomorrow night. Special athletic events will be on the card.

MINISTERS IN CONFERENCE

Rev. C.L. Goodrich tells of Association Progress at Congregationalist's Meeting.

IN SESSION AT ORANGE

Thirty-Ninth Annual Conference Will End Tonight—Addresses By Prominent Divines of the Denomination.

Congregational clergymen from various parts of the country with lay delegates are in attendance at the thirty-ninth annual meeting of the Congregational Association of New Jersey at the Orange Valley Congregational church, Orange, which opened yesterday afternoon and will be concluded tonight.

The sessions yesterday were of a religious character, the principal business being the appointment of a committee to select a moderator to succeed the Rev. Dr. Frank P. Woodbury, of Washington, D. C. After the devotional services yesterday the out of town visitors were welcomed by the Rev. George P. Eastman, pastor of the church.

The Rev. Henry H. Guernsey, of Westfield, led the devotional service. The Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, of this city, spoke on the topic, "Our Progress as an Association." James H. Noyes gave the treasurer's report.

The moderator made an address and the Rev. Dr. E. W. Brown, of Glen Ridge, spoke on "God's Requirements;" the Rev. Dr. Hubert C. Herring, of New York, discussed the meaning of the modern missionary movement in this country, and the Rev. Dr. Cornelius H. Patten, of Boston, discussed the same topics applied to foreign countries.

At the service last night the Rev. Roger A. Dunlop led the devotional service. The Rev. Dr. Harry P. Dewey, of Brooklyn, preached the sermon and the Rev. David Brewer Eddy, of East Orange, and the Rev. John T. Nichols, of Asbury Park, administered Holy Communion.

DESCRIBED HIS TRIP AROUND THE WORLD

SENATOR ACKERMAN GAVE AN ILLUSTRATED LECTTRE IN ELIZABETH.

State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman delighted a large audience in the parish house of the German Presbyterian church, Elizabeth, last night, *when under the auspices of the Down*town Republican Club, of that city, he gave his superb illustrated lecture on "A Trip Around the World." A majority of the views were new to the four hundred people present, but of especial interest were his views taken in Switzerland, shown for the first time.

The lecture covered a goodly portion of the world, touching a majority of the most important points visited by Mr. Ackerman, and the talk was listened to with the deepest interest by all, showing true appreciation. The lecture was concluded with handsome views of the Yellowstone Park, and by that route Mr. Ackerman brought his audience home from what proved to be a delightful trip around the world. Preceding and following the lecture the programme included illustrated songs by local talent, which was an enjoyable feature.

Miss Elsie T. Smith Engaged.

Mrs. Lester R. Walton, of New York, formerly of Plainfield, announces the engagement of her sister, Miss Elsie T. Smith, to William R. Crary, of Liberty, N. Y. The wedding will take place at the home of Miss Smith's uncle, Dr. Zabriskie, of Glen Cove, L. I., on June 1. The young couple will reside at Liberty where Mr. Crary is now having a handsome home erected. Miss Smith formerly resided with her parents on Westervelt avenue and has a host of friends in the city and borough.

Surprise for Miss Heidt.

Miss Mary B. Heidt, of Kenoza, N. Y., was pleasantly surprised last night at the home of her cousin, Mrs. W. H. Addis, of East Second street, when about twenty of her friends called to spend the evening. The time was spent playing games. There were also *piano and phonograph se*lections. Miss Heidt, who has been spending the past season in Plainfield, returns home tomorrow.

High Court Officers to Attend.

Court Plainfield, No. 1144, Independent Order Foresters, will initiate a number of candidates at its meeting on Friday night. The members who won prizes in the recent membership contest will receive them at that time and high court officers will be present.

NEW JERSEY COMMISSIONERS SELECT MISS LITTLE

DOLLAR DINNER TALKERS

Bryan, Colby, Martine, Fagan and Record to Speak at the People's Lobby Banquet.

FORDYCE TO PRESIDE

General Invitation To Public to Attend Affair In Newark On May 1—Women Welcome.

Completed plans for the "May Day" dollar dinner of the People's Lobby are announced by Aiden Freeman, chairman of the dinner committee. It will be held on the lower floor of the Krueger Auditorium, at Newark, Wednesday, May 1, and, as announced, William Jennings Bryan, whose subject will be the initiative and referendum, will be the principal speaker. Others who will talk on *legislative subjects in which the Lob*by is interested, will be Sheriff Frank H. Bonnet, of Newark; Senator Everett Colby, James E. Martine, of this city, and Mayor Mark M. Fagan and Corporation Counsel George L. Record, of Jersey City.

Because of the short time in which to complete the arrangements, the only special notices or invitations for the dinner that will be sent out will be to the members of the Lobby. A general invitation is extended to the public, however, and tickets will be sold on the first come, first served plan up to the limit of the seating capacity of the hall. The seating of guests at the tables will be on the same plan. The invitation is extended to both men and women. Edmond A. Whittier, secretary of the Lobby, is assisting Mr. Freeman in the arrangements.

Mr. Bryan is expected to arrive at Newark late in the afternoon. He will be escorted from New York by James E. Martine and a committee of the People's Lobby, and Harry Walker, secretary of the Anti-Trust League. In order that he may get away to lecture in New York in the evening, Mr. Bryan will speak at 6 o'clock, before the dinner, which will be served at 7. The other speakers will talk after dinner.

Alexander Fordyce, Jr., president of the People's Lobby, will preside, and among the guests of honor will be Mrs. Henry H. Dawson, president of the State Federation of Woman's Clubs; Mrs. William A. Brown, president of the Woman's Club of Orange; Peter Campbell, president of the Newark Board of Trade, and Wilson Farrand, president of the New England Society of Orange.

M. E. Laymen to Meet Here.

In connection with the annual session of the Newark Conference, which will be held at the First M. E. church next year, there will also be a session of the Laymen's Association, which meets once in four years. The meeting is for one day only and at that time delegates will be selected to attend the General Conference, which will meet in Baltimore during the month of May, 1908. There is usually considerable rivalry over the choice of delegates to the larger gathering. Each church in the Newark Conference is entitled to one delegate to the Laymen's Association meeting.

Will Enlarge Soda Department.

L. W. Randolph, the West Front street druggist, has signed the contract for the erection of a brick extension in the rear of his pharmacy to be devoted exclusively to his soda water department. Apparatus for the making of fruit syrups, ice cream, etc., will be installed and the building will be fully equipped. Heretofore, this work has been performed in the basement of the building. Mr. Randolph's soda fountain, installed some years ago, cost $5,000.

C. D. Freeman Will Entertain.

Charles D. Freeman, of Colonia, master of the hounds of the Watchung Hunt Club, will entertain the members at dinner at the Baltusrol Golf Club, Saturday afternoon, after which they will enjoy a chase to Colonia. At Scotch Plains there will be a check. The run will cover a distance of about five miles. It is expected that many New York people will join in the hunt as guests of the club.

Methodist Divines Will Exchange.

Rev. L. C. McCrea, of the First M. E. church, and Rev. E. E. Roberson, of the Monroe Avenue M. E. *church, will exchange pulpits Sun*day morning. In the evening each pastor will occupy his own pulpit. At the First M. E. church at night there will be the monthly musical service by the choir.

—The best olive oil in the city is to be had at Neuman Brothers'. It may be purchased by the gallon, half gallon, quart or pint.

NEW JERSEY COMMISSIONERS SELECT MISS LITTLE

WINS IN HOT CONTEST

Commissioners Balloted in New York —Her Selection Meets With General Approval.

The New Jersey Commissioners of the Jamestown Exposition, of which James T. MacMurray, of this city, is a member, met yesterday in New York, and at that time Miss Edith B. Little, of Sandford avenue, was chosen hostess of the New Jersey State building at the Exposition. The selection was made through the influence of Mr. MacMurray, and was in the nature of a surprise to Miss Little, as well as her many friends.

When seen at her home this morning by a reporter for The Daily Press, Miss Little said that the position was unsought by her. She considered it a great honor and is looking forward to a time of great pleasure during the Exposition. She will report at the New Jersey building at Jamestown on May 1, and as hostess there will have full charge under the supervision of Col. Bryant, of the State Militia, who is secretary to the New Jersey Commission, a position he held at the St. Louis Exposition.

Miss Little is not wholly unfamiliar with the work that will be required of her, as she was a guest at the New Jersey building during the St. Louis Exposition and was able to acquaint herself with many details. The appointment comes with additional pleasure for in October the 300th anniversary of the founding of the Protestant Episcopal church will be observed at Jamestown, and she is a member of that church and greatly interested in all its work. Aside from the real duties in connection with her position, Miss Little anticipates that the social features will be something to look forward to. It will afford her an opportunity to meet not only people from her own State, but from all parts of the world.

The appointment of Miss Little meets with the hearty approval of all who are interested in New Jersey at the Exposition. She is well fitted for the position and there is no doubt but that she will fill it in a manner that will bring credit and honor to the State she represents, and Plainfield will naturally be more interested in the Exposition, especially in the New Jersey exhibit there.

There was a hot contest for the honor, but Miss Little received a majority of the votes and on motion of Mr. Scudder her appointment was made unanimous.

CONGREGATION GREETS REV. E. E. ROBERSON

PASTOR AND WIFE GIVEN RECEPTION BY MONROE AVE. FLOCK.

The congregation of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church tendered the annual reception to Rev. and Mrs. E. E. Roberson, last night, in honor of the former's return to the pastorate for another year. It was an informal affair and was attended by over 150 members and friends.

At the opening of the reception, an address of welcome was made by Superintendent Walter M. McGee and Mr. Roberson responded with a few appropriate remarks. An orchestra *in charge of Martin A. Korff render*ed several selections in a very pleasing manner and Miss Josephine Martin, a member of the church choir, earned hearty applause by the contribution of two vocal solos. The church was very prettily decorated with palms, ferns and flowers.

In conclusion refreshments were served by the Ladies' Aid Society and an hour was spent in social conversation, during which Mr. and Mrs. Roberson received congratulations. The affair was arranged and is charge of the Ladies' Aid Society and the Epworth League.

—Many persons suffer for years with constant headache and neuralgia, when by wearing properly fitted glasses they can obtain relief. Let us give you a free examination. Stiles & Co., at 105 East Front street, tomorrow, Thursday. Hours, 11:15 to 4:30.

LOCAL DELEGATES' THOUGHTS ON PEACE CONFERENCE

Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, and Rev. A. C. Nickerson Review Its Work

THE OUTLOOK HOPEFUL

Former Represented Suffrage League and the Later the Unitarian Church at the Sessions.

Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, the scholarly daughter of Mrs. Julia Ward Howe and the author of many volumes of good literature as well as a lecturer on women's topics, has returned from New York, after attending the sessions of the Peace Congress as the representative of the Plainfield-North Plainfield Equal Suffrage League. During the Congress, Mrs. Hall read a message from her mother, who was listed to speak but was unable to be present, owing to her advanced years.

"While I was much interested in the addresses of the various speakers," said Mrs. Hall to a representative of The Daily Press, "the size and temper of the audience were the most remarkable feature of the occasion. To see the vast auditorium of Carnegie Hall and its three great galleries filled with an immense throng of people, gathered to hear no sensational or exciting drama, but simply the praises of Peace, was a wonderful sight. The applause which followed the speeches showed that these thousands of listeners were in full sympathy with the object of the meeting. When we remember how unpopular many reform movements are it is surprising, it is most encouraging to see the progress this one has already made.

"Most interesting was it to hear what had already been accomplished by the conference of the nations. The fact that fourteen countries of Europe had agreed to abolish night work for women made us regret the recent decision in New York State, which declared a similar law to be unconstitutional. Other instances of humane international agreement for the protection of the citizens of the different countries served to show that the peace movement is practical rather than visionary in its aims. For there can be no true or lasting peace without its necessary accompaniment—good will toward men. Hence it is unsatisfying to learn that these international conferences have already helped to protect the weak, promote justice and fair play.

"I think there can be no doubt that women favor peace, and dread war as they realize more than men. When Miss Jane Addams, of Chicago, one of the noblest women of our day, said at the Women's Sessions of the Peace Congress, that we were neglecting our opportunity of holding up our ideal of peace and making it effective, she said a word which should arouse American women to new efforts in this direction. As Miss Addams wisely observed, peace must be invested with greater attraction; it must be made to appeal more to the imagination, before it can offset the glamour which has been cast about war by the pomp and parade of military and naval display. . . .

"As I listened to the rendering of Mendelssohn's beautiful choral, 'How Lovely Are the Feet of Those Who Bring Us the Gospel of Peace,' by the fine choir of women's voices, I said to myself, 'This is the great preacher for peace, this beautiful hymn, which seems to bring to us the very gates of Heaven. The blare of the trumpet, the music of the military band, have great power to stir the blood. Even greater power has the message of the Christian gospel when borne on the diving wings of music, for it expresses the highest inspiration of the human soul."

A. C. Nickerson's View.

"The Congress seemed a great success, as focusing the peace sentiment of the entire country, and in the number and quality of its representatives," said Rev. Alfred C. Nickerson, pastor of All Souls' Unitarian church. "The attendance was so great that several 'overflow' meetings were held, and the number of men in the audience, especially Tuesday evening, university night, was decidedly marked. The average utterance was not a bit cranky or ultra but simply accentuated the fact that mankind is now gradually nursing its face away from 'the thousand years of war' toward the thousand years of peace.' Even the proposal of the United States, England and France that national disarmament should be discussed at The Hague, which netties so many nations and individuals, was no advocacy of a chary plunge into an undefended condition, but a calm and rational suggestion that the civilized portion of our race should gradually bridle its teeth with swords and guns, and ossify more. Such sums as we sorely need here at home, to save our forests, irrigate our West, instruct our blacks and better endow our charities, would thus be released for beneficent work.

"The suggestion of a permanent court of judges, which could be appealed to at any time, by any nation, was a sane and welcome one. The sooner two nations come to a mutual understanding after a quarrel or dispute, even as when folk 'fall out' the better for the whole world. Nothing is so expensive or so bothersome to non-participants in war, as the incidental damages which they incur ere the antagonists agree to 'make up.'

"So the proposition to make property of neutral persons nations immune from attack and devastation, on the sea as on the land, is one which all traveling and every commercial people will appreciate.

"The resolution that 'a general treaty of arbitration for all nations' to be framed at The Hague, should be the work of next summer's conference, but carries forward into explication for us the Christian profession of brotherhood and the American doctrine of democracy, both of which get so sorely bruised, muddied and trampled in every war.

"The quality of the men and women who addressed the conference gave it a standing and importance which shall cause the world to heed its advice. Two members of the President's Cabinet, Messrs. Root and Straus; the presidents of two American universities, Eliot and Butler; the representatives of the two oldest English universities, Oxford and Cambridge; Dr. Lavalle, for the Roman Catholic church; Bishop Potter, as speaker for the Protestants; Rabbi Hush, standing for our Hebrew population, and Dr. Felic Adler, lecturer for the New York Ethical Society, and newly elected Theodore Roosevelt, professor at Berlin until recently, were brilliantly indicted the conference's illumination, without mentioning innumerable stars of lesser magnitude which followed in their train.

"Mr. Carnegie, to whom more than to *any one else we owe the confer*ence, was most happy on the occasions of his presiding, and in the exceptions which he took to the remarks and suggestions of some eminent individuals. Under the enthusiastic and prolonged applause which greeted his reply to the Harvard professor, told him how fully the people were 'with him.' He seemed a very govial, happy, enthusiastic old man, striding up and down the platform, his face aglow, hands waving, his face forehead, his arms aswing, his face aglow, the very embodiment of benevolence and peaceable intentions."

AMATEUR THEATRICALS PLEASED AUDIENCE

200 ATTEND ENTERTAINMENT FOR DAY NURSERY BENEFIT.

The entertainment, consisting of amateur theatricals, recitations and vocal selections, which was given at Truell Court, Thursday, for the ben*efit of The Day Nursery,* was a great success. More than two hundred people were present and over $50 will be realized as profit for the nursery. The affair was given under the supervision of Mrs. Violet Truell-Johnston, Mrs. John Wilkinson and Mrs. Stirling Birmingham.

The features of the programme were the presentation of two farce comedies, "The Sleeping Car" and "The Mouse-Trap," both written by William Dean Howells, and too much *praise cannot be given those who in*terpreted the different parts. Unusual cleverness was displayed by everyone and it would be difficult to give special mention for excellence to any particular member. It was the unanimous sentiment that all were exceedingly good.

The cast for "The Sleeping Car" was as follows:

"Mrs. Roberts," Mrs. Violet Truell-Johnston; "Aunt Mary," Mrs. Chas. Holbrook; "Mr. Roberts," William J. Cullen; "Mr. Campbell," and "The Conductor," William A. DeLong; "Mr. Sawyer," the Californian, Laurence Milne; "The Porter," Frank Langhorne.

"The Mouse-Trap" was presented by the following cast:

"Mrs. Sowerby," the widow, Miss Katherine B. Hartshorne; "Mrs. Roberts," Miss Ethel Clark; "Mrs. Bemis," Miss Johnson; "Mrs. Miller," Miss Violet Clark; "Mrs. Curwen," Mrs. John Wilkinson; "Jane," Mrs. Samuel Birmingham; "Mr. Willis Campbell," William H. Webster.

In addition to the two plays there was a duet, "Fanfare," Carl Bohm, by Mrs. Violet Truell-Johnston and Mrs. Charles Holbrook; recitations, "Aux Italiens," and "Thanksgiving Day in the Tropics," by Mrs. Samuel Birmingham; vocal selections, Charles Stevens Jones, of New York, soprano solos, "Love Me and the World Is Mine," and "My Irish Maid," by Miss Maida Birmingham; vocal selections, "Fairly Caught" and "Cradle Song," by Mrs. John Wilkinson, accompanied by Mrs. Violet Truell-Johnston. Each of these numbers were well received with hearty applause.

Played Wedding March.

Mrs. John Height, of this city, played the march at the wedding of Miss Maude McKenna, of South Amboy, to John Manhattan, of Bradley Beach, at the bride's home on Thursday.

Receptions Given in Honor of Return of Rev. Dr. Parsons and Rev. Mr. McCrea.

ALL WELL ATTENDED

Congregations of the First M. E. Church and Monroe Avenue M. E. Church Meet Their Ministers.

Both having been returned by the Newark Conference for another year, Rev. A. C. McCrea, pastor of the First M. E. church, and Rev. Dr. C. W. Parsons, pastor of Grace M. E. church, were given receptions by their congregations Thursday night.

The annual reception to Rev. and Mrs. A. C. McCrea in Vincent chapel, Thursday, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society and the Epworth League of the First M. E. church was largely attended by member of the church and congregation. The plan to make the affair purely an informal one was carried out and the whole evening was devoted to sociability. A feature was a musical programme by the Sazamore Mandolin and Banjo Club.

Pastor McCrea and Mrs. McCrea were given a hearty welcome in honor of their return to the church for another year and in turn the members found warm greetings awaiting them from the pastor and his wife. The cordial relations existing give promise of another successful year in the work at this church.

The Epworth League took charge of the devotions, and the chapel was attractive in the arrangement of flowers, palms and potted plants. The members of the Ladies' Aid Society acted as a reception committee and directed the serving of refreshments later in the evening.

The congregation of Grace M. E. church tendered the customary reception to Dr. and Mrs. C. W. Parsons, Thursday. The attendance was unusually large and it proved one of the most enjoyable occasions the members have had during the past winter. W. J. Conroy, superintendent of the Sunday-school was in charge of the proceedings and opened the programme with a congratulatory address to Dr. Parsons and his wife. *The pastor responded in a fit*ting way.

During the evening several solos were rendered by Miss Grace Carroll. The greater part of the time was passed in an informal way, the pastor and his wife mingling with the congregations and exchanging greetings. Refreshments were served in conclusion by the Ladies' Aid Society, which arranged and had charge of the entertainment.

The main room of the church was attractively decorated with palms, Easter lilies and azaleas.

The annual reception to Rev. and Mrs. E. E. Roberson will be given by Monroe Avenue M. E. church Tuesday night under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society.

MRS. MARGARET RANSOM NOW MRS. ALBERT SMITH.

Newark Man Weds Plainfielder at the Home of Latter's Mother.

Mrs. Margaret Ransom, daughter of Mrs. Catherine Manning, of Dunellen avenue, and Albert Smith, of Newark, were quietly married at 6 o'clock, Thursday, at the home of the bride's mother. Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, of which the bride is a member, performed the ceremony.

The bride was gowned in white albatross, trimmed with lace, and she carried a large bouquet of white sweet peas. Both the bride and groom were unattended. Following the ceremony and congratulations, supper was served. The table decorations were attractive, there being a pleasing arrangement of daffodils and smilax.

Later in the evening the bride and groom left the city for a short wedding journey. Upon their return they will reside in Mt. Prospect avenue, Newark. Mr. Smith is connected with the Prudential Insurance Company, at the home office in Newark.

Among the guests were Mrs. Hannah Thompson, of Newark, mother of the groom; Mrs. Catherine Manning, mother of the wife; Miss Catherine Manning, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Manning, Jere. L. Manning, Leland Manning, James C. Manning, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rocap, Miss Catherine Rocap, Miss Marion Rocap, Mrs. Sarah Manning, Miss Linda Manning, Howard Manning, Rev. Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Chambliss.

Concert Netted $60.

The Men's Association, of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, met last night and closed up the account for the concert given by the Weslyan Glee Club. It was reported that the association will net about $60. Plans are being made for a public meeting to be held on Thursday night, April 25, when a well-known man will address the meeting.

Must Qualify Before May 1.

According to the new law all newly-appointed commissioners of deeds in the county must appear before County Clerk James C. Calvert on or before May 1, and qualify. The fees *are increased from $2 to $4 for ob*taining a commission.

JUSTICE WITH AN EDGE FOR ANIMAL ABUSERS

ONE OF THE DEFENDANTS DROVE THE THE COURT'S OWN TEAM.

William Saunders, of Warrenville, and Otto Doodlesack, who lives near Mt. Bethel, were fined $10 apiece by Justice John Cooper, at Warrenville, Friday, for cruelty to animals. In addition, he suspended three months in jail over their heads.

Saunders and Doodlesack drove to the freight house in this city on April 2, with two wagons, after loads of manure. On their way back to Warren township they imbibed in several potions of Jersey lightning. In urging their horses up the hill beyond Pedeficus, they beat the animals cruelly. Residents saw the act, and their indignant comments were carried to the ears of Miss Steele, of Somerville, counsel for the S. P. C. A. in Somerset county. She entered a complaint and yesterday, Constable William Pangborn, of North Plainfield, S. P. C. A. officer, served the warrants.

In passing sentence, Justice Cooper scored the prisoners severely. After the hearing, he turned to Constable Pangborn.

"Do you know whose horses Saunders drove, Bill?" he asked.

The constable didn't.

"They were mine," said the justice grimly.

WESTFIELD CLUB TO DISBAND ON MAY 1

TO PREVENT INSOLVENCY THE ORGANIZATION WILL BREAK UP.

Owing to lack of support which threatens to deplete the treasury, the Westfield Club has voted to discontinue the organization after May 1. This action has been taken in order to ward off insolvency. It has been shown that should the membership continue to fall off during the summer months as it has during the past winter, the club would be unable to pay its debts.

The disbanding at this time, the club is doing so with all its financial obligations. Influencial members say that a new club will be organized in the fall under entirely different auspices. In the meantime the club house will remain untenanted.

The Westfield Club was organized in 1891. It has a fine home, on Elm street, which was recently improved. The property is valued at about $40,000.

The Westfield Golf Club is now the only social organization in West*field with a club house.* The I. O. S. Club, the oldest social organization in the town, has no home, but has been using the Westfield club house for its dances and other social functions. The club celebrated its fifteenth anniversary by a reception and dance Monday night.

PIANO FUND BENEFIT.

Entertainment Given by Christian Church Women.

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Christian church an excellent entertainment was given Thursday for the benefit of a piano fund. In addition to the proceeds several contributions were received.

A feature of the programme was a march and song figure entitled "The Coming of the Dandelions," by eight little girls. This number was given in clever fashion and was well received. Other numbers on the programme were as follows: Recitation, "Mud Pies," Miss Anna Reynolds; comic songs, Firstbrook and Wilson; piano solo, Miss Seader; recitation, "When Mamma Was a Little Girl," Miss Maud Edell; violin solo, John Mitchell; recitations, "A Bad Case," miss Helen Thompson; "The Anxious Mother," Miss Elsie Townley; cornet solo, E. E. Townley; reading, Mrs. Grannatt; mandolin solo, William F. Richards; recitations, "The Land of Story Books," Miss Ruth Gloak; "A Cricket Party," Miss Eva Edmunds.

The committee in charge comprised Mrs. E. E. Townley, chairman; Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Edell, Mrs. Manchester, Miss Nellie Bittle and Mrs. Edmunds. *After the entertain*ment refreshments were served.

SCHOOL SUPTS. VISIT.

Dr. Maxson and Prof. Krebs at Somerville.

Dr. Henry M. Maxson, superintendent of the Plainfield Public Schools, accompanied by Prof. H. C. Krebs, of the Borough Public Schools, visited the public schools at Somerville and the new public school at Bernardsville, yesterday. Dr. Maxson wished to call on several teachers at Somerville with a view to engaging them to teach next year in the Plainfield schools, and it was arranged to go to Bernardsville afterward.

The school at Bernardsville was erected by Mr. Olcott and presented to the town. The plans were drawn by Mr. Olcott's own architect and the total cost was $150,000. It is finely furnished and equipped with a gymnasium. The building contains eight rooms and is considered one of the show-places at Bernardsville.

Y.W.C.A. IS ORGANIZED

Starts With Membership of Over 500 And Healthy Treasury.

MRS. MEAD PRESIDENT

Directors and Officers Elected—$4,100 Pledged Toward the Purchase of the Jenkins Property.

The organization of the Young Women's Christian Association was effected at a meeting in Y. M. C. A. Hall Thursday. The organization starts with a charter membership of of 513, and a fund of $2,500. Pledges to the amount of $4,100 have been received toward the purchase of the Jenkins property.

The meeting was largely attended. It was *opened by Miss Blanche Sal*der, educational secretary for New York and New Jersey, who has been assisting the provisional committee in getting the Y. W. C. A. started. She called on Mrs. F. G. Mead, who headed the provisional committee, and the latter reported a membership list of 431. This figure was increased to 513 later in the meeting, after a general invitation to all those who had not joined.

These directors were elected: Mrs. F. G. Mead, Mrs. James Joy, Mrs. Percy Stewart, Mrs. Frederick Wells, Andrews, Mrs. Fred Smith, Mrs. Dan Ginna, Mrs. W. D. Murray, Mrs. W. D. Murray, Mrs. J. W. Gavett, Mrs. John Gray Foster, Miss Susan Hubbell, Miss Lockert, Miss Harriet Squier, Miss Margaret McCutchen, Miss Marion McCutchens, Mrs. Robert Lowrie, Miss Edith, Smalley, Mrs. Runyon, Miss Elsie Goddard, Mrs. David Titsworth, Mrs. Frank French, Mrs. Elliot H. Barrows, Mrs. Conner, Mrs. Walter McGee, Mrs. Duncan Taylor.

Mrs. Cushman, vice president of the national organization, Miss Brownell, secretary for New York and New Jersey, and Miss Tapping, who has been visiting the provisional committee for two weeks, spoke. The latter told of the different classes to be conducted.

The following six members of the membership committee acted as ushers at the meeting: The Misses Elsie Goddard, Eleanor Waring, Sarah Hand, Minna Hand, Wakefield and Sykes. The Board of Directors or*ganized at the home of* Mrs. Mead, this morning, as follows:

President, Mrs. F. G. Mead; first vice president, Mrs. Percy Stewart; second vice president, Mrs. Robert Lowry; secretary, Mrs. Frank French; treasurer, Mrs. James Joy; chairman of finance committee, Mrs. Percy Stewart; chairman of the house committee, Mrs. John Gray Foster; chairman of social committee, Mrs. T. Barrows; chairman of the eudcational committee, Mrs. James Lowery; chairman of the religious work committee, Miss Susan Haskell; chairman of the member*ship committee, Miss Elsie Goddard.*

CENTRAL HALL WILL BE RECONSTRUCTED.

Dr. Taylor Plans to Make It a More Up-to-date Structure.

Elaborate plans are being prepared for Rev. Dr. J. P. Taylor, of Park avenue, for remodelling his building at Park and North avenue, "Central *Hall," following in the line of im*provements which are being made in the business section of the city. The doctor proposes to tear out the whole inside of the brick structure from the ground floor up and then reconstruct it.

The entire second and third floors, the latter now used as a dance hall, will be converted into handsome offices with every convenience. The first floor will also be completely changed and an addition feature will probably be two handsome new stores on the Park avenue side of the building. F. W. Dunn, the grocer, *will remain, but extensive improve*ments will be made in his store in keeping with the other changes planned. As soon as the plans are completed and bids received the contracts will be awarded and the work started at once.

South Plainfield Catholics to Build.

Plans are out for the new Catholic church to be built at South Plainfield, and as soon as the estimates are received the contract for the work will be awarded. It is expected that the structure will be completed during the summer months. The Catholics at South Plainfield *have been with*out a convenient and commodious house of worship for a long time and for some time efforts have been made to secure one. A considerable sum has been subscribed to the building fund and it is believed that when the edifice is completed there will be a sufficient amount to pay for the work.

After Committeemen's Scalps.

There is a movement on foot to demand the resignation of all the members of the State Democratic Committee, according to a dispatch from Jersey City. Those who are behind it are State Senator Geo. S. Silzer, of Middlesex; Assemblyman Wright, of Essex, and Assemblymen Charles E. Hendrickson, Jr., Joseph P. Tumulty, Mark A. Sullivan and Archibald S Alexander, all of Hudson.

I. O. O. F. ENCAMPMENT ENJOYS "LADIES' NIGHT"

MARKS THE EIGHTY-EIGHTH ANNIVERSARY OF ODD FELLOWSHIP.

Under the auspices of Noah Dove Encampment, No. 28, I. O. O. F., an enjoyable "ladies' night" entertainment was given in the rooms in the Babcock building, Thursday. In addition to numbers by local talent, professionals helped to make the occasion a pleasing one. Stephen Schleif was chairman of the committee and had charge of the programme. The affair was a celebration of the eighty-eighth anniversary of Odd Fellowship, which occurs on April 26.

Emil Cicos, a clever impersonator, opened the programme with an amusing sketch, during which he told funny stories. Baach and Bechler, a musical pair, kept the audience in good humor by the introduction of funny skits. They played popular selections on all sorts of instruments, and their selections on glass bottles and tin whistles won much applause.

The numbers by local talent included bass solos by John Calder, mandolin solos by Miss Gertrude Stiltz, impersonations by Stephen Schleif, and violin solos by Miss Elizabeth Smalley, accompanied by Miss Margaret Robley. Both Miss Stiglitz and Miss Smalley were given encores. Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan assisted in the musical numbers with his banjo and added to the pleasure of the entertainment.

Supreme Representative Pearce and Grand Patriarch Faulk each made short addresses in which they explained the benefits of Odd Fellowship and the advantages of joining the Encampment. After the entertainment adjournment was taken to the banquet room, where refreshments were served.

The committee which arranged and had charge of the affair consisted of S. H. Schleif, John Becker, Andrew Stiglitz, A. E. Martin, John A. Kriney and George Ludgate.

GOOD YEAR FOR THE CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

BIGGER CONGREGATION AND MORE MONEY RAISED.

The annual meetingh of the Congregational church and society were held Wednesday night. The were well attended.

Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, the pastor, presided over the church meeting, with Roland Rice secretary. The attendance was large.

The pastor, in his report, said the year had been very encouraging in all departments of activity. The congregations were larger, and twenty-five new members were added to the roll during the twelvemonth. The losses were thirteen by letter and six by death. The total membership is 301. The Sunday-school is growing, with an average attendance of 2[illegible]. Fourteen Sunday-school members joined the church during the year.

The church gave a total of $2,900 to benevolences, more than in any previous year. Of the sixty churches in the association, the only ones which include Baltimore and Washington, the Plainfield church is one of twelve that gave to all seven of the Congre*gational causes.* It is fifth in the amounts of its giving and fifth in the size of the home individual contributions. It gave $20.45 per member. Plainfield is first in the proportion of its beneolevences to the sum of home expenditures.

Roland Rice was re-elected clerk. J. W. Dewilson and L. B. Morgan were elected deacons. Henry Nomer, Curtis Bates and W. Nelson were elected to the Official Board.

On motion by J. M. Whiton, a tankard and two goblets presented for communion service by his mother, were set aside for presentation to some missionary church. Another tankard and two goblets will be given to another mission church as a gift from this church. The church recently changed to the individual communion service.

At the society meeting, J. M. Whiton presided, with Roland Rice as clerk. The report of Treasurer M. C. Van Arsdale showed receipts of $[illegible],000, the largest amount received in any year of church history. There is a small balance over all indebtedness.

The salary of the pastor was increased $400 a year. Frank A. Weeks, Charles E. Steiner and Everett L. Morgan were elected to the Board of Trustees, to serve two years. James McClymont, Jr., was elected auditor and Roland Rice clerk.

The *trustees met after the meet*ing and organized as follows: President, J. E. Morse; secretary, E. L. Morgan; treasurer, M. C. VanArsdale; chief usher, Clarence La Rue.

Will Celebrate Golden Wedding.

Captain and Mrs. James Parker, parents of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Mclean Parker, of West Seventh street, are planning to celebrate the golden anniversary of their marriage at their home in Perth Amboy in June. Captain Parker is a well known personage throughout the State and the event will be of unusual interest. He and his wife are now visiting here.

DEFINES PICKETS' RIGHTS

After Hearing Machinists' Union Delegates. Mayor Explains the Law to Them.

POLICE BOARD SESSION

Hearing of the Case Against Patrolman Nicholas Myers Is Again Adjourned.

While the police committee of the Common Council was in session for the discussion of the Patrolman Myers shooting case, Wednesday, a delegation from the local Machinists' Association asked permission to appear before the body and have some police matters defined, relative to "picketing" the Krom shop. The union machinists have been fighting Krom for a long time and ever since he has been bringing in non-union men from out of town, they have had pickets about the shop on North avenue.

On several occasions, clashes have occurred between the men and of late the police have refused to allow the pickets to remain about the premises. The delegation called last night to ask just what the associa*tion's* representative would be allowed to do. They received a cordial welcome from Mayor Fisk, who expressed pleasure at being able to discuss the matter with them and he outlined the city's stand in detail.

The mayor declared that the police did not propose to interfere with their rights as citizens, but they would not allow them to overstep the bounds of the law. He informed the delegation that the pickets could walk along North avenue and Berkman street if they wanted to, but they would be stopped from gathering in groups and holding up the employes who came out. The mayor assured the delegation that the city did not want to appear arbitrary and if the union machinists kept within the law they would not be bothered in any way.

Several of the delegation members took occasion to acquaint the committee with the phases of the trouble and the discussion was profitable to both sides. Mayor Fisk seemed much impressed and asserted that the machinists would receive every consideration and that their rights would be given the same protection as is accorded the other side.

The committee received a communication from the S. P. C. A. asking for an officer to assist them in their work. Detective-Sergeant John Flynn was assigned to investigate all cases coming from this source and the or*ganization will be informed just what* is required of them in the making of complaints, and securing the assistance of the police department. Complaints may be sent by telephone or communication, but when an S. P. C. A. officer asks for the arrest of an offender, he must accompany the policeman to headquarters or secure a warrant.

The Patrolman Meyers shooting case, which was heard last week and laid over for further investigation, was again discussed but no action was taken. There are several points that the committee has not fully satisfied itself upon and the body prefers to have them cleared up before making final disposition of the charge. It will probably be settled at the next regular meeting of the committee to be held on May 2.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

April 28: "Open Doors." (Missions.)
"A great and effectual door is opened unto me, and there are many adversaries."

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

Passages for reference—Matt. xxviii, 18-20; Acts viii, 4-8; xiv, 27; Phil. i, 12-18.

For years Paul had wished to reach Ephesus and preach the gospel there. It was the metropolis of the Greek world—wealthy, luxurious, wicked. Here was the center of the most powerful heathen worship of the age. It was here that the great goddess Diana had her temple, which was so magnificent as to be reckoned one of the seven great sights of the world.

More than once he had made plans to visit the city for the purpose of opening Christian work, but every time some circumstance or providential indication had prevented him carrying out his plan. Now he has reached the great city and has found the opportunity for preaching the gospel equal to his anticipations, and so he purposes to stay for awhile.

This is a good illustration of the method in which Paul did his work. Where he had opportunity to select the places where he would go. He chose the great centers of population and influence where the tides of life tend and set the strongest. Here would be the chance to make the most lasting impression for the kingdom of Christ and the gospel message, and also in such places he would be certain to encounter the fiercest opposition and greatest personal danger. So he says of Ephesus he had found a splendid opportunity, a great and effectual door open" and also many adversaries.

It has always been the case that the gospel has had the best opportunity where the opposition is likely to be the strongest. In the time of the great Jesus Christ has never shrunk from the test.

At the present time as never before in all the Christian centuries there is opened for the church and her message doors, effectual and great, in many parts of the world. It is not long since many and large areas were completely closed to Christian missionaries. Now there is scarcely a land where the missions are not planted and doing effective service.

The greatest openings and most hopeful work are at the present in the far east. The recent war between Japan and Russia has radically changed the condition of affairs in those regions. Japan has entered on a new era religiously as well as politically and in a military sense. The old formalism of religion no longer have the boldness the masses which they have for long ages had. The more advanced minds are well acquainted with the foremost thought and literature of Europe and America. They are students of religion as well as of civil and industrial matters. But in the transition it is by no means clear that they will exchange their old forms and beliefs for those of the Bible. But they are drifting. The swinging of the best minds away from evangelical truth into various forms of Pantheism. Their old Buddhistic faith makes them specially prone to this. It is a crisis not only for that nation, but for the cause of Christ throughout the orient. As goes Japan, so goes China likely to go in the near future. China is arousing as never before to intelligent aims and is likely to emerge from her lethargy as a giant among the nations of the earth. It looks as if God in Japan is to be the leader in all those countries.

But the leaders in new Japan are now favorable to America and our missionaries. Now is our great door open. Shall we enter in? To capture all the great orient for Christ would be an achievement as influential as the conquest of the Roman empire in the days of Constantine. Are you by prayer, speech and gift doing all in your power to preach the gospel in all those ports of the world?

As Dew.

The dew, formed in the silence of the darkness while men sleep, falls as willingly on a bit of dead wood or anywhere, as on the grass. Not a poor spike of grass and dressing anything on which it lies with any beauty, each separate globule, tiny as evanescent, but each as dashing to it the light and each a perfect gem, reflecting the sun's rays, and helping to make the pastures of the wilderness rejoice—so, created in silence by an unseen influence, feeble when taken in detail, but strong in their aggregate, shall be "up the lowliest by and each bright drop a separate and essential light." Christian men and women are to be "in the midst of many people as a dew from the Lord"—Alexander McLaren, D. D.

Looking to God.

To learn to look to God is a double is a great help to the s There is no disputing that or the fact that it is better to have trouble before us to God than never to come at all. But to learn to look to God before trouble comes, is so loving and obedient thing for young hearts to do than to wait if the sun goes and the storm comes.—Howard.

Why Do We Worry?

Why do we worry about the need?
We only stay a day or a week
Or a month or a year at the Lord's behest
In this habitat of sin;

Why do we worry about the rest?
With its bliss for deep pavilion
In a dismal path or a heavy hold
We are helped by hands unseen.

Why do we worry about the doors
That our feet have not yet trod?
Who labors with courage and trust, not fears,
Has fellowship with God.

The load will come in due time to be
It is sure to come as the days go by
And the wonderful love we shall See.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning April 28.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE

Topic—Foreign missions. Christ in the commission of Jesus. Matt. xxviii, 18-20.

The continent of Asia forms the largest missionary field in the world. It contains one-half of the world's population. In China alone is to be found one-fourth of the entire human race. India seems with an immense population. And Mohammedanism is thought to be the most densely populated. The continent has also been the scene of some of the world's greatest events. Eastern Asia, embracing China and surrounding kingdoms, has a very ancient civilization and, cut off from other countries for centuries, was undoubtedly in the scene of many stirring events. The history of western Asia, however is more familiar to us, and every student of history has some knowledge of the great events that inspired there centuries ago. Until a little more than three centuries before Christ, when Alexander made Greece the chief world power, the great kingdoms of the world, with the single exception of Egypt, had had their homes in Asia, and there the greatest events of the world had transpired. The history of man undoubtedly began in southwestern Asia somewhere near the point where the Euphrates and Tigris rivers make just before they empty their waters into the Persian gulf, where it is generally supposed that the Garden of Eden was located. This part of Asia was the scene of the flood, the destruction of the tower of Babel and the dispersion of the nations by the confusion of tongues. From that point, when tribes began to wander about the land in search of water and pasture for their flocks civilization advanced until great cities, mighty kingdoms and mighty kings arose, the greatest of all the empire of Babylon, and its list of great kings. And during all this time on the same continent God was raising up a chosen race and people through whom the Savior of the world was to come. But the Asiatic kingdoms waxed and waned, and it is a most interesting fact that from beneath its ruins cities the religious and scientific secrets of today is unearthing the secrets of these ancient civilizations hidden from the gaze of man for centuries.

The people of Asia have always been religiously inclined. For many years the outstanding traditions of the race remained in the minds of men, and much later than the time of Abraham at least many had some conception of the one God, who had created the world and man. When idolatry began to exist and in some form or other has had dominion over the minds of the vast majority of Asia's people east and west until the present day. In Asia all the great religions of the world have had their birth. Here idolatry in the form of the worship of the sun, the moon, planets and the sexual conceptions sprang up in China. Brahmanism and Buddhism in India. Taoism in Japan and Mohammedanism in Arabia. Also here also Judaism and Christianity had their birth. And of them all Mohammedanism has grown over the continent and influenced mostly the true civilization of the present day, one of the proofs of its divine origin and worldwide mission.

The great need of Asia today is the spirit and power of Christ, which came from it and which the Christian world should send back to it. Every possible argument appeals to Christian people to send the gospel to Asia. The sentiment surrounding the early scenes of Christ's ministry on earth, God has commanded us to send the gospel to all nations. The land in which Christ was born and where John and Peter and Paul first preached the gospel should appeal to us. In Antioch, in Asia, the first great missionary movement by which the gospel was brought to us originated, and for what Asia has done for us we should feel indebted to them, and the thought of those teeming millions, many of whom are dying without a knowledge and without the Bread of Life, should stir our hearts to the depths and lead us to determine that so far as in us lies Asia shall be won for Christ.

BIBLE READINGS.

Isa. xlix, 20-23; lii, 1-7; lx, 1-12; Matt. xxviii, 19, 20; Luke x, 1-10; Acts i, 1-8; xiii, 1-3; xvi, 8-10; Rom. x, 14, 15; Heb. ii, 9, 10; xxii, 17.

Some New Plans.

A "letter evening," largely made up of letters from former members.

A sunrise meeting—yes, right in your own church.

A "biographical meeting," the topic illustrated solely from men's and women's lives.

A "question meeting," to which each brings a question on the topic to be answered by some one else.

An associate members' meeting, devoted to getting new associates and winning the old associate members to active membership.

No "Pause Committee" Needed.

The Christian Endeavor member of the British parliament, George Nicoll, expresses the desire that the same eagerness to speak that is found in the house of commons might be found in all Christian Endeavor prayer meetings. We never have the speaker in the house of commons, he says, "wishing for a pause committee."

A Unique Topic Card.

The Christian Endeavor society of the First Baptist church, Malone, N. Y., issues its topics for 1907 on a white satin ribbon, and on the reverse side prints a list of the society officers and committees. The ribbon serves as a bookmark and makes itself useful in a variety of ways.

Proceedings of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County.

OFFICIAL.

Regular meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, N. J., held on Thursday, April 4th, 1907, at 2:30 p. m. Roll call showed the following members present, Director King, Freeholders Adams, Cady, Cladek, Darby, Doane, Donahue, Fay, Gruener, Jones, Leah, Maurer, Meisel, Perry, Pierson, Smith, Swain, Wilbur and Woodruff, 20.

The minutes of previous meetings, Jan. 2d, 1907, Feb. 7th, 1907, and reading of the minutes of meeting being omitted) were on motion approved as read.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From the First Street Extension Association of Elizabeth, N. J., heartily endorsing the action of this board in the matter of building a bridge over Elizabeth river, so as to extend First street toward the direction of our factories; and also with the view of a continuous road made to Roosevelt. After being read in full the communication was received and placed on file.

From Mr. J. Phillard of the New Jersey and Staten Island Ferry Co. stating that they had received a letter from the clerk of this board advising that a special committee had been appointed to confer with the said company relative to ferry rates between States Island and Elizabethport, and that before they their wharves into the Perstan gulf, where it is generally supposed that the Garden of Eden was located. OFFICIAL.

It was stated that an agent of the Trolley Company would appear before the borough council on the 5th of April and endeavor to straighten matters out.

On motion of Freeholder Cladek, it was ordered that the two foregoing communications be received and placed on file.

From Lenox Brick Company, as follows:

Cliffwood, N. J., March 22, 1907.

Dear Sirs: Through neglecting to keep the South street draw in working order the draw was unable to get to her destination when the navigation was blocked in this manner, which is the duty of the man in charge. Be assured that the draw bridge is in working order. Enclosed there is a bill for the amount.

On motion of Freeholder Gruener, received, and referred to the Elizabeth drawbridge committee and county attorney, they to report back to this board.

REPORTS OF COMMITEES.

By the committee to settle with the sheriff, as follows:

Gentlemen: The undersigned committee respectfully report, that after having had a conference with the sheriff respecting the compensation to be paid him for the furnishing of board to the prisoners, etc., we have come to an understanding with the sheriff as to the terms to be agreed upon, which terms are embodied in a contract herewith submitted, and we would recommend the acceptance of said contract, and that the Director of this board be authorized to execute the same.

Dated April 4th, 1907.

Very respectfully submitted, E. K. Adams, J. Hervey Doane, Adolph H. Gruener, Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Robison the clerk read the agreement in full and, after being laid over temporarily, the report of the committee and the agreement were taken up later, and, on motion of Freeholder Cady, were both adopted on roll call by a unanimous vote.

By the committee on county roads:

Gentlemen: The undersigned, county road committee, to whom was referred the consideration of the application for the purchasing of land and widening of the county road at the Boulevard and Jefferson street and Broad street in the town of Westfield, would respectfully report that they have inspected said premises in connection with the representatives of the town of Westfield, and while we unanimously concede that said improvements are much desired, and would be of great benefit to the inhabitants of teh town of Westfield as well as the traveling public, yet we find that before the said proposed improvement, it would be necessary either to purchase or condemn lands owned by private individuals at said location, and we are advised by the county attorney that under the County Road Act there is no provision authorizing this board to either purchase or condemn private property for said purposes, we would recommend that on condition that the town of Westfield procure said property, either by purchase or otherwise, that this board then, at the county expense, proceed with the work necessary to macadam and straighten said road and gutter same.

Dated April 4th, 1907.

Very respectfully submitted, E. K. Adams, Henry Fay Jones, Thomas J. Pierson, S. P. T. Wilbur, Committee.

Freeholder Cady moved that the report be received and recommendation adopted, which was so ordered on roll call by an unanimous vote.

By Joint Committee of Union and Somerset counties, as follows:

Gentlemen: At a meeting of the joint committee of this board with the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Somerset a contract was awarded to J. E. Kelley for the building of the abutment walls at the bridge over Green Brook at West End avenue, in the town of Dunellen, for the sum of $2,460, he being the lowest bidder; and whereas, said Joseph E. Kelley, after presenting said bid, has failed to enter into a bond with us, has declined to execute said contract, representing that he had secured a position which would necessarily prevent him from the building of said wall walls; and whereas, Arthur E. Smith was the next lowest bidder for said work, and he having signified his willingness to execute the contract for the sum, $2,545, so bid by him; therefore, be it resolved, that the director of this board be authorized and empowered to execute said contract with said Arthur E. Smith, provided the board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Somerset concur therein and jointly execute the same.

Respectfully, S. P. T. Wilbur, chairman; Charles A. Smith, J. Hervey Doane, John Robinson, Adolph H. Gruener, committee.

Freeholder Jones moved that the report be received and recommendation adopted, which was so ordered on roll call by an unanimous vote.

By the committee to inspect bridge at St. George avenue, near Woodbridge line, Rahway:

Your committee reports that they have examined the bridge and find that the telephone company has laid pipes across the same, supported from the steel beams of the bridge, and enclosed in a heavy mass of concrete. The bridge is an iron truss bridge with a concrete floor, and the very large increased weight put on the structure by reason of the pipes and concrete of the telephone company, and the weight of the braking of some of the tie rods, which bind together diagonally, the steel floor beams. Other tie rods are bent and will soon break, if not relieved. If the telephone company has had the right given it to lay pipes across this bridge, the work was not properly done in the first place, your committee would recommend that the repairs be made and paid for by the telephone company, and that the work be done under the supervision of the Board of Freeholders. Your committee would further recommend that the county attorney be requested to notify the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company, that this bridge has been injured by reason of their work, and that they are requested to take immediate steps to make the necessary repairs to this bridge, at their own expense.

Report submitted, Adolph H. Gruener, Joseph Perry, George B. Cladek, committee.

On motion of Freeholder Darby the report was received and recommendation adopted without dissent.

The special committee appointed to revise and redraft the by-laws of the board presented their report, and on motion of Freeholder Pierson it was ordered that the report be laid over one month, and that typewritten copies of the report be furnished to each member of the board.

NEW BUSINESS.

By Freeholder Gruener: Resolved, That a committee of five be appointed by the Director, to consider the necessity of, and probable cost of the construction of a bridge over Rahway River on the line of Railway river, in the city of Rahway, between Central avenue and Church street, said bridge having been heretofore built by the county, and a subsequent meeting of this board.

On motion of Freeholder Krouse the resolution was adopted without dissent. The Director appointed on the said committee, Freeholders Gruener, Krouse, Woodruff, Donahue and Cady.

By Freeholder Cady: Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to visit and examine the Division avenue and Summit, with the view of lengthening the bridge and to build a walk on the south side of the avenue.

On motion of Freeholder Gruener the resolution was adopted without dissent, and the Director appointed as the said committee, Freeholders Cady, Jones and Perry.

By Freeholder Cladek: Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to examine the bridge on Springfield avenue, Summit, opposite Briant's Pond, and report to the board at its next meeting as to the necessity of in the fateway of the bridge, and to recommend a course of action looking toward the removal of the stoppages.

On motion of Freeholder Krouse the resolution was adopted without dissent. The Director appointed as the said committee, Freeholders Swain, Smith and Maurer.

By Freeholder Cladek: "Whereas, hereinafter, on March 27th, 1905, control of certain roads in the city of Rahway was by action of this board relinquished, the same having been at the time of said relinquishment in a poor and rough condition; and whereas, it is desirable that said roads, or a part thereof should again be placed *under the con*trol of this board to the end that the same may be repaired and placed in a proper condition; therefore be it resolved, that this board assumes control of those parts of roads herein particularly described, viz.: Beginning at a point in the center line of St. George avenue, where the same intersects the boundary line dividing the township of Clark from the city of Rahway, thence running in a southwesterly direction along St. George avenue, its various courses through said city of Rahway to a point where the same intersects with Westfield avenue in said city. Also the following: Beginning at a point where the center line of St. George avenue intersects with the center line of Westfield avenue in the city of Rahway, thence westerly along the said avenue, its various courses and bends through the city of Rahway to a point where the center line of said road or avenue intersects the boundary line dividing the city of Rahway and the township of Clark; and be it further resolved: that a certified copy of this resolution be, by the clerk of this board, filed in the office of the county clerk, and that the map now on file be changed accordingly.

Freeholder Gruener moved the adoption of the resolution which was duly seconded, and after Freeholder Cladek had briefly explained the great need that there was for the said roads being repaired and put and placed in proper condition for public use and travel, the expense of which was not really incumbent upon the city of Rahway, the resolution on roll call was unanimously adopted.

Freeholder Meisel called attention to the fact that a short road between Summit and Springfield, on which roadways a county road, was in very bad condition. A sewer had been laid through said road by the city of Summit, which sewer had never afterwards been placed in proper condition. County Attorney Codington *said that this board had an agree*ment with the city of Summit that said city should repair the road, and he had so notified the common council of said city; no attention had been paid to the matter by said council but if now referred to the county road committee and county attorney, due notification was given to said city to make said repairs, and when was received, then the county attorney could take action under the law.

On motion of Freeholder Jones it was ordered that the matter be referred to the county road committee and county attorney.

Freeholder Woodruff also called attention to bad condition of County Road on certain portions of Morris Avenue and which matter was also *referred to the County Road Commit*tee for action.

SAN FRANCISCO LOSSES AFFECT NEW JERSEY.

In the annual report of Banking and Insurance Commissioner David O. Watkins there are reflected the enormous losses following the San Francisco disaster. This part of the commissioner's report in full has been submitted to Governor Stokes shows that 171 insurance companies are now doing business in New Jersey, an increase of thirteen over the year 1905. The companies reporting include 12 stock and 23 mutual fire companies of New Jersey, 101 stock and marine companies of other states, three mutual fire companies of other states, 32 stock and marine companies of foriegn countries.

The first of the tables offered in the report is entitled Assets, Liabilities and surplus of the companies other than the New Jersey mutuals. The aggregate capital of $67,571,390 is $8,018,515 greater than the total capitalization of the companies reporting for the year 1905. The assets amount to $1,902,204, the total being $460,771,297. Liabilities, exclusive of capital, amount to $232,146,658, which is an increase of $27,809,404. The surplus above capital and all liabilities, which amounts to $228,624,639, is the large reduction of $37,730,943 of the year, and is in striking contrast to the gain of $221,476,918 in net surplus in 1905. The tremendous losses sustained by the companies in the San Francisco conflagration accounts for the heavy depletion in their accumulated funds. It should be stated in this connection that many millions of dollars were subsequently paid in by stockholders to restore deficiencies without which the reduction in surplus would have been materially larger.

The tabular statement giving the income and disbursement for the year presetns very unusual results owing to the extent to which the companies were involved through the San Francisco disaster. The fire insurance premiums received aggregated $223,914,373, or $19,372,264 more than in 1905, but the fire losses paid were greater by $123,276,613, the total being $221,644,684, which is within $2,269,689 of the whole year's fire premiums. The companies of foreign countries remitted in 1905 to their home offices $5,887,113 more than they received therefrom, while in the past year the receipts exceeded the remittances by $47,221,477, the larger portion of which went to pay San Francisco claims. The gross income for the year, which amounted to $338,797,137 and exceeded by $105,765,847 the total income of the preceding year, was but $582,359 greater than the total disbursement, contrasted with an income of $22,364,674 in 1906.
